Newcorn Springs Surprise In Judgeship Controversy

Declaring that he did not believe in dragging the judiciary into politics, William Newcorn sprang a surprise on the members of the Union County Republican Committee last night when he informed them that he did not seek their endorsement as a body for the appointment of Judge of the Court of Common Pleas to succeed James C. Connolly. Mr. Newcorn's statement was made after Peter J. Olde, of Elizabeth, had introduced a resolution placing the Plainfielder's name before Governor Edge as the favorite candidate for the office.

A general discussion followed in which Mr. Newcorn's friends at first refused to see the matter in the same light as he did but later they realized that his stand was a commendable one. In order to make it a matter of record, the resolution was voted down unanimously but the committee men who favor Mr. Newcorn will work as individuals for his appointment. Petitions have already been circulated throughout the county in which the former head of the local District Court is set forth as the best qualified man for the county judgeship. This has been signed by practically every lawyer in Plainfield, and Westfield together with a flattering number from Elizabeth.

Former Senator Carlton M. Pierce, of Cranford, is the opposing candidate for the appointment. In the discussion last night it was emphasized that he was a New York lawyer and had practically no experience as a practitioner in New Jersey courts. Richard A. Boardman, a member of the committee from the Second ward of Plainfield, was one of the men who pointed out this deficiency. He informed the gathering that New York would not think of appointing a lawyer who practiced in Jersey City to the bench in Manhattan and neither did a Camden attorney have any chance in Philadelphia. He further stated that New York and Philadelphia lawyers had gotten altogether too much foothold in New Jersey and it was time that something was done to prevent further inroads on State rights.

State Banking Commissioner Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield, was also a speaker at the meeting. He said he had had a talk with Governor Edge on Kednesday and the latter informed him that there had been no pre-election pledge made to Senator Pierce. As far as he was concerned, the Governor said he was still open to conviction in the selection of Judge Connolly's successor. At the close of the meeting the question was asked informally as to where the story had originated that Mr. Pierce had been promised the judgeship if he would remain out of the Senatorial race at the September primaries of last year. The answer was not forthcoming but one statement was made plain by men in a position to know. This was that Senator William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, had at no time taken any part in an agreement to sanction Mr. Pierce's candidacy for the Union county judiciary if he were given a clear field in the Senatorial contest. Mr. Runyon, it was stated in terms that allowed of no misconception, had told the political powers that Mr. Pierce could enter the race if he had a mind to but whether he did or not he (Mr. Runyon) would go before the people on his merits.

In the aftermath following last night's meeting it was generally agreed that Mr. Newcorn's chances for securing the judgeship were of the best and that the stand he took in refusing to allow the county committee to endorse him was one that would meet with the approval of the people. From now on the committeemen and lawyers who are supporting his candidacy will do all in their power to convince Governor Edge that he has all the qualifications for the office and his appointment would meet with the approbation of the Union County Bar.

The attendance at the meeting was quite large and included ten of the eighteen members from Plainfield.

K. of C. Plan Drive In City To Raise $30,000

To carry on the splendid war relief work that was inaugurated last summer, the Grand Council of the Knights of Columbus has undertaken the task of raising a fund of $5,000,000. It will be gathered by personal subscription throughout the United States and the major portion of the big sum is to be expended in erecting and maintaining soldiers' club-houses such as are now located at Camp Dix, Camp McClellan and other cantonments. These were built and furnished out of a $2,000,000 fund contributed by the Columbian Knights on the assessment plan. Many Plainfielders have had an opportunity of seeing what great work is accomplished in this way as the Knights maintain their buildings on exactly the same plan as that of the Y. M. C. A. stations. All denominations are welcomed and the structures are not only used as recreation places by the boys in Uncle Sam's army but also even ever to religious services, lectures, entertainments and other gathering purposes.

Of the $5,000,000 fund, Watchung Council, of this city, has been alloted a pro-rata share of $30,000. In receiving their notice to this effect, the members realize that it meant further solicitation from a public that has already been contributing to war relief but believe that its worthiness of the cause and the splendid results already obtained by the K. of C. will result in a liberal response to the forthcoming appeal. A meeting was held at the club-house last night, at which the campaign committee appointed by Grand Knight Charles Kline ordered for immediate service. The method of subscription will be much the same as that adopted by the Red Cross and the Y. M. C. A. The committee has issued the following formal statement:

"The people of this community have in the recent past displayed a degree of generosity which would seem to entitle them to a rest from appeals for funds for some time to come, but the urgent demands which are war has imposed upon the people of this country, make it necessary to call upon them for a further display of liberality.

"It should be understood that the funds collected by the Columbians will not be used for Catholic soldiers alone, but for the benefit of all men in the service. We have a well organized body of men in charge of war welfare activities and it is solely for the purpose of aiding this line of endeavor that the people, irrespective of race, creed or color, are asked to contribute their mite.

"A strict accounting will be made to the Government of all funds disposed. The members of the order have themselves already contributed $2,000,000. But at least $5,000,000 will be required to carry out the projects we have in contemplation, and a portion of this must be raised locally."

Watchung Council, in addition to contributing its share to the previous fund of $2,000,000 and entering into the spirit of the new drive, has also offered the use of the Columbus Club building to the Government when and in whatever of its quarters to ordnance posts in this vicinity who are not in a position to receive immediate quarters. The offer came as a result of the mistake which sent a large number of men from Fort Slocum to Raritan in the belief that they were going to the new quartermasters' receiving station of the Raritan River below Bonhamton. The soldiers were in a quandary as to what to do when they could find no Government accommodations and had to be cared for by the people of Raritan and Somerville. If such an emergency as this should arise again, the Columbus Club would be able to house comfortably fully 300 men.

Three Damage Cases In Wake of Auto Accident Year Ago

Three suits as the result of an automobile accident on Springfield avenue, Scotch Plains, more than a year ago in which Hilda Hodgson, nineteen years old, was killed, will be started before Judge Slizer during the present term of the Supreme and Circuit cases at Elizabeth beginning January 28.

Rowland Depew, a young man whose home is in Orange, who was driving the car, is the defendant in each case, in which Thomas V. Hodgson is trying to obtain damages for the death of his daughter. James Hodgson, a sister, and Hattie Perrine are both suing because of injuries. The amount in each case has not been made public. The accident occurred on a foggy Sunday night when the two Hodgson girls and the Perrine girl were walking home from church. Just as they reached by-lane Depew approached from the rear and ran directly into them, killing the one and seriously injuring the other two. Depew stood trial before Judge Connolly and escaped with a heavy fine. C. Raymond Lyons, of Newark, will defend Depew, and William A. Codington, of this city, is counsel for the complainants.

The following Plainfield cases are scheduled for the term: Plainfield Board of Education against Paul J. Eyner; Daniel McNamara against Albert J. Lane; William E. Tuttle, receiver, against Charles Hyde; Plainfield Trust Company, administrator, against George W. Bird, and Alice E. Mather against Laing Machine Auto Repair Company.

MAYOR'S PROCLAMATION

WATER FAMINE MENACE

To the People of Plainfield:

A serious danger threatens the community, greater than that which we have had to face in many years. Owing to the long continuance of zero weather and the freezing of pipes, householders are trying to protect themselves by letting water run from the faucets in their homes.

The Water Company has officially reported to me this morning that the aggregate waste is enormous, and that unless the practice immediately is discontinued the community may shortly be entirely out of water. Half the available daily supply for the City is being wasted. Not only is there a lack of water, and of pressure, with which to fight fire, but we shall be without water for ordinary household uses unless the people awake to the danger. In high portion of the City there is already a complete water famine. The freezing of pipes can be avoided if people will take the trouble to meet the present situation by wrapping them up, and closing cracks and apertures through which the cold air enters the house.

I do therefore call upon the citizens to show their regard for the common welfare by disinterested individual action. And I do further warn the people that unless this requested is heeded I shall direct the Police Department assisted by the Home Defense League, by inspection of factories, public buildings and homes, to report all parties ignoring this notice; and shall request the Water Company to shut all water immediately off their houses and buildings. In this great emergency prompt action is necessary or the whole community will pay the penalty of individual selfishness.

Coal Famine Serious Here, Kenney Says

John J. Kenney, local member of the advisory committee to the Union County Fuel Administrator, called a meeting of all retail coal merchants Wednesday afternoon to discuss the local fuel situation.

The reports of the coal merchants showed that while there is a serious shortage of coal in the city, the situation can probably be satisfactorily met if the public does not try to accumulate more than one week's supply.

The reports further showed that the dealers were only able to deliver about fifty per cent. of their normal output owing to the extreme weather, lack of labor, and the bad hauling conditions. All dealers are far behind in their deliveries.

It was reported that some people were trying to hoard coal. This has been done by placing orders with several merchants and it was stated that a wagon from two or more yards have arrived at a house at the same time or shortly after each other.

Mr. Kenney wants no one to be without coal and orders were given to the merchants to deliver not more than one week's supply to anyone until the present shortage is overcome. Should any one order coal for immediate delivery be found to have more than one week's supply on hand the coal is to be returned to the yard or delivered to some one else and the names of such persons reported to the Fuel Administrator.

These people will then be reported to each coal merchant with instructions not to accept further orders from them without specific instructions from the Fuel Administrator.

Every effort is being made by the Fuel Administrator to get coal shipped to Plainfield and Mr. Kenney expects to have enough for all within a couple of weeks if the public will conserve the present stock as much as possible.

Thawing Out Pipes Causes Accidental Scalding of Child

The working thawing out frozen water pipes at the home of Daniel Keiderding on East Second Street, Saturday night, brought about the severe scalding of Mr. Keiderding's six-year-old daughter, Ruth. Members of the household undertook to restore the pipes to their normal condition and Miss Dorothy Keiderling, another daughter, started to carry hot water from the kitchen for the purpose. As she was passing through the dining room, Ruth ran against her accidentally and the vessel containing the scalding water was knocked against her.

The child was badly burned on the right shoulder and the right arm as far down the wrist as also suffered scalds about the chest. Dr. C. B. Lufburrow responded within ten minutes after a telephone call was sent to him but by the time he reached the house the child was in great agony. The application of home remedies helped to keep the burns from penetrating the flesh in such a manner as to prevent fatal results. While the little girl is in no danger, she still suffers greatly from the scalds and will bear a series of frightful scars for the rest of her life. There was one little piece of good fortune in the accident and that was that none of the boiling water splashed on Ruth's face, thus preventing the marring of her features. Miss Dorothy Keiderling escaped the water entirely.

Important! STOP Wasting Water

The reserve supply reservoir at Fanwood is empty. Water cannot be pumped at Netherwood as fast as it is being wasted.

Do not depend upon your neighbors to stop wasting water. Stop it on your own premises at once. There is grave danger in case of fire.

January 3, 1917.

Respectfully yours,
A. D. JENNINGS,
Chief P. F. D.

Muhlenberg Nurse Begins War Duty

Miss Clara Charlton, of East Fifth street, left this week for Camp Shelby, Hattesburg, Miss., on assignment from the Red Cross Society to begin work as nurse in the soldiers' hospital at that cantonment. Miss Charlton, who is a native of Meadowvale, Ont., enlisted in the service last fall and has since been on call. She is a graduate of Muhlenberg's training school, having been a member of the class of 1910. In the practice of her profession, which has been in Plainfield, she has been unusually successful and her relinquishment of private work for service to the country came as a great sacrifice to herself.

Miss Charlton is one of half a dozen Muhlenberg graduates who have placed stars on the local institution's service flag. Miss Harriet Connolly, a member of the class of 1915, enlisted a few months ago and was almost immediately sent to Camp Gordon at Atlanta, Ga. Miss Helen Wilbee, of the class of 1910, was accepted for service in September and is on call to go abroad with the medical unit now being organized in Philadelphia. Several other Muhlenberg nurses have either been engaged in active duty since last summer or are awaiting orders to report to cantonments.

New Curate Enters Upon Duties Here

Rev. Father Hubert Holsters, the new curate of St. Mary's church, appointed to succeed Rev. Father Henry Mahoney, entered upon his new duties last Sunday when he officiated at various services through the day. While this section has previously been unknown to him, he has entered upon the work with ready adaptability and is counted upon as being a strong addition to the parish.

Father Holsters is a native of Belgium and prepared for the priesthood at Louvaine. He was ordained seven years ago. He served in a parish at Blackborn, England, until nearly four years ago, at which time he came to America as curate for the Church of the Sacred Heart at Jersey City. He was transferred from that parish to Plainfield and the vacancy caused by his removal has been filled by Father Mahoney. The latter was curate in St. Patrick's parish, Jersey City, before he was assigned to Plainfield in February, 1917. He is a graduate of Seton Hall College.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Wilton, of West Third street left Tuesday for Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where they will spend two weeks at the home of Mrs. Wilton's parents.

Crowder Urges Listing of Men Becoming of Age

Immediate registration for military service of all men who have become 21 years of age since the first draft registration was urged today by Provost Marshal General Crowder in his annual report to the Secretary of War.

If this is done and similar registration held each year, 700,000 physically fit men of Class 1, the Provost Marshal General stated, will be available for service every twelve months, and this would not necessitate taking men from the deferred exemption classes.

"The policy and belief of this office is that in all probability it will be possible to fill all our military needs from Class One," the reporter stated.

Skilled labor and farmers will be drafted from the deferred classes, Crowder intimated, "should the situation demand."

"The situation in these respects is serious now, particularly in the shipbuilding industry and in factories working on war munitions," he added. "It is probable there will be a shortage of farm labor in the spring, although the new draft regulations have relieved that situation."

The report was placed before Congress today as the request for an amendment to the selective service act, which would change the plan of allotting quotas.

In the first draft the quotas were based only on the population, but Crowder asks that the new basis be made the number of men found fit in class one in each district. Dissatisfaction was caused in many districts under the last draft because the large number of aliens, all of whom were exempt, caused the quotas to be much higher than the average.

The per capita cost of drafting has been $4.32, which is about one-fourth the amount it cost the Government to get each volunteer into the army. The lowest per capita cost was in Oklahoma, where the average was $1.57, while Delaware led the list with $16 for each man. This includes all expenses necessary to get the man to the camps.

Crowder's report was submitted to Congress at noon.

Twenty-nine per cent. of the men called for physical examination were found physically deficient, it shows.

The Middle West is producing the most stalwart figures, the percentages of exemptions on account of physical disability being lower there than in the East or Pacific coast. South Dakota leads the list, while Pennsylvania was the most deficient in this respect. The New England States in general and New York made a poor showing.

The fighters of today are superior to those of the Civil War, the report states, for the percentage of physical examinations in the cities was about 32 or three per cent. more than today.

The love of the foreigner for the land of his adoption is shown by the fact that there are more than 76,000 aliens in the National Army. They are volunteers, for it was necessary for them to waive the exemption granted all aliens before being accepted. A remarkable patriotic fervor existed in Oregon, where the report shows that for every 100 men taken in the draft 158 volunteered. The other States range down to sixty-five volunteers for every 100 drafted.

The married men loom up in the new army in greater force than was expected, more than 163,000 being in this service.

Government Proposes to Take Over Vitaphone Plant

While no official confirmation could be secured here, information from reliable sources conveys the news that the federal authorities contemplate taking over the Vitaphone Company's factory on upper North avenue for munition purposes. Agents for the Government have made a thorough inspection of the plant which shows that it is fully equipped for small machine work required in the preparation of timing devices used on explosive shells. When the change will come about has not been stated as yet but to all appearances it will be some time within the coming week. The Vitaphone factory as it stands today has a capacity of 200 workmen. The information secured so far shows that when the Government commandeers the place one of the first steps taken will be to add a new building. This means that the operating force will be greatly enlarged and make the factory one of the most important in the city.

In the construction of talking machines such as the Vitaphone concern manufactures all the work is on small parts calling for an almost perfect degree of exactness. This same rule applies to the production of timing devices used on the shells fired by the Allied guns. They are so fixed that an explosion takes place at an absolute definite time and the slightest deviation in the mechanical parts might result in a premature explosion disastrous to the firing forces. Only one-ten thousandth part of an inch is allowed as an offset in any of the timers. The Government decided that phonograph factories were the best equipped with the proper machinery for this class of work and early in the war took over a part of the Victor and Edison factories. At the present time one third of the Victor company's 10,000 employes in the Camden factory are doing Government work.

It is understood that the preliminary arrangements called for the Vitaphone concern giving the Government seventy-five per cent. of the production, leaving the other twenty-five per cent. for a continuance of Vitaphone manufactures. Clinton D. Repp, of Park avenue, is the head of the concern, but when questioned about the matter declared he was not in a position to discuss the rumor. The Vitaphone shop has recently been in the hands of a trustee appointed by the courts, but a new incorporation formed some time ago took over the company's property, making a partial payment on the estimated valuation. The final payment on this figure is to be made January 10, the procedure that will place the concern free and clear of all court incumbrances. During the past six months the Vitaphone plant has been rushed with orders and business gave promise of continuing for a long time to come. The twenty-five per cent. clause in manufacture would permit the company to take care of all orders in hand now and arrange for any other deliveries that might arise.

The taking over of the Vitaphone shop will mean the second Plainfield plant the Government has commandeered. The first was the Stott Press Works, which now has a capacity force of men working day and night on gun mounts.

Former Pond Man Gets Fine Position

Charles Foster, who recently sold his residence on West Sixth street and has since been living on Front street, has secured an excellent position as erector for the Manning, Maxwell & Moore selling concern, one of the largest distributors of factory equipment in this country. Mr. Foster left Plainfield Monday for Newport News, Va., where he began his work by directing the installation of new equipment in a government shipbuilding plant. From Newport News he will be transferred to New England and later to duties in the West.

Mr. Foster was connected with the old Machine Tool Company for thirty-six years previous to his resignation last summer. He was associated with the concern when it was located at Worcester, Mass., and was one of the two men who picked the present site of the big plant on South Second street. The other man who Thomas Lee, for many years superintendent for the Pond people. The pair made a special trip to Plainfield early in 1887 and the enthusiastic report they gave of Plainfield and its advantages for shipping facilities caused the board of directors to remove the factory from Worcester to this city.

In the last few years of his connection with the Pond Company, Mr. Foster acted as erecting foreman and emergency repair man. In this capacity he journeyed to all parts of the United States and Canada, forming friendships of a lasting nature with the heads of many big industrial plants. He is a member of Plainfield Lodge of Elks and his associates of the organization gave him a farewell gathering at the club-house Monday.

MISS MEHL ENGAGED TO J. ATWOOD GIDDINGS.

Announcement was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Ethel Carolyn Mehl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Mehl, of Madison avenue, to J. Atwood Giddings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Giddings, of Grand avenue, Dunellen. The wedding date has not been set.

Mr. Giddings recently completed all examinations at the Princeton aviation field and has received a commission in the U. S. aerial corps. He will leave for a Texas training field within the next few days. Miss Mehl is a graduate of the Plainfield High School and also of the Montclair Normal School. She is at present a member of the teaching corps in the kindergarten department of the Irving School.

WILLIAM A. WOODRUFF SLIGHTLY IMPROVED TODAY.

William A. Woodruff, of East Second street, who has been critically ill during the past week, was reported this morning as being slightly improved. His condition is still regarded as grave, however, and the outcome is yet in doubt. The illness has been caused by hemorrhages of the stomach.

Mrs. Harry S. Potter, Mr. Woodruff's only daughter, was summoned from El Paso, Tex., because of the seriousness of her mother's illness and reached Plainfield Monday night.

Raritan's Mayor Thanked by Gilkyson For Aiding Recruits

Acting Adjutant General Gilkyson has called attention to the spirit of patriotism shown by Mayor Thomas P. Gallagher, of Raritan, and others, in the situation which arose there last week by reason of the arrival of men seeking enlistment in the Ordnance Department. The War Department announced that drafted men might enlist in this branch of the service at Raritan, and men began to arrive from as far away as Kansas and Texas. On reaching their destination the men discovered that there was no station of a military character at Raritan, and the Mayor, learning of the situation, appealed to State authorities and arranged for the accommodation of the prospective soldiers, pending action by the military authorities.

First Lieutenant Harold L. Leonard, of Somerville, was detailed by the Adjutant General's department to take the situation in hand, and the War Department advised that an ordnance officer was on his way to Raritan for the purpose of shifting the recruits to Camp Upton, New York State. At the same time all draft boards were instructed to discontinue receiving men for induction at Raritan. In one telegram received from Washington there was this sentence: "Ordnance Department insists that there is a depot at Raritan."

An interesting feature of the situation is the fact that Raritan is in Somerset county, near the home of United States Senator Frelinghuysen, who, as a member of the Military Committee of the Senate, has been investigating the work of the Ordnance Department of the Army.

To provide for possible housing of a large number of men at this point, Acting Adjutant General Gilkyson dispatched fifty cots and 100 blankets to the Somerville Armory, and arranged to send 300 more cots and 600 more blankets to the Elizabeth Armory. It is stated that when the men have been at Raritan during the last month looking for employment in view of the proposed location of the ordnance depot there.

MRS. ELIZABETH MACCONNELL DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS.

Mrs. Elizabeth MacConnell, widow of Thomas MacConnell, died last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Roy C. Smalley, of 913 West Third street. She had been ill a long time.

Mrs. MacConnell was a native of Scotland but had lived in Plainfield for more than thirty years. She was a member of Hope Memorial chapel and had a wide acquaintance. Beside Mrs. Smalley, she leaves one other daughter and three sons. The latter are Andrew MacConnell, of West Third street, this city; William MacConnell, of Newark, and James MacConnell, living in the West.

The funeral will be held at the late home Sunday afternoon and will be in charge of Rev. D. W. Skellenger. The service will be private. Interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

William Ahern, of North avenue, has returned to Penn State College.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

"Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The Board of Education this week ordered the closing of the night school sessions for industrial workers. So many young men have been called away by the war that attendances have materially decreased and the suspension of this educational feature will help in the saving of coal through not having to heat the rooms at night. The change went into effect Wednesday night.

Ice cutting commenced on local ponds during the past week. The crop is of excellent quality and runs as big as fourteen inches in thickness. The work at Watchung has not progressed as satisfactorily as might be expected owing to the shortage of help.

Those who contemplate becoming members in the new class in surgical dressings to be started next Monday night at the chapter of the Red Cross are requested to enter, their names not later than tonight. The headquarters building is located at 1107 Watchung avenue and the telephone number is 615. The class will begin its work next Monday night.

In order to demonstrate the spirit of co-operation that should exist between Plainfield and North Plainfield in the coming year, Mayor Leighton Calkins spent a good part of New Year's day in the borough. He sat beside Mayor William L. Smalley at the reorganization meeting of the North Plainfield Council, reviewed the North Plainfield Home Defense League and made a general tour of the borough offices. This is the first time on record that a Plainfield chief executive showed his willingness to get in real touch with borough affairs.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., installed these officers at their regular communication Tuesday night: Worshipful master, William Reynolds; senior warden, Robert H. Barnard; junior warden, Alfred H. Peck; treasurer, William McDowell Cargill; secretary, Robert Kenny; senior deacon, Alfred M. Korff; junior master of ceremonies, W. H. Selkin; senior steward, Francis N. Anderson; tyler, Kasper Bolsterle. During the evening a past master's jewel and apron were presented to LeRoy DeCamp, the retiring worshipful master, and a handsome gavel was given to the incoming worshipful master, William Reynolds.

At the regular meeting at Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., tonight, a full report will be received in the membership campaign and the following officers will be installed for the ensuing six months: Master of work, Arthur Joy; chancellor commander, David C. Allen; vice chancellor commander, Harry C. Lodge; prelate, Harry Fraleigh; master at arms, Harry Keen; inner guard, Henry Winter; outer guard, Peter Stram; exchequer, John G. Bicknell; master of finance, J. B. Higgins; keeper of records and seal, Fred Douglass; Grand Lodge representative, Clarence Rittenhouse; alternate, John G. Bicknell; trustee, Thomas Caleen.

Because of the first Tuesday of the month falling on New Year's day, the January meeting of the Dehydration Committee of the Red Cross will be held next Tuesday. All members are urged to be present.

The time-honored custom of closing the local banks at 1 o'clock on Saturdays has been changed by mutual consent of the five local institutions to 12 o'clock. The change will go into effect for the first time tomorrow and all patrons of the Plainfield banking houses are hereby notified to keep the innovation in mind, or dire results may follow.

Captain David Fallon, a member of the British army for thirteen years and wearer of the military cross, addressed a meeting of over 400 people at the Plainfield High School, Friday night. This attendance is considered large in view of the fact that the weather was bitter cold. Captain Fallon's lecture is entitled "Fighting Through Hell" and he gave a most graphic picture of his part in the Allied campaigns at the Dardanelles and on the Somme front. He has been badly crippled and at the present time is on leave of absence from the army until four months after the war. The captain is an able literary man and beside being war editor for the New York Herald has his book "Fighting Through Hell," now in press.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association is making elaborate preparations for a ball to be held at the West Front street headquarters on Washington's birthday, February 21. The details of the affair are being worked out by the following committees: Chairman, S. Krauthamer; secretary, B. Seltzer; cashier, M. Tanner; detail committee, M. Schwartz; publicity committee, M. Zimmerman; entertainment committee, A. Richards, H. Fox, I. Lang and H. Rosenbaum.

Pocahontas Council, Jr. O. U. A. M. at its meeting the past week elected these officers: Junior past councilor, Gabriel Glaser; councilor, Hyman Levers; vice councilor, A. Hoffman; conductor, William Penneble; warden, William Neal; inside guard, John Krieger, to complete; outside guard, Frank Hartpence; assistant secretary, H. Hartpence; financial secretary, Ephraim Compton; trustee, G. M. Smith; chairman house committee, W. Hartpence.

Mrs. Peter McIvers, of Codington avenue, is regaining the use of her arm after an accident at her home a few days ago. A sudden trip over an unseen obstruction caused her to fall toward a windo wand her hand was pushed through a pane of glass. She received several bad cuts that required the services of the doctor.

The old year was watched out and the new one in by a large gathering of borough firemen and citizens at the somerset street headquarters, Monday night. Chief William T. McCollough had issued a general invitation for all hands to "drop in" and the response was very gratifying. The last hours of 1917 were while away with card playing and the usual fun fest that always follows a "get together" of the boys.

Editorial Briefs

COMMENT EXPRESSED BY NEWSPAPER MEN IN THIS AND OTHER STATES ON CURRENT TOPICS.

Cheaper Sea Food.
(From the Jersey Journal.)

The State Commission on the High Cost of Living, from which some people expected much, has, after ten months of investigation, brought forth the suggestion that the Legislature, at its coming session in January, remove many of the restrictions placed on fishing in New Jersey, particularly with reference to seines off the coast, and that the Legislature help to bring the fish into easier possession of the people.

This will open up a profitable discussion in Trenton if those behind the wise suggestion mean business and really intend to afford some relief in the way of making the cost of foodstuffs come down, at least as far as it concerns sea food.

One of the first snags that the Legislature will strike will be the Fishing Trust, but if the lawmakers get down to brass tacks and go ahead regardless of special interests, the middlemen, who now help to jack up the prices of sea food, will get the jolt that they have deserved for a long time.

Water Transportation.
(From the Trenton Times.)

According to a statement made by the United States Department of Commerce, thousands of tons of freight are now being carried by river barges, relieving to that extent the war-time burden of the railroads. In this neighborhood and in the Northeast and in the Northwest it will be impossible to utilize the boats at present, but there are fully nine months in the year when the rivers and canals are free of ice.

Too little attention has been given to the subject of water transportation, especially during the past three years of the war. Even now plans should be under way to relieve the railroads of some of their traffic as soon as spring opens, and other plans should be under consideration for the building of the New Jersey ship canal and the development of the system of inland waterways between New England and the South.

Iron Fields and War.
(From the Minneapolis Tribune.)

In this, the age of Iron, Germany has resolved to be mistress of iron, possessed of the ore and if the iron nature, too. An Alsatian iron expert says that Germany went to war to secure the iron deposits of French Lorraine, which amount to one-fifth of all there is in the world. The Westphalian iron interests now demand of the Kaiser that the Briey and Longwy districts of French Lorraine be annexed. The perceptive Italian historian, Ferrero, said in the first year of war that if Germany secured the Briey district, she would ultimately dominate the world. It is not too much to say that the Briey district is the key of this conflict. Germany holds it today, and when she smashed at Verdun she endeavored to enlarge the margin around Briey.

The distance between the French fortress at Verdun and the German fortress at Metz is about forty miles, and the Briey basin lies about ten miles northwest of Metz and twenty-five miles east of Verdun. That small area, a salient of France to the Luxemburg line, is the decisive field. If Germany retains it, the future is hers. If France regain it, Germany has lost the game. . . . This contention would be clearer, if we consider what America would suffer, were she deprived of the Minnesota and Upper Michigan iron deposits.

It is not an exaggeration to say that without the Lake Superior ores the United States would be powerless to wage a great offensive war. Perhaps she would be unable to defend herself against a powerful assault. For the sine qua non of twentieth century warfare is iron; plenty of iron. Without iron, no Krupp, no Bethlehem Steel Works, no cannon, battleship, shells, nor anything that is effective in today's.

Fairly Remunerative.
(From the Trenton Times.)

"Only $250,000 profit for Camp Dix builders," we are told in an announcement that the cantonment has been practically completed. Well, that ought to be fairly remunerative to the contractors, inasmuch as the operation was financed by the Government, and all the builders had to do was to boss the job and take a rake-off of ten per cent. on all the labor and materials furnished.

Operations began about the middle of May. A quarter of a million dollars net profit for seven months' work is the showing, and it was lucky that the Government fixed a maximum. Not many contracting firms have the luck of getting anything so good; nor do mechanics often have the opportunity to make from $10 to $20 per day for little actual service rendered.

Jellicoe Tactics.
(From the New York Evening Post.)

The Jellicoe tactics of silent naval pressure are not of the kind to stir the imagination of the plain man, though even the least imaginative of Englishmen must have recognized what the navy was doing for England in keeping her virtually immune from the war horrors that have fallen on all the other belligerents, not excluding Germany. So, too, the defeat of the submarine, while easy enough to visualize in its results, lacks the dramatic value which a naval attack on German harbors would carry.

The slow but steady progress to the mastery of the U-boat is revealed in the last weekly submarine report, with eleven British vessels over 1,600 tons sunk. The first quarter of a year of the U-boat war showed an average of twenty-one large British ships sunk; the second quarter showed eighteen ships; the third quarter less than twelve ships; the four weeks since then a slight rise to something less than fourteen ships. It is not to Jellicoe alone that credit should go. The American Navy can claim its share. If German hopes based on the U-boat were truly all that they professed to be, then America has been in the war in very appreciable sense.

Ask for Holy Days.
(From the New York World)

Cardinal Gibbons has given his sanction to Roman Catholic miners working on the holy days falling within the holiday season. Is there any better use to which a holy day can be put than to make it a day of good works?

Women "Profiteers."
(From the New York World)

The possible feminization of another traditionally masculine vocation due to the war is indicated by the new policy of New York dress manufacturers of employing women as traveling salesmen in the place of men employes called to the colors. The experiment appears to have proved successful, the women sent out on the road having "in many cases got more business out of the territories allotted to them than the men whose places they took."

Women have shown a peculiar antness as buyers, both in foreign and domestic markets, for dress goods and other concerns. Nor is their employment as comercial travelers exactly the "innovation" that is claimed for it; the last census listed 2,593 women in this occupation, as compared with 161,027 men. The important thing is that the impetus now given to their employment as traveling salesmen and the decline of male competition on account of the draft will in all probability largely increase their numbers.

Granting their capabilities for the work, can women drummers ever fully take over the activities of their male predecessors? Can they carry to remote villages the last word in haberdashery, the latest "good story," the newest wrinkle from Broadway? It is to be proved.

Keen on Working.
(From the New York World)

Concerning that reported blaze in the Krupp works, it will be well to hope for the worst, but to keep on making guns and ammunition.

Tunnel and Bridge.
(From the Sunday Call)

If the Legislature follows the lead of Governor Edge, the State will bear the cost of constructing a tunnel under the Hudson between Jersey City and New York, and a bridge over the Delaware between Camden and Philadelphia. The Governor's plan is to pay for these improvements by a State tax, just as the State's roads are to be paid for under the new road act, but no tax is to be imposed for the purpose until the roads have been completed and paid for.

There is every reason why the State should bear the expense of these admitted necessities for the greater freedom of transportation and traffic. To have imposed the expense on the territory immediately adjoining the termini in this State would have been unjust, because the benefits from bridge and tunnel will accrue to every part of the commonwealth. To permit them to be constructed by private enterprise charging toll would be to erect a barrier *at each end of the State against in*terstate communication and commerce. They are indispensable links in any comprehensive National road system, and at the present time would be of inestimable value in expediting war preparations. Their importance in facilitating peaceful commerce and in promoting the free interchange of commodities needs no exposition.

At the present time the people have sufficient burdens to carry without being further taxed for these improvements, but there is every reason to expect a return to peace before the five years of road-building are up. They can then undertake the tunnel and bridge projects with the certain knowledge that they are making a wise and profitable investment.

Is Germany Starving?
(From the Philadelphia Ledger)

One of the unknown factors in the war is the internal condition of Germany. The collapse of Russia, the renewed Teutonic offensive on the western front and in Italy, may be discouraging to the Allies. Yet it is easy, in our ignorance of what is going on behind the lines, to take too gloomy a view of the situation. Thus Vorwaerts asserts that, though the profiteers and the upper classes still have enough to eat, no less than forty million Germans are literally starving. How long can they endure the pressure of want? Vorwaerts goes so far as to say that "we might have within a month an absolute catastrophe," resulting in defeat. This may be an exaggeration, intended to delude the Allies with false hopes. There would be no occasion for surprise, however, if the huge military Colossus should be broken to pieces by inward weakness. That has happened before in the world's history. Indeed, the very desperation of the German attempt to win a victory at no matter what loss of life is an ominous sign.

Economy In Sugar.
(From the New York Sun)

The truth is that Americans have used a great deal more sugar than they needed, probably considerably more than was good for them. They have come to regard the luxuries made from it as necessaries. Sugar is an invaluable but essential food; so is beef, but it harms nobody to desist from consuming too much of either of them. It may be that the economies adopted under compulsion will in a measure survive the circumstances that imposed them. If they do, there will be a National gain from the inconveniences we have lately experienced.

How trivial were the effects of the sugar shortage as it agected the ordinary man the coal famine has fully disclosed. That imposed actual suffering; it brought to the town and its population an acute realization of the difference between a necessary of existence and a luxury of life. While coal was lacking nothing was heard about sugar. The community had an actual cause for storm. It quickly suppressed its howls about the empty sugar barrel.

Thus we have learned to distinguish a danger from an annoyance, and the knowledge we have acquired may serve us well in the future.

What Good Is a Lid?

Several otherwise excellent burial vaults have tops that are simply laid over the casket and left to their own devices. This, of course, is handier and much cheaper. But what of its safety? The Norwalk Vault leaves nothing to chance; its top is securely cemented on by hand, and top and bottom become one solidpiece of masonry. Naturally, therefore, the Norwalk is sold everywhere the best is wanted; and naturally the best undertakers always recommend the Norwalk—it gives them a chance to guarantee the burial. American Camp Enlivens Staid Old English Town

In one of the most ancient cities of England is the principal camp in Great Britain of the United States army. A considerable change has come over the quiet town; it is full of unaccustomed bustle and animation, and the English that is spoken is not uttered with the local intonation.

The camp is what is known as a "passing" one. Men come there after landing on British soil and undergo a sort of quarantine for a week or so. Then, their whole unit having been assembled, they depart to be trained in France. The camp is po*liced by men of the United States* Marines. Some of them have already seen service in France.

The colonel commanding the camp is an old West Pointer. His adjutant, a captain of marines, is from Annapolis. There are a number of British officers and soldiers assigned to assist the Americans. The British officers are known technically as "liaison officers," but Tommy Atkins long ago shortened this to "Bliss," a useful nickname which has been adopted also by the American soldiers.

The camp, which was turned over by the British military authorities, is complete and well equipped. There is an excellent hospital, good "dry" canteens, clubs, chapels, banks, an express office and a good drug store. Members of the British Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, in regulation khaki uniform, are employed in an auxiliary capacity there, and the American officers and men alike express admiration of the way they carry out the duties assigned them.

FLEET'S NEW OFFICERS.

At a special meeting of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, Sunday afternoon, an election was held to fill vacancies caused by the resignations of two officers who have entered Government service. They are Leo Kenny, who has been acting as trustee, and Frank McCarthy, who was outer guard. Arthur A. Cannon succeeded Mr. Kenny and Frank Frazier was named to take the place of Mr. McCarthy.

Mayor Asks For Economy

In Annual Message to Council Executive Points Out Needs of Curtailing Expenditures During Present Year.

With economy as the keynote and forceful reminders of the cooperation needed to meet the abnormal conditions produced by the world war, Mayor Leighton Calkins' annual message to the Common Council, Tuesday night proved to be a document worthy of mature consideration. Its numerous paragraphs are replete with suggestions for the ensuing year, which, if followed out, will prove of great benefit to the community. The message is given in full as follows:

To the Honorable the Members of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

The year now closed has brought our country into a great conflict which will determine whether the world can be made a safe place for law-abiding nations. With us it was not so much a question of war or peace as some well-meaning people thought, as a question which kind of peace we would have and whether we care enough for a lasting peace to fight for it. Our choice was made unhesitatingly when once we came to see the peril which threatens not only our present security, but that of our children after us and the future security of the whole world; and many interests with which we were occupied so short a while ago are now forgotten in the intensity of our purpose to achieve through victory the power to impose a peace which will make another such war as this forever impossible. In consequence it is inevitable that the whole manner of our living, public as well as private, is in process of readjustment and that the things which yesterday we thought so vital to our well-being, we now deem trivial, or else they do not so much as enter into our thoughts.

Municipal Affairs in Relation to the War.

If these were usual times I would have hoped on this occasion to report progress in the park avenue widening and extension, park projects, and others included in the city planning program outlined in previous messages. But costly betterments of that character have of necessity been postponed and should be for the needed of the war. Certain projects which were started last year have been carried forward, such as the municipal building, the storm and sanitary sewer systems, and the extension of permanent pavements. But I seriously question whether the latter should be continued further at this time. Where the owners have contemplated the rebuilding of from fifteen to twenty miles of our through highways and business streets in a period of five or six years, from three to four miles of construction to be undertaken yearly. Since we must now practise strict economy in all things and do our part to release labor and resources for the nation's vital needs, it would seem that improvements of that kind have no proper place in our plans for the year; especially as we have deferred action under the new ordinance requiring the reconstruction of sidewalks, and have even postponed items in our efficiency program such as a modern accounting system in the treasurer's office and the fixed post system in the police department, solely on account of the immediate expense involved.

Indeed I am unable to avoid the conclusion that if we are to perform our full duty we must not only abstain from new undertakings but also seek ways to stem the mounting cost of maintenance. some increase here is inevitable and must be met. But I am convinced that a saving can be made if we will but dig in and hold fast, instead of pro-ceeding blithely on the principle that we must move forward to prevent slipping backward. New theories are taking the place of old in these days.

To illustrate the thought and not by way of criticism, for I recognize the ambition of each department to improve service conditions and make a good showing, is it right in these times to increase appropriations for street repair work in order that our macadam roads may be put into better condition than that to which we have been accustomed? Of course a certain amount of renewal is necessary to prevent disintegration and greater ultimate cost. But of a different kind are maintenances charges which will merely add to the ease of people who ride and for their convenience in the matter of speed. Instead of improving conditions where this will mean an increase in maintenance appropriations, ought we not rather to get along as best we can with the quality of surface we now have?

I view with apprehension the incorporation of the new budget unless it is approached in this spirit. I do not think that we should curtail anything for the poor or in safeguarding the public health. But in the Home Defense League the police department has an auxiliary or reserve for emergencies, and this should make it possible to do without the larger regular force which would otherwise be necessary. In my judgment there is no other department, not excepting the department of public education, in which the economies of last year may not be repeated without serious detriment and possibly exceeded. In much of them, as concern not so much our vital interests as our comfort and the luxury of community life, the disposition to do without should be paramount and make further saving possible.

The 1917 budget was made up immediately after our entry in the war and at a time when there was reasonable exceptation that it might not be of long duration. But even then we knew that it would bring new and unusual taxes on business and on private incomes and your estimates, and those of the Board of School Estimate, were prepared with commendable regard for the conditions confronting us. The increase for schools was about $28,606, which was $16,000 more than we would expect in ordinary times and was due to the high cost of fuel supplies and stationery and a salary bonus of $50 for the teachers—an equivalent for policemen and firemen being arranged through advancement from a lower to a higher grade. Further reductions could not have been made in the schools' estimate of school efficiency. This, even during the war, we should avoid as long as possible.

For city purposes exclusive of schools the fire department appropriation was increased $9,000 due to recruiting the force to full strength in 1916, and the sewer maintenance department advanced $2,000 on account of the operation of the new and larger disposal plant, and there was a net increase of $9,000 for bond and note interest due to the municipal building, and the permanent pavements and sewer extension improvements. We also had to provide $5,000 for the maturity of the first installment of Joint Sewer bonds. Against these and a few minor increases there were decreases in other appropriations so that the net increase for city purposes in 1917 was only about $19,000.

Thus it appears that we had to raise about $47,000 more in 1917 than in 1916 for all local purposes including schools. Of this amount about one half would have been produced automatically by the increase in ratables, leaving only about $24,000 to be carried by advancement of the tax rate. In other words the tax rate which for three years we had held at 1.91, an achievement unequaled throughout the State so far as I am aware, would not have advanced more than about eight points except for the new State road tax, which was beyond our control and was responsible for a net increase of approximately $28,000 in the amount to be raised for State and county purposes and for a further advance of about nine points in the tax rate. I suppose that theoretically a tax rate ought not to go up at all except as the measure of the ability and desire of the public to spend more for community advantages. That is, larger appropriations should be limited by the new valuations which support them. But abnormal conditions have now made this impossible.

From the foregoing, which will serve as a summary of the financial situation by approximation, it is apparent that notwithstanding a painstaking effort to keep expenses down the last year the tax rate advanced seventeen points. We can hardly expect our task to be easier this year. In fact it will be more difficult than ever. But it seems to me that it must be met in some way or the tax burden will soon be intolerable. In many ways we must expect to cut down expenses and to go on cutting them down. If the war continues we shall have to make sacrifices such as we have not known before. We dare not go forward with no thought for the morrow. Should we not therefore adopt as a guiding principle for the year the purpose to search out the things which for the time being we can do without?

The war has brought new responsibilities in the administration of the affairs of the city and has imposed a new outlook upon us. The field of our activities in local matters is narrower and our choice within that field is restricted almost to the vanishing point. We used to talk about efficiency and economy, meaning efficiency with economy. Now the emphasis is inverted; we are almost ready for economy with or without efficiency. In these circumstances the recommendations which otherwise I would put forward on this occasion are for the time being withheld, until we know better than we now do what the year has in store for us.

Details regarding the city's business will be found as usual in the annual reports of the several officials, heads of departments, boards and commissions charged with the management thereof. Without exception they are all to be commended for the manner in which they have performed their duties under trying conditions. Examination of these reports will reveal a degree of accomplishment, under handicap, well deserving of public approval.

Community War Activities.

If the war has limited our activities in some directions its influence has been greatly to enlarge them in others; and it would seem fitting, in place of the customary review of the municipal achievement to speak of the part which the people themselves have had in furtherance of the community and national welfare. I have had the great privilege of meeting and organizing many commissions and committees composed of patriotic men and women, who have given their time in voluntary service of incomparable value to the city and to the national government. With numerous auxiliaries and sub-committees so many workers have been enlisted that they are to be counted by the hundreds.

In February before war was declared we had a wonderful patriotic mass meeting in the High School which I am sure will never be forgotten, with ex-President Taft as the principal speaker. A letter signed by eighteen hundred citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield was sent to the President pledging support to him and the Congress to whatever extent it might be found necessary to employ force in safeguarding the country and its people. The Home Defense League was organized in March with M. S. Ackerman, Jr., chairman, and Henry S. Fisher, Jr., secretary, which has fully equipped and drilled under commissions from the governor and is now subject to call by the mayor or police department in any emergency. In its plan of organization the league differs from similar bodies elsewhere in that it is an integral part of the police force for emergency service, but separately

ECONOMY THE WATCHWORD.

It is well that Mayor Leighton Calkins in his annual message to the Common Council emphasized the need of municipal economy during the present year. Never in the history of the city have industrial conditions been so abnormal, the cost of living so outrageously high or household needs so hard to procure. The people can much better afford to go without the widening of Park avenue or the extension of permanent pavement than to find their properties posted for non-payment of taxes. The tax bills of 1917 took a big jump of seventeen points, enough to make almost any ordinary man put his house and grounds on the market to get what he could out of them before another big bill rolled around. Should city improvements be outlined and attempted to be carried out in 1918 there is no telling where the less fortunate citizen with only ordinary means is going to wind up.

Everybody knows that the present troubles are the result of the war. If it wasn't for complications we have at home and the boys going away nobody would know that we had a war. When the nation is at peace it is time enough to look around town to see what can be done for the betterment of the community, but when no one knows what is going to happen from one day to the next the only thing to be done is to stand still and hope for the best.

The high cost of labor and material is not the only thing that makes public improvements out of the question at this time. The scarcity of labor has to be reckoned with and the supplies that might be used in Plainfield could be sent elsewhere for the promotion of the great struggle that is going to make the world safe for democracy. The Government needs the supplies far more than we do.

No one doubts but what the new permanent pavement in the business streets is a good thing. It was something that has been needed for a long time, still, it was unfortunate that the work should have been started in these days of turmoil and turbulance. The contractors who submitted their figures and were delegated to proceed with the paving thought they had calculated a matter that would bring profit to themselves but even these well-posted men reckoned not on the developments that came later. It is doubtful if either the Newark Paving Company or John Bentley made a dollar out of the jobs they undertook. Mr. Bentley's work is completed but the Newark concern has still a lot to do and has no idea just when it will be done. Conditions that no man could guard against are responsible for these deplorable results.

Going further look at the City Hall matter. The officials are doing everything possible to get the building completed, yet there is no telling just when it will be finished and ready to receive its tenants. The first figure set as a maximum for the cost of the Hall was $100,000. The architectual drawings had hardly become dry when it was seen that this amount would be insufficient. Because of the legal restrictions which prohibited a city of Plainfield's class spending more than $100,000 for this purpose an appeal had to be made to the Legislature for an extension of the maximum. Permission was given by means of a specially prepared law to make the figure $150,000 and this amount stands on the surface at the present time. From indications, however, the cost of the structure will go over even this figure as unforeseen difficulties have risen almost daily, each one piling up the sum totaled.

To finish the City Hall, complete the present street work and meet the emergency expense accruing from the badly working sewage disposal plant will give the Common Council all it can do for the present year. When the war is over and business and living gets back to a respectable level it will be time to widen Park avenue, lay out a city park and extend the brick pavement. At the present time the taxpayers and citizens in general have all they can do to keep sugar on the table and coal in the cellar. By all means, let economy be the watchword for 1918.

"HIGH LIVING" A BAD GUESS.

Engineer Fuller's statement that "high living" is responsible for the conditions at the joint sewage disposal plant calling for an expenditure of $35,000, should be taken with a grain of salt. Mr. Fuller knows better than anybody else where the trouble lays. The fact of the matter is the disposal plant is not a success and the chances are it never will be. Instead of living higher it might be said the people of Plainfield are living lower and the talk about orange peelings, potato skins and other refuse making all the trouble down Middlesex borough way is all tommyrot. The beds were put in operation only a little more than a year ago and why "high living" should be put forth as an excuse for failure is beyond comprehension.

The new disposal plant is built on the Emhoff system which is based upon chemical action for the proper disposal of sludge. Any single person pouring a quantity of sulphuric acid down a kitchen sink could put the whole plant out of working order. Greases, such as accumulate in any waste pipe, are sufficient to make trouble and that is what is going on at the beds where Mr. Fuller proposes $35,000 should be spent to meet the "high living" in Plainfield. If $35,000 would remedy the trouble it would not be so bad but it is feared by many an observing Plainfielder that all the money in the city could be spent on the disposal plant and it would still be working bad.

Little by little it becomes apparent that the whole joint sewage disposal affair has been a bad proposition for Plainfield. At the beginning the commission paid $36,000 for the site that was assessed at $6,675 and would have been well paid for if the owner had received $8,000. Later on W. J. Buttfield slid two or three nice ones over on Plainfield when arrangements for the upkeep was made and Mr. Fuller failed to give comfort to the taxpayers when he selected the present system instead of sending the sewage to tide water. The Emhoff system is all right if the sulpuhric acid can be kept away from the beds but neither Mr. Emhoff, if there be such a person, or Mr. Fuller, can give any guarantee to this effect.

Fred W. Bird is a representative citizen who makes it a point to study municipal expenditure. He takes no one man's word for any payment of thousands of dollars but has that Yankee perspicacity which makes him keep prying around till he gets every detail of a transaction. Mr. Bird has given the citizens a lot of particulars about the new disposal plant that no one else thought about and in a letter to the Record he uses no gloves in handling Mr. Fuller's statement about the "high living." Here is a portion of his communication on the proposed expenditure of $35,000:

"There seems to be something strange about that sewer disposal plant ever since it was first talked of. To begin with the price to be paid for the farm on which it is located was kept in the background for over two years. Before the sewer commission bought the farm it was assessed for $6,675 according to the Middlesex County Tax Board. The Register of Deeds' office at New Brunswick shows in Book of Deeds 542, page 537, dated March 11, 1914, an agreement for the sale of the sewer farm from John Darling, to Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen for the sum of $36,000, $5,000 to be paid on account within one day of the date of this agreement. Signed, George S. Clay, chairman. The above is a matter of record.

"Now, the question people are asking is who was responsible for such quick work after the agreement was signed in such a hurry after the price had become known? Why were the same men who were responsible for paying $36,000 for a farm worth probably $10,000 up in arms when the Middlesex county assessors increased the assessed valuation for $6,675 to $27,000? Why didn't the sewer commission have the sewer go to tide-water by way of Clinton avenue, almost all the way to the Raritan Bay on the public highway, to near Bonhamtown. Thence follow the course of the bay to the ocean. If there was any real reason for not doing that, why didn't the commissioners have a competent engineer, who would have foresight enough to build a plant that would not need extras after one year's usage? Where is this sewer business going to end? Was Councilman Tingley, of North Plainfield, right when he asked if the sewer plant was a failure? Looks as if there was something to it, Mr. Tingley, after one year's service, spending $35,000 for an oversight.

Does anyone doubt but what Mr. Bird is right in his contention about "something being wrong?" for an oversight."

THE COMMUNITY'S DEBT TO MR. WILBUR.

In his retirement from the Board of Freeholders, Samuel P. T. Wilbur should not be allowed to go back to private life without recognition from the community which he served so long and faithfully. For thirteen years this energetic and public spirited citizen labored with the county organization and beside being the greatest factor in the building of county roads served on all important committees. These included the finance and election and the Bonnie Burn. Each one of them call for a definite amount of labor that was far beyond the compensation paid but Mr. Wilbur accepted the tasks and did them well.

A place on the Board of Freeholders has never been a sinecure although many people believe it is. The small amount of recompense received by the members is in no way equivalent to the loss occurred by neglecting private affairs. Mr. Wilbur holds an important place in the insurance world, his ability being recognized by the largest concerns in the country. There have been many times when his employers would rather that he devote himself entirely to their work, but stepped aside when it was shown them that he was doing his duty, as a citizen. Thirteen years is a long time to labor long and hard for very little pay but Samuel P. T. Wilbur did it and asks no other return at this time than the appreciation of the public he represented. We can say in all truth that he has it and should he at any time in the future decide to seek return to the county organization he will have the unanimous backing of the Plainfield voters.

THE SOLDIER BOYS AND THE POLL TAX.

Collector William R. Townsend is among the New Jersey men of his position who is in accord with the proposed legislation to relieve men at the front from the responsibility of paying poll tax. At the coming session of the Legislature, it is probable that a measure will be introduced to take care of this matter and from present indications it will pass unanimously. The support of the tax collector has been sought by the proposers of the plan and Plainfield citizens are in accord with the view as expressed by Mr. Townsend.

The latest authority to favor such action is Frank B. Jess, a member of the State Board of Taxes and Assessments. Mr. Jess pointed out that in some localities the taxes are overlooked and thought that a very simple way of solving the problem would be to have an amendment to the act passed.

Just at the present time many recruits are particularly sensitive as to what appreciation they are getting for their sacrifices. Matters of this kind will send them to the firing line with a better spirit and a better understanding of how those at home feel toward them.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

We know darned well it was mighty cold last Monday morning but that's no reason why the big thermometer in front of A. M. Griffen's store should have given so many people heart disease by registering 55 below.

Yes, indeed, it's quite true that things are abnormal these days. The city pay-roll shows that the official stenographer who takes care of the Council minutes and typewriting gets $600 a year, while the page, who carries a resolution now and then from one desk to another, gets $540.

We have it on good authority that if the Government succeeds in restoring order out of chaos on the Jersey Central, the next thing it will take over is the Somerset street trolley line.

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When the saloons gave out "half pints" in fancy bottles on New Year's day?

When a fellow could get a full course dinner at "Charlie" Smith's on a five-cent glass of beer?

When "shin plasters" were the Government's guarantee for the payment of ten cents or twenty-five cents and the owners frequently burned up the guarantee by mistake in lighting a pipe?

When "Jim" Frisbie showed real versatility by being official dog-catcher for the city and leader of colored voters for the politicians both at the same time?

When the Crescent Wheelmen's club house was on Sycamore street and Asa Collier ran the Olympia next door?

When a fellow could get all the coal he wanted without first talking it over with "Baron" Kenny?

Freeholder Who Planned County's Splendid Roads Retires to Private Life

Union county's open boast that it possesses the best system of well-built, well-kept roads to be found in New Jersey has gone without challenge since the first day it was made. So skeptics who

S. P. T. Wilbur journeyed this way from other parts of the State to verify reports invariably returned to their native heaths with the news that it was only too true and it would be folly, indeed, to make a counterclaim when the proof was not forthcoming.

So, stands Union county in the catalooging of highways and this week the man entitled to the lion's share of credit for the honor stepped out of the office that paved the way for his genius. This man is Samuel P. T. Wilbur, who, on Monday last, went, retired from the Board of Freeholders after representing Plainfield in that important directorate for thirteen consecutive years. Road making became a study with him from the first day he began the discharge of his official duties. Two years after he was made a freeholder he was appointed chairman of the road committee and from then on is when the eyes of highway supervisors were turned in this direction.

The increasing volume of motor vehicle traffic, both pleasure and commercial, convinced the county body that some durable form of pavement should be adopted to replace "antiquated" macadam, once considered sufficient for all ordinary purposes. Mr. Wilbur willingly shouldered the responsibility of getting the proper construction and set about his task with a spirit of "do or die." He inspected new roads all over the country, sought the advice of experienced men, attended conventions of highway builders and in other ways acquainted himself with the needs of Union's vehicular sentry. He finally decided upon concrete foundations with bituminous tops as the form that would come as near to perfection as is possible in these days of constant travel.

It was a little over ten years ago that Chairman Wilbur secured his first big appropriation for a permanent pavement. "Amasite" was the patent name of the bituminous form used and Terrill road, on the boundary line between Plainfield and Fanwood, received the construction.

Although somewhat in the form of an experiment, that new pavement proved a great success. Thousands of automobiles glided over the smooth surface and the period of time decided upon as a proper test for durability found it holding up splendidly. A little later, however, a slight rank in "crowning" caused an upheaval of the roadway that is referred to as "evolutions." For the time being, Terrill road was in rather poor condition, but repairing showed where the trouble had arisen and it served as a lesson for future work. After that there were no more "evolutions," although many miles of bituminous road have been built in Union county at an expense running into the millions. Mr. Wilbur has had charge of it all and not a single instance is on record where there was any fault in work after the first indication on Terrill road.

The finest piece of roadway in Union county is a mile stretch on Morris street, Summit. This is made of concrete as a base and a bituithic on top, shouldered by what are known as "headers." These "headers" are really a raised curb which prevents the greening of the roadway. It also forms proper drainage, the most essential factor in the construction of permanent pavement. Water can do more harm than a thousand heavy trucks, provided it gets on a road and does not get off. Mr. Wilbur found this out through his years of study and every new thoroughfare built by Union county includes the protecting "headers." The old roads usually ran about eighteen feet wide and had no gutters to boast of. Naturally the drainage was bad and there was more or less trouble until Chairman Wilbur discovered what was the cause of it all. Some years ago he obtained an appropriation of $3,000 with which he cleaned out and made over the gutters of eighty-five miles of highways. The act saved the county at least $25,000 in repairs.

A few of the permanent bituminous roads that were planned and built under Mr. Wilbur's supervision are South avenue, between Richmond street and Terrill road in this city; South avenue, from Fanwood to Elizabeth; Mountain avenue, from Scotch Plains to Mountainside, and the Lincoln Highway. All have to stand tremendous traffic but are bearing up under the strain to a surprising degree despite the fact that commercial trucks frequently carry thirty tons over them. One day last summer Mr. Wilbur wanted to see just how much travelling was done over Mountain avenue between Scotch Plains and Mountainside. He stationed himself in a convenient point just east of the Plains and in five minutes 121 automobiles and seven horse-drawn vehicles came and went. That was only an ordinary Sunday, consequently it can be easily see what a road has to stand.

In the course of his road studying, Mr. Wilbur attended conventions at Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Cleveland, Boston and other places. When he first started, attendances would perhaps number three or four hundred. At the one at Boston the past summer there were more than 4,000 persons present, showing how the people have come to understand the advantage of meeting road experts and talking over highway problems.

Although the work of freeholder is not the pleasantest thing in the world and frequently prevents a man from giving private affairs their full consideration, Mr. Wilbur would have continued to be a member of the board had it not been that he entered the Union shrievalty race last fall. This prevented him from becoming a candidate to succeed himself in his old position. Nevertheless he cannot be deprived of the experience he has gained and in that generous way of his it will be placed at the disposal of the taxpayers. As in the past, he can be counted upon to uphold Union county's claim for the best system of highways in New Jersey. In his retirement he carries the best wishes of all his constituents and the network of permanent thoroughfares traversing the towns between Plainfield and Elizabeth, Rahway and Summit will stand as a monument to his faithful work in behalf of the people.

Coal Is Given Right of Way

Coal had the right of way over the eastern branches of the National railway system yesterday.

Assisted by a slight moderation in the frigid temperature of the last few days, Director General McAdoo was clearing away idle coal laden cars in many years and terminals to relieve shortage in the East and New England. Where necessary, passenger trains were sidetracked to allow the prompt through passage of coal.

President Wilson has completed the draft of his message to Congress today, when he will ask legislation to make the Federal railroad operation effective.

Yesterday McAdoo conferred with railroad brotherhood leaders regarding wage increases for 1,500,000 employes.

Basis of negotiations with the brotherhood chiefs has been completed and were submitted to Director McAdoo by the Federal Board of Mediation and Conciliation before he entered the conference. Just what portion of the 40 per cent. increase asked by the rail employes will be offered was not divulged.

Eisenman Tells Inside Facts of Army Contracts

Determined to get the truth about scandals in army contracts, the Senate Military Affairs Committee Wednesday placed Charles Eisenman, vice chairman of the Supply Committee of National Defense Council, on the stand to tell about the purchase of clothing the equipment for the War Department.

Mr. Eisenman stated that he had charge of purchases aggregating $100,000,000. He insisted that everything humanly possible had been done to secure supplies. The Committee went after him vigorously to learn who was responsible for the clothing and equipment shortages, which it is alleged, caused hundreds of deaths among recruits in the training camps.

"Why is it that in a country of such vast resources and production we were unable to equip 1,200,000 men with clothing, overcoats and shoes?" demanded Senator Hitchcock.

"There is no shoe shortage," said Mr. Eisenman.

"Perhaps not, but they don't fit the soldiers' feet," said Senator Hitchcock.

"Well, when more men are called out than you have been asked to provide for something is bound to happen and something did happen," said Mr. Eisenman.

"If we had known last May that we would have been compelled to equip a certain number of men we would have done it."

"When did you learn how many men you would have to equip?" asked Senator Hitchcock.

Mr. Eisenman said he had never been informed as to the number of men he would have to supply.

Senator Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey, questioned the witness sharply about the reduction of wool contents in uniforms and overcoats.

"Are you an expert in woolen manufacturing?" asked Senator Frelinghuysen.

"I wouldn't say I was an expert in anything," said Mr. Eisenman.

"Did you feel that our troops should be as warmly and comfortably clothed as others?" asked Senator Frelinghuysen.

"I felt that we should give them the best we could get regardless of expense," answered the witness.

He insisted that the uniform was "fit for a king," and charged that criticism was coming from disappointed manufacturers who had tried to die into the public funds and "get money for themselves." Insistence upon the very highest quality new would have absorbed so much wool that it would have meant very poor uniforms later on, he declared.

"Don't you believe it was your job to see that the army was warmly clad?" asked Senator Frelinghuysen.

"That was the job of the Quartermaster's Department," said the witness. "They established the specifications."

"But we are dealing with what could be easy for the army on the other side," broke in Senator Frelinghuysen.

"What have I got to do with that?" asked Eisenman.

The witness said he had conferred with the chief of staff as to the advisability of making the American uniform conform in quality to the British uniform. He said that General Pershing seemed satisfied with the uniform "because he had made no complaint."

Eisenman declared that "if the quartermaster's department had routed clothing to the points of greatest need there would have been no shortage."

"I don't like to criticise the quartermaster's department, but that is a responsibility I cannot assume," he said. "In some camps there were as many as nine blankets per man while in others there were none."

"You mean there were mistakes in shipment and delivery?" asked Senator Chamberlain.

"Absolutely," replied Eisenman.

Teachers Firm Against Merger

Though action on the proposed changes to the pension system of teachers of the State was postponed until next year, at the closing session of the New Jersey Teachers' Association at Atlantic City, Saturday, it is certain that any attempt to merge the retirement fund and service pension will be stoutly opposed by the membership of the organization, which includes 14,000 of the 16,000 teachers in the State.

The long drawn-out issues of contention were brought to a head at this session of the State Teachers Association because of pending legislation at Trenton which may be affected by the report of the Pierson commission appointed last winter, representing both Houses, to investigate the pension laws, decision on new acts being suspended for a year by the Legislature. The report will doubtless have material effect on the disposition of proposed changes under consideration, and action here would also be very important in a campaign. Governor Edge and the Legislature will be petitioned to withhold disposition of these recommendations until another session. A committee of not less than five members or more than nine will be appointed by the association to seek other conferences with Assemblyman Pierson's committee for a further study of the teachers' pension provision.

The appointment of a certain committee, composed of three men, brought an echo from the suffrage attitude of the association. Miss Lydia K. Ennis of Jersey City, resented the ignoring of women in the appointment "now that we are working for woman suffrage." The committee in question was that to represent the association at the meeting of the department of superintendence of the National Educational Association at Atlantic City, February 22 to March 2. The appointment was left in the hands of the president, with the qualification that at least one woman be included.

The teachers adopted patriotic resolutions. Pedarouges of Wilson's home State pledged support to the administration, and further upheld the entrance of this country into the war to make the world safe for democracy. The teachers also went on record in opposition to the movement to lengthen the probationary period of the tenure of office law from three to five years.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Henry M. Cressman, superintendent of schools of Atlantic County, who was opposed to Edward A. Murphy, the "organization nominee;" first vice president, Alexander J. Glennie, of Newark; second vice president, Miss Helen Angland, of Paterson; treasurer, Miss S. Ida MacMahon, of Trenton; recording secretary, Miss Elizabeth M. Stringer, of Newark; members of the executive committee, F. H. Lloyd, of Paterson. Atlantic City will probably get the next convention.

Hoover Admits 'Fibbery' About Sugar Shortage

"Imaginative alarm," is a big factor in the winning of the war, Herbert Hoover, food administrator, declared Wednesday in testifying before the Senate sub-committee investigating the sugar shortage.

Hoover told the committee that he had made "sensational statements" last May with the purpose of awakening American people to the need for conserving foodstuffs. He declared that he would continue to do so, for he felt this is one of the ways of winning the war. These statements did not increase prices, Hoover declared.

Senator Lodge conducted the examination of Hoover, with Senator Reed, arch enemy of the food administrator, remaining silent. Anticipating warm colloquy between Hoover and Senator Reed, a large audience gathered and sat in serious anticipation.

Hoover underwent close examination at the hands of Senator Lodge, who attempted to show that Hoover had made extravagant statements early last spring and had thereby sent food prices up. Hoover denied the effect, but admitted that some of his statements have been upset.

Hoover was anxious for an executive session. He wanted to explain his part in reorganizing Cuban industries after last spring's revolution. The committee remained in open session, however.

Hoover declared that "the entire revolution event" has left the United States a sugar shortage of 300,000 tons.

"It has been stated that a great amount of sugar has gone into canning," said Senator Lodge.

"I believe that is the case," said Hoover. "It had a large conservation value."

"Do you expect an increase in the saving of sugar next year?" asked Senator Lodge.

"On our program with the Allies we could get through on a reduced consumption of 300,000 tons," said Hoover. "We could surely get through if we had some legislation to control the use of sugar."

Freeholders Organize For Coming Year

The 1918 Board of Freeholders held an organization meeting at the Courthouse, Elizabeth, Tuesday noon and the members were sworn in by Judge James C. Connolly, of the Court of Common Pleas, who spoke of the fairness and ability of the previous board in handling the business of the county and wished the new board success in the administration of the county's business for the ensuing year. John N. Cady, of Summit, was the only member absent.

The board organized by giving indorsement to George C. Teller, of Cranford, and re-elected him as director of the board for the ensuing year. Jacob L. Bauer was re-elected county engineer; Dr. F. W. Westcott, of Fanwood, was again chosen county physician, and James Fink, of Westfield, was re-named as supervisor of roads.

A large floral pieces graced the desk of Frederick Doll, of Union, who took his seat Tuesday as the first freeholder to represent Union Township alone, as previously that township and Roselle Park were represented jointly by one member on the board.

Freeholder Charles A. Smith nominated Mr. Teller for director, calling attention to the fact that this was the fourteenth time he had been present at an organization meeting. Secretary King named Freeholders Krouse and McMane as a committee to escort Mr. Teller to the chair. The director asked the members to be in harmony and to work for efficiency during the coming year. He was greeted with applause when he ascended the chair.

Director Teller named two committees at this meeting—a finance committee, consisting of Freeholders Smith, Thompson, Gebring, Haviland and Treemby; and an auditing committee, consisting of Freeholders Gebring, Bird and Miller.

The 1918 budget passed upon by the 1917 board at its final session on Monday was adopted by the board. It calls for $710,000 to be raised by taxation, an increase of $40,000 over last year.

War's Demands Responsible For Coal Shortage

A coal shortage of 50,000,000 tons for 1917 in the face of the greatest production of any year in the country's history has been caused by war demands, Fuel Administrator H. A. Garfield told the Senate investigating committee yesterday. Asked in the course of his testimony if the situation was now in hand, he replied: "I cannot guarantee that there will be no more suffering."

"Bituminous coal production shows an increase of 10 per cent. over 1916, while anthracite shows an increase of 16 per cent.," said Garfield. "The increased production of soft coal is 50,000,000 tons, but this is only half enough. Munitions factories in southern New England are being greatly hampered by a shortage of bituminous coal."

The anthracite coal situation is fairly good now, Garfield said.

"How have you tried to increase production" asked Senator Kenyon.

"By placing the emphasis on production, not on price," replied Garfield.

"Do you believe the operators have made big profits by this campaign?" asked Kenyon, who, in Chairman Reed's absence, questioned Garfield.

"I hardly see how to stimulate production without allowing these profits," the fuel administrator replied.

Increases above the President's fixed coal prices have been granted forty-one operators by the Fuel Administration to stimulate production, Garfield said.

"These are mostly small mines which would not be able to operate without the increased price," he explained.

"I suppose you have placed the Government's interests first," said Kenyon.

"In this severe weather I have considered the consumer first, for with a dissatisfied people the Government can accomplish nothing," was Garfield's reply.

Prices are much higher this year than last, Garfield admitted, but said they are more stabilized.

"Do you think you have the situation well in hand now?" asked Kenyon.

"I can't guarantee that there will be no more suffering," answered Garfield.

He placed much of the blame for the coal famine on the railroads and said late recent blizzards have accentuated the rail tie-up. The greatest coal congestions were at the Bottle Neck points of Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Toledo and Albany.

"Coal constitutes one half the freight," Garfield said, "and when we increase production we increase the railroads' difficulties.

"The transportation system is what it is now because of our policy of preserving competition so our railroads cannot easily be put together.

"It is now as necessary to operate the railroads as one system as it is to centralize the people in armies and navies."

The committee summoned Attorney-General McGhee, of Ohio, and James B. Duran, of the Ohio Public Utility Commission, as witnesses.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

ISAAC M. TAYNOR.

Isaac M. Taynor, a life long resident of Plainfield and widely known throughout this vicinity through many years' service with the local branch of the Standard Oil Company, died in Muhlenberg Hospital, Wednesday. He had been at the institution since October 31 undergoing medical treatment. The funeral will be held at the undertaking parlors of Cole & High at 200 West Second street, tomorrow afternoon at 2.00 o'clock. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson will be in charge and burial will be in the family plot in the North Plainfield cemetery.

Mr. Taynor was sixty-two years old. He was born in North Plainfield and always resided in this vicinity. When the Standard Oil Company first located here he secured employment with the concern and was eventually raised to the position of the sales department. He covered all the territory between Westfield and Round Brook and also to the north and south of town in the immediate suburbs. A short time ago the company placed him on the retired list as a reward for faithful service.

Mr. Taynor was a member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias in which he was active for many years. His only near surviving relatives are his daughter, Mrs. Edward Edel, of 112 Madison avenue, with whom he had been making his home, and a son, James A. Taynor, a resident of Plainfield.

THOMAS O. SENDALL.

The funeral of Thomas O. Sendall, whose death occurred Monday at his home in South Plainfield, was held Wednesday at the Saxen-Merritt chapel on Eighth avenue, New York. The service was private and was attended only by a few intimate friends. Burial was in Evergreen cemetery, Brooklyn.

Mr. Sendall was seventy-three years old and had been ill a long time. He leaves his widow and one son.

MISS MARGARET VAIL.

Miss Margaret Vail, daughter of Mrs. Gertrude Kitchen Vail and the late James Vail, died Sunday after a long illness. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon in charge of Rev. D. W. Skellenger and burial was in Evergreen cemetery.

MRS. FREDERICK HOFFMEISTER.

The effect of frightful burns which she received at her home on November 20 last caused the death at Muhlenberg Hospital Tuesday morning of Mrs. Frederick Hoffmeister, of 240 Jackson avenue, it was learned today. The injuries came about through Mrs. Hoffmeister's light house clothing catching fire from a open gas stove placed in a room for heating purposes. As the flames flashed upward the unfortunate woman became frightened and ran out doors, thus fanning the flames to greater fury. A man passing by gave the aid that was necessary to save her life for the time being but her flesh had been seared from head to foot.

After being received at Muhlenberg, everything possible was done to save Mrs. Hoffmeister life but she did not respond to treatment. She remained in a comatose condition most of the time and for the last week it was realized that she could not get better. Death came New Year's day as a relief from her sufferings.

Mrs. Hoffmeister was only nineteen years old. She leaves beside her husband, an eight weeks' old infant son; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelle R. Risbery, of Oak Tree, and three sisters, Mrs. Emma Pierson, of this city, and Mrs. William R. Lewis and Mrs. William Dade, both of South Plainfield.

The funeral was held in St. Mary's church this morning, of which the deceased was a communicant and the requiem mass was said by Rev. Father Hubert Holstaers. A large number of relatives and friends were present and many floral tributes were in evidence. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

FRANK W. WEED.

Frank W. Weed, a widely known resident of this city, died suddenly Tuesday morning at his home in the Netherlands on Park avenue. He had been ailing for about two months with diabetes and complications but had been about town up to Monday. While his friends knew that he was a great sufferer it was not considered by them of a dangerous nature and his unexpected demise was a great surprise.

Mr. Weed was a native of Oswego, N. Y., where he was born forty-five years ago. In early life he became an expert in the lumber business and most of his business career was devoted to the wholesale trade. At the time his illness began he was salesman for the Newton Lumber Company one of the largest companies of the kind in the country with branches in many of the important cities. Through his long road experience Mr. Weed had built up an acquaintance that extended through many States in the Union, principally in the eastern part.

The deceased was possessed of an aggressive business disposition and the characteristic frequently took his activities to other enterprises. One of these was the promotion of the company which built the Regent Theatre in Somerville a few years ago and of which he was one of the managers. He was also one of the organizers of Plainfield Council, United Commercial Travelers, now numbering a membership of forty-three.

The deceased is survived by his father, Edward Weed, of New York, his widow, who was Miss Salkeld, and three children.

The funeral will be held at the late home on Park avenue this afternoon at 2 o'clock and will be private. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

MISS ELIZABETH BARRAS.

Miss Elizabeth Barras, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Barras, of 1223 Cottage place, died Wednesday morning. She had been ill a long time. The young woman was twenty-one years old and had a wide circle of friends. She was a member of Trinity Reformed church and Sunday-school. Beside her parents, she is survived by one brother, Earl, and four sisters, the Misses Ethel, Hazel, June and Virginia Barras.

The funeral will be held at the family home tomorrow morning and will be private. The service will be conducted by Rev. John Y. Brick, assisted by J. F. Parker. Burial will be in Evergreen cemetery.

HARRY PETERSON.

Harry Peterson, the six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Peterson ,of 645 Essex street, died in the cotnagion ward at Muhlenberg Hospital, yesterday morning. The little fellow contracted diphtheria and although he was hurried to the institution as soon as possible, the disease could not be checked. The funeral will be strictly private.

Celebrated Their Golden Wedding

In celebration of the fiftieth anniversery of their wedding, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Randolph, who are numbered among the oldest Plainfield residents, held an informal reception at their home on Randolph road Wednesday afternoon. The dinner was held at noon, at which only relatives were present and later in the day friends from this city and vicinity called to pay their respects. The couple received numerous appropriate gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph were married at Schenectady, N. Y., the home of the bride, who was Miss Eliza Burt, and they came to Plainfield, which was the former home of Mr. Randolph, soon afterward. They started housekeeping in a new house which Mr. Randolph built on Randolph road, on a part of the farm owned by his father, Asa Randolph, and they have always lived in the same dwelling. Mr. Randolph was a farmer and was successful in that pursuit, retiring a few years ago. Both he and his wife are active members of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, being regular attendants at all the services and interested in the various activities of the church.

The couple have two sons, Asa P. Randolph, a practicing attorney of this city, who is a member of the board of assessors, and Robert Randolph, who is manager of a large farm at Grant's Pass, Oregon. They also have one daughter, Mrs. Reeda Avers, wife of Hobart Avers, of Pittsburg, Pa. Robert Randolph was unable to be present at the celebration, but Mr. and Mrs. Hobart Avers and their two children were among those who joined in congratulations.

Commission Approves P. S. R. Bond Issue

The State Public Utility Commission has approved the application of the Public Service Railway Company for an issuance of its capital stock at par to the amount of $1,-230,000 for the plant extensions desired to be made by the company.

The board also approved the application of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, lessee of the United New Jersey Railroad and Canal Company, for the sale of a parcel of land embracing .366 of an acre southwest of Stiles street in Linden township, Union county. The board in approving the application stated that it appears that the land in question is neither presently nor prospectively needed for the uses of the corporation.

Refusal of permission to allow the Tuckerton Water Company to increase the minimum charge of the concern by adding the sum of $1 heretofore charged as meter rental has been made by the board. It being stated that under the board's rules meter rentals are not permitted.

The board has also denied the application of the Jamesburg Water Company for permission to increase the minimum charge by adding $1 heretofore charged as meter rental.

Quaint Old English Town Described by Plainfielder

In Series of Letters, Albert Brynlarski, Member of Medical Corps, Tells of King Arthur's "Round Table" and Other Historic Relics in Winchester.

Most of the Plainfield boys destined for the American army being mobilized in France do not know that country direct. The government has established a "Rest Camp" near the ancient city of Winchester, one of England's most historic spots. Here the boys are given from one to three weeks' stay for recuperation purposes before they are sent on toward their destination.

Among the men arriving at Winchester during the past month were Charles Wendell and Albert Brynlarski, both of this city, who are members of the Ambulance Corps of the "Rainbow Division", in that section of the Record a letter from Mr. Wendell was reproduced, which gave an idea of general conditions in the town near the camp. Since then three letters have been received from Mr. Brynlarski. They were written nearly a week apart to his sister, Miss Stella Brynlarski, and his mother, Mrs. Anna Brynlarski, of Duer street, but all three came to Plainfield at once. As a student of English history in the Plainfield High School, Mr. Brynlarski became acquainted with the chronological record of Winchester and it was consequently a great treat for him to visit a place that he became acquainted with through books but never dreamed of seeing them. He writes most interestingly of his trip about the ancient town and all three letters are given in full as follows:

December 13, 1917.

Dear Sister:

I am taking in some of the sights and visiting many points of interest. Today I paid a visit to Winchester castle, the Great Hall. The castle was built by William, The Conqueror, in 1087. It has had quite a history attached to it. From here King William Rufus started for the new forest, where he met his death in 1100. Queen Matilda escaped from it enclosed in a coffin in 1141. Henry II in 1155 proposed and subsequently carried out the invasion of Ireland. Richard Coeur de Leon, after his imprisonment abroad, resided here for his reconsecration at the Cathedral in 1194.

King John took refuge here after deceiving the Barons, after the signing of the Magna Charta at Runnymede. King Edward I and Queen Eleanor came here after his return from the crusades in 1276. The last of the Scottish Kings, James I, who bestowed the castle upon Sir Benjamin Tichborne and his descendants. During the great rebellion, King Charles garrisoned it and in 1645, Oliver Cromwell besieged and captured it. Most of the castle was ordered demolished by Parliament in 1651, the Great Hall alone being permitted to remain intact. Parliament had granted the ownership of the castle to Sir William Walter. The county for $5,000 now gets the use of the castle.

In 1603, Sir Walter Raleigh was tried for treason here. Sentence of death was passed and later carried out. Here the infamous Judge Jeffreys tried many of his cases. My account of the Castle Great Hall would be incomplete without the mention of the "Round Table" with which it has been inseparably associated many centuries ago.

The first record of this interesting relic is that of Judge Hardying, who in 1278 wrote:

"The Rounde Table of Wynchester
Reramne
And there it stonde and there it hangeth yet."

I had no idea that I would ever be treated to a sight of this famous table. It is suspended on the wall just above the ancient Gate under which rested the seat of the king when presiding over Parliaments or upon other notable occasions. In the year 1559, Queen Elizabeth brought Charles V, Emperor of France, to Winchester to show him the relic. Upon previous to this visit, the king issued orders for the repainting of the table and its decorations. It seems the Tudors were green and white, and Arthur was the symbol of the Tudor period. The names of the Knights are inscribed round the margin of the table. Red and white roses, colors of the houses of York and Lancaster, adorn the center. Above the table is this fanciful legend:

"This is the roonde Table of King Arthur of XXIIII of hys manyd Knyghts."

It is the most interesting and ancient piece of connection in the kingdom. It is composed of strong oak planks, 18 feet in diameter, affording plenty of room for a system and investigation below. In front of the dais recently has been placed a beautiful bronze statue of Queen Victoria, a gift to the county in commemoration of her Majesty's life.

The large pictures of the hall have been filled with stained glass, displaying the "Coat of Arms" of those who have been responsible or connected with the history of Hampshire. The pictures still remain the property of the Knights of the Round Table, but institution have been repainted and renovated. The ancient Gate, composed of stone and flint, has a large stone statue of Alfred the Great, on each side, and on either side of the spacious hall.

In the city square is an immense statue of Alfred the Great, in bronze. In another letter I'll describe some of the other places that I intend to visit.

Your loving brother,
ALBERT.

The second letter, addressed to Mrs. Brynlarski, is as follows:

December 14, 1917.

Dear Mother:

Yesterday I wrote Helen a letter describing an interesting visit to Winchester Castle and the Great Hall. Today we did even better than yesterday. Our trip today took us through the hearts of Winchester to the ancient gateway of Hyde Abbey and burial place. This beautiful relic was built 1110 A. D. and here the famous early English king, Alfred the Great, is buried at the side of his queen. His son, Edward, the elder, is also buried near his father. St. Bartholomew's church now stands about fifty feet away from this famous archway.

Next we saw what was left of the original city of Winchester, or rather the castle that had the four gateways. We visited the north gate which fell in 1756. We also made the rounds of the other gates, namely, Westgate, Southgate and Eastgate. Near the Southgate is a bell, being in an old tower, that has rung curfew at 8 p. m. since the fall of the castle.

We saw the old castle which was built by William the Conqueror, and where he lived for quite a while. Christ's College without a doubt is one of the most interesting places we visited yet. All the old time architecture, moss-covered and gray, spoke out the age of the building. It was built in 1282. Our whole company was shown through the chapel, new in use, and the memorial and corridor." One of the graves, dating back to 1395, is located within the interior court yard. We also visited their art school.

One of the most interesting sights we saw was a roadway cut through an old church, services still being held upstairs. They say that King Charles Wave had to make a detour around this small church on his way to the cathedral. One day he ordered a roadway cut directly through its center that he might save himself time.

Winchester cathedral, built in 1202, was a magnificent sight and topped our day of ancient wonders. Services were being held within, so we did not have the privilege as a body to visit the interior, which I am told is very beautiful. The large front windows were broken and damaged by oliver Cromwell during the reformation. A tour within this ancient cathedral that many of the English sovereigns were consecrated.

On our way back to our quarters we passed the home of Jane Austin. It was a quaint building and interesting. Tomorrow we probably will be going out again. If we do, I'll write and let you know just what places of interest we may journey to.

Both Charlie and I are in perfect health, aside from a slight cold, and we're taking in all the hikes so as not to miss a thing.

Your loving son,
ALBERT.

This is the third letter, also addressed to Mrs. Brynlarski:

December 19, 1917.

Dear Mother:

We're here still "somewhere in England" at the same rest camp doing nothing but resting, and wandering around whenever the weather permits. We've had quite a spell of rainy, cold days. New Jersey weather at its worst doesn't compare with the climate we have here. I can readily see why they say beware of an English fog.

I suppose you received my previous letter in which I described my visit to the old city of Winchester. It was a wonderful trip. Today Charlie and I got our first passes reading from 2 to 6 p. m. Buckle, Elliot, Lauber and I went together to the city and wandered around taking in whatever sights we missed before. We also had a swell feast while there. Ham and eggs, bread, butter and tea for 1-6 D., about thirty-six cents in our money. We certainly enjoyed this meal.

Later, Buckle, Lauber and I visited Winchester cathedral and entered while services were being held. It was a grand sight, the big gray stone pillars and high arches reaching over. Early this morning a number of our company went to mass at the "R. C. church built on the hill. It was the first time since we left Camp Merritt. A short English captain-chaplain in his majestic service conducted the mass. He was a fine speaker and gave a swell sermon.

When you get this letter we will no doubt be "somewhere in France," much nearer the battle front. We will probably be detailed for service at one of the American base hospitals for at least three months so you needn't worry as we are safe.

Love and best wishes from

Your loving son,
ALBERT.

NEW FIRE ALARM BOX.

The Plainfield has located a new fire alarm box at North Avenue and Berckman street, bearing the circuit number 62. It is intended primarily to take care of the Standard Aero plant, the Jersey Central freight station and other important places in the near vicinity. The box was tested out Monday and worked satisfactorily. The nearest box to this corner heretofore has been at South avenue and Berckman street.

War's Fortunes Unite Soldiers In Comradeship

Soldiers of the Allied armies have a strong inclination to fraternize. British Tommy, Yankee, Indian cavalryman and French Poull, alike, according to David Clarin, a member of the firm of Dunham & Clarin, of this city, and now a member of the Eleventh Railway Engineers, in the American Expeditionary Force in France, who tells of his experiences in a letter to a Plainfield friend. Even the German prisoner is not wholly unapproachable, says the American engineer, and they have much respect for the Sammies.

The engineers are enjoying good health, despite the rigorous demands of construction work and the privations they are forced to undergo, says Mr. Clarin. His letter follows:

"Somewhere in France,
"November 5, 1917.

"Dear Frank:

"Trusting that a few words from the land of the fleur del is will not go amiss—here goes.

"A stiff gale is blowing outside, so we cannot hear the cannons today, so, except for the uniform there is nothing to remind that we are in a great war. Indeed, even the sound of cannon has long since ceased to be noticed by us and we oftentimes wonder what we are here.

"I suppose it might be said we are in a way fighting a harder battle, it is one thing to fight when there is stimulation for the nervous system and constant action to divert the attention from the thought of your own peril; then on the other hand when you come back from the lines and life itself is a dull monotony, it takes a good deal of mental persuasion to convince yourself that you are a ben-fit. However, if we follow the subject far enough we come to the conclusion that the unkeen of the arteries of communication is as fully necessary and that each stone we sink under the road is just as important in a way as each bullet that leaves the soldier's rifle. Also there are brains higher up who know the situation better than we do.

"The war is a great education, too; because of it all nations have been drawn together and one can judge for himself. I have migled with the French poilu, the British Tommy, the Boche prisoner, the cavalryman from India, and from each I have learned something. One of the biggest things, though, that I've realized was is the almost innate love of man to fraternize with his fellow-men. Show them that your heart is all right and they are your friends; prove to the usually conservative Tommy that you are not a swaggering, swanking Yank, and know enough to sometimes listen and learn, and he is your champ. Show by your actions that you as an individual hold for ideals those same things that your country stands for and he realizes you with that open-hearted candidity that borders on the boyish. Germany is the only one we're fortunate enough to compare with him although it is hard for him to set aside his lifelong philosophy in an instant, watches you closely and if your heart and actions be seen and confidence and sincerity be learned you are a friend for life and realities that after all one need not be German to be right.

"I have come to realize myself that humanity naturally does seek to fraternize and I wish I could drop every one of the boys to respect the peculiarities of other nations, to be fair in their judgments, and to refrain from trying to convince other nationalities of the superiority of the United States. All the world hates a swanker, as the Tommy calls the exaggerator or boaster, and I am sorry to say that some of the boys are prone to be such.

"America can learn much from Europe yet, and I sincerely trust that every American will keep in mind the purpose of the United States in this war, so that by his actions he can not only defeat the greatest single factor against civilized development, but will also strive to work always as far as he is able for the prejudices between nations which has so long retarded world progress toward a common understanding, of the fact that all humanity is but a brotherhood of man. In all States fought side by side to turn out in the rain and mud, but once out we take it as a matter of course. If we had been dropped here six months earlier we would have found the climate very severe but there winters in Plainfield did much to fit us for these days out here.

"We are all well and happy and our regular habits are supplying us with energies which we can use when we return. So outside of being content, homesick and sore, I'm pretty healthy. I guess I could not desire much more. Regards to all.

"Your friend,
"DAVE."

"The Heart of Plainfield"

BY J. WATSON

The heart of our little city is a great warm heart, and in it the stranger from afar finds genial warmth and cordial welcome. Where Home is, there also the richest treasures of life are found; and our city is a "City of Homes" in every sense that the sweetest word in our language implies.

Front street, its main, wide artery of travel, of commerce and of pleasure, resembles on Saturday night a vast "Moving Picture" of infinite charm and kaleidoscope variety. To-and-fro along its wide pavements, and in its broad central channel, ebbs and flows an effervescent tide of life, drawn to it by the lure of its commercial prosperity, from many a distant state and city and many a far-off foreign shore. Amongst the laughing, chattering throngs that ripple and sway beneath the brilliant arc-lamps' silvery light one can see the suave, smiling face of one of "Old Nippons'" clever sons, and Front street is a long, long way from the tea-gardens of Tokio. The Englishman's cold, emotionless face is seen beyond the shoulders of one of Italy's voluble children. A bland-faced pirate from the Yellow Sea pauses a moment for friendly jabber with an almond-eyed brother-buccaneer from Malay; a grave-faced, thoughtful Laddie from the banks o' Loch Lomond nods a friendly greeting as he passes, just ahead of a slow-moving, dull-visaged Russian from the white wastes of Siberia.

Passes one whose flat head, wide jaws, short chin and bovine eyes bespeaks his Teuton origin as clearly as does the ebon hue on the face of the person who follows behind, denote the brotherhood of the Congo. By these signs we also know that the tall, thin man, with the melancholy eyes, the copper-tinted skin and jet-black hair, hails from the land of the jewelled princes of Delhi.

The pavements of Front street resound to the tread of steps that are familiar with the paths and roads of the sunny Grecian Isles. Some there are that have waded the shallow narrows of the Jordan and the Nile. And some there are that have crushed the grass-blades on the Mount of Olives, or that have disturbed the sands of the Red Desert of Arabia.

Comes a daughter of Erin—fair as the daughters of Erin ever are—her wide-open, honest eyes agleam with the sparkling light of Killarney's mirrored skies, the liquid sweetness of the honey-flowers that cluster in the gardens beneath the "Blarney Stone," still fresh upon her tongue, flavoring with their richness the mellow music of her laughing lips. She passes, and her passing leaves upon the air a hint of hawthorn bushes all abloom, of golden-yellow primroses, and blue forget-me-nots. And, if you happen to be an "Exile of Erin" maybe, too, you can whiff upon the air a little of the fragrant incense that rises above the glowing turf-fire on the open hearth of some dear old Irish home in the glen of Ardenmore. And if, just then, you should chance to hear someone begin to sing:

"Oh! For the days of the Kerry dances.
Oh! For the ring of the piper's tune."

I guess you would blame the moisture in your eyes, and the choky feeling in your throat to a "slight touch of the grippe, bedad!" Too true friend Pat, but it was maybe the "grip" of memory that brought to your eyes the mists of the green hills of distant Kerry.

Oh, yes! She lives here in Plainfield. But I do not dare to tell just where. You see! the Chief might chide me for causing traffic congestion on that street where blooms the transplanted rose from emerald dells of Killarney.

"Good evening, Father Bogan." The ingratiating note of politeness in the voice of the speaker caused me to turn around and I saw a little brown-eyed coquette—of six summers, all ruffles and tucks, a winsome little pirate,—holding in her thrall the genial rector of St. Mary's. Twirling her fingers, one over the other, with side-tipped head and upward slanting glance, she said: "You know, Father," you promised me a whole nickle if I was a good little girl today, and I have been just as good as goodey can be all day."

Into the kindly rector's eyes came the crinkling little smile that has endeared him to all the kiddies in town, as he answered, "Well, Virginia, I do hope that your conduct 'all the day' has been better than your memory this evening, for it is not more than fifteen minutes ago since I redeemed my promise to you at the candy shop."

"Oh! But Father Bogan, them was gumdrops, not nickles."

"You sweet little robber! Have you no mercy? Well, well, honey, a good promise can be kept many, many times. Here is your nickle, dear. Now we are all square again. Good night, Virginia."

"Come 'Sparkle,'" and the two great friends of the children of men, the priest with the great white soul, and the humble little dog with the loving eyes and faithful heart, passed on their way, and the air grew sweeter with their presence.

A vigorous man, in the full prime of life, comes swinging down the street. Health glows in his ruddy cheek cleanliness homes in his heart, and honesty shines in his eyes. Two women pass him on the way and one whispers to the other, "There he goes. That's the Mayor of North Plainfield."

"Now, God bless him," said the other, "and may his good right arm never grow weary of well-doing."

"Amen! to that," said her friend.

"Is Bill able to sit down yet?"

Her companion gave a little gurgling laugh as she replied, "O yes! but he puts a cushion on his chair. He's a changed man, Mollie. I never thought there was so much virtue in a snake."

"There's a lot of good in the reptile, Kate, when he's made up into a whip," said Mollie, the sententious.

Crossing the street, her head erect, her shoulders square, her eyes clear and cool, her face serene and calm in its classic beauty, straight as an osier and supple as a willow reed, her perfect form a flawless harmony of grace, her movements the rippling poetry of motion, comes the pride of our hearts, our own dear "Yankee Girl."

There was something about the free, easy swing of her walk that awoke the slumbering memories of other days and other lands; in my mind, and, for a brief space of time, I was back in the beautiful Isles of Summer, dangling my feet over the edge of the little rustic bridge that spans the stream, that was once the happy play-place of the child who later became the bride of Napoleon and Empress of the French. A few hundred yards below the bridge was the ruins of the original home of Josephine de la Pagerie, and near it, too, was all that remained of her father's sugar mill. It was there, on that road to Fort de France, that I saw passing girls with the same grace of movement and physical perfection of form that is characteristic of the American girl. With the exception of our own women there are none in all the world who walk with the same free grace that the girls of the French West India Island of Martinique possess.

This old world of ours would be a dreary, sorrowful world were it not for its comediennes and its clowns. Front street has its allotted quota of both. Here she comes with mincing steps, a perfect counterpart (in her own light airy mind) of the latest "Movie" queen. Her saucy little nose looks as though it had been boring holes in the contents of a barrel of "Willsbury's" best flour. It glares at you with the startling radiance of a piece of doughnut just before its bath in the frying-kettle. Her lips have a raw, red look that is repulsive. Their natural beauty and sweetness are hidden beneath a poisonous mask of oxide. Over the really pretty skin of her young cheeks she has spread a slabbery daub of chemical color that is slowly, but surely, eating away the smooth fabric of Nature's covering.

As for her skirt! Oh, well! It is generally shorter than any description I could give of it. But her eyes are clean and so is her foolish little heart, as I believe the heart of every little girl is and wants to be. Your sisters of mercy and sisters of charity, if you see her slipping, gather her into your own warm heart; give her a chance.

With a "butt" hanging gracefully down from his under-lip and a jaunty little pink fedora hat, with a green and yellow ribbon around it, perched on his head, with his coat-tail eight inches below his shoulder blades, and the reversable collar of his pants seven inches above his natty low-cut tan shoes and dressy yellow-and-blue socks, comes the "town terror"—and if he but knew it, the "town joke." He and the little girl with the painted face are actors on the stage of life just like you and I, and their part is to be just what they are.

In the passing crowds that flowed up and down Front street's brightly lighted way I did not once see amongst them a man with the vacant eyes, babbling lips and staggering steps of a drunkard, or a sot. Nor did I there behold a woman or a girl with the leering eyes and purple soul of a moral leper.

Though these are days of war's travail and sorrow lurks near every door, no visible evidence of it is seen amidst the busy crowds on Front street. Here it seems remote, but deep in the hearts of the people it is very real and beneath the seeming frivolity lies a grimly tenacious force that, like some powerful acid, will eat its way through all opposition to the goal of a definite purpose. Love of freedom, love of country and faith in the eternal justice of God are three things that will live on forever "In the Heart Of Plainfield."

Frank Finney Tells From Whence Came A Great Inspiration

Frank Finney, the comedian star of Charles H. Waldron's "Bostonian Burlesquers," at the Plainfield Theatre Tuesday, matinee and night, January 8, is an author of as great ability as he is a comedian. A reporter for the Record called on him at a theatre in Newark recently and asked him why it was that a burlesque book by him always had a new appeal in it, why it was so out of the beaten track and so different from the customary wish-wash of burlesque material.

ROSE BERNARD
With the "Bostonian Burlesquers" at the Plainfield Theatre Next Tuesday, Afternoon and Night.

"When a man has been writing burlesque material as long as I," said Finney, "he is pretty apt to get out of fresh ideas. Judging by the sort of rot one sees here and there, this doesn't seem to trouble some writers much but I positively can't pass anything up to an audience which I do not myself consider new, original and away from the ordinary material.

"When I turned my mind to writing a book for this season's show, I was unusually hard put to it to secure a real valid idea. I couldn't seem to get the cob-webs out of my brains enough to get to the real ideas and so one night I walked aimlessly out into the world in search of Inspiration, that kindly spirit which is supposed to come to the aid of poets, authors and others whose artistic temperament gives them a right to call on Inspiration.

"I walked by the river and the water told me nothing. I looked up at the stairs and Inspiration wasn't there. I walked up blind-alleys, I swung along the Great White Way, I dove into bootblack parlors, cabarets and all sorts of places. Inspiration was apparently taking a night off, enjoying a quiet game of stud-poker in some sequestered place or burying himself in some studious pursuit of knowledge.

"At last I paused on a street corner and my attention was attracted by a group of men who were discussing the prohibition wave which is sweeping the country. There was a difference of opinion on the subject of drink in that little circle and the discussion grew quite animated. One man was bitterly opposed to drink and he and another of the party got into a very lively verbal duel. Finally the latter said to him: 'Why, you Plainfield, who wish him success in do a lot of preaching against drink but I'd hate to offer you $10,000 to get drunk and stay drunk six months.'

"There was my inspiration. I went home and all night long I sat writing and, when I finally retired, I had a pretty fair outline of 'Lil' Ole New York,' which is the production we are using in this year's show.

"The piece has proved a big laugh getter and personally I consider it one of the best things I have ever done. All of which goes to show that inspiration is always on the job and is ever ready to come to the assistance of her servants who are hard pressed and in need of aid."

Vaudeville Returns To the Plainfield

Vaudeville will return to the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon for performances concluding tomorrow night. The new six-act bill will be headed by a novel feature full of surprises entitled, "Kendall's Auto Doll." This offering is distinctively different than anything else of the kind seen before the footlights and should prove a pleasing change for the local patrons.

Other numbers on the new program will be Boyle and Dale, "two nifty misses." In a repertoire of songs and dances; Lon and Bessie Miller, in their own original comedy song skit "Frankie" James in her demonstration of "Sonology;" Caleb Dixand Company in the comedy number, "The Three Sports," and the return of the old favorite Charlie Reilly, with his latest budget of fun and nonsense.

The program at the Plainfield Theatre each day includes the latest and best moving pictures those from the Pathe studio being features. A new Pathe Review will be shown this afternoon and tonight, flashing many interesting events of the great war on the screen.

JOHN MITCHELL RESIGNS FROM JOURNAL EDITORSHIP

John A. Mitchell, who has been connected with the Elizabeth Daily Journal for a number of years, first as reporter and later as its efficient city editor, severed his connection with that newspaper at the close of the year.

Mr. Mitchell's successor is Frank D. Gable, who was first engaged as a reporter on the staff of the Journal and more recently has served as assistant to the managing editor.

Mr. Mitchell for several months has felt the nervous strain of his exacting duties, and resigned on account of the necessity of gaining relief from it. While his plans for the future have not yet taken definite shape, he expects to establish a weekly newspaper in that city, and will doubtless make an announcement at no distant date.

As a token of their esteem members of the Journal staff on Saturday noon presented to Mr. Mitchell a handsome engraved silver toilet set and he, and another of the party got into a very lively verbal duel. Finally the latter said to him: 'Why, you Plainfield, who wish him success in any undertaking in the future.

Labor Department Probing Accidents

When in a single month industrial accidents cause thirteen deaths and 4,556 injuries within a State, as happened in New Jersey in November, it pays to find out causes, to classify them and to adopt appropriate measures of prevention. Such, at least, is the belief of the State Department of Labor, which, under the direction of Commission Lewis T. Bryant, is compiling all the facts in statistical form.

A side-light on the effect of the war upon industrial hazard is furnished by the fact that of the 1,052 accidents attributed to building and construction work, eighty-five per cent. occurred at the Wrightstown and Tenafly cantonments and the new shipyards along the Newark meadows.

Comparatively few of the reported accidents were of a serious nature during the month, for which data today were made public by the department, yet many of them were severe. Roughly, in order of their importance, they are listed by the department as follows:

Two workers lost, each, one leg and one lost both feet. Sixty-five had fingers amputated. Fractures of the arm were suffered by twenty-eight, of the leg by eighteen, of the hands by eleven, of the fingers by seventeen, of the toes by nineteen, of the ribs by twelve and of the skull by four.

There were two cases of the loss of one eye, while there were 428 cases of other injuries to workers' eyes, of which 166 occurred in aeroplane and motor vehicle plants, thirty-eight in shipyards and thirty-four in machine shops, mostly as the result of flying particles from emery wheels or working tools. Twenty-eight cases of hernia occurred as the result of lifting strains. Burns and scalds caused 302 injuries, chiefly in foundries and chemical and smelting plants.

Classified in the four groups into which the accidents are sorted by the Department, eight fatal and 3,103 non-fatal accidents happened in factories and workshops, 1,052 in building and construction work, at least one fatal and nineteen non-fatal in mines and quarries, and four fatal and 382 non-fatal in the miscellaneous group. All of the accidents, fatal and non-fatal, were ascribed to 136 distinct causes.

Power generators caused seven, of which one was fatal; transmission apparatus caused forty-five, of which twenty-one occurred on belts and pulleys and two on shaftings; working machinery caused 885 cases. Most important of the cases in the latter class were the following: One fatality occurred on a conveyor in a paper mill, fifty-one cases were due to lathes; milling and drilling machines (metal working) accounted for eighty-nine cases, circular saws for eighteen, punch presses for eighty-one, stamping presses for thirteen, other presses and emboss-ing machines for forty-two, flying particles from emery wheels for 290, cutting and chopping machines for twenty-seven and power looms for sixteen.

Infections fatal in one instance occurred in the case of 146 slight injuries, in most instances to the fingers and hands in the metal trades; a fact, the department emphasizes, which clearly shows the urgent need for prompt medical emergency treatment, no matter how slight the injury may seem.

The industries in which most accidents occurred are thus listed by the department: Shipbuilding, 194; motor vehicles and parts, 188, one fatal; foundries, 180, one fatal; machinery, 161; chemicals, 157; muntoons, 137; silk dyeing, 121; electrical appliances, 118; smelting and refining, 107; saw mills, sixty-six, one fatal; coke by-products, forty-two, one fatal; high explosives, fifty-one, one fatal; steel and iron (structural), nineteen, one fatal.

Trolley Connection May Be Made Today

Despite the severe weather of the past week, workmen in the employ of the Public Service Railway have continued operations at Fourth street and Watchung avenue and hope to connect up the Fourth street and Union lines over the new tracking today. This will do away with a necessity of changing cars at this point, a procedure that has met with general dissatisfaction on the part of the trolleying public since it was first resorted to more than a month ago.

Making the connection will also permit a return to the old schedule on Front and Somerset streets for both the Fourth street and Arlington cars. The new double tracking will mean a big improvement to trolley conditions in general and although it has been a long time in coming, the people will fully appreciate the improvement. The work of placing the new brick pavement about the tracks will proceed while the cars are operated over the new rails.

Although work was only recently completed upon an addition at the Marconi wireless plant in Aldene that doubled its floor space, a contract has been let for the erection of still another building. War contracts have caused the work to pile up in such quantities that even by working night and day they cannot be filled.

The new structure will be built on the western side of the main plant and will cost about $50,000. The New York firm that has the contract started Monday to demolish the old Aldene station of the Jersey Central and prepare to start the foundation. Work will be pushed forward with all possible speed and it will be completed in about six weeks.

City's Tax Budget Shows Only Slight Increase in Face of Abnormal Prices

Weeks of hard work on the part of the Councilmanic Finance Committee, during which Mayor Calkins' admonition to cut everything in the way of expenditures "down to the bone," were made known at the adjourned Council meeting last night, in the welcome announcement that the amount of money to be raised by taxation this year would only be $104 more than last year. When the advanced cost of every municipal need is taken into consideration, this figure is little short of remarkable and probably it will not be equalled anywhere else in the State.

The reading of the budget as presented by Chairman Sminck shows that Plainfield's expenses for 1918 will be approximately $390,786.00. When the customary revenues from franchise taxes, licenses and other sources amounting to about $90,000 is deducted, it leaves $300,786 to be secured by the ordinary tax methods. The increase last year over 1916 was $24,060, resulting in a jump of seventeen points in the tax rate.

While the surface is one of the largest increases is checked up against the police department. Last year the amount appropriated was $35,000, and this year it is $40,000. As a matter of fact there was a $4,000 balance from 1917, which, according to the borough law, must be kept credited to the department for this year, but which can be used after January 1, 1919. The other $1,000 is to care for the automatic increase in salaries of policemen reaching a higher grade. A schedule based on the budget will be held in the Council Chambers next Friday night, January 25.

The appropriations for the various departments are as follows: Streets, $10,000; police, $40,000; sewer maintenance, $17,000; Board of Health, $10,600; city share street benefits, $2,500; audit, $650.000; hospital, $5,000; publishing and advertising, $2,000; district court, $3,500; rent, $2,200; miscellaneous, $1,000; police pension fund, $2,500; insurance premiums, $500; Memorial Day, $100; tax department, $8,125; building inspector's department, $1,600; city court, $1,650; salaries, $11,280; interest on school bonds, $27,895; interest on sewer bonds, $22,962; interest on police station bonds, $790,000; interest on fire house bond, $675,000; interest on street improvement bonds, $7,810; interest on notes, $1,000; principal of school bonds, $5,000; principal on sewer bonds, $11,000; principal on police station bonds, $1,500; principal street improvements bonds, $2,000; sinking fund, $1,600; public library, $10,500; fire department, $65,300; play ground commission, $500; shade tree commission, $1,500; street lighting, $20,000; city boom fund, $12,00; city hall purposes, $25,000. A complete account of the budget, together with a comparison with last year's figures and all incidentals appertaining to the city's financial statement or 1918, will be found in an official advertisement on Page 4 of this issue of the Record.

Routine matters disposed of by the Council last night included the appointment of Victor Crook, Harry Mowroy, Frank Reynolds, Edward Murphy and John Reinman as probationers in the Fire Department; the granting of permission to erect gasoline tanks at 314 Madison avenue by the Suburban Transit Company and at 527 Seventh street by Pames Tooney; , the payment of $149.83 to Patrolman Charles Wicht for salary during an illness; the appropriation of $13,500 for a "completion payment" on the sewer system extensionm the payment of two amounts on the City Hall account, one of $387.54 to P. F. Kenny, and the other of $480 to George Amos; the borowing of $2,500 for the City Hall account in anticipation of the sale of bonds; the licensing of Robert Murray to conduct an employment agency and the authorization of the fire committee, through a resolution by Chairman Charles C. Graves, six tires be purchased for the Nott pumping engine from Moore & Moore, of Newark, at a cost not to exceed $450.48.

A report from the firemen's pension fund showed that there is now a balance of $32,000 on hand. Salaries amounting to $18,693.01 were ordered paid by the auditing committee and on motion of Chairman Condict of the police committee, a private telephone was ordered installed in Judge DeMeza's office at police headquarters at a cost of $36.00 a year.

Elizabeth Society Visits Plainfield as Guest of T. A. B.'s

More than 200 members of the Elizabeth T. A. B. Society came to Plainfield Tuesday night, in response to an invitation from St. Mary's T. A. B. Society. The visitors were royally entertained at T. A. B. Hall on West Fourth street, where music, dancing and bowling matches were enjoyed until well past the midnight hour.

The Elizabethans made the trip in a special car attached to one of the New Jersey Central trains. They brought a band with them and marched to Fourth street hall by way of the business section. The delegation included the girl friends of the members and the Plainfield society also had its girl friends as guests. The Elizabeth band played informally through the evening but music for the dancing was furnished by Eddie Marks' orchestra. The total attendance at the affair numbered fully 500, one of the largest gatherings that has been noted in the new club house.

In the bowling matches, the Elizabeth boys proved the winners, although they took the series of games by a narrow margin.

The gathering was arranged by a committee from St. Mary's T. A. B. Society composed of William J. Mahoney, Frank Donnelly, Rufus Larew and Daniel Guinee. The Plainfield men will make a return visit to Elizabeth on Thursday night, February 7.

WILLIAM McCLINTON GIVEN FAREWELL PARTY.

William McClinton, of Pond place, who on Tuesday enlisted in the aviation section of the Signal Corps, was given a farewell party by twenty-five friends at his home Wednesday night.

The young people present spent several hours in the enjoyment of music, dancing and games. Supper was served at midnight. During the evening Mr. McClinton was presented with an illuminated dial wrist watch by his mother, Mrs. A. Allard. The gathering was arranged by the young man's sister, Miss Sarah McClinton. Mr. McClinton reported at Fort Slocum today and expects to be sent to San Antonio, Texas, at an early date.

Mr. Newcorn Discusses Judgeship Appointment

Former District Court Judge William Newcorn yesterday issued the following statement relative to his candidacy for the appointment as judge of the Court of Common Pleas of Union county, following Governor Edge's announcement that he had selected former Senator Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford, for the office:

To the Editor of the Plainfield Record:

In answer to the many requests for a statement upon the appointment of Senator Carlton B. Pierce as judge of the Court of Common Pleas, I desire to state that as an aspirant for the same position, my candidacy was predicted entirely upon the principle that the judge of that court should be one, who by long practice and experience, in the New Jersey courts, possessed the qualifications to discharge the various duties appertaining to the county courts, and the lack of this qualification is the only ground upon which I opposed the appointment of the Senator. I believe in this opinion I simply echoed the sentiment of the bar and a majority of the laymen in Union county, and I have used all fair means to impress this view upon the mind of the Governor.

The Governor has seen fit to let personal friendship control in his selection, and for months has been candid in expressing his desire to make this appointment, and his decision is final. My congratulations have already gone forward to Senator Pierce upon his appointment.

Yours very respectfully,
WILLIAM NTWCORN.

CHARLES A. HIGGINS REAPPOINTED MORGUE-KEEPER

Charles A. Higgins, of this city, a member of the undertaking firm of I. J. & C. A. Higgins, was yesterday reappointed by Judge James C. Connolly to be morgue-keeper for the Plainfield district, which includes all the territory westward to Cranford and north to Summit. The term is for three years and is the second Mr. Higgins has received. The official location of the morgue will be at 111 West Fourth street as heretofore. Two deputy morgue-keepers and a morgue-keeper for the county were also made by Judge Connolly yesterday. They are Daniel J. Leonard for the Elizabeth district, and Harry Lohmiller for Rahway and vicinity.

"Big Doings" at Pythian Session

"Big doings" will be the order of things at the regular meeting of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, in the Castle Hall in the Babcock building, tonight. Twenty of the candidates secured in the competitive campaign inaugurated last month will be given the second degree and consequently the Knights who have been "through the mill" kno what a busy session is in prospect. There is a possibility that the number to receive the degree may be even larger as several who were to have secured the rank of page last week, but did not appear, may be given this degree at the early part of the meeting tonight.

The "drive" for new members commenced in December, when Chancellor Commander Joy appointed Senator William N. Runyon and Assemblyman Augustus Cowgill Walter L. Hetfield as captains of two teams to bring in new material. Each captain selected fifty members as assistants and an agreement was made that whichever side secured the greatest number of candidates should be the guests of the losers at a banquet. Up to the present time thirty-three applications have been favorably balloted upon with Senator Runyon's side standing in the lead. As Mr. Hetfield's team has a lot of "good prospects," the closing of the campaign has been deferred until February 1. By that time it is believed that the applications will number fifty. Even at that the officers of the lodge feel highly elated at the result already obtained as war conditions have produced numerous obstacles not conducive to bringing in new members. The Perseverance members are looking forward with great expectations to the conferring of the third degree at the regular meeting next Friday night. This will also be a gala occasion as many of the "old timers" will be on hand to assist in the ceremonies. A good and welfare session will be held in conclusion, even if the "goat riding" does not conclude until midnight. An urgent invitation is extended every Pythian in the city to be on hand.

When the campaign is concluded and the winning team announced at the close of this month, plans will be made for the jollification at the expense of the losers. This will include an entertainment by professional talent and a reception for members and friends.

David Allan, the present chancellor emomander, believes Perseverance has commenced one of the greatest years in its history, as the activities of the past month have shown the members what real work can accomplish. With the reception of so much new material, re-instatement of former knights, and renewed interest of others who have been missing from the lodge meetings, the organization bids fair to stand out prominently in fraternal circles during 1918.

Unity Lodge Holds "Roll Call Night" With Installation

In connection with the installation of recently elected officers, Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, last night held a successful roll call. The members turned out in large numbers and a general good time was held in the "good and welfare" session. Speeches were made by the officers and those who had not been at the Castle Hall for a long time. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

The installation ceremonies were conducted by District Deputy Peter V. Hall and staff, of Neshanic. A noteworthy fact in connection with this work was the return of Frank Putnam, of East Second street, to the position of keeper of records and seals for the twentieth consecutive term. Mr. Putnam succeeded A. W. Dunavan in 1898 and since that time has been one of the most active Pythians in Plainfield. A large part of the growth of Unity Lodge has been due to his untiring efforts in its behalf.

The other officers installed were as follows: Chancellor commander, George Boland; vice chancellor, Jacob Stierer; master of the work, Frank Case; prelate, Henry Trottner; master of finance, Charles Mitchell; master of exchequer, Samuel Hampton; master at arms, A. J. Montross; inner guard, George Bowe; outer guard, Henry Goodhouse; representative to grand lodge, J. W. A. Banaranche; alternate to grand lodge, James D. Anderson.

MATILDA A. CLAY.

Mrs. Matilda A. Clay, widow of Robert J. Clay, died last night at her home, 84 Manning avenue, the borough, last night. She was eighty-four years old and came to the Plainfield from Jersey City, where her family was prominent for many years. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

Mass Meeting Opens Way For War Camp Drive

Reasons why the Knights of Columbus should have no difficulty in securing the proposed $10,000,000 War Camp Fund which it will begin canvassing for tomorrow were set forth in plain terms at Columbus Auditorium last night, when the first gun in the local drive was "fired."

A gathering of Plainfield people which practically filled the big hall listened to rousing appeals from Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, Rev. Dr. Walter J. Swaffield and Rev. Father Bernard M. Hogan, each of whom told of the sacrifices being made by the soldier boys in the field for whom the vast sum of money is being secured and told in what manner it would be expended.

Senator William N. Runyon, who presided as chairman, also told in his own practical way why the people of Plainfield should quickly and willingly contribute the $25,000 that has been apportioned to this district. The Senator roused his hearers to a high pitch of enthusiasm when he described the needs of the brave lads in khaki here and abroad and asserted his belief that the local public would subscribe as willingly as it had done for other war purposes in the past.

The actual work of the drive will commence tomorrow morning and will continue until one week from Sunday inclusive. The city has been divided into nineteen districts with additional ones for the suburban towns. Each of these will be visited by personal workers, of whom there are 400 or more. Any amount, no matter how small, will be acceptable.

David T. Kenney has been appointed general supervisor of the local campaign as conducted by Watchung Council, K. of C. He will have the direct assistance of Marion S. Ackerman as assistant supervisor, and an executive and general committee selected from representative men in every parto f the city. The spacious rooms in the Marsh building at 203 Park avenue, which were used during the Red Cross campaign, have been generously donated the Knights by Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Waring, and these will be used as headquarters for all meetings and information purposes during the drive.

The executive committee is made up of the following: Arthur A. Cannon, chairman; Andrew E. Kenny, vice chairman; John J. Carty, treasurer; Garret A. Hobart, secretary, and William V. Sullivan, assistant secretary, Francis J. Blatz, Thomas F. Carty, W. H. Forristel, John A. Gaffney, H. P. Greenwood, Dr. F. J. Hughes, Patrick S. Kiely, C. L. Kling, J. J. Noonan, George J. Tobin, Hugh T. Treacy, J. J. Varley and Charles J. Ward. David T. Kenney and Peter J. McDonough constitute a finance committee.

The following comprise the general committee:

Leighton Calkins, Wm. L. Smalley, Rev. Fr. A. Sharkey, Rev. R. M. Bogan, Rev. John Baldwin, Rev. St. G. Burrill, Rev. T. H. Campbell, Rev. E. J. Dunphy, Rev. J. W. Flynn, Rev. C. S. Gillespie, Rev. Not to File Appeals With the Local Board

W. R. Codington, chairman of the local Board, has received a notice from the District Board to the effect that a registrant should only file an appeal with the local Board when the local Board has not granted him a claim for deferred classification or other than industrial or agricultural ground.

AN ANNIVERSARY MASS.

An anniversary mass was held in St. Mary's church this morning in memory of James J. Strappe, a w dely known resident of Plainfield who died suddenly on January 19, 1917. Rev. Father B. M. Bogan was the officiating priest and many relatives and friends of the deceased were present.

Garfield's Order Not Generally Obeyed Here

Majority of Industrial Plants Close Down But Business Houses All Open This Morning—Situation Still Tense At Netherwood Pumping Plant—Public Service Abrogates All Power Contracts

Commissioner Garfield's drastic five-day closing order was not generally observed in this city up to noon today. Whether or not the merchants and business houses in general did not observe the full intent of the dictum or do not believe in conforming to it to the full extent was not made known but as it stands it seems to be matter of choice with each particular individual.

A telephone canvass of the various local industries disclosed the fact that the Standard Aeroplane which is engaged in making munitions, was working as usual. At the Scott Press Works, also making munitions, no statement was made as to the observance of the order pending the arrival of a head official. At the Pond Tool Works it was said that the order had been complied with and the factory would remain shut down until next Wednesday. General Manager Clewer stated that all men who reported for work this morning were sent back home, but would be given a full day's pay. The Spicer Manufacturing shop at South Plainfield and the International Motor Works both made the reply that the order of Commissioner Garfield was being observed.

With the business houses, there was little or no observance. Pepper Brothers and A. E. Force's reported as being open as usual. The Woodhull-Martin Company stated that it would close next Monday for the day and Rosenbaum Brothers declared they were remaining open today and tomorrow but might possibly close Monday. With three smaller concerns the result was generally the same. Some said they did not intend to close while others insisted that the order was not meant for them. Still others asserted they would not close their business places until they received word direct from Washington instead of accepting newspapers as authority.

The whole idea of the communication from Washington is to save coal and in Plainfield as in other places, the situation today is critical. Fuel Commissioner Kelsey is making efort to provide for the hospital, homes and industrial plants first, but the task is becoming harder hourly.

With the Plainfield-Union Water Company, the lack of fuel at the Netherwood pumping station continues to cause the officials apprehension. It was stated by Secretary Whelan this morning that two carloads of coal had been secured from the shippers Wednesday and that every effort was being made to send more as soon as possible. Ordinarily the company keeps a three months' reserve supply but at the present time, it is barely possible to keep a week ahead. Mr. Whelan renews his appeal for consumers to use water as sparingly as possible and by making sure that faucets are not turned on at night help the company conserve its supply of fuel.

Further apprehension was given Plainfield industries today when a circular letter was received from the Public Service Corporation stating that beginning with Thursday, January 24, it would abrogate all existing power contracts. This does not mean that the electric current would be shut off, the communication goes on to say, but the company will not be held responsible for lack of power under the allowances given it by the Government. It also says that current will be supplied as usual wherever possible but all concerns using power should make a full report of its needs to the Government.

Appreciate Colonel Martin's Advance

The assignment of Lieutenant-Colonel William B. Martin, of Elizabeth, to take charge of the 104th ammunition train, has been received in Plainfield with a great deal of satisfaction. For several years Colonel Martin severd as captain of Company K, the Plainfield division of the old Second New Jersey regiment and he has local admirers by the many hundreds.

When he ran for the office of county clerk, the Colonel received a flattering vote here, mainly through the popularity he had attained while directing the former well-known military organization. After the promotion which took him away from this city, he continued to hold his interests in Company K and came here every time the boys had a rally or social meeting. He was succeeded in commanding Company K by the late Harry B. Kitchell, to whom he gave assistance whenever it was needed.

As a marksman, Colonel Martin ranks among the ten best rival shots in the world. He took part in National matches in various parts of the country and was picked as one of the team to represent America in the International tourney conducted in England. Those who keep in touch with military matters can well remember how the marksman from the United States carried off practically all the honors. In many ways Colonel Martin has devoted his life to becoming thoroughly expert in war work and his Plainfield friends were in earnest hopes that his ability would be quickly recognized when the troops of the State were called into action. The outlook at first was dubious as the reorganization committee units of the Elizabeth man was shuffled about so often that it was hard to follow his assignments. As commander of the 104th ammunition train unit he will have supervision of the horse and motor sections and also the ordnance corps.

Lieutenant-Colonel Martin went to Camp McClellan in command of the Second New Jersey Regiment, but when this unit was merged with the First and Fourth Regiments of New Jersey, to form the 113th Infantry, Lieutenant-Colonel George M. Duffie came to the front as the Elizabeth man's senior and the latter was sent to the Fifty-fourth Depot Brigade. When the depot unit was disbanded Lieutenant-Colonel Martin was attached to the 116th Infantry, of the Fifty-eighth Brigade and has been serving on the divisional efficiency board and on the special court martial boards.

From the first it was considered likely the divisional commander would make good use of such ability as was possessed by the old Second Regiment field officer, and his nomination for a divisional command is one of the most popular announcements that has been made at Camp McClellan in several months. He first saw service with the Third New Jersey Infantry in 1898 as a private, and was named captain and inspector of rifle practice in the old Second Infantry in 1902, becoming lieutenant [illegible] '216T ni peoqoo to do.

Former Local Man Aided Trotsky Back To Present High Position in Russia

Plainfield people who have been following the activities of the Bolsheviks in Russia and the sudden rise of Leon Trotsky as the foremost man in that chaotic country will appreciate, knowing that a former well-known resident of this city has been a close personal friend of Trotsky for several years. This man is John L. Honan, a manual training teacher in the Newark schools, who was born and lived in Plainfield until about ten years ago.

As a member of a Newark civic league, in 1913, Mr. Honan was appointed one of a committee to arrange for a series of lectures on social and economic problems. In the course of its investigations this committee was given the name of Leon Trotsky, then a young newspaper man in charge of the editorial column of a socialist paper printed in New York. He was found to be a close student of human nature and thoroughly conversent with the subjects the Newarkers wanted for their lectures. Trotsky accepted an invitation to appear in the Jersey metropolis, making such a profound impression when he addressed several large audiences that he was re-engaged a number of times.

"Shortly after the war broke out in Europe in 1914, Trotsky informed Mr. Honan that he believed he should go back to Russia to help counsel his people but that he lacked the necessary funds to pay his passage over. The former Plainfielder enlisted the sympathies of several mutual friends who contrived to secure the necessary amount needed to take the young newspaperman back to his native land. Trotsky was most effusive in his thanks to his benefactors, declaring to each one as he said good-bye that he would not forget them if he "made good" in Russia.

"Little did I know," said Mr. Honan, to a Record man this week, as he was returning from a visit to the home of his mother on West Fourth street, "that I was helping to pay the boat fare of the greatest man in Russia today. Trotsky is a likeable chap and from what I know of him will restore the disordered conditions of Russia to something like normal if he is given half the chance."

When asked by the reporter if he thought that Trotsky might remember his promise to the man who had helped him in time of need, and possibly appoint each of them to a position of honor in Russia, Mr. Honan replied:

"I hardly think so. From newspaper reports I should say Trotsky had enough to do to take care of himself at the present time without thinking of offering Americans a job. Anyway, I am satisfied to be here in preference to 'Over there.'"

First Girl to Don Uncle Sam's Uniform Doing Duty in Plainfield as Yeoman

Miss Ruth Tartter, of Newburgh, N. Y., who makes her home with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bechtel, of Carlton avenue, enjoys the unique distinction of being the first young woman to wear Uncle Sam's feminine design of the regulation naval uniform.

In response to the Government's call for stenographers, Miss Tartter entered the service as "first class yeoman." In this capacity she was assigned to duty at the Scott Press Works in this city, where gun mounts are being manufactured for government ships. The young woman was placed on the same footing as male yeoman in relation to pay and uniform, consequently was compelled to wear the garb which Uncle Sam describes for his female volunteers. It consists of the familiar sailor blouse, sailor hat and sleeveless middy, such as the sailors wear, together with the substitution of pleated skirt for the rest of "Jack Tar's" time honored raiment. Since Miss Tartter received her allotment of clothing, 150 other young women in various parts of the country have received the same uniform.

The novel sight of a girl garbed in naval "togery" has attracted considerable attention in Plainfield and in consequence the "yeoman" has been subjected to scrutiny that often becomes unpleasant. Nevertheless, Miss Tartter says she is proud to wear the uniform of Uncle Sam as one of his volunteers anxious to do whatever work he may have for her to do.

"There are lots of things to be done in this war that girls can do if they want to," said Miss Tartter to a questioning Record reporter, "and when they enter the service they should wear the uniform the same as their brothers are doing. Of course, being normally feminine, a change of dress at intervals would suit my fancy much better than the continual donning of one particular outfit, but that is only a very small matter in comparison with what the brave American lads going to the trenches have to contend with. Uncle Sam needs lots of more girls to help him out in his yeomanry work, and if my enlistment will result in others following suit it shall feel amply repaid for any sacrifices I might undergo."

Miss Tartter recently signified her willingness to go abroad and may possibly be assigned in the near future to a transport or supply base in France. When asked if she realized that crossing the ocean on a naval vessel is a hazardous undertaking at this time she replied with a smile:

"Of course it's dangerous, but then why should the young men of the country undergo all the peril. I have sensed it to do my bit and I intend to carry out this determination no matter where duty may call."

Miss Tartter held a responsible position as expert stenographer with a large concern in her home town but gave up her work and attractive salary there to serve her country at the standard yeoman pay of thirty-five dollars per month.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

Division No. 6, A. O. H., installed these officers, Tuesday night: President, John F. Casey; vice president, John Hurley; treasurer, John J. Gallagher; recording secretary, Timothy Cullinan; financial secretary, John Driscoll; sergeant-at-arms, John Shea; sentinel, Patrick Diskin. The division will hold the annual St. Patrick's ball this year as usual and a committee composed of William Lafferty, John Shea and Thomas Nugent has been appointed to complete arrangements.

Miss Edith Mellick gave an enjoyable piano recital at the Hartridge Auditorium yesterday afternoon. The attendance was limited to the Alumnae, the members of the academic department and the faculty of the school. The proceeds, which amounted to a neat sum, will be applied to Hartridge School Junior Auxiliary to the Red Cross.

Attorney Robert Newton Crane has secured a satisfactory settlement in the claim of Oliver Olsen of North Plainfield, against the Lolzeaux Lumber Company for injuries received while in the defendant concern's employ. The matter was to have been heard in the Civil Court. The amount of settlement was not made known.

District Deputy George Newton and staff, of Essex County Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Irvington, will visit Plainfield Lodge of Odd Fellows next Monday night for the purpose of installing the recently elected officers. Grand Secretary Harry Pine, of Trenton and other grand lodge officers will be in attendance. Important business will be transacted that calls for a full attendance of members.

All friends as well as members of the Y. W. C. A. are given a cordial invitation to attend the annual meeting of the association to be held at the organization's building, 210 Park Front street, next Monday night, January 21. Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, honorary vice president, will be in charge and a most interesting program has been provided. This includes an address by Rev. Stephen J. Herben, Jr., and the reading of reports from committees and vocal and instrumental music.

Royal Council, No. 77, O. U. A. M., held a euchre party in the Howard building on Park avenue, Wednesday night. The attendance was quite large and a most enjoyable time was had.

The home of Henry Nischwitz, on Fairview avenue, the borough, was the scene of a "double birthday gathering" Monday night. The affair was given by Mrs. William T. Woodruff and Mrs. Henry Nischwitz, in honor of Mrs. Nischwitz's daughter, Mrs. Richard H. Bellis, and Hiram A. Woodruff, whose natal anniversaries occur on that day. Supper was served to a gathering of twelve early in the evening, after which cards and other diversions were enjoyed until midnight.

Through Attorney Robert Newton Crane, Chancellor Walker has granted an absolute divorce to Irving Winter, of this city, from his wife, May P. Winter. The action was based on statutory grounds and cited among other things that the defendant had said, "that she married the petitioner out of spite." The name of Carl Gilbert was mentioned in the case as a friend of Mrs. Winter's. The couple were married by Rev. C. R. Gillespie at the Grace Methodist parsonage, North Plainfield, on July 17, 1915. Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Winter was Miss May P. Hall, daughter of William Hall, of Grant avenue.

Rev. Dr. Ewing, former president of Lahore College, India, addressed the Women's Association of the Congregational church Tuesday afternoon on "The Appeal of Christianity to a Cultivated Non-Christian People."

The congregation of the Children of Israel, whose synagogue is on New street, has announced that Abraham Shereveshky, of Haverhill, Mass., would take charge of the work here at once.

At the regular meeting at Trades Council Hall tonight, the Building Trades Council, of this city, will install the following recently elected officers: President, H. H. Corey; vice president, Everett Harvey; recording secretary, Russell Hann; treasurer, Harry Berdinger, trustees, John O'Neil, James Anderson and Augustus Reed. Important business to be transacted tonight includes the election of a business agent, and William Lunger, who has served the Council in a most efficient manner for several years, is slated for re-appointment.

A. B. Meredith, of East Ninth street, this city, assistant State commissioner of education, addressed the Monday Afternoon Club at a regular meeting this week. The subject of his discourse was "The Schools and Democracy."

Mrs. Gilbert B. Fletcher, of West Seventh street, entertained the members of Camp Middlebrook, Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution of Bound Brook, at her home Tuesday afternoon.

North Plainfield's budget for the coming year has been fixed at a total of $55,000 as against $52,000 last year. The increase has been made necessary by an advance in salaries to policemen and firemen, together with the purchase of fire department supplies, sewer expenditures and the general advance in cost of all materials. The budget was adopted at a meeting of the Council last Saturday night, during which Mayor William I. Smalley announced that every item had been pared to the bone to prevent any further increase in the taxes.

Mrs. Mina Duryea, who recently returned from the devastated regions evacuated by the German troops, will speak in the Hartridge Auditorium next Sunday night, January 20, under the auspices of the Belgian Committee of the Plainfield Chapter of the Red Cross. She will exhibit a number of views taken abroad.

The Plainfield High School Auxiliary to the Red Cross has proven itself to be one of the most active organizations of the kind in the city. The report just presented to headquarters shows that the members made among other things last week a total of 2,100 compresses.

City Clerk John J. Carroll has been appointed explosive license agent for this district by the United States Government. All persons who handle or use explosives of any kind must apply to Mr. Carroll for a license to carry on their business.

Plainfield Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose, held the first meeting of the year, Monday night, and to celebrate the event served a turkey supper to the members at the close of the session. Dictator M. J. Whelan exercised general supervision and acted as toastmaster during a period of speechmaking. The committee in charge of the "spread" was composed of Chaplain Pugliucca, chairman; J. T. Carty, George Ezell, M. Nicholas, D. Muldowney, J. Enni and Louis Feiring. In the lodge session, Edwin Nye was elected prelate to succeed Charles Freleigh, resigned. The regular election of officers takes place in March.

Frelinghuysen In Favor of Suffrage

In a letter to Mrs. Lillian F. Feickert, of this city, president of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association, Senator Frelinghuysen this week made known his intention to vote for the suffrage amendment when it comes before the Senate.

Senator Frelinghuysen explained that he had hesitated in deciding to vote for the resolution because of the result of the suffrage referendum in New Jersey in 1915, when suffrage was defeated by a majority of 51,108. At the same time suffrage was defeated in New York by a vote proportionately the same. The result of the last suffrage election in New York, however, persuaded the Senator, he wrote, that suffrage sentiment in New Jersey had grown in the same measure.

"As a matter of fact," wrote Mr. Frelinghuysen, "if I were opposed to suffrage for women I should still see mit my duty to vote in favor of submitting this matter to the representatives of the people. * * * This is democracy, pure and simple, and anything less than that is not democracy. The essence of popular government is found in this principle—the right of the people to pass judgment upon their organized law, with a view to changes, whenever the necessities of the case demand such action. * * * I cannot refrain from saying that, in my opinion, the test of fitness, as a prerequisite to casting one's ballot, should never have been based upon sex. Women should always have been vested with this right."

Men Still Needed For Aviation Corps

A call for 7,000 men in the aviation section of the United States Signal Corps, which has attracted thousands of men to recruiting offices, is hoped to prove alluring at this time to Plainfield men. The army recruiting office at the Watchung avenue postoffice building is always open to men ready to enlist. Of late, however, applicants have been few in number.

The men required for the aviation section must be specialists in one of the following lines: Gas engine construction, as machinists, sheet metal workers, cabinet makers, painters, wheelwrights or cooks. Recruits for this service will be sent to Camp Hancock, Ga.

Calls for recruits for the water supply company of the Twenty-sixth Engineers, with headquarters at Camp Dix. The men are to supply deficiencies in the existing organization.

Married men will be accepted by the local officer upon giving address of wife and number of dependents (children) and ages, also dependent widowed mother.

The Government makes allowances for those in addition to half of the soldier's pay.

"Bone Dry," Liquor Men Say, if Any

Accepting as a foregone conclusion the passage of the Mackey Local Option bill, and that by Senator Walls for the regulation of the liquor traffic, representatives of the saloonkeepers and hotelmen made their strongest play for compensation and a strictly bone-dry law when they were given a hearing by the Joint Judiciary Committee Monday afternoon in the Senate chamber.

Their pleas were not sufficiently effective to bring the amendments they desired in the bills, which were reported out of committee in the Senate Monday night. Final vote on them will be taken in that branch next week.

Attempts of the objectors to effect the changes they desired were aimed at the brewers chiefly. They also acted on the theory that if they cannot sell the intoxicants the residents of a dry section should not be permitted to have a supply in their homes.

N. H. Porter, of Newark, representing the New Jersey State Brewers' Association, asserted that while that organization is opposed to sumptuary legislation of any character, the success of local option this year was taken for granted, and the only question was about the makeup of a measure to carry out the platform obligations of the Republican party. He thought it unfair that the referendum clause should ask, should the sale of intoxicants be "prohibited," rather than "permitted." He also thought special elections should not be permitted from July 1 to December 1, but Mr. Richards, Senator from Atlantic, explained that the object of this provision was to keep the special elections at least two months away from the general election. Mr. Porter maintained that the fullest measure of home rule was not carried by the bills, since they would permit, as their main object, the changing of wet territory to dry, but not the dry to wet.

Harry Heher, the Trenton lawyer, representing the New Jersey Federation of Liquor interests, gave a logical talk for his clients, and made a good impression on his auditors. He declared the saloon men did not desire to obstruct the bills, but only asked for a fair deal. He maintained they should be compensated for the investment they have made in their business and not made the victims of hysteria. Senator Richards was interested in his declaration that some return should be made, and questioned Mr. Heher on the method in which this could be arranged. Mr. Heher said a board of adjustment could agree on the return, and that if the legislative committee did not desire to meet the question, it could be done by another referendum.

The bone dry proposition was first advanced by Mr. Heber, who held that if it is wrong to use the liquor in public it was equally objectionable in private life, and that if a territory was to be dry in name it should be so in fact. He objectioned to camouflaging under the name of outdoor decency and inward hypocrisy.

C. A. Carrigan, of Newark, manager of the Robert Treat Hotel, and president of the Northern New Jersey Hotel and Restaurant Association, declared that the average man, under the bills, was being given the privilege to bring to his home as much liquor as he wished, and that club members were allowed the opportunity to "souse" themselves. He also held that a section should be bone-dry if it voted to wipe out the saloons. He maintained that hotel men do not care to handle liquor if they could conduct their places without it. He was asked by the committee if he favored National prohibition, and he said yes, if it became so in fact, but that the country would never get it, because the very advocates do not desire it. Laughter greeted this statement.

"We shall rip things wide open and find out where the mosquitoes and grasshoppers are," was the picturesque declaration of George B. Atwood chairman of the executive committee for the hotel and restaurant men. He held that the local option bill was a brewery measure, pure and simple, and said that if the bone-dry clause were not inserted in it the hotel men would have a separate bill drawn up for this object. He had been told, he said, that there were 120 clubs in Trenton, and that 75 per cent. of them have no licenses, although they serve liquor which brings profit to the wholesalers.

The bone dry and the mere issue of any that has been held on the local option question, and the audience was comparatively small. Rev. J. D. Shields, president of the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, commented on the changed conditions, and remarked about the absence of National figures who formerly came to the State House to plead the liquor men's cause. Bishop Stearly, coadjutor bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Newark, urged that the bills be passed to make an advance of democracy, for which all have been contending. Fillmore Condit held that if compensation should be considered it should go to the victims of the trade. Samuel Wilson, of Jersey City, held that 75 per cent. of delinquency was due to drink, and that the State owed nothing to the purveyors in the trade. Supreme Court Clerk Gebhardt declared he was opposed to the saloon business because of its wickedness, and that any claim for compensation had been dissipated by the lessening of the value of the business during the past three years. Former Judge B. J. Jones declared that the bone dry object was not aimed at in the bill, but only the sale of intoxicants. He and Mr. Shields believed that ordinances could be passed for compensation, but Mr. Jones thought the courts would upset such an arrangement. Rev. Dr. M. D. Ketcham, president of the Ministerial Federation, congratulated the Legislature on the bills about to be passed.

Order Gives Homes First Call on Coal

Coal for suffering families and war utilities has the right of way over the National railroad today.

Priority orders issued by Secretary McAdoo declare that fuel must be supplied at critical points before any other kinds of freight—food, mattress or anything else—is moved.

After the first vital needs for coal have been supplied then, his order states, food is to be given priority, and thirdly bunker coal for 115 ships tied up in New York harbor for lack of fuel.

All State administrators were notified by Fuel Administrator Garfield today that wherever a shortage in coal or coke is found to exist for domestic use, coal or coke may be diverted to the stricken districts no matter what its previous routings may have been.

The action was deemed necessary by Director McAdoo in the face of terrible congestion and increasing suffering growing out of the heavy snows and widespread cold weather which has swept the country during the last week.

NOTES FROM THE PARK AVE. BAPT. CHURCH

The Park Avenue Baptist church congregation will tender a reception to Dr. and Mrs. Swaffield in the Bible school rooms tonight at 8 o'clock.

Dr. Swaffield has arranged to hold some sort of special service on Sunday night each month. The first of these will take place Sunday, January 27, when the pastor will preach by request a special sermon in honor of the men in the navy; subject, "The Sailor, the Indispensable Man In Peace and War." The whole service will be intensely patriotic. Those who have boys in the navy are warmly invited. Real patriotic hymns will be sung by all, one of them being the aviator's hymn, entitled, "Men Who Battle In the Air." The second special service will be held on Sunday evening, February 10, and will be a "Lincoln Day Service," the pastor preaching upon the "Message of Lincoln to the Men of Today." The military and patriotic orders and organizations of the city are invited with their friends. Plans are now being completed for the third special service which will be held on Sunday night, March 3, and in observance of the birthday of the late Dr. Robert Lowry, once pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church and author of "Shall We Gather at the River?" and "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" and other familiar hymns. Dr. Lowry's birthday is on March 12, which makes the time appropriate.

Miss Ellen MacLaurin and Miss Bates, field secretaries of Foreign Missions, will speak at the evening service on next Sunday January 20. Miss MacLaurin and Miss Bates will be at the First Baptist church in the morning.

FRANKLIN ASSOCIATION CHANGES MEETING DATES

At the regular meeting of the Franklin School Parent-Teachers' Association Wednesday afternoon, it was decided by unanimous vote to change the date of future meetings from the third Wednesday to the third Tuesday. This will make the next meeting come on February 19, and on that occasion the children of the Franklin School kindergarten will perform some of the exercises that are a part of their every routine in the classroom. All members are earnestly requested to be in attendance.

Mrs. Albert Wilson, the new president, presided at the meeting of the association Wednesday. The attendance was quite large, nearly one hundred and numerous details of the work between parents and teachers were discussed. The remainder of the winter and the coming season promise to bring about numerous activities in the association, which will serve to aid in the education of the children of the members.

PLAINFIELD FIREMEN AID AT BLAZE IN DUNELLEN

Low water pressure, attributed to waste during the recent cold spell, hampered Dunellen and Plainfield firemen Monday afternoon a flaming fire that wrecked the home of Mrs. N. E. Marlow, of Dunellen avenue, Dunellen. The fire was caused by a defective flue and gained such headway before neighbors discovered it that it was possible to save only the frame and part of the contents of the house. The damage was estimated at $5,000. Mrs. Marlow, who is a cripple, had to be carried from the house. Firemen prevented the flames from spreading to the Methodist parsonage next door.

When the appeal for help was received by Fire Chief Jennings in this city at 2:41 o'clock, he dispatched number 3 apparatus from the West Fourth street house to the scene. The combination chemical and hose motor vehicle made the run to Dunellen in remarkably quick time and the members of the company, under the direction of Captain George Mohl, did excellent work.

Best Burlesque Yet Coming Next Week

In years gone by many theatregoers never went to see burlesque shows for the reason that the majority of companies presented this class of attraction were a hodgepodge of inferior performers, singing in a very poor way and giving a brand of comedy that offended, the scenery was old and in many instances was cast off by other companies and in a ragged state; however in the past few years conditions have changed for the better, instead of the haphazard methods that were in vogue burlesque has blossomed *forth into one of the leading amuse*ment enterprises of this country, managers of wealth and brain have taken hold and have put forward their best efforts, hiring master workmen to build their productions and scenic artists to paint them into settings that will please the eye; the costumes and millinery are imported or copied from the very latest creations; the actors in many instances are recruited from Broadway productions or vaudeville and only those of exceptional ability are engaged, the female portion of the caste not only must possess talent but also charm and shapeliness, so that today burlesque not only contains the best in theatrical talent but also the magnificence of scenic and electrical equipment. Millions of dollars has been spent to bring this happy combination into being, but the labor and money spent has been well rewarded for today burlesque is catering to move people, both men and women, who demand the best in theatrical endeavor than any other form of amusement in the United States. In this connection may be mentioned that one of burlesque's noted producers, James R. Cooper, is presenting his Town at the Plainfield Theatre his first edition of "The Best Show in Town," the entire production this year is new and nothing from last year has been retained but the title.

Fine Vaudeville at Plainfield Theatre

For the delectation of his patrons during the remainder of the week, Manager Shannon, of the Plainfield Theatre, offers a program which has his personal stamp of approval. It was seen for the first time yesterday afternoon and at the evening performances delighted two large audiences.

One of the principal attractions is "The Girl With the Million Eyes," a young woman of personal attractiveness who has the unique gift of being able to foresee events of the future and tell about those of the past, even in reference to people with whom she has never come in previous contact. As the description of her numbers states, "she sees everything and tells everything." The act is novel and original and will undoubtedly prove a big drawing card during the remainder of the engagement.

Other features on the program include Frank and Addington, in a novelty act that wins repeated encores at every presentation. Catherine Hayes and May Lathin, former stars of the musical comedy firmament, who present a laughable comedy song and dance number; Rose Berry, a talented musician in "A Pianologue;" William Litell & Company, in a comedy sketch, Clark and Harvard, in a farcical skit, entitled "At the Bungalow." The Pathe News and other film features will be on the program each day.

Vaudeville will hold the stage at the Plainfield all next week with the exception of Tuesday, when the offering will be Harry Cooper's latest burlesque production, "The Best Show In Town."

County Tax Board Hears Thirty-one Plainfield Appeals

Sitting in the Council chambers on North avenue, Monday, the Union County Board for the Equalization of Taxes considered appeals from Plainfielders objecting to their assessments. The total number of petitions heard was thirty-one, a much smaller number than any year previous. Last year nearly 100 cases were passed upon.

Most of the appeals made Monday were on personal assessments and the majority of them were allowed as this form of appraisal is one of the most difficult confronting the assessors. None of the grants were for very large sums, the only notable one being a reduction to John Oswald, the East Front street confectioner, of $1,800 on an original assessment of $2,500. The owner's claim was for $500.

Speaking of the petitions after the sitting, Peter J. Olde, of Elizabeth, secretary to the Board, said the small number of appeals was evidence of the good work done by the Plainfield assessors. In previous years the County Board has had all day sittings in Plainfield, but the meeting of Monday sufficed to clear up all objections from property owners. He declared that a similar state of affairs had been found in the county so far as the Board had gone.

The appeals and their disposal were as follows:

Sarah F. Pettibone, 911 East Seventh street, assessed value $5,000. Dismissed.

John W. Dodge, personal property, 326 East Fifth street, assessed value $200, owner's value $100. Granted.

Florence McCready, 328 East Fifth street, assessed value $200, owner's value $100. Personal property. Granted.

Andrew Marinach, Block 140, assessed value $1,850, owner's value $1,700. Granted.

Earn Good, 309 Park avenue, assessed value $275, owner's value $75. Personal property. Reduced to $200.

Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, 220 East Front street, assessed value $1,000, owner's value $600. Failed to appear.

F. W. Ensel, 712 Richmond street, assessed value $300, owner's value $75. Personal property. Reduced $200.

Thos. A. Keenan, 501 Richmond street, assessed value $300, owner's value $100. Personal property. Reduced $100.

Mrs. Theodore Miller, 108 West Fourth street, assessed value $100. Cancelled.

Harold C. Durar, 812 Leland avenue, assessed value $200. Cancelled.

Mrs. George Bratingler, 763 Kensington avenue, assessed value $300, owner's value $100. Personal property. Reduced $100.

John S. Ridley, personal property, assessed value $400, owners' value $100. (Crescent Flats.) Reduced $100.

Catharina Lanehorne, 522-25 East Front street, assessed value $8,500, owner's value $7,900. Reduced $500.

Joseph A. Waglow, 509 Franklin place, assessed value $400, owner's value $200. Dismissed.

John Oswald, 161 East Front street, assessed value $2,500, owner's value $500. Cancelled $1,800.

Clinton W. Gilbert, 911 West Seventh street, assessed value $800. Cancelled.

Margaret Keenan, 440-42 East Fifth street, assessed value $2,500, and $3,000, owner's value $2,700 and $2,850. Dismissed.

C. W. Kinney, 829 Osborne avenue, assessed value $900, owner's value $600. Personal property. Reduced $200.

Santo Otranto, 326 McDowell street, assessed value $3,850, owner's value $2,850. Dismissed.

R. W. Carrington, 1105 West Eighth street, assessed value $500, owner's value $200. Personal property. Dismissed.

Rosa Frucht, 564-608 West Front street, and 26-32 Gerard avenue, assessed value $10,950, owner's value $8,000. Reduced $1,000.

Mutual Land Improvement Company, various lots and blocks of land as described on schedule attached to petition of appeal, total assessed value $17,800. Dismissed.

Charles P. Sebring, 835-39 West Front street, assessed value $950, owner's value $675. Reduced $200.

Young Men's Hebrew Association, 631-45 West Front street, assessed value $7,625. Exempt from taxation.

Thomas MacDonald, 1117 Evergreen avenue, assessed value $700, owner's value $250. Reduced $300.

H. Bernard Coombe, 831 Madison avenue, assessed value $200, owner's value $100. Reduction allowed.

Laura Coombe, 831 Madison avenue, assessed value $900, owner's value $500. Reduced $400.

U. S. Maltby, automobile stored at 324 East Third street, assessed $800. Cancelled.

Clara Rushmore, 429 Park avenue, assessed value $1,00, owner's value $300. Personal property. Reduced $600.

Rosa Frucht, 443-48 West Sixth street, assessed value $11,625, owner's value $9,500. (518 Division street also included in this assessment.) Dismissed.

Rosalie Casper, 142-14 East Front street, assessed value $26,000, owner's value $24,125. Dismissed.

The Standard Investment and Real Estate Company appealed from twenty-three assessments on vacant lots. The appeals were dismissed.

REV. DR. KERR NOT TO REMOVE TO PLAINFIELD

Rev. Dr. J. T. Kerr, of Elizabeth, who has been secured by the congregation of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church, to act as pastor during the absence of Rev. J. O. McKelvey, will not remove to Plainfield but can easily be reached at his home in Elizabeth. He will be ready to answer any call for his services from members of the church or those in need of ministerial need.

Dr. Kerr is a very able speaker and has made a very favorable impression since taking charge at the Watchung Avenue church. He occupied the pulpit for the first on January 6, as Mr. McKelvey expected to have sooner than he did. Dr. Kerr is clark to the Elizabeth Presbytery and was formerly pastor of the Third Presbyterian church at Elizabeth.

Mr. McKelvey sailed for France the latter part of last week. He volunteered to do Y. M. C. A. secretarial work for the American soldiers and will be located "Somewhere in France" for at least six months. A. M. Harris, of Central avenue, also sailed for France last week and will engage in the same work as that which is to be assigned to the North Plainfield pastor.

FREEHOLDERS PREPARING TO START PRISON FARM

The prison farm committee of the Board of Freeholders held a meeting at the courthouse at Elizabeth, this week, to discuss the opening of the new prison farm in New Providence. Those present included Chairman Haviland, Messrs. Cady, March, Bird and Hatfield.

A temporary caretaker for the place will be named at the February meeting of the Board of Freeholders. The committee will arrange to supply light to the farmhouse on the premises, which was formerly the Robertson farm, and will endeavor to get matters into shape so that work can be started at once. Prisoners from the county jail will be sent to the farm to aid in getting it into shape. The farm adjoins the Bonnie Burn institution.

ST. PAUL'S BROTHERHOOD FAVORS WOMAN OFFICER

St. Paul's Brotherhood of Trinity Reformed church on Sunday voted to do everything possible to secure laws authorizing the appointment of a woman probation officer for Union county. The brotherhood members also declared themselves in favor of a juvenile court and decided to circulate petitions asking that favorable action be taken by the Legislature.

This action followed an address by Assemblyman Arthur E. Warner, of Elizabeth, in which he explained the provisions of bills which will be introduced into the Legislature, seeking these ends.

FREEHOLDERS SEEK MORE MONEY FOR HOSPITALS

The legislative committee of the Board of Freeholders went to Trenton Tuesday for the purpose of furthering several bills that will be introduced during the present session.

The most important measure provides for the appropriating of $75,000 instead of $50,000 a year to the county for hospitals. At present the county annually contributes to the support of the three Elizabeth hospitals, Muhlenberg Hospital in this city and Overlook Hospital in Summit. One has recently come into existence in Rahway and to help that one as well as to keep stride with the growth of the others, the Board of Freeholders feels it could appropriate $25,000 extra.

ELKS' NEXT DANCE.

Plainfield Lodge of Elks has announced that the next informal reception and dance in the winter series will take place at the clubhouse on Thursday night, January 31. The committee has secured DeLisle's orchestra to furnish music and is planning several novel features new to the attendants.

Believe Edge Road Tax Act Should Be Referred to People

Amendment of the Edge road tax law to provide that no work could be done on a state highway system until there had been a referendum on the law is the latest suggestion for making the provisions of the act inoperative. It was proposed this week by City Counsel Miller, of Passaic, at a meeting in the office of Mayor Gillen of Newark, of the executive committee which fought the law in the Supreme Court.

Effort to get such a vote of the people, Mr. Miller said, would be in addition to an appeal to the Court of Errors against the decision of the Supreme Court, which recently upheld the law. Not only was he sure that the people, if they had had an opportunity to vote on the act originally, would have defeated it, but he was certain that if given such a chance now, with all the burdens the war has brought, they would repudiate it.

Those at the meeting were the Mayor, Michael J. Tansey, of counsel in the court attack, and John B. Brasser, president of the Federation of Improvement Associations. It was voted to pay Mr. Tansey $250 for his legal services, it being stated that the treasury of the committee had $250 contributed by Elizabeth and $50 given by Bogota. Dr. Miller said he would see to it that Passaic's $250 contribution would be paid immediately and Mr. Gillen agreed to stir up other municipalities which had promised to pay a share of the legal expenses. The committee will have to pay George L. Record, chief counsel, $500.

Mr. Gillen was interested in Dr. Miller's statement that Passaic was trying to collect 1917 taxes under the Edge act on second-class railroad property, bank stock and franchises of public utilities. As soon as the Supreme Court had ruled that these classes of property came within the scope of the Edge law, a petition was filed with the Passaic County Board of Taxation by Dr. Miller as city counsel, asking that assessment be made for 1917 on these properties, in spite of the fact that December 29 was apparently the last day on which such a petition could be filed. The petition was presented last week.

Dr. Miller agreed to send the Mayor a copy of the petition, and it is likely that Mr. Gillen will ask the Newark City Law Department to file a similar one with the County Tax Board.

"A referendum on the road tax law," said Dr. Miller in recommending an effort to repeal such legislation, "would be a popular measure with the people. We would have a harder fight if we tried to get the Legislature to repeal the act. The chief trouble with the act is that it authorizes the expenditure of $15,000,000 without the people having had an opportunity to vote on it. None of us would have entered this fight if the will of the people had been manifested through a referendum. The expenditure of $15,000,000 on such an undertaking at this time is against the policy of this government and of all other governments."

To determine what steps shall be taken toward an appeal from the Supreme Court decision, a conference of the lawyers who brought the litigation, including Mr. Record, will be held shortly.

Navy Enlistments Ordered Curtailed

Curtailment of navy enlistments has been ordered. A rush of men into the service has necessitated cutting New Jersey's quota to twenty-five men a week and restriction to the term of service of first enlistments to the period of the war. Terms of those heretofore accepted were four years. There was no limit to the number which could be accepted. The order, which affects the Eastern Division, was issued by Inspector John Grady and became effective this week.

The quota of twenty-five means that the average number acceptable at each of the five stations will be five a week. Two stations are in Newark, one in Park place and the other at 894 Market street, and Trenton, Paterson and Jersey City each have one.

Preference under the curtailed enlistment policy will be given to landsmen for aviation, radio and general electrical branches, as well as those experienced as blacksmiths and carpenmiths.

The Eastern Division comprises the New England and Middle Atlantic States, with a population of approximately 33,000,000, and there are about twenty recruiting stations in the larger cities. The weekly quota for the entire section has been cut to 360.

Newark and other recruiting stations in the Third Naval District have volunteered to assist the Second Naval District, with headquarters in Newport, R. I., to obtain 2,000 men for the naval reserve. Persons wishing to enter this organization may enlist at 86 Park place, Newark.

There are twenty-five positions in the yeoman class among the openings listed in the reserve.

Others needed are fifty chief quartermasters, 150 quartermasters of the first, second and third class, 300 machinists' mates, 1,000 second-class seamen, 500 first-class seamen and 200 carpenters' mates.

"BLIGHTY" PERIODS FOR "SAMMIES" AT THE FRONT

A general order issued this week creates a "blighty" for America's Sammies.

It announces the grant of a week's leave to every soldier for each four months' service at the front. The seven days are to be spent in special recreation centers now being established "somewhere in France." These are being built solely with the idea of furnishing the fighting men holiday entertainment and rest.

The order hints that the leave periods will probably be lenghtened after the Cammies have acquitted themselves heroically in future heavy fighting.

The necessity for proper conduct in the order, and it is asserted that the subsequent leave depends largely on strict observance of decorum.

Paris is only to be visited with special permission.

Government Control Will Not Remove Tax on Railroads

State governments which have been concerned lest the taking of the railroads by the government would interfere with their income from railroad taxation need not worry. Director General McAdoo has given assurance that government control does not affect this phase of the situation.

Governor Edge, of New Jersey, recently wrote to the Jersey members of Congress than any change by the government as to railroad taxes meant serious derange to the State's fiscal policy, inasmuch as a great part of the tax yield came from railroads.

Representative Bacharach immediately laid the question before Mr. McAdoo and the latter, through his legal adviser, John Barton Payne, has replied that no change is at present contemplated and that when any change is in prospect it will be given the widest publicity.

Bill to Place Food Control With President

Sweeping powers to compel food conservation in every American kitchen are given the President in a measure introduced by Senator Pomerene Tuesday. The bill is aimed primarily at proprietors of hotels, restaurants and public eating houses, but it also is broad enough to include domestic consumers.

Specifically, the measure provides that he President may limit or discontinue entirely the use, also the manufacture or distribution of foodstuffs to the extent he deems necessary from time to time.

That persons conducting public eating places, manufacturers, carriers, prodpcers, distributors or other persons who fail to obey the President's orders shall be fined up to $1,000 and imprisoned up to six years.

That the filing as a part of the records of the Department of State of any regulation issued pursuant to this act shall be deemed necessary notice to the public.

That the act shall cease to be in effect when the war between the United States and Germany is terminated.

Citing that such powers as are carried in the bill are necessary "for the National security and the common defense," the measure gives in effect complete control of food to the President.

As existing circumstances warrant, the President is empowered to further limit, or even discontinue entirely, the production, and consumption of all varieties of food and foodstuffs.

The measure was drawn after a conference between Food Administrator Hoover, Senator Pomerene, of Ohio, and Representative Lever, South Carolina.

It is designed to authorize steps to meet the increasing demands of the Allies for food by compelling Americans to eliminate waste and conserve their own supply.

State League Favors Runyon's Measure

The Runyon-Close bill, of which Senator William N. Runyon, of this city, is one of the sponsors, received an unqualified indorsement at the hands of the New Jersey Home Rule Republican League at its State conference at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, on Saturday. The act provides that public school teachers shall act as primary and election officers.

The bill is applicable to municipalities of 10,000 population and over. It also privels that primaries and elections shall be held in the school houses.

It is expected that a hearing on the bill will be held in Trenton at an early date.

The league also took up Senator Runyon's bill, introduced last week, designed to further limit expenses of candidates at primaries and general elections. The bill would greatly change the corrupt practices act and would limit the sum to be spent on the campaigns of candidates for Governor and United States Senator to $25,000 in a primary election and $15,000 in a general election. The league commended this bill.

BIDDING FAREWELL TO SOLDIER

F. Otto Linke and his aunt, Miss Bessie Shea, of West Second street, left Wednesday morning for Charlotte, N. C., to bid farewell to George Linke, a member of the heavy field artillery stationed at that point. It is understood that he is scheduled to depart for France at an early date. The young man enlisted in Troop D and went with that organization to Camp McClellan at Anniston, Ala., but recently was transferred to Camp Greene at Charlotte. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Linke, who also have two other sons in the service and a fourth one preparing to go.

MR. HIGGINS' NEW POSITION.

The Public Service Corporation has re-established the position of inspector for the central division and Hugh Higgins, of West Fourth street, who has been acting as conductor on the Arlington avenue line, has been named for the place. He entered upon his new duties Wednesday and will have charge of all trolleys operating between Rahway, Westfield, Plainfield and Bound Brook. Most of his time will be spent in Plainfield. Mr. Higgins has also been given an assistant who will cover this territory at night.

HELP THE BOYS WHO ARE HELPING YOU.

The big drive for the Knights of Columbus National War Camp Fund of $10,000,000 will commence in every part of the United States tomorrow. Plainfield's apportionment is $25,000 and while in the face of numerous other appeals for money in the near past, it may seem a large sum, it is not to be doubted at this time that it will be fully subscribed. The reason is simply this:

The $10,000,000 which the Columbian Knights are seeking is to be expended for the boys in the trenches, those same boys who are offering up their young lives almost before they have lived them for the benefit of the rest of mankind; that this nation, as well as other peace-loving countries, may conduct its business and affairs without the constant jangling of the Prussian sword. To provide the vast army needed to make democracy safe and to equip it with the necessary food and munitions is the stupendous task that confronts the government. Not having been a military nation it was not prepared for any such emergency and naturally enough the smaller details have had to be overlooked.

These include the social welfare of the brave lads in khaki when they are not in actual duty on the firing line. The soldiers are given rest periods back of the lines but if they are far away from home or "blighty" as the army vernacular has it, they are in a bad way to receive the comforts that their bodily needs require. The Knights of Columbus fund is to be given over almost entirely for the use of the American fighters, no matter what the denomination or nationality may be. Buildings will be erected, similar to those seen at the big cantonments in this country, and volunteer workers will exert themselves to provide rest, comfort and pleasure for the lads who must put their patriotism to the supreme test in the trenches.

Plainfield will be well represented in the big army that is to bear the trials and hardships in Northern France. These representatives are the ones who will benefit by every dollar contributed to the war camp fund next week and the money thus donated will help some Plainfield lad get a new lease of life before going back to the grim work of the front line facing "No Man's Land." Not a penny of the big fund is to be expended for salaries. The only expense incurred in the drive will be a very small amount for newspapers advertising and stationery, accordingly it might be said that practically every bit of the $10,000,000 sought will go direct to the boys. The same Knights of Columbus officials who handle eight million dollars of insurance within their organization annually can be relied upon to distribute the money without any of the taint that has, too frequently appeared in welfare operations of recent date.

The Knights of Columbus recreation centers at the cantonments and across the seas supplement those of the Young Men's Christian Association. The two organizations are working side by side for the good of the enlisted men. Their doors are open to men of any faith. It is easily understood, of course, how a Catholic boy, and a large percentage of the enlisted men come from Catholic homes, can be made to feel more at home in a recreation center organized and supervised by men of his own church. The great ambition of patriotic men and women here at home ought to be to serve the men who are facing the hardships and dangers of war as best it can be done. The boys fighting side by side in the trenches, never stop to ask each other about creeds. Why should the home folks ask such a question when the good of the men is concerned?

The war-work plans of the Knights of Columbus are indorsed by the Government. They are supported by prominent non-Catholics as well as by Catholics. It is a work that should appeal to any citizen. It should especially appeal to this city that is represented in the war by so many Catholics.

Plainfield people of all creeds and stations in life have volunteered to do the hard work of canvassing for subscriptions and will begin their task tomorrow. Help them in their labors for the boys in the trenches by having a good sized donation ready together with a word of commendation that makes their sacrifice a veritable pleasure.

THE "ABANDONMENT" OF NO. 1 FIRE HOUSE.

An interview printed in the news columns of the Record last week disclosed the fact that Councilman Charles C. Graves, chairman of the Fire and Buildings Committee, is not in favor of abandoning No. 1 engine house on West Second street. This proposition seems to crop up every year just as regular as the violets in Spring, but from just where, no one seems to know. In order to put the quietus on it once and for all some determined stand must be taken by city officials and the attitude of Mr. Graves has met with the hearty approbation of the taxpayers and the general public.

To abandon the West Second street fire-house would be a most foolhardy move, especially at this time when conditions are so absolutely abnormal. Hardly a day passes but what some city is visited by a disastrous conflagration, perhaps incendiary and perhaps of accidental origin. If there be such a thing as luck, Plainfield has had it in that she has had no big blaze to contend with in a long time, but there is no telling when one will come. If it should so happen, the citizens are entitled to the full state of efficiency that is not to be obtained if the Common Council is to decrease instead of increase the department's equipment. No. 1 house is so situated that it can take care of many portions of the town ahead of the apparatus from headquarters or the outlying districts and by keeping the horse-drawn apparatus within its quarters, the dangerous condition of affairs that existed during the heavy snow storm in December can be greatly lessened. At that time the motor vehicles at headquarters and No. 3 house were utterly helpless in the face of the big drifts that block the roads. A trial run showed that the powerful American La France pumping engine at Netherwood was the only vehicle of the kind that could respond to an alarm, thus leaving the business district to the horse-drawn chemical and hose wagon at No. 1 house. It was a dangerous condition of affairs that should not be undergone again

Plainfield really has two business districts. Most people think only of the Park avenue and Front street vicinities in this respect but there is another area where stores and dwellings are built close together. It is that portion of the West End stretching from Third and Liberty streets to Third street and Plainfield avenue, and along Liberty street from the railroad to Fourth street. This territory has every right to be amply protected from fire at all times and the maintenance of No. 1 house will answer the purpose. Most of the section mentioned can be reached by the West Second street company in barely more than a minute, only the lower end of it being in the quickest arrival distance from No. 3 house. The merchants of Liberty and Third streets pay their full share of fire department cost and any attempt to abandon the No. 1 building will produce a vigorous protest from each and every one.

The financial side of the question is another that must be considered in discussing the so-called abandonment. Labor and materials are higher now than they have ever been in the history of the city. Should No. 1 house be sold it would be only a very short time when another station would have to be located at the south end and the cost would be almost prohibitive. Mr. Graves have pointed out that the Second street property would bring only about $8,000 at the most liberal estimate while the site and cost of a new one might run up as high as $20,000. In addition it is difficult to secure building material and the government needs them for war purposes far more than does Plainfield for a fire-house that is unnecessary at this time.

A representative citizen who has studied the Second street proposition from the viewpoint of an interested taxpayer is authority for the statement that the Fire Board would commit a most grievous error if it should order the apparatus out of No. 1 house and sell the building for what it was worth.

When "Hughie" Higgins and "Toby" Nolan organized a dime novel trust that was the envy of the West End boys!

When John Adleman was superintendent of the "Plainfield Street Railroad Company" and the rolling stock consisted of four new Brill cars and two second-hand "Stephenson's" bought from the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company!

When gas lights dispelled darkness from the street corners and "Old Man Perrine" had the job of starting them going with a blow torch and had to make rounds in the morning to see that they were put out!

He pointed out that efficiency is what is most needed in the department and since the slogan of Mayor Calkins, according to his message, is to be economy, it means that no new apparatus or men can very well be added during 1918 consequently the fire committee must make the best of what it has at its disposal. The idea then, according to this man's view, is to perfect the present force to its greatest fire fighting ability and one way to do it is to keep No. 1 house just as it is.

Councilman Graves is one of the best posted men in Plainfield on fire department matters and having studied the house situation from every angle, can be relied upon to oppose any organized plan to dismantle the old building. In this respect he can rely upon the co-operation of every practical citizen who realizes that Plainfield has been fortunate in escaping disastrous fires in the past but may not be so lucky in the future. No. 1 house should stay right where it is, serving the people for as many years in the future as it has done since it was put up by far-seeing officials way back in 1869.

A TRIBUTE TO FRIEND HORSE.

"Only a truck-horse" plodding along over the ice, and through the snow, the metallic clinking of his chains of servitude, keeping rhythmic time to the creaking of his leathern trappings and thongs of slavery.

"Long and weary" were the miles that have passed beneath his steel-shod hoofs since the starlight hour of his toil began, and long and weary are the miles of deep-pitted winter roads, with their slippery furrows, and heart jolting ruts that yet must pass before his stable's doubtful haven of rest is won.

"Through all the ages," through fair and stormy weather, beneath the glaring heat of the summer's noontide sun or breasting the lashing fury of bleak December's stinging gales, "Friend Horse" with the patient heart and gentle trusting eyes comes to your door, the burden bearer of your folly, or your needs.

There may be, and we hope there is, some realm of beautiful pastures green, where the lush meadow grass grows high and thick and where clear cool streams of water flow, through fields where clover blossoms scent the air and where tall trees with wide spread boughs cast soft shadows on the ground, a realm of peace and rest where the equine soul of man's faithful friend shall find due reward for services too often thanklessly received.

"Friend Horse" in the wake of the blizzard's trail plodds steadily on and his way leads past a stranded wreck of steel trussed power, a man-made steed; whose creator proudly boasted, rivaled in its titantic strength, the combined energy of half a thousand horses; but there it lay, silent, inert and impotent, unable to cope with the conditions or the test of the hour. In the last analysis the made-made steed fails in its competition with the God-made creature of self-contained energy.

Give "Friend Horse"—out of the treasure-chambers of your human heart—a brimming measure of kindness and sympathy and, when you may, let him feel upon his mane the caressing touch of a friendly hand. Remember the day you looked through your window and saw at the gate:

"Only an old-fashioned doctor's horse—
Gaunt and lean, and silvery-gray.
Yet he ran against time—and won—madam,
The race with death, for your child that day."

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

Say, McAdoo, what time is the 7:46 train due?

—o—

Heat from the earth; power from the waves. Why worry about the shortage of coal?

—o—

Speaking of the coal situation reminds us that a lot of business houses are closing up because of a lack of fuel. If this proposition keeps up much longer the same houses will be closing up because of lack of customers.

—o—

These are the days when the guys who threw a lump of coal out of a window at a howling cat last year go out in the yard and look for that same precious bit of anthracite.

—o—

Speaking of the county tax board's session in Plainfield, one of the Elizabeth papers said the sitting was held "in the City Hall." 'Tis a fine sense of humor those county seat fellows have.

—o—

This talk about getting heat from the earth is a good proposition but we know another way of securing the supply that has it beat to a frazzle. All you have to do is to run a pipe line from the Yellowstone National Park and "Old Faithful," the geyser, will distribute steam and hot water all over Plainfield. Besides, why use good picks and shovels for getting heat when the government needs them for the trenches?

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When "Nick Carter" unravelled all the big murder mysteries?

When the young folks coasted on "Broadway hill?"

When school girls' faces had not been introduced to powder and paint?

When "Hughie" Higgins organized a dime novel trust that was the envy of the West End boys?

FURTHERING SALES OF THRIFT STAMPS.

The Building and Loan Associations throughout the State of New Jersey are now lining up for the War Savings Campaign, and as the result of their interest it is expected that the sale of the stamps will be greatly stimulated. The Essex County Building and Loan League, of which J. William Heugel is secretary, is now organizing Thrift Clubs among all its different associations. A committee of forty has been organized for the purpose of promoting the sale of stamps to the members of over 261 Building and Loan Associations throughout the city of Newark. On Tuesday, at room 1025 Essex Building, Newark, a meeting will be held to plan the details of the campaign. The following letter has been addressed to more than 50,000 shareholders in Building and Loan Associations:

"Our B. and L. Associations has agreed to participate in the movement to forward the sale of War Savings Stamps. We ought to engage in this work whole-heartedly. By we, is meant you and every other member of this Association. Members of Building and Loan Associations are recognized as the most thrifty people in the United States. The United States Government admitted that, when it exempted Building and Loan Association from all corporation and income taxes, gratitude to the Government for its special protection ought to be a sufficient incentive to us to assist it at this time. It is not necessary to appeal to your patriotism. You possess that in common with the whole community. We take it, however, that more success can be gained in asking people inclined to thrift to become more thrifty than in asking people who are not so inclined to become thrifty. We have appointed a War Savings Stamp committee, who will be present at every meeting of this Association, to sell stamps to you in denomination of 25 cent and $5.00. If you do not know anything on the subject or want to know more on the subject than you know now, come to this meeting and all your questions will be answered and your subscriptions taken. We beseech you, if you are proud to be a Building and Loan shareholder, if you can save a little more, if you wish to help our boys who are fighting your battles, to do this:

"1. Obligate yourself to buy at least 50 cents worth of stamps monthly.

"2. Get your child, wife or other member of your household to do the same.

"3. Ask your acquaintances to do the same.

"When it comes to saving money to help the Government, you must not be content to do your bit. You must do your best!"

Louis Bamberger, chairman of the Newark War Savings committee, believes that the support of the Building and Loan Associations will prove one of the most valuable assets during the year. The Associations throughout New Jersey will organize in a similar manner.

Congress Planning to Limit Pleasure Vehicles

Congress may take drastic steps to restrict the use of motor cars during the war to conserve oil.

Senator Kenyon, member of the committee investigating fuel, declared the use of pleasure cars during the war should not be allowed. Great Britain has found it cannot keep its motor cars going and at the same time fill the oil needs of its navy, he said, adding that, unlike the condition in this country, automobiles are never seen in front of theatres in London and other cities.

Editorial Briefs

(COMMENT EXPRESSED BY NEWSPAPER MEN IN THIS AND OTHER STATES ON CURRENT TOPICS.

War Strengthens Nerves.
(From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

An English medical report says that cases of neurasthenia among women have decreased fifty per cent. since the war. Women are engaged in war work and have no time for "nerves."

Age No Bar.
(From the Trenton Times.)

Apparently Governor Edge does not share the opinion held by some of his predecessors in office, that a judge should be retired from office when he has passed the three-score-and-ten mark. He has just reappointed John A. Blair to be judge of one of the District Courts of Jersey City, though Judge Blair is nearly 76 years of age.

The fact that Judge Blair is satisfactory to the leaders of the warring Republican factions in Hudson county, shows that he is either a very shrewd and successful politician who has avoided making enemies, or has been such a fair and able jurist as to command the respect and admiration of all factions.

Those German Uniforms.
(From the Jersey Journal.)

One reason for the excellence of German uniforms, to which attention has been called in the investigation of the standards of cloth for our army, is that Germany prepared early and well, and started the war when all was ready.

In August, 1914, a pamphlet by enthusiastic Germans, written expressly for neutrals, in describing the mobilization, went into ecstasies over the appearance of the German army in its faultlessly fitting new-gray uniforms, and the revelation that 4,000,000 brand new uniforms had been provided. "Where did they come from?" the amazed and delighted German public asked. The quality was the finest, and so was the quality of the immense supplies of new boots, of which the French gathered many on the Marne battlefield.

It can be said for Germany that it has always given to its soldiers the best it had to give. Civilians might have to wear patched clothing and patched boots, eat ersatz bread and ersatz beer, but the army has been maintained as well as the resources of the empire would permit.

Mississipi, and Others.
(From the Boston Transcript.)

The first State to ratify the National prohibition amendment is Mississippi. This was to be expected, as Mississippi is one of the bone-dry States. The ratification, or the rejection, of the amendment cannot proceed very far during the present winter, as legislative sessions are held in only elevent States. In these eleven the question will be pressed quite actively, although not one of the Legislatures was elected on the issue.

New York State is one of them. Governor Whitman is working hard for the ratification of the amendment there, having warmly recommended it in his message the other day, and the passage of the ratification resolution in the Assembly is predicted by Speaker Sweet and conceded by the opponents of the resolution. But a sharp fight will be made in the Senate.

It is an interesting circumstance that while a two-thirds vote and a popular ratification are necessary for an amendment of the constitution of a State, a majority vote only in each house of the Legislature is necessary for the ratification by a State of a National constitutional amendment. A State may therefore vitally affect the life of its own people, not only, but that of the whole Nation, by a mere majority vote, in the case of a National amendment, whereas the adoption of changes in the State constitution are hemmed about with the most rigid safeguards.

Two States of the Union, Tennessee and Florida, have a very wise provision with regard to National constitutional amendments. It is to the effect that no such amendment may be ratified by a Legislature which was elected before that amendment was submitted to the State.

Likewise Codfish Balls.
(From the Louisville Courier-Journal.)

It was long, long ago that the waiter yelled throughout the hall: "We don't give bread with one fish-ball."

Bread and butter aren't given with anything nowadays in many restaurants, and as the present price of bread no just guest can blame the restaurateur, but the rise of codfish, after breakfast bacon has passed the reach of the family of moderate means, is distressing to the people of the Atlantic seaboard. Codfish was beginning to get into the hinterland as an economical housekeeper's last resource, but just as the dryland provinces were beginning to accustom themselves to codfish-balls, codfish rose to twenty cents a pound.

The wrath of the Philadelphia Public Ledger is expressed as follows:

"No one would have prophesied when cod was selling for a few cents a pound, that it would be quoted at twenty cents and upward. The cod is a plentiful fish, the expense of handling it should not be excessive, and there is nothing to show any falling off in the catch. It is a fair assumption that the present price is artificial. Hake and pollock, always cheap hitherto, have climbed along with cod. Halibut and mackerel have become luxuries to persons of small means. To say that the observance of meatless days has increased the demand for fish, is an easy explanation; but it isn't wholly satisfying. Is there a real scarcity, or are speculators enjoying their favorite game of corners? If the second alternative is the true one, then the sooner the Food Administration has the authority to fix prices the better."

It formerly was said that by sticking to a diet of codfish and potatoes a poor man might grow rich. Nowadays such a diet may not make a rich man poor, but it cannot have the formerly admitted effect.

Rice was widely touted as a cheap food a year or two ago. Up went rice. Codfish prices are responding to opportunity rather than reflecting scarcity no doubt. When rice is high everywhere and when rabbits retail at from twenty-five to forty cents in Kentucky it is not remarkable that codfish-balls should be the poor man's sour grapes in Philadelphia or Boston.

McAdoo Orders Competition Cut

Director General McAdoo delivered the first great economy stroke in railroad operation this week, when he ordered an immediate investigation looking to elimination of railroad competitive agencies.

Railroad presidents were requested to report at once what part of their respective organization can be eliminated as "purely competitive." As predicted, virtually the entire fabric of individual freight and passenger soliciting agencies will go.

Conservative estimates have placed the saving in this move at $35,000,000.

It is planned to retain only that part of the manifold ticket agencies and information bureaus which is necessary to serve the public. The competitive system built up by the railroads has become very elaborate, each big road maintaining costly bureaus with highly paid soliciting men in all big cities. The greater part of these will go.

Numbers of the officials, however, are expected to be transferred to other departments.

Ticket offices have been invariably located in high rent districts easily accessible to the public, while freight solicitors, now unnecessary, have roamed the country.

Other radical economies are expected to follow.

German Agents Here Fool People in Berlin

Germany's paid agents within this Nation are sending false information to the Teuton war lords.

American secret service agents, it became known this week, have intercepted letters destined for Hamburg, in which the informers told of draft mobs raging throughout the United States. Particular stress was laid on I. W. W. activities in Oklahoma, but the whole information was such as to misinform Germany of the true state of feeling toward the draft.

The draft law, according to the Secret Service, is proving an effective weapon against German agents, for families of those drafted are growing impatient with the anti-American agitators and frequently present information against them.

New Order Issued For Fuel Saving

The following communication was received by the Record today from John K. English, Union County's Fuel Commission Chairman:

1. All office buildings, banks and buildings of a similar nature must note be heated on Sundays or holidays, except sumcient to keep them from freezing.

2. All electric signs except directional signs must go out and stay out during the period of the war.

3. A minimum of street lights will be allowed.

4. Saloons and restaurants must close at 10 p. m. A minimum of licensed all night restaurants for the accommodation of working men will be licensed by the County Fuel Administrator.

5. All wholesale, retail and other business houses and stores shall close at 5 p. m.

6. Dry goods, clothing, department and variety stores may remain open on Saturday night of each week until 10 p. m.

7. Pharmacies may remain open after 10 p. m. for the filling of prescriptions, but shall not burn more than 100 Watts after that hour.

8. Theatres, moving picture houses, bars, bowling alleys, billiard halls, public and private halls, and all other places of amusement shall close at 10 p. m. every night, except Saturday. Theatres and dance halls may open earlier than usual. All places of amusements shall be closed on Sunday.

9. Markets and grocery stores shall close at 6 p. m. on all days, except Saturdays, and at 10 p. m. on Saturday.

The foregoing orders shall go into effect immediately and remain in effect until amended or altered by direction of the U. S. Fuel Administrator.

(Signed) JOHN K. ENGLISH,
U. S. Fuel Administrator for Union County, N. J.

PERSONAL

William A. Woodruff, of East Second street, who has been seriously ill for the past few weeks, was able to sit up Tuesday for the first time since his illness began. He is now improving steadily and his complete recovery is looked for at an early date.

"Sammy" Tavernor, of Ballston Spa, N. Y., came to Plainfield Saturday night to spend two weeks with friends in town. He declares that local people who think it was "frightfully" cold here two weeks ago should visit Ballston to learn what real frigid weather is. During the recent coal snap, he says, it frequently registered thirty-five below in and about Ballston and one day went as far down as 382-six.

John Powers, the North avenue contor, is confined to his home on West Fourth street by a severely sprained ankle received last Sunday night when he slipped on the icy pavement on East Second street, opposite the Findlay property. He is under the care of Dr. W. H. Anthony.

Miss Edna Kime, of Craig place, left recently for Florida, where she will remain until late in the coming spring. Parts of the time will be spent at the home of her uncle, A. I. Smalley, of Fort Pierce, and the remainder at Jacksonville. Mr. Smalley was only recently discharged from a hospital after receiving treatment for an infected limb, brought about by an injury received in an auto accident.

"Jack" Taylor, the little son of Mr and Mrs. Ralph Taylor, of Helene avenue, has recovered within the past week from an attack of pneumonia. Doctors Ellis and B. VanDe Hedges were in charge.

William McClinton, of Pond place, enlisted in the aviation section of the Signal Corps at Fort Slocum, Tuesday, and reported for duty today. He expects to be sent to one of the training fields in Texas during the coming week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ackes, of West Fourth street, have been entertaining their niece, Miss Marjorie Apgar, of German Valley.

Henry Eggerding, of Arlington avenue, who has been ill a long time with pneumonia and complications, continues to improve slowly.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Bender, of West Front street, are the parents of a son, born to them a few days ago. The little stranger weighed 13 pounds.

James McClinton, of West Third street, has gone to Chicago to erect a large printing press for the Potter Press Company. He will be away several weeks in all.

Miss Alma Allegar, of Elm place, is confined to her home by an injury to one foot, received when she fell on the ice at Front street and Sandford avenue early in the week.

Harry Van Ness, a member of the Somerset Garage Company, underwent an operation in St. Michael's Hospital, Newark, yesterday, for an affection of the stomach.

William Ashton, chief engineer in Muhlenberg Hospital, returned to work at the institution this week after five months' absence through illness. During the past two weeks he has been visiting friends in Philadelphia.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Ruth Stanley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Stanley, of South avenue, to Keith Saunders, son of Captain and Mrs. H. B. Saunders, of Scotch Plains. The wedding date has not been fixed.

Robert Cusen, of Lafayette place, is among the most recent Plainfield young men to enter the service. He has been accepted by the ordnance department and assigned to yeoman duty at the Scott Press Works.

Miss Marion Hyman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hyman, of East Second street, is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital following an operation for appendicitis.

The marriage of Lieutenant Alan H. Overton, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Overton, of North Plainfield, to Miss Helen Moeller, of Wyoming, Ohio, took place on Saturday at the home of the bride's father, Henry Moeller, in Wyoming. Lieutenant Overton is attached to the 322nd Infantry, Machine Gun Battalion, at Fort Sherman, Ohio. He is a graduate of Dartmouth College and prior to enlistment was connected with the Richardson Paper Company, of Wyoming.

Mrs. Anna Erber, of 427 West Fourth street, has been confined to her bed for the past three weeks with a complication of troubles. She is under the care of Dr. F. J. Hughes.

Dr. and Mrs. Frank C. Ard, of Park avenue, are spending a short time at Daytona, Fla. During Dr. Ard's absence, his office is in charge of Dr. Chilters.

M. L. Shannon, manager of the Plainfield Theatre, is still deprived of the use of his right hand through slipping on the ice last week. The ligaments were badly wrenched and the wrist partly dislocated.

Thomas C. Vail, superintendent of the Spicer plant of South Plainfield, is able to be about again after two weeks' confinement to his home on Lee place abrough a severe attack of muscular rheumatism.

Fred Meeker, who returned to Plainfield last week after spending two years in Miles City, Montana and other parts of the West, will remain in town for the present.

P. Edward Wisch and his daughter, Miss Naomi Wisch, of Marcy avenue, the borough, were both operated on recently at Muhlenberg Hospital. They were reported yesterday as improving nicely.

Alfred Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Greene, of West Seventh street, is confined to his home by a severe attack of blood poisoning probably brought about by an infected foot. Dr. F. J. Hughes is in charge of the case.

Mrs. George Forgerson and children, of Summit avenue, returned home after a visit with Mrs. Forgerson's parents in Canada.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Florence B. Driver, daughter of Mrs. Edwin Driver, of Wilson avenue, the borough. The ceremony took place at the parsonage of Trinity Reformed church and was performed by Rev. John T. Brook. The young couple will make their home with the bride's mother for the present.

Miss Sarah Carney, of Central avenue, who has been a patient in Muhlenberg Hospital since receiving serious injuries in an automobile accident several months ago, underwent a bone grafting operation at the hospital this week. It was performed by Dr. E. F. Albie, the noted New York specialist, and will, it is believed, hasten Miss Carney's recovery.

Lieutenant William B. Schooley, a former resident of Newark, who will be remembered by Plainfielders as a member of the Daily Press reportorial staff, and Miss Elizabeth Brodesser, of 411 West Broad street, Elizabeth, were married in St. Mary's rectory, Elizabeth, Thursday night, January 10. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Henry J. Sheridan and the attendants were Miss Grey Herzog, of Orange, and Frederick Brodesser, brother of the bride. The couple departed for Anniston, Ala., immediately after the ceremony as the bridegroom is attached to one of the units stationed there. He was originally a member of Battery A, of Orange, and has been in the service since war was declared last April. Beside being known as a newspaper man, Lieutenant Schooley was one of the most prominent players in canoeing circles in this State. He was captain of the Tuscarora Canoe Club, of Newark, and won many honors in canoe tournaments at Newark, Lake Hopatcong and Asbury Park. He also held many records as a swimmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kinkle and family, of Vine street, spent the past week-end with relatives at New Germantown.

Near Blizzard Hits Anniston Over Week-end

Real winter weather, accompanied by all the things which go to make life in the open uncomfortable, visited the Twenty-ninth Division at Camp McClellan over the week-end. Early Friday morning torrents of rain were driven across the reservation on the wings of a cold gale, and Nature's freaks included plenty of snapping lightning and roaring thunder, re-echoing against the sides of the Blue Ridge mountain pocket. Streets were transformed into rivers of mud and water, vehicular traffic at once came to a standstill and the soldiers found themselves virtually isolated from the outside world. Increasing cold brought sleet and snow Friday night, and when reveille sounded Saturday the men found the mercury struggling to crowd its way past the zero mark. The rain appeared Saturday afternoon, but the cold stayed over the week-end, and Southern prophets predict a continuance of the severe weather for some time to come. But these same prophets have never made a hit with the soldier folk by their ability to "pick a winner," and the men in the tented villages are finding some consolation in the probability of the weather makers going wrong once more.

For two nights newspaper correspondents found it impossible to wire reports to Eastern papers, but one or two of the 200 licensed taxis venturing to carry passengers over the seven-mile route linking the camp with Anniston, and but a handful of men visited the town over the week-end, whereas previous Saturdays, have found thousands of khaki-clad spenders swarming the store region.

Nights in canvas dwellings, however, were spent in fairly comfortable fashion. Conical stoves were kept going full blast and plenty of bed clothing has now been issued to each man. Drills in the open for the most part were suspended and lectures in warm mess shacks substitute. The complete soldiers spent their time in warm tents or post exchanges and a minimum of suffering resulted.

"March past" reviews were conducted for the second time Saturday morning, enlisted men and commissioned officers who have been taking the course in divisional school passing by Divisional Headquarters, where they were inspected by Major F. W. Brabson, chief-of-staff, and Major R. C. Kelley, divisional inspector. This is a British and French custom which has recently been adopted here with the idea of thereby closing up each course of work.

Following the reunion of Colonel John D. Frazer, of Newark, Colonel John W. Woodward, formerly of Camp Upton, has taken full charge of the 113th Infantry, Colonel Harry C. Jones, who has been assigned to the unit, having gone to Fort Sam Houston, Tex., for a course of training. Captain Edward J. Kohmann, of Newark, has been retained as regimental adjutant by the new regime.

Colonel Frederick G. Spitzinger, Jr., formerly of Camp Dix, has taken over full control of the 114th Infantry, following the sending of Colonel Thomas D. Landon to Fort Sam Houston.

PLAINFIELDER NAMED.

The new officers training class named for instruction at Camp McClellan went into effect this week. Among the men picked to receive instructions in field artillery work is Supply Sergeant John A. Henry, of this city. Should the division move from Camp McClellan before the three months' course is completed the school will be taken along as a unit.

CLUB'S ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of St. Mary's Social Club, originally set for Tuesday night, January 8, but for a necessity postponed, will take place in T. A. B. Hall next Tuesday night. Officers will be elected and other business of importance transacted. All members are urged to be present.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

MRS. SOPHIA I. GEROLD.

A private funeral service was held last Saturday night over the body of Mrs. Sophia Gerold, whose death occurred the day previous at the home of her sister, Mrs. C. Edward Haddon, of 262 West Sixth street. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring was in charge and burial was in Woodlawn cemetery, Delhi, N. Y., Monday morning.

Mrs. Gerold was born at Delhi, N. Y., and had lived here about fifteen years, during which time she practiced her profession of nursing with unusual success.

During an outbreak of smallpox in this city about ten years ago, Mrs. Gerold offered to nurse the patients at the isolation Hospital, and under her care all of them recovered. Her sacrifice and devotion at that time and since has called forth much praise from those who were acquainted with her work.

Mrs. Gerold was one of twelve children of the widow of Dr. Lawrence Gerold, who for several years was the physician at the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home at Bath, N. Y. He died about twelve years ago. Mrs. Gerold was a member of the Beckman Hill Methodist church, New York, she is survived by four sisters, Mrs. C. Edward Haddon, of this city; Mrs. E. P. Thompson, of Walton, N. Y.; Mrs. Nellie Amos, of Alberta, Can., and Mrs. W. T. Hine, of Delhi, N. Y., and five brothers, C. E. Teal, of Jackson, Michigan; Robert Teal of Walton, N. Y.; W. F. Teal, of Babylon, L. I.; Frank and Ernest Teal, of Delhi, N. Y.

MRS. JAMES McWADE.

The funeral of Mrs. Charlotte McWade, wife of James McWade, of this place, the borough, whose death took place in Muhlenberg Hospital Tuesday night, following an illness from pneumonia, will be held in St. Joseph's church tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery, Long Island.

Mrs. McWade was sixty-two years old and had lived in this vicinity only a comparatively short time. Beside her husband, she is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Henry Schenker, of East Second street, this city, and two sons, Harry McWade, of Watchung, and Frank J. McWade, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

CLARA JARTO.

Clara Jarto, the infant daughter of Antonio and Rose Jarto, of 320 Madison street, died Wednesday afternoon. The funeral was held at the parents' home yesterday afternoon and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

MRS. WILLIAM GAUB.

Mrs. Minnie Blume Gaub, wife of William Gaub, died Saturday night at Midwood Sanitorium, Long Island. She had been ill only ten days. The body was brought to this city and the funeral took place Wednesday night at the home of her sister, Mrs. Hattie E. Demler, of 48 Grove street, the borough. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of the First Baptist church, officiated and burial was in Hillside cemetery yesterday.

Those who acted as pall-bearers were W. A. Godfrey, Jr., Russell Hoagland and John Ricketts.

Beside her husband, Mrs. Gaub is survived by two children, Charles Blume and Miss Anna Blume, also three sisters, Mrs. Hattie E. Demler and Miss Cecelia Spencer, of North Plainfield, and Mrs. M. C. Farmer, of Westfield.

HENRY J. NISCHWITZ.

The funeral of Henry J. Nischwitz, treasurer of the Union Grain Company, and one of Plainfield's best known business men, was held Wednesday afternoon in the Methodist church at Springdale. It was attended by a large number of relatives and friends from North Plainfield and Warren townships together with others from Plainfield, North Plainfield and distant points. Pastor Smalley, of the Springdale church, was in charge of the service, while Rev. Robert Love, of North Plainfield assisted. The floral tributes included set pieces from Plainfield Lodge of Elks and Plainfield Lodge of Odd Fellows, to both of which the deceased belonged. Burial was in the family plot in the Springdale cemetery.

Mr. Nischwitz, who had been making his home with William Krewson, of 6 Manning avenue, the borough, had been suffering from an incurable complaint for the past year. Recently his condition became aggravated and early last week it was deemed best by his physician to subject him to an operation. He was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital for this purpose but the disease had made such headway that it was found that srugical skill was of no avail. The end came last Saturday night.

Mr. Nischwitz, who was fifty-eight years old, was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Nischwitz, among the early settlers of Warrenville. He was born at the family homestead there and spent his boyhood days on the parental farm. Later he removed to North Plainfield, where he had resided since. He was engaged at various times in the hay, grain and coal business. At one time he was in partnership with his cousin, Henry Nischwitz, of Fairview avenue, the latter now conducting a similar enterprise under the firm of Nischwitz & Son. The deceased was also in partnership with Percy Dayton, but about five years ago became a member of the Union Grain Company, which has a large elevator and sales building on East Third street. In this organization Mr. Nischwitz was the largest stockholder and had act. ed as treasurer from the time he entered until ill-health prevented.

Mr. Nischwitz possessed a warm-hearted nature that won him many friends and his acquaintanceship extended to all parts of Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties. As a member of the Elks and Odd Fellows, he was in regular attendance at the lodge sessions, furthering the work of the two organizations at every opportunity.

The only near surviving relatives are two brothers and one sister. These are: Edward Nischwitz, district attorney of Zainsville, O.; Frank Nischwitz, and Miss Elizabeth Nischwitz, living at the family homestead at Warrenville.

RICHARD A. ROSS.

A large gathering of relatives and friends was in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, this city, Tuesday afternoon, when the funeral service was held over the body of Richard A. Ross, a former local resident, who died at his home in South Bound Brook, Sunday. Rev. J. L. Skaggs, the pastor, was in charge, assisted by Rev. Edwin B. Shaw. During the proceedings a solo was rendered by Charles E. Titsworth. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, relatives acting as pall-bearers.

Mr. Ross was born at New Market seventy-six years ago and when a young man removed to Plainfield. For a time he was engaged in the sash and blind business here with his brother-in-law, the late Joseph D. Spicer. He eventually disposed of his interests here and went to South Bound Brook, where he operated one of the largest planing mills in that section.

Mr. Ross became one of South Bound Brook's best known residents and was honored by appointment as postmaster. He served several terms under Republican presidents, retiring when the Democratic party went into office with the election of President Wilson. Mr. Ross was a lifelong member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church and was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

The deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. May Ross Davis, wife of Rev. H. Eugene Davis, and with him is engaged in mission work in Shanghai, China. Mrs. Davis was a member of the class of 1899 in the Plainfield High School and has been abroad several years. Mr. Ross is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. J. D. Spicer and Mrs. Sarah Titsworth, both of this city.

MULFORD MARSH SCUDDER.

Mulford Marsh Scudder, aged 72 years, who had a wide acquaintance in Plainfield, died at his residence in Central avenue, Westfield, Monday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, after an illness which confined him to his home for the past year and a half. Heart trouble caused his death.

Mr. Scudder was born in Westfield and lived there all his life. He was engaged in the real estate business in New York and Westfield. Mr. Scudder had always been prominent in Democratic politics, and was one of the party leaders in Westfield. He was elected to the Board of Chosen Freeholders four times, the last time in April, 1904, for a two-year term.

During Grover Cleveland's second administration, Mr. Scudder served as postmaster of Westfield. He was a member of Atlar Lodge, F. and A. M. Mr. Scudder was a widower. He is survived by two brothers, George Scudder, of Westfield, and Ephraim S. Scudder, of Sioux Falls, South Dakota, and two sisters, Miss Lizzie Scudder and Mrs. F. H. Callaway, both of Westfield.

JAMES BARRY.

James Barry, aged forty-five years and a native of this city, dropped dead on Madison avenue, at West Third street, Sunday night. Death was due to heart trouble, a disease prevalent in his family. Mr. Barry's father, the late John Barry, of South Second street, dropped dead in the yard of his home about fifteen years ago, and another brother, William Barry, expired suddenly in a yard on West Third street several years ago.

Mr. Barry was employed as a laborer at the Pond Tool Works and to all appearances was in excellent health when he made a trip to town Sunday night. He resided with an aunt. Only two sisters survive him of a family of seven children. They are: Mrs. Mary Simmons, of New York, and Mrs. Kate Darby, of this city.

The funeral was held in St. Mary's church yesterday morning, Rev. Father Holsters officiating. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

DANCE FOR TOBACCO FUND.

St. Mary's T. A. B. Society will give a reception and dance in T. A. B. Hall, Washington's Birthday eve, February 21, the proceeds to be added to the tobacco fund maintained for members of the organization in the army or navy. It is probable that Halbfoerster's orchestra of Elizabeth will furnish music.

French Woman Tells Former Plainfielder of War's Economic Pinch in Her Country

France is of course feeling the pinch of the war economically, but our sister republic is by no means "miserable," declares a former teacher in the schools of Belgium, who is now at her French home near the frone. The Pineau family are friends of Maurice D. Newman, an American soldier who previous to his enlistment was employed in Plainfield.

At Mr. Newman's request Mlle. Louise Pineau has written a brief account of economic conditions in her country that gives some idea of the problems that exist to perplex the French housewife. Mlle. Pineau is a graduate of a French Normal School and speaks and writes English well, having taught the language in the schools of Belgium until the war necessitated her departure from that war-ridden little country.

Newman visited here this week after his fifth trip "over the pond." He is in service on the United States Chartered Transport Tenadores. He landed at an American port January 8. The ship was two weeks overdue because of bad weather. The trip was without especial incident, and the former Plainfield soldier is ready for the start of his sixth voyage, the date of which is uncertain. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Tobias Newman, 542 South Park street, Elizabeth.

"The French people are in love with the Americans. There can be no doubt of the attitude of the people of that country when it is learned how they look for the arrival of American transports, Newman said to a Record reporter. Rumors that troops are to arrive bring throngs to the waterfront, lustily greeting the khaki-clad warriors of Uncle Sam as they disembark.

"The French are tired of the war," says the French woman, "but they have taken a new lease on life since the entrance of America. For a year it was rumored that the United States would enter the war and the French peopl waited expectantly and with great impatience for the actual declaration. Without you we were lost, but with your help we cannot be defeated.

"We admire the noble behavior of the Americans who have left their country to go on the battlefields for no other reason than to help us. The Americans are now in the trenches and the polius wonder at the wonderful courage of the troops from the States.

Mlle. Pineau is an assistant in a pharmacy in France, her education fitting her for that line of work during the war crisis. She says concerning the meeting with American officers and soldiers in the daily routine of business: "When we meet an American officer or soldier and thank them for what they are doing for us, they merely reply, 'It is our duty. In the end of the eighteenth century the French came to our country with Lafayette. Should we not come to their aid now?' Many people would have forgotten that, but you dear Americans cannot."

The economic side of French life is gradually becoming worse as the privations are increased because of the war's prolongation. Foodstuffs are more than 100 per cent. higher than before the war, and some commodities are being distributed through war cards. Bread cards have recently been adopted.

A comparison of peace and wartime prices is given by the French woman, which shows the sharp advance that is causing a strain to attach to the purse-strings of the French people, and there is no overabundance or any of the food-stuffs. Eggs, formerly twenty-five cents a dozen, are eight cents apiece; butter now selling for ninety cents, was thirty cents before the war; chickens costing $2 now were eighty cents; a turkey cannot be bought for less than $5, the former price being $2; vegetables have been increased more than 100 per cent, in price.

Sugar is scarce. A pound and a half a month is the allowance to the holders of sugar cards. The big sugar refineries located in the North of France, are now in German hands and it is with difficulty that the monthly allotments are made. The bread rationing by card system, the most recent food administration innovation, was made necessary by the increasing scarcity of flour. The pastry shops, which the French patronize heavily, are closed two days a week, to conserve the flour supply, so that it may be used iun baking bread. Last summer there was a movement on foot to close the pastry shops entirely, but the storm of complaint which arose from the pastry-loving French, and foreign residents as well, led the Government to mitigate their order.

Dame Fashion has not entirely lost her hold on the French, the woman tells, but those who would keep pace with her dictations, moderated of course through war necessities, must be prepared to extend vanity more money than formerly. The clothing materials are scarce. From the North of France came a good portion of the cloth supply and materials used in making garments. At Roubaiux big cloth factories were located; at Lille bread and cotton; at Rheims flannel, and at Cambral, cotton and cambric. But all the towns are in German hands and the factories are silent; probably they will be pulled down by the Germans. Wools suits $20, before the war, are $44 now, and a woman must pay a proportionate increase for her $20 peace-time costume. Heavy demands for leather for war use sent the cost of shoes soaring in proportion.

Distilled water is in great demand in France. The residents are warned not to use water taken from faucets, for chemists of these faucets may be contaminated through war conditions, the decaying of bodies on the battlefields, and general unsanitary conditions that naturally result from the conflict. This order is especially true in towns near the front. Distilled water sells for nineteen cents a bottle, where formerly it sold for eight cents a bottle, containing two quarts.

Coal is becoming scarce. There are rich coal fields in France, but many of them are located in territories that are now in the hands of the Germans.

"But despite these conditions," adds the French woman, "the people are not miserable. The woman who has a husband at the front receives twenty-five cents a day from the Government, and in addition receives good wages if she has a factory position which probably was formerly filled by a man. For every child the wife of a soldier has she receives ten cents a day."

Speaking lastly of the admiration the people of France have for the Americans she says: "May they come even more numerously and learn to love France. They will share for the time being the troubles of the French soldier, but after the war will also share the happiness they deserve." Before entering the army Mr. Newman was employed at the Saurer Motor Works and previous to his employment there was a pharmacist in the United Drug Store at Front and Somerset streets.

Mrs. Feickert "Dissects" the Suffrage Vote

Among the New Jersey suffragists who are jubilant over the result of the vote, on the Federal suffrage amendment in the House of Representatives last week, none is more pleased than Mrs. Edward F. Feickert, the president of the New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association. "We are pleased, but not surprised," said Mrs. Feickert. "It is particularly gratifying that the vote of the New Jersey delegation was six to four in favor of the amendment; and because we have so many strong friends among the leaders in both parties we are glad that the vote was evenly divided between the Democrats and Republicans.

"Of these the three Democrats, Congressmen Scully, Hamil and Eagan were all in Congress when the amendment was voted on nearly three years ago and all voted then as they did last Thursday. The three Republicans, Congressmen Bacharach, Hutchinson and Lehlbach have been elected since the previous vote was taken, but all felt that hey were correctly representing sentiment in their districts by voting as they did.

"Congressman Bacharach announced his belief in the Federal amend*ment at a mass meeting* in Atlantic City in 1916, and Congressman Hutchinson came out squarely for it at our State convention in Trenton two months ago. We had expected Congressman Lehlbach to support the amendment, as he has voted for all progressive measures. Congressman Parker opposed the amendment because he said he believed in States' rights, a rather strange stand for a Republican representative to take on this question in view of the fact that his party was formed to oppose States' rights. We appreciate the action of Congressmen Drukker and Capstick in either voting nor pairing against the amendment.

"I feel that a great deal of credit is due our Congressional committee, of which Miss Elizabeth Pope, of Jersey City, is chairman, and Mrs. Everett Colby, of West Orange, is vice chairman. Mrs. Colby has been working actively in Washington for several weeks with the National Congressional chairman, Mrs. Maud Wood Park."

Major-Gen. Scott Inspects Camp Dix

Greatly pleased was Major-General Hugh L. Scott at the result of his inspection this week of the 311th Regimen at Camp Dix. Everywhere he found everything in excellent shape and nothing escaped his eagle eye. First he visited the regimental headquarters, then the barracks and finally the Y. M. C. A. building, where the men spend many pleasant hours.

The barracks occupied by the members of Company A, which includes the Plainfield boys, came in for a share of attention, but everything was spic and span. An impromptu review was also a part of the program, for the commandant on his tour came upon a number of the boys at drill and watched them go through their maneuvers

Edge Explains Views On Port Development

Commenting upon his demand upon the Legislature for appropriation of $100,000 to continue the port development preliminaries in charge of the New York-New Jersey Port and Harbor Development Commissioner, Governor Edge declared recently that any general scheme of railroad improvement to relieve congestion of freight and other traffic now that the Government is in control of operation, would necessarily result in extensive constructive operations on the New Jersey side particularly. It is the Governor's view that this strong possibility indicates the necessity of continuing to recognize and support the harbor development commission in order that the interests of New Jersey, and likewise the interests of New York, so far as their part of the commission is concerned, may be properly represented.

The idea of the development of the Port of New York has grown apace since Governor Edge proposed a vehicular tunnel and general port development at the beginning of his administration. The Port Commission has been appointed by Governors Edge and Whitman and has already been designated by the Federal Government as the Ward Board of the Port of New York in association with a number of Cabinet officers. The estimate of cost of the vehicular tunnel has been made by Major-General Goethals, and the commission representing the project has proceeded with the work to a point where the present Legislature is asked to provide a method for financing.

The Governor said it was especially gratifying to hear men like Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Inter-Borough Rapid Transit Company, and Frederick D. Underwood, president of the Erie Railroad Company, testifying before the committee of the New York City Chamber of Commerce that the one practical way to relieve congestion of freight at the Port of New York is to create a great freight yard on the New Jersey meadows, accessible to all the main railroad lines through connecting roads and to the heart of New York through a vehicular or other tunnel under the Hudson River.

"The suggestion of a freight yard on the New Jersey shore as a great clearing house for all railroads which will have direct connection with it," declared Governor Edge, "and by means of the river tunnel with the heart of New York is merely an argument for centralization control and legitimate and carefully regulated pooling of railroad interests and therefore directly indorsing our plan."

Union Men "Riled" by Declaration

Mayor Calkins' flat-footed declaration that he would brook no interference in the completion of the City Hall now that Patrick F. Kenny has been given the customary legal notice that his contract would be terminated, has created a stir in local union circles. By members of the Trades Council, whose representative, William Lunger, was barred from entering the municipal structure. It is generally accepted that His Honor's remarks were meant primarily for their organization. The matter will be given full consideration at the regular meeting of the business body tonight.

At the outset of the strike trouble brought about by the Monahan Stone Company, the Plainfield Building Trades Council gave its assurance that the agreement was in one sense no part of its concern. Agent Lunger, however, made certain to point out the interests of local unions and in this capacity become involved in an argument with the City Hall building committee as to whether or not he had taken carpenters off the job. It was because of this discussion the union men say, that Lunger was denied admittance to the building. They now assert that the agent represents the building trades and that action of the Mayor means that he is not willing to permit organized labor to watch the proceedings of the work, inasmuch as Lunger is a paid representative in this district.

City Clerk John J. Carroll went to New York, Tuesday, for the express purpose of serving the termination notice on Mr. Kenny. It was stated by the City Hall committee that the contractor had not lived up to his agreement and as there seemed to be no prospect of his doing so with the job, the Council had decided to take the matter in hand and finish the work by the best method possible. Just what plan is to be adopted has not been made known as yet.

The statement issued by Mayor Calkins which has aroused the ire of the unions and will be thoroughly dissected tonight, is as follows:

"The action taken by the Common Council last night, in giving formal notice of intention to terminate its arrangement with P. F. Kenny to complete the municipal building, was merely the natural and logical thing to do at this time. Last September, when the Kenny Company failed, Mr. Kenny offered to complete the job individually, without profit to himself. It was an honorable proposition, because his knowledge of the work would benefit the city, and also enable him to make what saving could be made the Kenny Company creditors. If he had not been interfered with, the building would have been completed before this.

"As the public knows, a conspiracy intervened to force the city to pay a disputed claim, without a chance first to contest its legality in court. The vice president of the International Plasterers' and Masons' Union had the brazen nerve to tell me, in the presence of several witnesses, that the union did not care anything about the merits of the case, and that the strike would be called off when Monahan said the word, and not before. An officer of the Monahan Stone Company openly threatened, in the presence of witnesses, that unless we paid the disputed Monahan claim without further ado, they would do everything in their power to hold up the building, and would not even permit any city official to build privately for himself with union labor. All this will be proved in time. We have these people indicted, and if certain other people, who have been interfering with us are not careful, they will find that we are prepared to invoke the law against them also. We purpose to smoke everybody out—especially those who are right her in our city, and see shall let it be known in no uncertain way, if we are interfered with, to the city's hurt.

"Mr. Kenny has made what effort he could to advance the work, despite the obstacles, and a considerable amount has been done. He has now reached a point where he is unable to proceed with any promptness called for by his contract.

"The city itself, however, need feel no embarrassment in pushing the work forward despite the attitude of unions. We have no desire to compel union labor to work for us. We are merely giving the unions a chance. If they prefer to trade with the Plasters' and Masons' Union, which ordered a strike at the behest of Monahan, well and good. The contract with Mr. Kenny is to be terminated so that the city may take the job on its own shoulders. We are not to be intimidated by unlawful threats or acts. We would have preferred of course to finish with union labor. We have never had any quarrel with unions before, and they are all right within the field of legitimate union activities. But this was a hold-up name nothing else. The man is spineless who will submit to such an outrage. The city will now proceed to finish the building with union labor

Only $5,000 In Hand For Knights' Fund

Although complete reports have not been received as yet, it was evident today that results of the Knights of Columbus War Camp Fund Campaign had fallen short of expectations. Of the $25,000 allotment for the Plainfield district approximately only $5,000 was tabulated at headquarters last night. This includes a check for $1,000 given by a North Plainfield man, the only large one received.

The campaign committee has issued a call for all captains and leaders to meet at headquarters tonight to talk over plans for the remainder of the drive. According to schedule it is to expire next Sunday night.

The canvassers will redouble their energies during the remainder of the day and every Plainfield citizen who believes in the boys who are defending the nation's honor are asked to give any contribution within their means.

Death Comes To A. H. Martin

Death came at 6:30 last night to Augustus H. Martin, a native of Plainfield and one of the best known residents in this district. He passed away at his home, 22 Grandview avenue, the borough, after an illness of nearly ay ear. He had been confined to the house since last September.

Mr. Martin was born at the Martin homestead at Second street and Park avenue seventy-four years ago. For most of his life he was engaged in the grocery business, one of his last stores being where Schreiner Brothers' pharmacy is now located. He retired about ten years ago.

Mr. Martin was an enthusiastic volunteer fireman. He served as foreman of Gazelle Engine Company and also as assistant chief of the city department. He was a brother to James Martin, of Westervelt avenue, who was an assistant chief when the paid department was installed and later was appointed postmaster.

Besida his wife, Mr. Martin leaves one daughter, Miss Nellie Martin, and two sons, Borough Clerk Frederick A. Martin and Harry Martin, all living at the parental home.

The funeral will be held at the family residence tomorrow afternoon and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Kenneth Runyon in Hospital at Camp Upton

Kenneth Runyon, of the undertaking firm of A. M. Runyon & Son, is in the army hospital at Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I., suffering from a severe injury to a lower limb received in a bad fall a few days ago. He has been in the service for the past few weeks as a member of the Officers' Training Corps and has been in line of a commission. It was while undergoing field work that he met with the accident.

Mr. Runyon's mother, Mrs. Jennie V. Runyon, of West Eighth street, left for Yaphank immediately on receipt of the news and has remained there since.

O. T. WARING OBSERVES SEVENTY-EIGHTH BIRTHDAY

Orville T. Waring, president of the Plainfield Trust Company, celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday Monday night at a family dinner at his home in Park avenue. All the members of the immediate family, with the exception of Richard Waring, a son, who is at Camp Shelby, Miss., and Lieutenant Colonel Chauncey Humphrey, a son-in-law, who is in Panama, were present.

Mr. Waring was born at Balston Spa, N. Y., where he spent his boyhood. Later he moved to Philadelphia, where in 1867 he engaged in the oil business, being associated with two independent concerns, Waring, King & Co., of Pittsburgh, and Waring Brothers, of Philadelphia. In 1874 he was interested in the first consolidation, which marked the birth of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. He was one of the organizers and has continued with the concern ever since, being one of the few original directors and stockholders living.

George L. Babcock Named As Member of Exemption Board

Governor Walter E. Edge has announced his selection of George L. Babcock, of West Eighth street, to become a member of the Plainfield District Exemption Board. The executive's action came after the receipt of Chairman W. R. Codington's resignation, handed him the forepart of the week, previous to the latter's departure for Bradentown, Fla., where he is to spend the remainder of the winter.

Charles W. Runyon, who has been a member of the Board since it was first established, is acting as chairman for the time being. As soon as Mr. Babcock qualifies for the appointment a meeting will be held for the purpose of naming a permanent chairman and the temporary incumbent will probably be named. The other member is Dr. F. W. Wescott, of Fanwood, who enjoys the distinction of having served on a Civil War Draft Board in 1863.

Mr. Babcock has been spending the winter in Florida, but is expected to return to Plainfield early next week. The offices of the Board will continue to be in Judge Codington's quarters at Second street and Park avenue.

Men Married Since May 18 Not Exempt

Men of draft age married since May 18, 1917, should not be exempted from selective service Provost Marshal General Crowder announced this week. He instructed Governors and local boards to appeal to district boards all cases in which local boards have granted dependency exemption to men married after May 18.

At the same time Crowder ruled that no draft registrants will be permitted to enlist in the armies of the Allies pending call to this country's flag.

Trinity Commandery Plans Big Reception For State Officers

The commander of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, R. F. R. Huntsman, announces the completion of arrangements for what promises to be one of the most important Masonic affairs held in Plainfield during recent years. On Thursday, February 21, the evening before Washington's Birthday, Trinity Commandery will tender a reception to the officers of the Grand Commandery, Knights Templar of the State of New Jersey, which reception will be followed by a dance. Both the reception to the grand officers and the dance will be held in the High School Auditorium, and the famous McKee Orchestra, of New York, will furnish the music. The reception to the Grand Commandery officers promises to bring out in full force the entire Uniformed Commandery of Trinity No. 17.

There will be a certain amount of floor work performed by the local Knights which will add interest to the occasion, which same may be attended by those who are not Masons as well as those who are, tickets to their reception and dance may be secured only through a member of the commandery.

PHYSICAL EXAMINATIONS TO BEGIN FEBRUARY 2.

Acting Chairman Charles W. Runyon announced yesterday that the examinations of all the registrants in Class A, first division, will be called for physical examination beginning February 27. The Evergreen School has been designated for the purpose and it is planned to pass upon 150 men a day.

Of the original quota alloted to Plainfield, there are still eighty selectives remaining to be called. These will be re-examined and some of them perhaps may secure exemption through the questionnaires.

J. A. Moore, of the Bronx, New York, spent the past week-end as the guest of Thomas Brantingham, of Park avenue.

No Selection Yet For Successor to Councilman Loizeaux

The resignation of Charles A. Loizeaux as a member of the Common Council in the Second ward has left a vacancy in the city fathers' body that is to be filled by appointment at the next meeting of the organization which is to be on February 4.

If there are many candidates for the position their names are being withheld as officials questioned about the matter say they know of no particular one at this time. Former Councilman Levis M. Booth, who was defeated at the primaries last September, has been mentioned for the honor but he is not inclined to accept it should it be offered. Mr. Booth feels that the people of the Second ward were not in accordance with his views on municipal matters or they would have endorsed his candidacy last fall.

Mr. Loizeaux took his seat on January 1, 1917, and his term was to have been for two years. He was called away five months ago as a member of the National Army, making it impossible for him to attend any of the meetings. At the present time he is located in the training camp at Rock Island, Ill. His resignation was dated at Washington on January 16 and stated that as he expected to leave the country soon for an indefinite period it seemed advisable that he resign from his councilmanic duties. His successor will be appointed for the remainder of the term only.

Further Plans For "Restoration" Drive

Representatives of several organizations met Monday evening in the Y. M. H. A. rooms and listened attentively to the plans outlined by the chairman, Judge William Newcorn, how to conduct a successful campaign to raise two thousand dollars, Plainfield's allotment in the first installment of the one million dollars being raised by the Provisional Committee toward the establishment and reconstruction of a Jewish State in Palestine. A plan was adopted whereby each Jewish organization will be asked to name a captain and a team from its own ranks, and each and every local organization is expected to do their bit in this great cause. Already money has been received from people who are anxious to contribute in this cause.

A meeting for the volunteers and captains will be held next Monday evening and a luncheon will be served by the Hadassah, the women's auxiliary, who are manifesting a zealous interest in the campaign.

The following have been selected to act as captains: J. Sklarew, representing I. O. B. A. Lodge; William Augenblick, representing Orders Sons of Rhn; Mrs. Adler, representing The Hadassah; Mrs. Victorson, representing H. L. B. Society. Louis Rosenthal, and several more to be named by the chairman.

KENNETH PHILLIPS NOW A CORPORAL.

"Somewhere in France," Kenneth Phillips, one of Plainfield's best known young men who has been in the service since last September, is now wearing a corporal's stripes. News of his promotion came by letter this week and is a great source of satisfaction to all his friends as he is a member of Company A, 502d Engineers, and advancement in this unit comes only by hard and meritorious work. Corporal Phillips has been abroad since before the holidays. His brother, Corporal Jack Phillips, is stationed at Camp McClellan.

Both young men are the sons of Mr and Mrs. Percy F. Phillips, of Madison avenue.

Coal Situation Helped By School Board's Offer

Four Hundred Tons of Reserved Fuel Placed at Commissioner Kenney's Disposal in Most Critical Period of City's Shortage—Scores Clamour for Relief But the Dealers' Bins Are Empty

Through its president, Archibald Cox, the Plainfield Board of Education today came to the relief of Fuel Commissioner John J. Kenney in the midst of the most critical period of the city's coal famine.

With scores of people clamoring for fuel that is not to be had, some of them even declaring that they would steal it rather than have their children suffer, Mr. Cox stated that 400 tons of various grades stored at the Consumers' Company's yards as a reserve supply for the local schools could be taken by the commissioner and oiled out where it is most needed. All the Board asks is that the coal be returned when a normal supply reached the dealers' yards.

The Union County Fuel Commission will meet in the office of Chairman John K. Englis, of Elizabeth, this afternoon to discuss the advisability of commandeering all school coal and closing the schools if necessary. Other important matters will be considered at this session, all tending to help the people overcome the fuel famine.

The situation in Plainfield the past few days has been little short of desperate. Dealers are receiving only a car or two at a time. The average load is fifty tons and there are generally orders in waiting for ten times this amount. Six cars were received at the freight yards yesterday and the 300 tons they brought were delivered by afternoon. Six more cars were received this morning. Three went to the Plainfield Ice and Supply Company, two to Joseph Harrigan and one to Wadley & Goodenough. The priority orders of Commissioner Kenney will be taken care of by these.

Fully 100 persons were at Mr. Kenney's office at North and Park avenues at different times yesterday. They included women as well as men who begged even as much as a bushel of the precious anthracite to keep their children from getting cold and contracting illness. This morning a steady stream of callers appeared at the office and the most pressing cases will probably be relieved by the Board of Education's 400 tons.

The plan of the Plainfield-Union Water Company in Netherwood continues to receive coal only in small amounts. The supply on hand is only good for three or four days at the most but Secretary Whelan expects relief by the first of the week.

The Garfield closing order will go into effect again next Monday and it is believed the suspension of business will be even greater than on Monday of this week. The Plainfield Business Men's Association has voted to close all stores at 6 o'clock each evening except Saturday, when it will be 10 o'clock and practically every merchant in the city will follow the same schedule.

Plainfielder Tells Of Frigid Weather Down Virginia Way

People in Plainfield who hold the misbelief that none of the recent cold weather has bothered our people below the Mason and Dixon line should harken to the story of Charles Foster, of West Front street, who returned home Holiday after a five weeks' stay in Newport News, Va. He went there as erecting foreman for the Standing Axsteel Construction Sales Company, which has the contract to furnish machine equipment for the Newport News Shipbuilding Company.

Mr. Foster went South expecting to find the Virginia city much warmer than Plainfield but in this he was bitterly disappointed. On several occasions the thermometer dropped to 15 below zero and the work at the great shipbuilding plant, where close to 10,000 hands are employed, was greatly hampered. The natives asserted that it was the coldest weather eastern Virginia had experienced in forty years, both as to the intensity and the duration.

Mr. Foster was greatly impressed with the Governmental activities going on at this point. Newpor News is a great shipping centre and the hum of industry is everywhere in the air. On one occasion 1,800 mules were placed on a transport in sight of the Plainfielder destined for Europe, and two days later, seemingly to show what wonderful resources Uncle Sam has, 16,000 horses went aboard ship for the same trip across the Atlantic. This is considered remarkable in the fact of the tremendous exportation of horses and mules which almost depleted the available supply in the country.

Mr. Foster left Wednesday for Fitchburg, Mass., where he will place in position a big order of machinery for the Morse Dry Dock Unity Manufacturing plant. He only recently entered the employ of Manning, Maxwell and Moore, but is thoroughly conversant with erection work having been connected with the Pond Tool Works for thirty-six years.

GEORGE A. COARD RETURNING TO JAPAN.

George A. Coard, a former well-known Plainfield resident who has been living in New York recently, spent the forepart of the week in town bidding farewell to his many friends previous to departing for Japan. During his stay here, Mr. Coard was a guest at the home of his sister, Mrs. Harry Johnson, of Watchung avenue.

Shortly after Mr. Coard completed his studies in the Plainfield High School as a member of the Class of 1899, he went to Japan as a representative for the Standard Oil Company. He returned to America only two years ago, but believing that the Nippon peninsula is the land of opportunities he has decided to return as an employe of the United States Steel Corporation. Mr. Coard and his wife will start for San Francisco tomorrow and from that point will set fail for Japan.

DECREASING TROLLEY STOPS.

The Public Service Corporation announced today that fifty per cent. of trolley "stops" would be abolished in Plainfield after the first of the week. From the time the order goes in effect trolley cars will stop only at intersecting corners.

Sam Rothberg to Leave the City

Much surprise was occasioned locally today when Samuel Rothberg, one of the city's best known young merchants, announced that he would give up his clothing business at 206 West Front street in order to go South by March 1. He has decided to associate himself with his father-in-law, J. Frohsin, proprietor of one of the largest women's ready-to-wear shop in Atlanta, Ga. The opportunity is one of a life time and though "Sam's" friends regret to see him remove from here they are highly pleased with his prospects in a new and larger field. Tomorrow he will inaugurate a closing out sale of his big assortment of men's and boys' clothing, offering every garment at cost to wind up the business before the end of February. The building which he occupies was his property up to a week ago, when he sold it to M. & D. Rosenthal.

Mr. Rothberg is a native Plainfielder and a typical example of what perseverance can accomplish. He started in business for himself six years ago in the store next to Proctor's Theatre. About three years ago he removed to his present location. From the very beginning Sam's trade grew rapidly for the principal reason that he gave full value for every dollar. He made his "SR" trade mark a synonym for honest dealing and established an enviable reputation in the city's business life.

Beside conducting his clothing store, Mr. Rothberg found time to take an active part in civic life. He is a member of Mayor Calkins' City Planning and Research Commission, a member of the executive committee of the Anti-Tuberculosis League, a veteran of Company K, and member of the Knights of Pythias, Unity Lodge, K. of P., and other fraternal organizations. His infectious smile and cordial handshake will be greatly missed but there is consolation in the thought that what is Plainfield's loss, will be Atlanta's gain.

FREEHOLDERS INSPECTING NEW PRISON FARM.

At a meeting of the Prison Farm Committee of the Board of Freeholders, Monday afternoon, at the Westfield Courthouse it was decided the committee visit the newly-purchased property, which is the Roberson farm in New Providence, for the purpose of ascertaining just what is needed to place the institution in shape for the reception of prisoners. Warden Augustus Hughson, of the county jail, will make the trip with the committee, which has set this afternoon as the day for the inspection.

RED CROSS BENEFIT AT HIGH SCHOOL TONIGHT.

Colonel Thord-Gray, of the North Umberland Fusileers, will speak and Scottish pipers will play at the Red Cross benefit to be given in the Plainfield High School tonight by the P. H. S. Jr. Red Cross. The pipers will be led by Lieutenant Rice, who was at the French front last year. There will also be Highland dances and other features.

Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson, of Park avenue, has been called to Oneida, N. Y., by the death of her mother, which occurred Wednesday.

English Explains Coal Price Raise

Relative to the increase of thirty-five cents a ton in the price of coal, which went into effect in Plainfield yesterday, Fuel Commissioner John K. English, of Elizabeth, issued the following statement to cover the municipalities in his jurisdiction:

"The increase in the prices of coal going into effect today is 35 cents over prices heretofore charged in Elizabeth. The Elizabeth prices were fixed three months ago by the Federal Trade Commission. No price was fixed to be charged by the dealers in other parts of Union county, and the only way in which such dealers could arrive at price was to follow Circular No. 7 of the Federal Fuel Administrator which required the making of a calculation by each dealer based upon his 1915 prices with 20 per cent. added to his so-called margin. This made the price charged by the dealers vary greatly and led to much confusion. The present apparent increase makes greater allowance to Elizabeth dealers, but will make the charge by some other dealers less and will prevent disobedience of the law.

"The price heretofore charged in Elizabeth was the same as that in Newark. It should be greater for the following reasons: Newark dealers procure screened coal from railroad pockets. Union county dealers must get their coal of screening, and moreover must pay by weight for coal,—such weight including the almost valueless screenings. Moreover Union county dealers must pay interest on investment, taxes, and upkeep of sidings and yard, whereas Newark dealers need invest practically no capital other than that required for horses and wagons. The present increase is not more than enough to compensate Union county dealers for this added expense. The present cost of labor and of everything else to make greater efforts to procure coal and to supply domestic consumers adequately."

FALLING STOVE PIPE CAUSES $500.00 FIRE

The falling of a hot stove pipe in the lace and women's furnishing store of R. Blumenthal & Son at 178 West Front street caused a fire at 10 o'clock yesterday morning that resulted in $500 damage. Mrs. Blumenthal was shaking the ash grate of the stove when the accident occurred. In attempting to extinguish a blaze that started among some lace goods, Mrs. Blumenthal was badly burned about the hands and had to be treated by Dr. Pittis.

An alarm was turned in from box 14 by Charles Kortman and the firemen put the blaze out with chemicals. The loss is divided between the stock, which is covered to the extent of $300, and the building, placed at $200. Dr. Pittis owns the structure.

MRS. PETER C. PETERSON.

Mrs. Emma Louisa Peterson, wife of Peter C. Peterson, died yesterday afternoon at her home at 1109 West Front street. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

Francis J. Blatz, president of the Common Council, presided as magistrate in the City Court yesterday in the absence of Judge W. G. DeMeza, who is confined to his home on Sadsford avenue by an attack of lumbago. The only case before "Judge" Blatz was a non-support charge preferred by Mrs. Johanna Peet Siercke, of Johannes place, against her husband, Fred Siercke. The defendant was held in $200 bail for appearance Monday.

Owing to unforeseen conditions arising from the beet problem and food shortage, the Daughters of Isabella have postponed the anniversary banquet announced for next Tuesday night, January 29. It is probable that a new date will be set when everything in general is more propitious.

The home of Charles Lippincott on Fairview avenue was the scene of a successful dime social, Tuesday night. It was given under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Grace M. E. church and was attended by about forty persons. The program included violin selections by Vincent Spilatro, accompanied on the piano by Little Hortense Clement; also recitations by Mr. Conroy, Mrs. George Bolen and the Rev. Charles S. Gillespie all of which were thoroughly enjoyed.

Proceeding to his home at 824 West Fourth street, Saturday night, Frederick Stillman discovered an unconscious man lying prone on the sidewalk on Fourth street, near Grant avenue. Securing assistance, Stillman had the man removed to the office of Dr. Yood, where he revived after few moments' treatment. He was found to have been badly beaten and in addition to suffering a scalp wound, had cuts and bruises all over his face. He stated that his name was William Edmundson, of West Fourth street, and that he had been waylaid by an unknown assailant. The police were informed of the matter and are searching for the perpetrator of the assault. Beside the injuries he received, Edmundson suffered severely from the cold as a comparison of time showed that he had been unconscious on the sidewalk for nearly half an hour before he was discovered.

A large delegation from Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, attended a district meeting held at New Brunswick last night. The trip to and from the Middlesex county seat was made by automobile.

Counsellor Robert Newton Crane, on Tuesday of this week, probated the will of the late Charles A. Clark, who died recently at his home on Parkway road. Several bequests are made to sisters and brothers of the deceased but the residue of the estate, which is said to be very large, was given to the widow, Mrs. Violet Clark. Mrs. Clark and Horace G. Adams are named as executors.

The Gesang and Turn Verein installed its recently elected officers at a meeting held in Saengerbund Hall, Tuesday night. The ceremonies were followed by a social session during which an informal program of music followed by refreshments was enjoyed.

Contractor Arthur E. Smith is one of the patriotic Plainfielders who is exerting himself to help out in the coal shortage. The latter part of Monday left four of his men in a big automobile truck as far as bridge work was concerned and he placed them at the disposal of Commissioner John J. Kenney to assist local coal dealers in getting emergency supplies of fuel to the various parts of the city. The men and the truck were kept going all day, giving an immense amount of help. They will be at the call of Mr. Kenney on the succeeding idle Mondays.

The officials of the Spicer Manufacturing Company plant complied strictly with Dr. Garfield's five-day order last week, but received word Monday that inasmuch as part of its product is classed as munitions it can continue working as usual. Hereafter orders relating to the lavor of industries will not affect the Spicer plant.

Muhlenberg Hospital will shortly be able to laugh at be power people who say just when power can or can not be used. A generous friend of the institution who does not want his name disclosed has given $8,500 to build a power plant big enough to supply the hospital with all the electric current it needs. The offer was accepted by the Board of Governors at the last regular meeting and work on the improvement is to commence within a very short time.

A plan for locating a co-operative butcher shop at 525 West Third street has been suggested by local people, people and a meeting to discuss the proposition is to be held in the New street synagogue next Sunday night at 8:30. Morris Abrams, owner of the Third street property mentioned, has offered to give the premises free from rent from one year. Those who have already inquired into the matter declare that the co-operative scheme will result in a great saving for the poor people of the city. It is probable that the plan will be adopted at Sunday night's meeting and carried to a working point as soon as possible.

Dr. Charles B. Lufburrow and Dr. William H. Murray, who have acted as examining physicians for the Plainfield Draft Board, attended a gathering of medical men at the Newark Y. M. C. A. yesterday. The meeting was held on call from Adjutant General Gilkyson and was addressed by physicians and surgeons from Camp Dix. The gathering resulted in a better understanding among the doctors as to the method of examining registrants.

Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, will have another busy session at the Castle Hall in the Babcock building tonight. A class of twenty-two esquires will be given the rank of knight and a social session will follow the degree work. Visiting delegations will be present from Lodge of the Castle, of Somerville, and Somerset Lodge, of Bound Brook.

At the regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge of Elks, Wednesday night, Past Exalted Ruler Walter Marder was presented with a beautiful silver coffee set in appreciation of the services rendered by him during his term as chief executive of the organization. The presentation was made by James Hart, chairman of a committee appointed to select the gift. Exalted Ruler Francis J. Blatz also spoke, taking occasion to review the splendid results of Mr. Marder's term in the chair.

Baker Explains Policy to Edge

Secretary of War Baker this week made public a letter written by him to Governor Edge, of New Jersey, under date of January 4, outlining the policy of the War Department with regard to transfers and discharges in the National Guard divisions of the army. The letter was in response to a communication from Governor Edge, dated December 28, to which he called attention specifically to certain conditions in the 29th Division at Anniston, Ala., of which the New Jersey National Guard constitutes a part.

With reference to criticism that officers of the 104th Engineer Regiment at Anniston had been discharged or transferred, Mr. Baker calls attention to the fact that this regiment was made up mostly of infantry troops. The secretary states that the colonel of the regiment is endeavoring to replace infantry officers with trained engineers who are qualified to do the technical work required of engineer officers.

Governor Edge had called attention to reports that preference was being shown to graduates of officers' reserve training camps. This, Mr. Baker states, is not correct, since definite instructions were given to the commanding officers of National Guard divisions that no reserve corps or National Army officers were to be utilized in any grade until all suitable National Guard officers in that grade had been given permanent assignments. Division commanders also were instructed to transfer within their respective divisions officers of one army corps, or department, to another army corps or department to which the officers so transferred were deemed best suited.

"The War Department is making strenuous efforts to see that only officers who are fit, physically and professionally, are to lead our men on the battlefields of Europe," says Mr. Baker, "and these efforts are not being confined to the elimination of inefficient National Guard officers, but are being applied rigidly to officers of the regular army, National Army and reserve corps. There has already been a number of regular army officers selected by the commands upon recommendations of boards of officers who have declared their physical unfitness to perform the duties of their grades."

In this connection Mr. Baker states that it is understood that Colonel Van Walraven (104th N. J. Infantry) had been ordered before a board to determine his physical fitness, but that the result of the examination was not known January 4.

Ample provision is being made, Secretary Baker says, for those officers rendered surplus by the consolidation of regiments in the new training organizations where they possess the necessary military qualifications. No officer, whether he be an officer of the regular army, National Army, National Guard or the reserves, who is really competent, enthusiastic in his work, and can meet physical test need have any fear of losing his commission," states Mr. Baker.

WANTS WHOLESALER'S LICENSE REVOKED.

Federal Food Administrator of New Jersey James F. Fielder is today awaiting reply from Washington on his second recommendation that the National administrator suspend the license of David Nachimson, a Paterson wholesale dealer, who, as told, was found guilty of selling 400 pounds of sugar to a theatre for advertising purposes.

Draft Chairman Gives Dinner to Board's Helpers

Following his resignation as chairman of the local Exemption Board, and on the eve of his departure for Florida, where he will take a much needed rest at his winter home, Judge William R. Codington came an informal dinner to his associate members of the Board and those who had rendered assistance to it in various ways, at the Queen City Hotel, Saturday night. Covers were laid for seventeen in all and the excellent menu provided by Boniface Staats, together with the period of speech-making beginning as the last course was served, made up a most enjoyable evening.

Those who were present beside Judge Codington were Dr. F. W. Wescott and Charles W. Runyon, who have been members of the Board since its creation last summer; Liaison Beat Roger F. Murray, Howard G. Lapsley, Isaac Post, Angus McKensie, Albert F. LaRock, William F. Merrill, W. D. Thickstun, Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, E. F. Feickert, E. E. Tremonger, Clifford Hall, Walter Freeman and Charles L. Frost.

During the toast-making, Judge Coding made a most excellent toastmaster. In his preliminary remarks he reviewed the great amount of detailed work necessary to carry out the Government's instructions relative to the selection of men for the National Army and pointed out what excellent progress had been made in Plainfield. This city has shown a high percentage of perfection in every stage of the work, even to the point of a minimum of appeals and the mailing out of questionnaires absolutely on time, a record not equaled by hundreds of boards in other parts of the country.

The splendid progress that had been made, Judge Codington said, was the result of volunteer service from Plainfield citizens. Every time a call had been given by either himself or his predecessor, there had been a most gratifying response from men who had put aside private affairs to aid in the complicated task. It was in full appreciation of all this help, the Judge continued, that he had planned upon the informal dinner to announce his withdrawal from the Board and to convey to his assistants a full measure of thanks for the generous support accorded him.

Each of the guests present responded to their introduction in a fitting manner. One of those who received a tremendous burst of applause when his name was announced was Walter Freeman, of South avenue, who has three sons in the service. He worked early and late on the preparation of registrants' cards, the mailing of notifications for physical examination, the sending out of the questionnaires and the classification after their return. All of Mr. Freeman's sons were among the selected men to whom he addressed a questionnaire.

A "big bit" was made by Isaac E. Post, another of the hard workers who gave his services as a patriotic duty. He included in his remarks the recitation of several poems written by Henry Wymans Jessup, an attorney at law with offices on Liberty street, New York. Mr. Jessup, who is a particular friend of Mr. Post, has four sons wearing Uncle Sam's uniforms and expressed his willingness to give his only remaining son if necessary. Mr. Post is gifted in declamation and a burst of handclapping followed his rendition of Mr. Jessup's verses. These were as follows:

"Back of That Hindenburg Line."
We are all on our toes and awaiting for a chance
To get to that Hindenburg line,
To drive the dirty Germans out of Belgium and of France
Way back of that Hindenburg line.
For back of that Hindenburg line,
On the map is a stream called the Rhine,
And we're going to set our watches by the Watch on the Rhine,
Way back of the Hindenburg line.

We hear there is a little town long known as Waterloo,
Just back of that Hindenburg line,
When we reach it, every man of us will know just what to do,
Right back of that Hindenburg line.
Once there it would sure be a sin,
Not to stroll on beyond to Berlin,
So we're going to set out watches by the Watch on the Rhine,
Way back of the Hindenburg line.

"Uncle Sam's Selective Army."
Oh the Germans think we're conscripts. Ahernit,
We've been chosen to be soldiers, 'cos we're fit.
We will teach the Bosch a lesson, just you wait,
And his backward goose-step hasten sure as fate.
Every man of us is goin' to do his bit
At the signal we will just "get up and git."
Uncle Sam's selective army,
Picked from Maine to Alabammy.
From East and West, from North and South is it.

Trainings over, every Johnny get his gun,
No more marking time, we're goin' to shoot the Hun.
Every bullet find its billet in a beast,
When we rise from out our trenches just like yeast.
Every man of us is going to do his bit,
At the signal we will just "get up and git."

Plainfield Man's Invention Permits Use of Kerosene In Motor Driven Engines

Electrically Heated Carburetor, Invented by Wilbert T. Bintliff, Will Help Government Win War and Save Millions In Cost of Gasoline.

Complete revolution in the use of volatile liquids for the propelling of motor driven vehicles or any type of gas engine is promised through a patent recently granted to Wilbert T. Bintliff, of Park avenue, this city, for his invention of an electrically heated carburetor. Not only is gasoline made much more effective by the device but it also enables the use of kerosene and even fuel oils without changing the construction of motors as they are built today. The commercial value of this process is quickly realized when it is understood that kerosene generally sells for half the rice of gasoline and in these days of gasoline scarcity a substitute for the liquid is highly desired.

Numerous attempts have been made by inventors to devolve an appliance that would permit the use of kerosene in the ordinary carburetor. Several crude bits of mechanism have been put on the market but have not been a success. Mr. Bintliff has made the subject a study for a long time and through years of experience in the automobile business finally discovered the process which readily received the protection of the United States Government and promises to bring him great financial return. Already several investing corporations have made offers for the patent but each has been refused in turn. Allen B. Laing, who has been interested with the patentee in several ventures, has secured a half interest in all patent and manufacturing rights. He is now handling the necessary preliminaries before the device is placed on the market.

In order to obtain an efficient explosive mixture for use in gas engines it is necessary to combine the gas or vaporized hydrocarbon with air in predetermined quantities, and it is generally known that cold gas and cold air will not commingle properly to form an efficient explosive mixture. It is for this reason that difficulty is often experienced in starting gas engines.

In conducting his experiments, Mr. Bintliff was aware that heretofore various devices have been provided for the preliminary heating of either the gas or both the gas and the air. His present invention, however, relates to an apparatus for heating a liquid hydrocarbon fuel to a point of vaporization, if necessary, so that the same is properly heated when the word comes up and over, Watch the Boaches hunt for cover, Uncle Sam's selective army, we are it.

The dinner was scheduled to commence at 6:30 and terminated at about 9 o'clock. Judge Codington took his departure from the city Monday. He has a farm at Gate City, Fla., but during his stay South will be located at Braidentown.

Farmers of County Seek Federal Aid

The Union County Board of Agriculture held a well-attended meeting at he Courthouse, Elizabeth, week, and took action toward joining the Federal Loan Association by the formation of a Farmers' Loan Association of Union county. The law requires ten members to start the association, and it is believed that ten men can be found within the *board who are willing to stand spon*sor for the plan which the Government is backing.

The Government will help the farmers on easy terms and give them a long time to pay back the loans, and the farmers believe they should avail themselves of the opportunity to set in line and thus be able to strive for larger crops.

C. H. Brewer, secretary of the association, has the matter in charge and will have the plans for the formation of the association ready for the meeting the first Thursday in February.

The board indorsed the new State constabulary bill. The board also went on record as favoring a change in the hunting and fishing law, the new plan being that owners must give permission to fishermen and hunters to use their land and streams.

E. P. Beebe, of Elizabeth, and C. T. Woodruff, of Hillside, delegates to the State Horticultural Society meeting at Newark several weeks ago, made exhaustive reports of the matters taken up at that meeting. They were given a vote of thanks for their efforts.

Hart S. Van Fleet, of Roselle, spoke of the need of educating the youths of the country in the value of farm life, and urged that the board go on record as favoring the establishment of a county demonstrator's office in Union county, pointing out that this is one of the few counties in the State which did not possess an office of that kind.

The matter will be more fully discussed at a later meeting. Mr. Van Fleet also urged that the high school boys be again interested in the farm projects, as we "must eat and live."

New Signs Planned To Guide Motorists

A committee, headed by Ross McClave, of Bergen county, was named by Jacob L. Bauer, Union county engineer, president of the New Jersey Association of County Engineers, at a gathering of the members of that organization at Trenton, Wednesday, to take up with the State engineering department the plan of having uniform signs on all roads of New Jersey. It was planned to take up the matter of urging Robert Meeker's return as State highway engineer, but the lack of a quorum prevented any action.

Mr. Bauer said yesterday morning that the association has suggested two sets of signs, one to mark the various routes of the "Edge system" through the State and the other to give warning of railroad crossings, sharp turns or dangerous grades. The former will be in the shape of a hand to give the route used for road warning signs. If the plan offered is approved. They will be of blue with the number of the route, from one to fourteen in white letters.

The danger signs will be oblong. For railroad crossings there will be two crossed arms with lettering on the sides. In case of sharp turns there will be two lines at right angles and to give warning of a grade there will be a line running from the upper to the lower corner of the sign, in black on a field of dark background with white lines and either of wood or metal.

Signs pointing out the roads to various towns will probably be posted as well as those of the other two States in New Jersey, and especially Union county, without such convenience to motorists except where private concerns have placed signs for advertising.

DRAWN FOR PETIT JURY.

The following Plainfielders are included in the petit jury panel, drawn for the coming week: Fred J. Harris, Charles J. Overbaugh, A. W. Clifton, John Burns, Howard C. Foster, William J. Dealaman, Charles O. Smith, Bertram F. Tallamy, George J. Lahr, William H. Armstrong and Walter Meeker. Ora S. Rogers, William H. Hall and Harold E. Bonnell were drawn from Fanwood.

Many Business Changes Underway on Front Street

Passing of Old Time Firm Today Marks Beginning of Record Shift In Shopping District.

Activities already under way indicate that 1918 will be a record-breaker in the number of location changes among the merchants of Plainfield's business district. Deals have been completed that will involve at least seven leading concerns, while others are pending that will affect perhaps seven more. Such a great amount of moving about is considered remarkable in the face of uncertain business conditions brought about by the state of war.

Standing out prominently in the changes is the retirement of one of the city's oldest firms, that of Powlison & Jones, which closes its doors at 149-151 East Front street tomorrow afternoon. This concern started in the furniture business in the Stillman building on April 1, 1848, the store now being occupied by Harry Werner. J. A. Powlison and Frank Jones were the proprietors. The business was known for a long time as the "music hall furniture store" because it was directly the first door to Stillman's Music Hall, April 1. The contract calls for a new Powlison's Theatre, and in those large, one-story addition to the rear faces the only playhouse in the city, of the present dwelling, a complete The firm moved "up town" to the new front with modern display win-present location on East Front street down, the installation of a passenger in 1898 after putting up the present elevator and the thorough overhaul-fire building occupying the site. east of the present Force place. The department store in its new home is to include a complete grocery, and Mr. Firstbrook will be in full charge, as he has conducted a grocery in Plainfield for the past twenty-two years, starting first at 312 Liberty street, and moving up town in 1910. He has a thorough knowledge of the same and because of his natural business ability can be counted upon to make the new departure a most valuable adjunct for the Force concern beside making the innovation a great convenience to the shopping public.

The work of rebuilding the former McCutchen building at 124 West Front will not start until the Force Company moves out. Immediately thereafter Tepper Brothers will have contractors get busy on plans that will almost double the floor space and give the firm a department store home equal to the best known in Newark or other larger cities. It will probably be late in the coming summer or early fall before everything is in readiness for the Tepper address to be changed. What will be done with the present store is not known at this time as the firm's lease with Mr. Boehm extends for another year and under its terms another dry goods concern cannot rent it. As it is too large for any ordinary business to remain idle until the Tepper lease runs out.

Two other changes are likely to result from the announcement a few days ago that Sam Rothberg had sold his building at 206 West Front street to M. & D. Rosenthal, who at present conduct a ladies' furnishing store at 210 West Front street. It is stated on good authority that Mr. Rothberg is planning to sell his clothing store business to an unnamed party and go South to form a partnership with his father-in-law,

HOME FOR SOLDIERS' LOVED ONES IN WASHINGTON.

The Army and Navy Camp Committee of the National Congress of Mothers has bought a house in Washington to be used for the benefit of 150,000 enlisted men in camps near Washington. The house is at 22 Jarvson place, within a square of the White House and the State, War, and Navy Building. It will be furnished with beds, shower baths and rest rooms. Beds will be thirty-five cents a night.

Similar houses already have been established in Philadelphia and Baltimore, and a movement is afoot to establish them at Atlanta and Anniston, Ala. The movement has the co-operation and approval of the army and navy and Y. M. C. A.

Garage Fire Loss Placed At $35,000

Conservative estimates made by Fire Chief Andrew Jennings and other experts, together with figures submitted by owners of destroyed or damaged automobiles bring the total loss resulting from the Martin garage fire on Park avenue, Tuesday morning, to fully $35,000. This figure may be increased when insurance adjustors have completed their examination of the three-story brick building which was a mass of seething flame for nearly two hours and was practically gutted before the firemen got the blaze under control. The city's entire fire fighting force, with the exception of the West End Company, No. 3, battled from 7 o'clock until 1:07 in the afternoon before the back taps were sounded, making the conflagration one of the worst that has occurred locally in many years. Unstinted praise has been accorded Chief Jennings for the manner in which every detail of the battle against the devastating fire was waged.

Miss Anna Boice, owner of the building, which houses the Martin Automobile Company's business, declared yesterday that her loss would be at least $10,000 and perhaps $15,000. The Martin concern had an individual loss on equipment of $4,000; John J. Praed, owner of the building at 314 Park avenue, in which he conducts a tailoring shop, placed his loss at $1,000; the automobile owners whose machines were stored in the place stand an aggregate loss of $17,000. The greater part of the damage is covered by insurance.

What caused the fire has not been determined. It was discovered at about 7 o'clock by William Hammond, the night watchman, who discovered flames shooting up the elevator shaft from the basement when he attempted to give a final look at the furnace before going home. It may have been caused by the overheating of the floor beams or even spontaneous combustion brought about by the collection of oil or gasoline drippings.

Hammond turned in an alarm from box 13 at North and Park avenues and called for help to get out twenty-two automobiles that stood on the main floor. Among the first volunteers were Patrolmen James Conway and Thomas Bebout, who underwent great risk in reaching machines close to the seat of the fire. Conway finally took a desperate chance to shove out a big limousine but was overcome by the fumes" before he realized his peril. He was gotten out by his fellow officer and other men but failed to revive under ordinary "first aid treatment." A hurry call brought the Public Service automobile, but even this failed to bring him from unconsciousness. He was then ordered to Muhlenberg Hospital, where he recovered late in the day. He is still at the institution but may be discharged this afternoon.

All of the cars on the first floor were saved but twenty-seven that were on the second and third floors were either destroyed or damaged. One of those burned beyond all redemption was the "Hitney" belonging to Jacob Birkwell, which figured in the fatal collision with a trolley car on West Front street last September. It has been at the Martin garage awaiting the settlement of damage cases before repairs proceeded. Another car destroyed was one belonging to Mefford R. Giles, a Stevens-Duryea, valued at $600, on which there was no insurance. Benjamin Evans, clerk to the Board of Education, was one of the lucky owners. His car, valued at $750, was included in the twenty-two pushed off the first floor. The insurance policy on it expired at noon Tuesday.

The owners of cars who suffered losses and their amounts is as follows: Charles O. Smith, a Ford truck, $750; Thomas Canter, a Vim truck, valued at $750, and a Hupmobile, worth $400; J. Milton Anderson, a Studebaker taxi, valued at $1,000; a Ford taxi, $750, and a Hudson car, $500; Walter Jarvis, Nimrod, valued at $1,750; Jack Linke, Studebaker car, valued at $1,500; Studebaker truck, $750; Martin Company, a White car, valued at $600; M. R. Giles, Stevens-Duryea, $600; Laing and Hastan, Studebaker car, $1,000, and a Ford truck, valued at $200; Guy Scott Ford, $200; Arthur E. Smith, Buick $400; John J. Sullivan, touring car $50; Miss Anna Boice, Ford limousine, $750; two Ford taxis, owners unknown, one valued at $600 and the other $500; an automobile belonging to Jacob Birkwell, $50, and another ten owner unknown, $400; Harold Underhill, Electric Coupe, $100; Bert Banks, Stutz, $600; A. Levine, Ford car, $500; Francis J. Blatt, Velie, $1,000, and Guy Thomas, an Oakland, $700. A Reo, belonging to John C. Bond, was the only one of those on the upper floors which escaped with practically no damage.

The firemen had the cold weather and falling snow to contend with in battling the flames and during the long fight the bowsmen, especially, became badly numbed. Mrs. Frank Weed, Mrs. Florence Neighbor Smith, A. B. Wilson, of the New York Telephone Company, and others whose homes or offices are in the vicinity, learned of the firemen's plight and sent about welcome hot coffee. Whenever it was possible to relieve a man for a short time Chief Jennings gave him permission to secure a cup of stimulating hot coffee and the gift was appreciated more than words can express. Mrs. Weed even went further than preparing coffee. She secured sixty pairs of warm, dry socks and the men who became drenched at frequent intervals were enabled to go across the street and get a welcome change of foot covering. Both Chief Jennings and Charles C. Graves, chairman of the Fire Board, personally extended thanks to all those who aided the firemen as far as their names could be learned. Those who were omitted can rest assured that their "bit" was fully acceptable and as keenly appreciated by every member of the department. Mr. Graves reached the scene shortly after the fire broke out and took his place with the "smoke eaters" just as he did in the days when he was a volunteer or call man. He was in the thickest of the fight for several hours and only withdrew when it was plain that the danger had passed and the "wetting down" was all that was left.

The Martin Company, of which R. Douglas Martin is the president, and George F. Richards, secretary, announced yesterday that it would be able to resume business on a reduced scale some time today. The machine shop in the rear of the main store first floor and the wash-room in the main building north of the main building were practically unharmed. The damaged portions are being boarded off and every effort will be made to care for the firm's patrons while complete repairs are underway. The water pressure from the street mains remained excellent during the six hours nine lines of hose poured streams into the building. The force of several of them, however, is made more than doubly effective by the American-La France engine brought down from the Fisher-Boice homes. This apparatus received a most grueling test but came through it without a hitch. Under the direction of Paul Adams, the engine pumped steadily for four hours, a grind that few motor engines can finish without suffering a lot of damage. It demonstrated to the Fire Department, the Fire Board and others that the machine is a big factor in the city's equipment and can be relied upon in almost any For the greater part of the time during the fire the American-LaFrance engine pumped 700 gallons of water a minute but the hum of the mechanism was hardly more perceptible than that of an ordinary high power truck passing down the street.

ARMY IN NEED OF WOMEN 'PHONE OPERATORS

The Signal Corps needs women telephone operators between 23 and 35 years, who are in good health and speak French and English fluently, the salaries range from $60 to $125 a month, with rations and quarters, the same as received by army nurses.

Units of women operators to be sent abroad will wear distinctive uniforms and be considered from a military standpoint as in a similar position to the members of the British Women's Auxiliary Corps. Wives of army officers and enlisted men in Europe or about to go will not be accepted.

Uncle Sam Gives Food Advice to People at War

Uncle Sam's food advice to his people at war, condensed in four-page United States Food Leaflets, and aimed to stimulate food saving without slighting body needs, are now ready. Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture and the Food Administration and with the aid of State representatives, the leaflets carry the country's expert thought on food conservation and utilization translated into popular language. For the mother who may be confused with much advice about her war obligation, as well as for the food conservation worker, the message of the leaflets should be most helpful.

Beginning with the day's first meal the experts take up the daily food problems of the average home. "Start the Day Right with a Good Breakfast," is food leaflet No. 1. Then follow others now ready: "Do You Know Cornmeal?" "A Whole Dinner in One Dish," "Choose Your Food Wisely," "Make a Little Meat Go a Long Way," "Do You Know Oatmeal?" "Food for Your Children." More will follow.

In four-page nutshells and in big, readable type, the problems of food and diets are presented in a way which should make them "strike home"—every home in America. Wise rules for the child and the adult, carefully selected, not only with regard to "calories" and "protein"—scientific measuring rods—but also with delicate respect for young, middle-aged and grown-up appetites, are presented by means of menus, recipes and hints—many of them new and all of them simple and practicable.

Confident that "A Whole Dinner in One Dish," presented in food leaflet No. 3, will make good its name, the Government's food specialists guarantee that:

"The youngsters will like it."

"Father will like it."

"You will like it."

"Your pocketbook will surely like it."

"Your bodies can't help liking it."

"Uncle Sam is going to like it."

Here is another brief lesson in food economy taught in one pointed paragraph: "Use cereals—cornmeal mush, oatmeal, rice, hominy grits. These are much cheaper than some 'ready-to-eat' breakfast foods. Ready-to-eat breakfast food may cost 15 cents for a big package, but if the package contains only one quarter of a pound—60 cents a pound for cereal. This is eight or ten times as expensive as cornmeal at six or seven cents a pound. Look for the weights printed on the package and get the most for your money."

Diets for the children, one leaflet says in big type, should not be skimpy, but a wise selection will enable food-saving even in their meals. And then, after enumerating model breakfasts, dinners and suppers, the experts make a bid for the child vote with these suggestions:

"Sweets are good for them—the right ones at the right time. Dates, raisins, stewed fruits, simple puddings and sugar cookies are better than candy. Give them at meal time. Between meals let them have bread and butter, a cracker or fruit. They won't spoil the appetite, and candy between meals will."

The United States food leaflets are intended to supplement rather than replace the Department of Agriculture's publications on food and other home problems. With the funds at its disposal the Department of Agriculture will be able to supply these leaflets directly only to leaders and active workers in the food conservation movements. Efforts are to be made to induce the press to republish this material widely and this make it directly accessible to millions of readers. The department also will endeavor to interest women's clubs, churches, civic and other organizations, druggoods and other merchants, owners of factories and other employers to purchase these leaflets in numbers at actual cost and to distribute them to members, employes or friends. The seven leaflets now published are the first of a series of leaflets to be issued during the emergency, each dealing in the same simple language with practical food economies that any housewife can effect.

End to Prison Labor Contracts

After thirty years of effort to eliminate the convict labor contract system in New Jersey, Governor Edge announced this week in a statement that he was glad the system was at an end and that the object sought had been accomplished. He says that whether from an economic viewpoint or from the viewpoint of the proper treatment and training of prisoners, it has been indefensible in principle and an utter failure in practice.

The complete statement is:

"I have, under date of January 22, 1918, given formal notice to the firms holding convict labor contracts in the New Jersey State prison, that their contracts will be terminated on July 1 next. I am confident a five and one-half months' notice will give sufficient time to the prison authorities to provide for proper employment of the prisoners in State work of various kinds. I think also that this is ample notice to permit the contractors to make any necessary adjustments of their business. Should the Legislature follow the recommendations of the Prison Inquiry Commission and provide for a new central board to supervise all penal and correctional institutions of the State the duty of properly employing the prisoners upon diversified State use work will fall upon the new board.

"The cancellation of these contracts ends the convict labor contract system in the State of New Jersey. The effort to accomplish this most desirable result began more than thirty years ago. In 1881 the Legislature specifically provided by an act passed in February of that year, that is should be unlawful to contract for the labor of the prisoners in the penal and correctional institutions of this State with any person, firm or corporation. A few months later, however, the same session of the Legislature practically nullified the purpose of the prior act by authorizing the product of the prisoners' labor to be sold to contractors at a specified price for each piece of manufactured product.

"This left the contract system in the prison in a more objectionable form than the one which had been abolished. In 1911 and 1914 laws were passed directing the abolition of the system, but providing that the existing contracts should continue until the prisoners had been employed upon the State-use system. The effect of this proviso was that the old contracts continued in force because the authorities were not satisfied that there would be sufficient employment for the prisoners without the contracts. This situation was most disadvantageous to the State because the old contracts were at prices to the contractors based upon the costs and selling prices of several years ago, the contractors getting whatever advantages accrued through the rise in selling price and neither the State nor the prisoners getting any of the advantage of the increased value of labor.

"Of the six contracts that were in existence when I entered office, one contract was cancelled in June last and two in September last. The remaining three I have cancelled as stated, because I am satisfied that a unified effort to properly utilize the State-use system will not be made until the contract system is definitely and finally wiped out.

"I am deeply gratified that New Jersey has reached the point where the contract system is to end. Whether viewed from the economic point of view or from the point of view of the proper treatment and training of prisoners it has been indefensible in principle and an utter failure in practice. So far as the financial side of the proposition is concerned, if that can be considered an argument at all, by those who have defended the system, it has shown a continuous deficiency for years past. The prices obtained by the State have been perfectly ridiculous when compared to labor on the outside."

COLLECTOR LEAVITT PAYS FIRST ROAD TAX MONEY.

County Collector Nathan R. Leavitt left for Trenton on Monday and paid over to the State Treasurer the road tax of Union county, in compliance with the provisions of the Edge road law. This is the first time in the history of the county that the State Treasurer has received any money from the county for the road account. The sum this year is $191,083. The tax was due January 20, but that day being Sunday the payment was accepted by the State Monday.

Collector Leavitt also paid into the State treasury the school tax amounting to $481,404.26. Of this amount however, 90 per cent comes back to the county. It will be distributed to the various municipalities throughout the county as apportioned by the State superintendent of schools.

The total payments made on behalf of the county by Mr. Leavitt is $672,488.15, which is a goodly sum for the taxpayers to gather together for road and school purposes.

ACTION NEEDED IN COAL CRISIS.

The coal situation in Plainfield has gotten to the critical point. Barely a pail full of the precious commodity is to be found in the bins of any of the dealers and the few cars of anthracite that might arrive within the next few days will be depleted of the loads almost before they have been shunted to the sidings. Everywhere from the district covered by Commissioner Kenney comes the cry for coal and the method adopted to relieve the wants of householders, business men and others has failed miserably. There is nothing in promising that an order will be filled as soon as possible because there is nothing to fill it with and there has been a decided lack of co-operation between the Fuel Commissioner and the dealers.

What is wanted in this city is absolute action. One of the first steps that can be taken and should be taken without further mincing of words is the commandeering of the reserve supply of coal for the city schools now stored at the Consumers' yards on Madison avenue. It is admitted that 400 tons of the precious fuel lie undisturbed at this point and why this should be allowed when mothers with babies beg for only enough coal to keep their homes warm is beyond comprehension. Other cities have closed the schools entirely and the same thing can be done here without any harm resulting. The mere postponement of education for a month or a year is not nearly as important as the continuance of livable conditions for hundreds of families or the maintenance of business houses that help supply the taxes.

If the schools have to close, let them close. It will only be a matter of a short time when the situation will be relieved and the children can go back to their desks. If they have to stay out a few weeks let the buildings keep open just that much longer in the summer time and promotions will be made just as they have been made in the past. Coal, not education, is needed at this critical moment. County Commissioner John K. English and his associates on the Union County Fuel Board will discuss the proposition of confiscating all reserved supplies of school coal this afternoon and if humanity and right is to prevail, there will be no hesitation in taking over the fuel that means life to more than one infant or a further business career for many a struggling merchant.

Commissioner Kenney's job of being coal dictator for the community started out somewhat "soft" but now that real obstacles have been met it is anything but a "cinch." Mr. Kenney should be given the absolute unselfish and patriotic support of every citizen. So far the commissioner has not resorted to drastic measures, preferring to use diplomacy instead of asserting his undeniable authority. As a result of this certain citizens devoid of conscience or all sense of right have taken advantage of his leniency. They have asserted that they were entirely without fuel when they have had from a few days' supply to fully a ton stored away in an obscure part of the cellar. They have claimed to have children at home when there are none and they have lied barefacedly about the conditions of their home. The dealers, too, have frequently ignored Mr. Kenney's orders in preference to their own, thus defeating the purpose for which the commission has been created. Mr. Kenney calls for delivery of coal when he has become convinced that it is absolutely imperative to send the fuel to the place designated and if the dealer insists that he has no stock on hand in order to care for his own customers the suffering continues unabated.

We do not assert that all the coal men are guilty of this practice. Most of them have been absolutely honest in their co-operation but there have been some who have been a hindrance instead of a help to the nation-wide plan. It is high time now that the commissioner makes these men understand that his word is absolute law. If he gives a priority order it should be obeyed and the first infraction followed by arrest and punishment. This should also apply to the citizens who ask for coal when they know a very small sacrifice would see them through the stringency. Let one man or woman be lugged over to Sycamore street and the commissioner will have no trouble in getting reliable information.

When the County Commission meets at Elizabeth this afternoon, there will be another matter brought up for discussion. This is the apparent waste of light which the Public Service Corporation has been carrying on for nearly a week. On one morning recently the street lights in Plainfield were burning brightly before sundown in the evening and at 7 o'clock in the morning when it was broad daylight. During the recent moonlight nights the street lamps has been on full blast. They have not been needed like they were in the inky blackness of last week when the Public Service agents plunged the entire city in darkness from early in the evening. It seems as though the Public Service had adopted a system of its own irrespective of the wishes of Dr. Garfield and the community in general. The corporation is in need of severe handling, not by calling employes to account, but by summoning the officials who are doing much as they please in a critical period that is testing the loyalty of the people.

Very little relief is promised for the coal shortage for at least another week. Therefore, let every citizen do his share in restoring order out of the disorganization that has befallen the country. It can be done if common sense is to prevail instead of hysteria and above all, if Commissioner Kenney makes it understood that his order is a command and not the asking of a favor. One of the best ways to do it is to confiscate the reserve coal held for the schools. After that there will be other and even more determined steps to be taken.

PLAINFIELD'S REPUTATION AT STAKE.

If Plainfield citizens are to maintain their reputation for generosity and support of a worthy cause, there should be a more liberal giving to the Knights of Columbus War Camp fund. Started last Saturday, it has continued to this point with less than half the $25,000 allotment for this district secured. Only two more days are left in which the workers can solicit further contributions and much as it is to be deplored it seems as though the community would not furnish the remainder.

Every dollar that is given to this fund is for the American boys who are going to the trenches. It is to provide bodily comfort, give them congenial surroundings back of the line and help bring them home with clean bodies and minds. The givers show by their contributions that they are loyal to the lads who are bearing the brunt of the gigantic struggle and we doubt if there is a single Plainfielder who wants the boys from this district to admit that their fellow citizens had fallen short in their duty. Twenty-five thousand dollars is only a fair proportion for Plainfield and North Plainfield with more than 30,000 inhabitants. It means only a dollar or two from every adult and who would not willingly give this amount when there is a full realization of what it is for?

Members of Watchung Council are still giving up their time to raise the necessary allotment. They are working hard to provide their share of the $10,000,000 fund that is to be spent almost to the last penny for War camp work, newspaper advertisements alone being the only expense incurred in conducting the campaign. Don't "side step" or make excuses when the canvasser calls. If you can't give a $100 check make one out for ten dollars. If your means do not permit this make it a single dollar or even fifty cents. The boys "Over There" will express their appreciation to you later on and beside you will uphold Plainfield's established claim as a generous municipality. Do it today.

The wind-up of the campaign will be made Sunday night and it will be a lasting pleasure for every member of the community to know that when the final report was received the $25,000 will be in hand.

A JUVENILE COURT FOR UNION COUNTY.

Assemblyman Warner has introduced a bill in the Legislature calling for the establishment of a court in Union county for the exclusive hearing of juvenile cases. Reports have shown that youthful delinquencies have greatly increased since the declaration of war and when the culprits are brought before the present county magistrates their cases are too often hurried through in favor of adult offenders. Such a court as this has been advocated by Judge William G. DeMeza, of this city, for several years. Sitting at police headquarters on Sycamore street he has had occasion to see the advantages of keeping the boys by themselves, not only for the proper handling of their respective charges, but for the moral effect that is produced.

A canvass of the legislators shews a majority in favor of the juvenile court for Union. No one denies but what it would be an improvement over the old system, but there is one feature that should be avoided. It is the fixing of a salary equivalent to that of the other county judges, which is $6,000. This is too great an amount to pay for the position and would only serve to attract politicians to its merits as a "plum." Half this amount would be adequate compensation and if any lawyer maintains that $3,000 is not sufficient for the time given to the court's duties, a layman capable of using common sense could answer the purpose just as well.

The hard and fast principles of law are not needed in judging juvenile delinquents. What they want is fair dealing and a kind word from the bench will go much further than a year at the reformed school. Even though the offender has been undeniably guilty from a legal viewpoint, conditions frequently modify the intent and a citizen with a sympathetic nature can dispense all the justice needed. In the event of the Warner bill becoming a law, we believe that the expense of maintaining this new court should be held at a minimum. There should be no necessity of a special court room, the police courtrooms in the different cities of the county might very well be used for the new court, the time of the juvenile court being set so as not to interfere with the present court sessions. Under such a plan there should be no need of a series of court attendants to increase the tax burdens of the people—but the court should be run with present employes—and its business should be handled in as informal and common sense manner as is possible.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

"Same to you and nine more of 'em."

Sweeter yet than limpid notes from the golden-throated thrush are the words from the husky driver: "Where shall I put the coal?"

Our office boy says Dr. Garfield is a good fellow, all right, all right, and would make a fine President, but while he was at it why didn't he do it in baseball time?

If you are shy of coal and want "Baron" Kenney to help you find some, here's a tip: Tell the commissioner you are a Democrat, but be sure and do it over the telephone.

Business Agent "Bill" Lunger has fallen victim to the latest popular fad of reviving songs of twenty years ago. Several times lately he has been heard singing lustily, "I don't want to play in your yard."

At the same time the Public Service Corporation was spending thousands of dollars in newspaper space to warn consumers they should exercise more care in the use of power, the street lights in Plainfield wasted their brilliancy in the glare of a 7 a. m. sun. It is to laugh.

See where Postmaster Hoagland's unerring aim brought down a "shrike." Passing up the argument as to whether or not there "ain't any such animal," why doesn't the genial custodian of the *letters put his marksmanship to good use by "shoot*ing" some of our mail to its proper destination? Ordinarily two-thirds of the batch intended for our sanctum misses the address by about four blocks.

The Courier-News' ante-bellum editor is slipping badly. Tuesday night he declared with an admirable assurance that the Cook lumber yard fire occurred in 1884. It didn't. It took place in November, 1885. On Wednesday night, the historian unblushingly averred that the Boice lumber yard fire started "in a small outbuilding near the Crystal Ice Company's plant at Arlington avenue and Third street." It didn't. It started in Frank Huff's barn back of the residence south of the Praed building. As long as we're going to delve into the past, us young fellers insist on having the truth.

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS...

When a trolley ride to Netherwood was novel and interesting?

When every section of town had its particular "haunted" house to make the kids hold their breathe when they passed by?

When an abundance of cord wood made Plainfielders shrug their shoulders and say: "I should manifest apprehension at the shortage of coal?"

When the New Jersey Central had a deep curve opposite the gas house and rustling trains frequently bumped into a trespassing cow?

When the boys of Plainfield, Round Brook and New Brunswick assembled on a common battling ground at Chimney Rock and decided which was the most eligible for the affections of certain young women?

When "Bigie" Southard, on a pair of old-fashioned "rockers," could cut the "figure 8" better than any fellow on Wilson's pond? The pond has long since gone but "Bigie" is still on deck and ready to defend the title.

Union Men Riled

(non-union labor has not yet been employed on any branch of the work.) If union labor is willing to work; otherwise we shall hire anybody we find willing to work for us, and competent, regardless of his affiliations.

"There may be some who will say that we should have taken this step sooner. There have been reasons why we were not ready to do so. We wished to be fair to union labor and give it a chance to repudiate the plasters' and masons' strike. Besides, Mr. Kenney was able to advance certain branches of the work, and with the sudden appearance of cold weather there was not much else which could be done at the time. The strike has, of course, forced delays of various kinds, and we have had to proceed step by step. We are now getting in position to complete the building as speedily as possible.

"I may add that any citizen interested in city affairs is welcome to go through the building during reasonable hours; *but we most emphatical*ly protest those whom we know to have interfered with the work. They will not be permitted on the premises, when their known purpose is to injure the interests of the city in which they live."

"Pep" Vaudeville At The Plainfield

With a "punch" in every act, the new bill which came to the Plainfield Theatre yesterday as the vaudeville attraction for the last half of the week carried the audiences yesterday afternoon and last night virtually by storm. Every number is a cracker-jack and encores were the rule throughout.

The Four Lavendars, a European novelty act, is billed as the headliner. The quartet made up of talented singers who use guitars for accompaniment and produce a most effetcive harmonious combination with their various numbers. The Manning Sisters, three in number, also made good in a beautifully costumed song and dance number. Each of these two acts had a special scenic setting that adds to their attractiveness.

Other numbers on the program which will be continued today and tomorrow are the four Tokios, a troup of acrobats who include sleight-of-hand work, juggling and other features in their offering. Miller and Bradford, in a musical skit; Bonds and Gibson, song and dance artists, and Dick White, a droll comedian.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL TEAMS CLASH TOMORROW.

In the first game of the P. H. S. N. P. H. S. series last year, P. H. S. walloped North Plainfield by one of the worst scores ever suffered in a city championship fight. Ever since that game, the "Canadians" have been storing up fight, enthusiasm and scoring power, and tomorrow they will "get it on the 'Red and Blue' in full force.

According to the dope from across the brook, the Ninth street lads are due to take a tumble. North Plainfield beat Westfield by a much closer score than Plainfield did, and North Plainfield seems to have more pep than the locals. The return of "Polly" Snyder to the Plainfield squad has given much hope to Plainfield, and if he plays his usual bang-up game, North Plainfield's stock will drop some points.

A good game is assured. Both teams are in fine form, and the supporters of each will be on hand to make lots of noise. The game will be played in Saengerbund Hall and will start at 3:30.

CROWDER GIVES RULING ON EXPERTS' EXEMPTION.

Provost Marshal General Crowder, at Washington, has notified acting Adjutant General Frederick Gilkyson that local and district boards are authorized to classify in Division 1, Class 3, any necessary highly specialized agricultural expert employed by a State agricultural college, established under Federal law and regularly receiving Federal funds, who is found to be necessary to agriculture as an industry and necessary to the adequate and effective operation of the service in which he is engaged, and who cannot be replaced without substantial material loss and detriment to the adequate and effective operation thereof.

"The board shall proceed to the consideration of a claim for such classification in respect of any registrant only when made in the usual manner and supported by the affidavit of the president or other executive head of the agricultural college by which he is employed," declared General Crowder in part.

DUNELLEN'S BUDGET GIVES CHIEF MARSHAL A RAISE.

The tax budget of Dunellen for the coming year calls for an expenditure of $23,577.63, a decrease of $1,264 over last year's figures. The budget will be finally adopted at a meeting of the Council, February 4. The budget provides for an increase in the salary of Chief Marshal Owen Mohan from $10 to $15 a month, and that of Night Marshal Patrick J. Tarpey from $80 to $100 a month. Chief Mohan does not devote his entire time to the office.

Question Legality of Pierson Tax Bill

Question is being raised on the constitutionality of the measure introduced into the Legislature by Assemblyman Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield, to place an annual tax of two per cent. on the net income of corporations instead of the present assessment on their personal property.

Such a change, it is held, would bring a classification by ownership, which the courts have held to be not competent, rather than a classification by property. Decisions have been recorded against a plan for imposing taxes under specific regulations in certain cases rather than under general rules.

That inequalities exist through the present operation of the tax laws is recognized by those who have made a study of the questions and the bill as proposed may bring the point to a solution. nOe effect of the statute now is that corporations, such as those in the insurance or real estate business, may have an income of $25,000 but pay personal taxes only on office furniture. A manufacturer, to gain a similar return, may be called upon to invest thousands of dollars in machinery and pay a personal tax on it in addition. The new law is designed to distribute the burden more equitably.

PRETTIEST GIRL SOUGHT BY WAR RISK BUREAU.

"Wanted—At once: the prettiest girl in America! Only those having relatives and friends in the Army and Navy need apply. Send photographs to the Soldiers and Sailors' Campaign Council, Washington."

This was the call sent out this week by the Government War Risk Bureau.

"The prettiest girl"—picked by a board of artist judges—will be known as the "War Risk Insurance Girl."

Two hundred thousand calendars bearing her photo will be sent to camps, cantonments and naval stations, where it will put 2,000,000 soldiers and sailors in a receptive mind for the message beneath.

"Buy Government insurance before February 12—the last chance you will have."

APPEAL AGENT BUSY.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

ROBERT JOHNSON SHAW.

No death that has occurred in Plainfield in several years has occasioned deeper regret or removed a more notable figure from the business life of the city than that of Robert Johnson Shaw, dean of the local pharmacists, who passed away at his home on East Second street, Monday night. While apparently in the best of health the previous Thursday, he suffered a paralytic stroke which quickly produced dire complications. Dr. Charles B. LaBarre, who was summoned, saw that consequences were likely to be fatal and summoned the only near relative who could be reached. She is Miss S. Florence Ayres, of Philadelphia, who hastened to Plainfield immediately and was with Mr. Shaw when the end came.

A private funeral service was held at the late residence yesterday afternoon and Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, to whose church, the Presbyterian, the deceased belonged for many years, was in charge. It was not the idea of those making the arrangements to deter any of Mr. Shaw's hundreds of friends from paying their last respects to the house, but as his home life had always been very quiet and simple, it was deemed in keeping to make the last sad rites in conformity with these characteristics. There was, however, a large attendance of those who had known the deceased from boyhood days or had been connected with him in a business or social way. Burial was made in Hillside cemetery, where the Masonic ritual was conducted by Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., of which the deceased was a member.

Robert Johnson Shaw was a descendant of Scotch and English ancestors who first came to this country in 1690. He was born on the parental farm in Sussex county not far from Newton in 1843. After completing his education in the public and preparatory schools, Mr. Shaw took employment in a drug store at Newton for the purpose of becoming a pharmacist. He had been admitted by the State college and was employer by a druggist at Newton when he learned through a traveling man that the late Dr. Louis Craig was desirous of selling his pharmacy in Plainfield. Mr. Shaw came to this city at once, struck a bargain with the owner and in 1869 began business on East Front street with Augustus Van Deventer, of Willow avenue, as a partner. The location was in a building at the head of Park avenue, which was purchased in 1904 by Schwed Brothers and added to the present structure which is occupied entirely on the ground floor for the conduct of their clothing trade.

The new firm did business for several years, building up the trade and making the store one of the best known of the kind in this locality, but as Mr. Van Deventer wished to engage elsewhere, the change was made in the early '70's. Mr. Shaw secured a new partner in James Field, still a resident of Plainfield, who travels for a New York drug house. The latter remained for about ten years and then sold out to the former member of the concern in order to form a partnership with L. W. Randolph under the firm name of Field & Randolph. This business is still being conducted at the same stand, 149 West Front street, by Mr. Randolph.

Mr. Shaw, or "Dr." Shaw, as he was always called, remained at the old stand, "No. 5" East Front street, until 1904, when the Schwed sale mentioned took place and he removed to the location at 207 West Front street, where he was in active charge until the fatal stroke terminated his business career. He has had as his clerk for some time past Joseph G. Miller, who will continue the business until other arrangements are made by relatives.

During his long career as a druggist, "Dr." Shaw had many young men working for him who are proprietors of their own stores today or who became widely known in the pharmaceutical field. Among these are Berthold J. Schreiner, of the firm of Schreiner Brothers, who served his full "apprenticeship" in the same store; former Mayor George W. V. Moy, now a lawyer but several years the proprietor of a drug store first located at 263 North avenue and later at Park avenue and Fourth street, and Judge J. Henry Crane, now in charge of the Plainfield District Court. Joseph C. Miller worked for Mr. Shaw at the old place years ago and another "graduate" was the late Edward J. Richards, who conducted the "Gem" pharmacy at Fourth and Liberty streets, now the "Red Cross," and who later went to Jersey City to manage a large pharmacy. He died several years ago.

While at "No. 5" East Front street, Mr. Shaw was appointed as custodian of the weather signal flags which the Government used years ago to keep people posted on atmospheric conditions. It was not necessary to watch the newspapers for prognostications of rain or snow, warm waves or "fresh northeasterly winds." All the Plainfield folks had to do was to look at the flag pole on top of the Shaw building and the style of hunting displayed indicated just what was coming. Cards distributed about the city gave the flag code and every man, woman and child had it committed to memory. The system gave complete satisfaction but was abolished by the Government and newspapers made arrangements to receive the latest weather reports direct from Washington.

Soon after coming to Plainfield, "Dr." Shaw was elected a member of Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company of the old volunteer fire department. He became one of the most enthusiastic "vamps" in the city and frequently deserted business at his store to help pull the company's truck to a fire. For years he acted as treasurer of the Firemen's Relief Association, besides being active as an organization man. In addition to being a member of Anchor Lodge, F. and A. M., he was also one of the oldest members of the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association. He affiliated with it in 1879. In 1883 he was elected corresponding secretary, an office which he held for three years. In 1892 he was elected president of the association, giving the members the most notable administration they had enjoyed for more than a decade. Numerous legislative actions protecting the trade and public alike resulted from "Dr." Shaw's foresight while in the executive chair.

In his every-day life, the deceased was one of those men who it is a pleasure to meet. While of quiet disposition, his friendships were always steadfast and his nature was democratic to the extreme. As stated previously the only near surviving relatives are cousins, most of them living in New York, Philadelphia and Sussex county. The late Dennis Hazen, who was third assistant postmaster general for many years was a member of "Dr." Shaw's family. A brother, William Shaw, died at the East Second street residence on February 7 last, and a sister, Miss Sarah Shaw, also passed away a short time ago. The deceased was never married.

The death of "Dr." Shaw leaves only two Plainfield business men when were here when he opened his pharmacy in 1869 and who are still proprietors of their respective stores. These are Captain S. E. Peck, the dry goods man, and Phillip Swain, the West Front street art dealer.

MISS JENNIE ALMA WENZEL.

Miss Jennie Alma Wenzel, daughter of Anna M. and the later Frederick Wenzel, died Wednesday noon in Muhlenberg Hospital. She had been ill but a short time and was removed to the hospital only last week to undergo an operation.

The funeral will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the home of Miss Wenzel's sister, Mrs. Frederick A. Dayton, of 326 Clinton avenue, and will be in charge of Rev. Cortland B. Mallery, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest. Burial will take place in the family plot in Evergreen cemetery tomorrow.

Miss Wenzel was born in Dunellen but had lived in the "Evona" section of the city practically all her life. The family home stood for many years at South Second street and Clinton avenue. It was torn down in 1901 to make way for the plant of the Hibbard-Rodman-Ely Safe Company, afterward taken over by the Manganese Steel Safe Company. Mr. Wenzel, the father of the deceased, was an expert landscape gardener. The family has a wide acquaintance throughout the city and surrounding towns.

Miss Wenzel was a member of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, where she was active in the religious work, especially as a member of the Women's Guild. She possessed a strong Christian character and was greatly esteemed by all who knew her. Beside her mother, whose home is on Clinton avenue, she is survived by four sisters and four brothers.

Option Bills Pass Senate

The New Jersey Senate Monday night passed the two local option bills. Bill No. 1, by Senator Mackay, of Bergen county, prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage in various municipalities where a majority of voters shall decide in favor of such action, received sixteen out of a total Senate vote of twenty-one, and No. 2, by Senator Wells, of Burlington county, regulating the licensing and sale of intoxicating liquor in any municipalities where the voters shall ballot in favor of such action, received twenty out of twenty-one votes.

The votes for Bill No. 1 were cast by Senators Ackerson, Monmouth; Allen, Salem; Case, Somerset; Conrad, Ocean; Fithian, Cumberland; Florance, Middlesex; Haines, Camden; Hammond, Mercer; Mackay, Bergen; Martin, Hunterdon; Munyon, Union; Stevens, Cape May; Sturges, Gloucester, and Wells, Burlington, while opposition was registered by Barber, of Warren; McCran (president), Passaic; Mutchler, Morris, and Pilgrim, Essex. The only opposing vote on Bill No. 2 was cast by McGlennon, of Hudson.

Senator McGlennon introduced three amendments to Bill No. 1, one of which would make municipalities adopting local option vote only, while another would extend to one year the enactment of the law the operation of the same, and the other would eliminate the penalty for violation of the law. The amendments were lost by a 12-to-1 vote, the introducer being the only one voting in the affirmative.

Mr. Mackay, the introducer of Bill No. 1, was the first speaker. He explained the numerous provisions of the measure, saying that he was taking this action because of the belief that some of the members were probably not as familiar with the measure as others. He said that it apparently was the desire of a large number of the voters in many of the municipalities of New Jersey to have local option, while he emphasized that there was a strong desire for home rule by the electorate of the State.

"This bill is a home rule bill," he declared.

Then he stated that the people had a right to say through the ballot if the measure were enacted, whether they wanted the saloon to go or to stay.

Mr. Pilgrim declared that the bill was hasty legislation, and that it was acted upon too quickly. He said that greater attention should have been devoted to the labor masses in action on the measure, stating that it was a prohibition bill and that it did not matter to what section it reached; he added that the measure could not be designated as a local option act. He then stated that he would vote for Bill No. 2.

"I do not see any distinction between whiskey and beer," he asserted. Then he wanted to know why a distinction was not made.

"This bill will deprive people of pleasure," he declared.

He refered to the bill as unwise legislation. Stating that the people were at war and that this was no time to give attention to the matter, he concluded by saying that the question was not the solution of a very troublesome issue.

Senator William N. Runyon, of this city, said that if the question under discussion was one that has just come up or was of a recent origin, he might be surprising, but he declared that it was not new and that it had been up for years.

"It has had a hard road to travel," he asserted. "I do not wonder at the exultation of the people. We are going over the top." The Assembly is just waiting for us to pass these bills. This year is going to witness the giving back to the people what belongs to them."

He then urged the taking into the hands of the people "the traffic that has never done any good," as he expressed it. He straigned the liquor interests for the evil results that had occurred through the distribution of intoxicants, and stated that he did believe there was a distinction between whiskey and beer, but that he would vote for the bill.

"I do believe in the sincerity of the members, and are not in favor of the measure," he said, "but they do not see the vital truths. They should vote as God would have it. Let every man vote as his conscience tells him."

He concluded by saying he hoped the Senate would give the people the right to vote under the law that would be created by the passage of the measure.

Senate Passes Only One Bill at Session

The only bill passed during the afternoon session of the Senate Wednesday was one sponsored by Senator Hammond, providing for the expiration of licenses granted to bakeries and confectioners each year. At the last minute Mr. Hammond tacked on an amendment which may affect some municipalities. He provided that, in lieu of the nominal license fee charged, there should be no other State, or municipal fee charged.

Governor Edge sent to the Senate a report from the Commission on the Elimination of Toll Bridges, whose recommendations he asked should be given favorable consideration. Details of the action reported that it had obtained an agreement with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to accept $240,000 for the toll bridge connecting Trenton and Morrisville. At the same time, the report stated, Attorney General Robert Plummer Bridges had advised the stockholders to accept $21,100 for that bridge. Both these projects were favored by the commission.

March 1 Limit For Income Statements

"Have you made your income tax return?" is a question not heard infrequently these days. And it is directed, for the most part, not as a query into personal affairs, but as an attempt on the part of the questioner to learn what steps he or she must take to give the Government the required information.

By calling at the office of the internal revenue collector in the Post-office Building on Watchung avenue, scores are learning first-hand how to go about paying the revenue. Each day the number of Plainfielders applying at that office for blanks and information about the filing of the returns increases.

The Government does not personally inform each one who is affected by the new income tax ruling. That is left to the individual, and he or she must go to the office of the revenue collector, get the specified blank and fill it out according to the requirements of the law. At the revenue office all the necessary information is given.

None will be excused because of ignorance of the requirements of the law if he or she is found guilty of evading the measure.

So if you are a citizen or resident of the United States and your net income for 1917 equaled or exceeded $1,000, if you are single, and $2,000 if you are married or are the head of a family, you must make a return stating your income in detail to the collector of internal revenue for this district at the Postoffice Building. The return must be made on or before the first day of March, and if you do not pay an income tax then payment must be made on or before June 15, 1918, to the same office.

A point to be remembered is that if you have an income coming within the above figures you must make a return even though deductions because you are supporting dependents or deductions for taxes and interest are sufficient to keep you from paying an income tax.

The statement of income which must be made is to be filed with the collector of internal revenue upon the proper blank, which may be obtained from the office of the internal revenue collector in the postoffice or from postoffice officials, or postal bank. The collector's office is open from 9 until 4:30 o'clock each week day.

CAMP ENDEAVOR HOLDS ITS ANNUAL MEETING.

A. R. Talntor, of Elizabeth, and Wilson Hoffman, of Springfield, were re-elected trustees of the Union County Camp Endeavor, Inc., at the meeting Tuesday night in the Baptist church. Miss Edna Dilts, of this city, was elected a trustee to succeed Miss Lucy Corbell.

The annual meeting will be held in February. The report of Miss Corbell as secretary showed that Camp Endeavor, Inc., on Washington Mountain, can take care of sixty-four children, and four mothers. There were 284 cared for last summer. A boys' dormitory was built during the year and the kitchen and dining room enlarged.

In every home there should be kept a supply of

PERSONAL

James Barlow, of Huntington, L. I., has returned home after a two weeks' visit with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Connolly, of West Sixth street.

Delos B. Thomas, of Grant avenue, traveling representative for the Singer Company, returned home this week after an extended western trip as far as Detroit.

Thomas Boud, of Westfield, who suffered a fracture of the hip on January 7, was removed to Muhlenberg hospital a few days ago. Serious complications developed after the injury was received, but it was stated today that his condition was somewhat improved. Mr. Boud was formerly recorder in North Plainfield, and for a number of years has been superintendent of the Plainfield-Union Water Company in the Westfield district.

James Callahan, of Harrison avenue, the borough, will leave today for Fort Hancock, Sandy Hook, as mechanical draftsman in the aviation corps. He was formerly a member of the New Jersey Field Hospital Corps and for a time was stationed at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Ludrate, of Evans avenue, were given a surprise party at their home by twenty-five friends Tuesday night. The affair was in honor of their fifth wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dressell, of Dunn street, spent the past week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mrs. Dressell's parents at New Germantown.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Miles, of Johnston's Drive, are the parents of a baby girl born to them last Saturday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mottley, a former resident of this city, who now lives in Newark, spent the past week-end as the guest of friends in town.

Mr. and Mrs. David F. Stewart, of Rose Terrace, were the first one on their street, and their property on that thoroughfare, to be wired and connected to the Stanford premises on Rose street, purchased by Mr. Stewart a short time ago. Mr. and Mrs. Stewart have located on John street about thirty-five years ago and remained continuously from that time.

A cablegram message received by Mrs. Joseph O. McKelvey, of Grandview avenue, Tuesday, announced the safe arrival in France of Mr. McKelvey. He sailed from New York on the 5th with 2,000 engineers in the U. S. S. Leviathan, and will do secretarial work among the American soldiers abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schneider, of Newark, formerly of the borough, left this week for Jacksonville, Fla., where they will spend the remainder of the winter. Mrs. Schneider was formerly Miss Ida Viana, of Somerset street.

Vaughn McGee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. McGee, of the borough, has cabled his parents that he has located in London and is enjoying the best of health. The young man has been in various parts of Europe and Asia as representative of the Standard Oil Company.

William Freck, who recently sold the Maple Inn at South avenue and Terrill road, to Peter Erbetti, is now enjoying a month's vacation previous to engaging in another business.

George Wilson, of Somerset street, who has been a patient at Bonnie Burn, was discharged from the institution last week and is now at his home.

John Cline, of West Second street, is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital undergoing medical treatment.

John F. Casey, Jr., who has been stationed at Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga., was this week transferred to Camp Blackjack, Marietta, Ga., where he will remain for three weeks receiving "timing" instruction in field artillery work.

Henry Adams, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Adams, of West Fourth street, received a compound fracture of the right arm in a coasting accident near his home a few days ago. The injury was attended to by Drs. Buchanan and Currie.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rothstein, of Grove street, the borough, have been spending the past week in Washington, D. C., on a pleasure trip.

John Mehl, a former resident of this city, but now one of Hoboken's best known business men, spent the past week-end at the home of his brother, Captain George Mehl, of Madison avenue.

Miss Adelia F. Phelps, of the Robert Dollard, has been entertaining her sister, Dr. Flora Phelps, of Asbury Park.

Edward Harlen, nine years old, of Harrison avenue, the borough, is gradually recovering from the effects of a gun shot wound in the leg, received in the accidental discharge of a weapon which he picked up to examine. The injury threatened serious complications at first but afterward responded to the treatment prescribed by Dr. Gray.

Martin Talley, of West Fifth street, returned this week after an extended business trip to Washington, D. C.

Back From War Zone, Everett Colby Tells of Conditions in France And Predicts American Victory

A message of optimism and encouragement is brought from the battlefields of Europe by former State Senator Everett Colby, of West Orange, and brother to Howard A. Colby, of this city. Mr. Colby went abroad in December with four other representatives of the United States Fuel Administration, in order to gather information for lectures in behalf of food conservation plans. The party returned Sunday, after having inspected the western front and the vast industrial organization in back of the front and in England.

Mr. Colby says, with sincerity and conviction, that he returns feeling in better spirit over war prospects than when he went over. He found the war zone an inferno and he found that living conditions of the civil population entailed great sacrifices, but nowhere did he find the spirit of surrender getting a toehold. He believes the British and the French people are determined to go through to a finish. As to American determination, Mr. Colby said that after seeing the horrors wrought by the Prussians on the Belgians and the devastation in Northern France, he had the belief that the United States must be willing to pay any price necessary to right the wrongs inflicted by Germany.

Mr. Colby and the other members of the commission will leave this week for speaking tours. Mr. Colby will go through Indiana, thence to Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana. He will be on the road two months.

Finds Camp Condition Good.

In discussing the trip abroad, which was full of incidents, Mr. Colby had a reassuring word to say about the American forces. By and large, he found conditions in the American camps prevailing at a satisfactory pace. The men are not ready for the trenches, but their training is being shoved as fast as it can be. Congestion in shipping has had a retarding effect, but the spirit of the men—and he billeted with them, having as old pal house for a shelter—deeply impressed him.

"Our commission," explained Mr. Colby, "was sent abroad by Mr. Hoover upon the invitation of the French and British governments to make a survey of the food situation in Europe, and to gather at first hand information concerning war conditions, in order that our people might know from those who had been on the ground just what their part in the great struggle must be.

"The work of the commission was divided into three parts: First, an investigation of the food supply and facilities offered for its transportation; second, visits to general headquarters of all armies in the field, and third, an examination of what might be called the reconstruction work that is being conducted behind the lines.

"In carrying out this program we inspected the systems of food administration in France and England, followed the transportation of both troops and supplies from base to camp, visited hospitals, agricultural colleges and farms, technical schools for wounded soldiers, the homes of refugee Belgian children, whose mothers and fathers had been murdered or deported, went into the trenches, and conferred with many of the statesmen upon whom has fallen the responsibility of conducting the war.

Must Pay Any Price.

"No one can take such a trip and see what we have seen of suffering and devastation, of cruel wrong, of courage and self sacrifice, without returning sobered in mind and with a deep conviction that the people of the United States must be willing to pay any price necessary to right these terrible wrongs, to punish the offenders and to protect themselves from a like disaster in the future.

"Furthermore, the political idea and philosophic responsibility for the whole abominable business must be utterly destroyed. Just as certain portions of the south of France will never again yield a harvest because poisoned with shot and shell and arsenic gas, so the present political soil of Germany must be so ploughed with the sword and scorched by flame that it will never again permit the ugly plant of Prussianism to blossom or take root.

"I thought I knew something of the Prussian idea before going abroad, but it was not until I saw the sad-eyed women of Belgium, their ruined homes, their families scattered, their fields and their orchards laid waste and their agriculture machinery cunningly dismembered, all in violation of solemn treaty obligations, that I fully appreciated its infamy and dishonor. Nor was it until I saw the forms of mangled children, desecrated graves and ruined churches of France that I had been gassed that I fully grasped the significance of the fact that we were actually at war with a government entirely without pity and with no sense of moral values.

"Every member of the commission was delighted with the work that is being done, with our men in their training camps in the American district.

"It is a monumental business to raise, equip, train and transport an army 3,000 miles within a year, but the men are doing their work methodically and with remarkable energy and adaptability, to say nothing of their fighting spirit, which is admirable.

Have Confidence in Pershing.

"General Pershing has the confidence of every one with whom he comes into contact, and if we only will do our share on tills side of the water and turn out ships and supplies with unstinted the expedition will be returned out soldiers from raw material, we need not fear the result of the war.

"There are two questions that it is hardly worth while attempting to answer, although they are frequently asked. One is the time when the war will be over and another is the relative value to the Allies of ships, troops or food. No one knows the answer to the second because the Allies need them all—ships, troops and food, and need them all at once.

"Troops have no war value if they can't be fed, and food has no war value if it can't be shipped. It becomes therefore the business of our people to supply these needs and every ounce of energy we can mobilize should go into the job.

"Some of the striking economic by-products of the war are the enlarged scope of government control, the entrance of women into every form of industrial enterprise, the adjustment between capital and labor and the comunity kitchens organized in England. From any one of these we may expect far-reaching results at the close of hostilities.

Saw Jersey Hospital Unit.

"I looked up the New Jersey hospital unit and found it quartered in a charming old chateau on the side of a hill commanding a wonderful view of the picturesque valley. The men were in fine physical shape and gave me many letters to post on my return, a commission which I have just fulfilled.

"As was to be expected, we had any number of exciting experiences during bombardments, air raids and in the trenches, but we were well taken care of and kept out of immediate danger as much as possible."

Mr. Colby urges that the folks at home write regularly and continuously to the soldiers ove,r there. They crave letters from home.

"Fellows who never showed any sentiment or emotion while at home are simply crazy to get letters," said Mr. Colby. "I want to get that message out to the people so that they will know how much their letters are appreciated."

One fine night that Mr. Colby was in London there was a German air raid. Mr. Colby was summoned to the cellar, but, not having been through the business previously, he calculated he would be in no danger. He listened to the banging of the anti-aircraft guns and then went back to bed with the feeling that the peril was remote. The next morning he found, to his surprise, that one bomb had been dropped in the immediate neighborhood—a conflagration bomb that did considerable damage, but not as much as the Germans could have expected.

Inhumanity of Air Raids.

There are no words adequate to describe or characterize the inhumanity of these air raids," said Mr. Colby. "Your blood runs cold when you see the killed and maimed, particularly the children. Murder is too mild a term."

In France, the party was conducted to Field Marshal Haig's headquarters by a British major, who, in conversation with Mr. Colby, said that there was only one person in the United States whom he knew—a man named John Burke.

"Yes," says Mr. Colby, after getting a little more detailed description, "he is my next door neighbor in Llewellyn Park at West Orange." And thus the English major obtained a full line of information about his solitary friend in the United States.

Mr. Colby found a distinct feeling of optimism concerning the submarine. The English and French have no doubt its depredations have been checked, and for this achievement they accord unstinted praise to the activity of the American destroyers.

Americans Faster Workers.

Mr. Colby also found the foreigners amazed and appreciative of the speedy workmanship of the American mechanics who are encased on the railroads and on aircraft jobs. These Americans are just as thorough and work much more rapidly than either the English or French mechanics. This is admitted in the statements of the latter.

As to conditions in Germany, Mr. Colby was reluctant to say much, because his information, while satisfactory to him was necessarily second handed and therefore subject to criticism. However, he did say that all his information showed that the Germans are materially worse off in an economic way, than the French or English. They are in severe straits for iron and steel with which to make ammunition and to renew their railroad and other mechanical equipment. Mr. Colby has a very wide acquaintance in Plainfield, as beside having a brother here this city was the former residential place of his wife. Previous to her marriage to Mr. Colby she was Miss Edith Hyde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hyde, of East Front street.

War Upsets Sources of Sugar Supply

No one ever dreamed that sugar, which the world produces in billions of pounds yearly, could become so scarce that folks would be asked by the Government and the sugar refiners to use its sparingly. But the war, which has brought about many extraordinary conditions, also upset the world's sugar-bowl.

Today everybody is interested in sugar. The housewife is eager to know when sugar will be more plentiful. And from a different point of view, the business man is following the sugar situation, interested in the success of the plan adopted as an emergency war measure by the Governments of the United States and the Allies to regulate and control supply, demand and price.

These facts lend particular importance to the following interview with Earl D. Babst, head of the American Sugar Refining Company and one of the three United States members of the International Sugar Committee.

In an interview Mr. Babst covered every phase of the sugar situation. First, he spoke of the prospects of the immediate future, which most concerns the housewife. Said he:

"Sugar will soon be more plentiful, with the new crop of sugar cane being harvested in Cuba and Porto Rico. Everything is favorable to a sufficient supply for our needs, but not enough to use sugar extravagantly or wastefully. There must be no over-buying or hoarding.

"All during 1918 the sugar in the United States has been lower in price, taking the average yearly price, than anywhere else in the world. After the new supplies are received from Cuba, and refined, and prices are lowered under the proposals of the Food Administration, sugar will be one of the cheapest foods to go on the American table, on the basis of caloric value."

Mr. Babst agrees with Mr. Hoover that if the Allied nations had not entered into joint agreement to conserve the available sugar supply, the price to the consumer would have soared. Said he in explanation:

"The facts are these: Europe's production of sugar was not only greatly curtailed when the German armies swarmed over the sugar beet fields of Northern France and Belgium, but England and other foreign countries were forced to turn to other sources for sugar. The logical source was Cuba, from which the United States gets the bulk of its cane sugar.

"This developed competition which, until the international agreement was reached, caused a serious advance in price both of raw and refined sugar. But with the International Committee acting for the Allies and the Food Administration in control in this country, the supply will be equally distributed and prices stabilized.

"Great quantities of raw cane sugar are locked up in far-away Java, unavailable because ships cannot be spared to transport it. Hence the European Allies are asking Cuba and the United States as a practical patriotic duty to supply them with sugar. The United States is making every effort to comply with this request for the very interesting reason that if we save the Allies from the necessity of transporting 400,000 tons of sugar from Java, it will release shipping sufficient to carry about 200,000 American soldiers to France."

When Mr. Babst voluntarily appeared recently before the Senate committee inquiring into the sugar situation, he told what his company as well as the other large refining interests were doing to safeguard the sugar supply. Among other things, he laid emphasis on the value of sugar in packages as an economical means of distribution.

"In the first place," he said, "package sugars are weighed and packed by machine. This saves the grocer's time and stops his loss by spillage which occurs when sugar has to be scooped by hand out of a barrel, weighed and tied in paper bags. And when he counts this saving, plus the value of his time and the cost of, paper bags and string, he finds he can handle package sugar economically.

"Sugar in packages also enables him to restrict sales to actual needs to make it go as far as possible. In our own experience during the recent period of great scarcity, we were able to distribute sugar more widely because instead of sending a barrel of 350 pounds to one grocer, we could send the same number of pounds, in three cases of 120 pounds to three grocers."

In conclusion, Mr. Babst said:

"With the sugar refining industry in this country carried on by large business units, the public has benefited. We and the other sugar refiners have fully appreciated our responsibility to safeguard the sugar supply, made especially difficult by present world conditions."

The American Sugar Refining Company, of which Mr. Babst is president, refines and distributes about one-third of all the sugar consumed in the United States.

BENDER MUST REMOVE PORTION OF BUILDING.

At the regular meeting of the Common Council, Monday night, a resolution was passed informing Moses Bender that he would be allowed no further time in removing the obstructing portion of his building at Second street and Madison avenue, which stands in the way of completing the Madison avenue widening. Mr. Bender had previously been given permission to withhold the work temporarily but investigation by the street committee showed no reason why further time should be granted. The instructions sent to the owner called for the work to begin at once.

A petition from property owners on Spruce street to have that thoroughfare accepted by the city was refused. The street is unimproved, it was said, and ends in a "pocket."

The ordinance providing that the name of Union street be changed to Kenyon avenue was adopted on first and second reading. The only other routine business transacted at the meeting was the granting of a license to Robert Murray for the conduct of an employment agency.

Government to Keep Railroads After the War

American railroads will not be returned to private ownership for a considerable time after the close of the war.

Director General of Railroads McAdoo made that prediction to the Senate interstate Commerce Commission this week. He added that greater control of the railroads will also be necessary than was in effect previous to the government seizure of the roads.

Director McAdoo also announced his opposition to government ownership of railways. His statement came in answer to a question from Senator L. D. Smith as to why the proposed railroad bill provides for government control "until Congress otherwise ordains."

"When the war ends the railroads will be to a large extent disabled for competition," said McAdoo. "There will also be great economic problems to deal with. For the interests of the public there must be proper control, a control which will meet the new conditions. It is impossible to deal with that matter under existing laws. It is a matter for study. At the end of the war Congress will be too busy and the railroads should not be returned to private ownership without legislation to protect the public."

Director General McAdoo said that the government will have to control the railroads for "at least three years after the end of the war." He stated as to the matter of compensation that it could be settled before the railroads are turned back to their owners.

"Do you believe in government ownership?" asked Senator Watson.

"No, sir," responded Director McAdoo, "but I believe some form of more comprehensive and intelligent than the old competitive system must be worked out when once ended.

"Millions of railroad securities, bonds and the general public will have to be adequately protected before the railroads can again operate the railroads," said McAdoo. "Very great readjustments of the whole matter must come," said McAdoo. "Of course, in a short three weeks we hardly started."

Director McAdoo did not believe peace would allow a long enough time for readjustment.

"If there is no time limit Congress would have a free hand to deal with the problem," McAdoo said.

He denied the Garfield fuel order was issued simply to relieve railroad congestion.

Jens Classen, of Liberty street, has been confined to his home the past week by a severe attack of grip.

German Prisoners May Be Brought to American Camps

Disposal of German and American prisoners is the subject of negotiations with Germany undertaken by the State Department at the request of the War Department.

Whether German prisoners shall be brought back to the United States or left in England and France is the principal question to be solved.

The United States wants the same agreement as to American prisoners taken by Germany that England and France have made with Germany, namely that they shall be kept within the territory of Germany proper. This move is to prevent them from being shipped to Turkey or some similar place where they might be subjected to harsh treatment.

General Staff opinion is divided on the advisability of bringing German prisoners back to this country. Some argue that they could be carried in empty transports and put to work here, while others believe that Germany will oppose the plan, and therefore that it would be difficult to get an agreement as to American prisoners held in Germany.

In any event, the war prisoner bureau is prepared to handle the men if it is determined to return them here or it will make arrangements to dispose of them in France and England.

Sleeping arrangements at Berne already provide for sending rations to the Americans in German prison camps, and this system will be extended as needed. Close watch is being kept there with respect to German treatment of the Americans.

Numerous proposals have been made to the War Department for bringing German prisoners to the States from England and France, but these have been found impractical because Germany insists that they be kept in those countries. Authorities said today that the Allied-German agreement thus far had operated to keep the English and French in Germany instead in Turkey or elsewhere, and that the British and French governments were loath to undermine the arrangement for fear of retaliations from Germany.

The United States now holds as war prisoners a considerable number of Germans taken from ships and elsewhere in this country and also the sailors from a U-boat who surrendered as their craft was sinking. Admiral Sims has reported that they are held somewhere abroad, but has not advised the War Prisoner Bureau what he intends to do further about them.

It Costs Less--At First

To bury in a wooden box, a slate or brick cistern or even a cement vault with an unsealed lid costs less than the Norwalk. A heavy top lowered and sealed by hand is naturally more expensive. But once you have seen with your own eyes the workman cement the top and bottom of the Norwalk Vault together into one solid piece of masonry you are satisfied; and that comfort is worth any price you could pay. That's why every modern undertaker is glad to use the Norwalk—he can guarantee his work. Your undertaker can give you the necessary information.

Coal Commission Takes Charge of Situation Here

Dealers Evading Official Orders Will Hereafter Be Deprived of All Shipments During Period of the War

Following a conference in the office of County Fuel Commissioner John K. English at Elizabeth yesterday, a new plan was put in effect today to relieve the coal situation in Plainfield which has reached the acme of desperation since the beginning of the week.

Hereafter Chas J. Kenney, who has been in complete charge in this city, will only act in an advisory capacity for Mr. English and all fuel in Plainfield will be distributed under the supervision of an administrative board composed of four local coal dealers. Mr. Kenney will sit in the City Hall chamber at 149 North avenue from 2:30 o'clock to o'clock in the afternoon and will issue orders for coal as circumstances arise, taking care of families first. Not a pound of fuel will be allowed except on order from the commission and any violation or evasion of the rules will result in the prompt "court-martialling" of the offenders.

Just to show how drastic the action is to be from now on is seen in the summons of one Plainfield firm before Mr. English this afternoon. Mr. Kenney has preferred charges that this concern ignored his orders in preference for its own and if his complaint is substantiated it will be deprived of any more coal shipments during the period of the war. This is one of the largest in the city.

All day yesterday a crowd of from 100 to 300 persons thronged Mr. Kenney's office at North and Park avenues. Only three cars of coal had reached the city the night before and the orders aggregated six cars. Mr. Kenney accordingly commandeered the reserve supply for the Plainfield public school stored at the Consumers' yard on Madison avenue and this is rapidly being depleted. This supply aggregated about 200 tons, and is to be returned to the Board of Education as soon as the stringency is relieved. If the situation remains critical it is probable the city's schools will be closed in order to get all the coal stored in the buildings.

This morning's shipment of coal into Plainfield was only three cars. Two of these were sent to West End yards and the other to the East End. A big crowd was at the new commission's office early in the morning, but the new way of handling applicants quickly showed its advantage and the long waits that were necessary the past week were eliminated. The new commission will welcome the cooperation of any citizen and will follow up whatever complaints are made relative to the action of any dealer.

Fuel Administrator Kenney issued the following new orders to govern the issuing of coal, commencing today:

Everybody needing coal must obtain an order from the fuel administrator.

No telephone orders will be received; applicants must appear in person or by representative.

The office of the commission will be at 149 North avenue, top floor.

Peddlers hereafter will receive no coal.

Applicants must be prepared to answer the following questions: Amount and size of coal desired; whether to heat private house, boarding house, apartment buildings; approximate amount ordinarily used per month; coal on hand at present; date when last coal was received.

Independent Contractors Called Off City Hall Job

As a result of the local Building Trades Council placing the City Hall job on the unfair list following Mayor Calkins' order prohibiting Business Agent Lunger from entering the structure, two other contracting firms who have not heretofore been implicated in any of the labor troubles were ordered to quit work yesterday. They are Ryder & Graves, of this city, who has been doing all the electrical construction, and Miller & Brady, of New York, installing the heating apparatus. A third contractor, Den. J. Galbraith, who is doing the plumbing work, has been permitted to continue on at present because of the loss that might result to him by any further suspension of operations. It is possible that Mr. Galbraith may be taken off the job later when his contract has reached the point where it can be left for an indefinite period.

At the outset of the labor troubles involving the hall, the only contractors affected were those to whom P. F. X. Kenny, the general contractor, sub-letted work. The original strike was declared by the Plasterers' and Masons' Union, which is not affiliated with the Trades Council, and the holding back of this work naturally prevented the carpentering and other details from going ahead. The electricians, the steam-fitters and the plumbers were all engaged on their own individual contracts and have been working so far as possible ever since the tie-up began last fall. Each contractor has a large amount of work yet to do but any further progress is now prevented until the Trades Council puts the job back on the fair list.

No statement has been issued from Mayor Calkins' office relative to what course is now to be pursued by the city. It is not believed any attempt will be made to finish the Hall with unfair labor as this would lead to still further complications than those existing at present. The Mayor has stated that he does not wish to antagonize organized labor and that any representative of the Trades Council other than Agent Lunger will be admitted to the building.

The official statement issued by the Trades Council, through its president, H. H. Corey, and recording secretary, J. Cordova, giving the reasons why the municipal building is closed on the unfair list is as follows:

"To Whom It May Concern:

"At the regular meeting of the above named council, the action relative to the business agent, W. H. Lunger, not being admitted to the new City Hall building came up for discussion, the aforementioned body being composed of delegates from the various organizations with power to act on matters pertaining to the good and welfare of their respective bodies, and the betterment of working conditions throughout our city.

"W. H. Lunger is our representative employed to transact our business and is paid by our council, the same as a mayor or clerk of any city.

Mayor Calkins Explains Stand In Trades Council Controversy

In response to the open communication sent out by the officials of the Building Trades Council, relative to the City Hall controversy., Mayor Calkins issued the following statement today:

February 1, 1918.

H. H. Corey, President, and
J. Cordova, Recording Secretary,
Plainfield Building Trades Council,
Plainfield, N. J.

Dear Sirs:

I saw by your statement in the Courier-News on Tuesday, January 29th, that you have declared the new municipal building unfair to organized labor because your business agent has been forbidden to enter the premises. He was excluded because he actively interfered on more than one occasion last November with our efforts to employ union carpenters, although your organization had assured us that you were not in sympathy with the strike and that the crafts represented in your organization would be permitted to work so long as we employed no non-union labor. If you care to come and see me, or to meet the Building Committee, I think we can convince you that we had more than sufficient evidence to justify our conclusion as to Mr. Lunger's activities, and to justify our excluding him from the building. In doing so, he was asked to say to you that the Building Trades Council was not excluded and that its officers might inspect the building anytime, during reasonable hours.

In this whole matter I have wished *to be perfectly fair to organized la*bor. But we are about to complete the work on our building, and it becomes important for us to know precisely where your organization stands. On the one hand you continued to assert that you were not in sympathy with the strike and would not interfere with our employment of union men; and on the other hand your accredited agent was known to have been in consultation in Plain*field, with an official of the Interna*tional Plasterers', Masons' and Bricklayers' Union, whom we have since had indicted, and then to have taken carpenters off the job. It would seem entirely proper for us to deny entrance on the premises to persons thus seeking to hinder and delay us.

I am aware that sometimes misunderstandings arise which can be removed when an honest effort is made to that end. While we are convinced that Mr. Lunger has worked against our interests, and must act accordingly in dealing with him, if you can show that our information is unreliable and that our stand with regard to him is unjustified, I can promise you we shall feel no false sense of pride in acknowledging our error.

If you care to come and see me to talk the matter over I shall be glad to have you do so. I think I can safely say in advance for the Building Committee and for the Common Council, that if your organization can give us satisfactory guarantees that we shall encounter no interference in the future at the instance of any agent of yours, in our employment of union labor, we shall be willing again to open our doors to your representatives as we always have done until recently, that you may satisfy yourselves at all times that we are living up to our promise to employ no non-union labor. But to be quite frank, we would prefer to finish our building, regardless of your declaration that the job is unfair, than to have you continue to maintain officially an attitude of friendship for us, with the understanty all the time as to what your agent may do to hinder and embarrass us.

My sole purpose in addressing you is to make a final effort in the direc*tion of preventable misunderstand*ing. We have always wished to finish the building with union labor and if you can suggest any plan by which we may have your active help we shall be glad to accept it. Otherwise we must proceed without it.

Yours truly,

LEIGHTON CALKINS,
Mayor.

Council Preparing to Widen Watchung Avenue

According to a resolution introduced at last night's Common Council meeting by Chairman Hyland, of the street committee, plans are underway to widen Watchung avenue from East Front street to East Second street, a total distance of thirteen feet. The resolution calls upon City Engineer A. J. Favett to make the necessary survey preliminary to work of this kind.

The plan as outlined intends that three feet shall be taken from the present curb line on the west side of the avenue and ten feet on the east side. In conformity with the widening, any encroaching buildings will be put back or cut off as the case may be and a building line established on either side. There is a possibility that only one or two small structures on the east side may be affected. Those on the west side, including the Elks' Club and Charles Hand's apartment house, were built well back in anticipation of a widening.

The city's contract with P. F. Kenny for the completion of the City Hall was officially terminated and the following payments were ordered paid to other contractors: Ryder & Graves, $477.61 and $177.07; S. S. Stein, $278.50; George Amos, $440.80, and W. E. Pabien, $382.50. The payments to Ryder & Graves now total $1,807.08 on the original contract price of $2,388.87 for the electrical work.

Engineer F. J. Hubbard submitted a bid of $145 to revise the city maps and on resolution the street committee was ordered to advertise for bids for all supplies in this department.

Mayor Calkins appointed Harry Henry and Michael Regan as patrolmen on the local police force, and John Porter and W. H. Huff as special policemen.

Plainfielders Planning Commission Government

Representatives Hold Meeting This Week to Begin Movement For Securing People's Vote on Question—Projectors Claim Handling of Municipal Affairs Has Created Sentiment in Favor of Change

Plainfield citizens may soon be called upon to vote either for or against the commission form of government if plans now under way are brought to a head. A group of well-known men who have watched proceedings in other cities and who believe there is need of a change in the method of handling this municipality's affairs held a preliminary meeting the past week. It was decided that steps should be taken at once to secure the necessary number of signatures permitting the people to voice their opinion that will decide whether or not the commission form should be adopted. For various reasons the details of the meeting are not to be made known at this time.

Thirty-eight New Jersey cities now have the commission form in operation, two of the latest to adopt the plan being Newark and Kalwaza, Elizabeth has it under consideration and the Plainfield men who have made a study of local affairs declare it would be a big change for the better.

At the meeting mentioned the handling of several important Plainfield enterprises was discussed. These included the City Hall work, the Joint Sewage affair and others that have not proven entirely satisfactory to taxpayers. While no criticism was aimed at individuals, it was the consensus of opinion that the city work is now becoming so complicated that individuals volunteering their services as officials cannot give the necessary time conducive to good results. The mayor and councilmen it was pointed out, have their private affairs to attend to and while they exert themselves to the utmost it is impossible to exercise personal supervision of civic matters in every instance. With the commission form five men would be in office whose duty it would be to give their entire time to Plainfield's business and should they be lax in any one respect they could be recalled at once.

*In order to secure a vote on com*mission government, it is necessary for the projectors to first secure signatures to a petition calling for an opinion from the people. The number of signatures is based on the vote for assemblyman at the previous general election, which in this instance would amount to about 1,000. After that the plan is voted up on "Yes" or "No," and if carried a date is set for the election of commissioners. The Walsh act, under which the process is carried out in New Jersey, specifies five commissioners for a city of Plainfield's rating. One of them is made Mayor by a vote of its associates and his annual salary is fixed at $1,500. The others receive $1,200 each.

At the gathering held this week representative business men as well as those from other walks of life were in attendance. A full report of the recent commission elections at Rahway and Newark were read and the campaign as proposed will be conducted on the same lines as pursued in those cities. It was emphasized by one of the commission advocates present that of the thirty-eight New Jersey municipalities using the commission form, not one of them had recalled an official or had gone back to the old way. The method in vogue here is the same in almost every detail as in 1869, when the city received its present charter. This allows only a small salary for the mayor and *no compensation whatso*ever for the eleven councilmen.

About six years ago a move was inaugurated for commission govern*ment, which did not materialize.* The advocates secured 600 of the necessary 800 signatures and then desisted and that sentiment was not right for the change. Since then the City Hall and sewer farm projects have caused sufficient adversed comment to change the opinion of a lot of taxpayers and it is believed there will be no trouble in securing the necessary number of names to a petition. It was decided at the meeting to use the individual card for signatures instead of having the name penned on long sheets. This was found to work much better in Newark, Bayonne and other places where the campaign was carried on recently.

Police Begin Roundup of Registrants Failing to Return Questionnaires

The failure of nearly three hundred registrants in the Plainfield district to return their questionnaires within the proper times, today resulted in an order being issued to the local police to investigate every case and of where satisfactory answers were not received to make arrests. This method had had to be adopted to complete the classification of all men eligible for the draft and the Government calls for drastic action where the parties in question have been found to ignore federal orders.

The original time limit allowed for the return or questionaires was given Sept. 12. In many cases this was extended to permit a more careful report, but all extensions expired this week. It is known that some of those who have not returned their statements are already serving the colors, but where no affidavit has been made to this effect the registrant is listed among the missing. The police will begin their canvass of the district today and will round up everyone who has not made the proper return. What disposition is to be made for the cases thereafter depends upon the action of the Exemption Board. Where the guilty ones have deliberately ignored the official notification and are found to be physically fit they will be immediately turned over to the military authorities.

The names and addresses of the men whose questionnaires have not been received and whose cases are being investigated by the police are as follows:

ALMOST A VICTIM.

Gasoline fumes, or carbon-dioxide gas, came near taking the life of M. W. Berneczer, a chauffeur employed by A. T. Sutler, of Cushing road, last Monday. He was overcome while working in the garage of his employer but managed to crawl to a telephone and call for help. He was unconscious when found by rescuers. Bernecker was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, where he remained two days.

DISTRICT COURT CASE.

Judge Abe J. David in the Elizabeth District Court yesterday awarded a judgment of $59.05 to the Standard Oil Company in an action brought against the Keller Cleaning Shop, of 123 North avenue, to recover on an unpaid gasoline bill.

Bomb Explosions Threatened at Standard Plants

A tip from the Secret Service department at Washington caused the corps of guards about its plants in this city and Elizabeth yesterday to prevent a threatened blowing up of the buildings by German agents. The information coming from the Government stated that there was a strong possibility of a bomb being exploded in both the air machine plants, and also that the Scott Press Works might be included in the general plot.

The Standard Company immediately hired all the guards possible and in addition called on the Mayors of Elizabeth and Plainfield for some Guard units. Mayor Mravlag, of Elizabeth, commandeered a Union Line trolley car at 8 o'clock last night to rush sixty Elizabeth Home Guards to the Bayway plant and the Linden township authorities sent twenty Home Defense men. The total number around the Bayway shops was 120 guards in all. In Plainfield the private guards numbered 20. An official of the corporation asserted that Mayor Calkins had been asked to send Home Defense men to the North avenue shops in this city but he declined on the ground "that the functions of the organization were not to protect plants of private concerns." An attempt was made to interview the Mayor on the subject this morning but it could not be reached.

No explosion occurred at either plant last night but the strict watch is to be maintained during the period of the war. The Scott Company has also increased its number of guards and is examining all persons entering or leaving the buildings.

"Skip Stop" Plan Not in Effect Today

The "skip stop" notice sent broadcast by the Public Service Corporation last week did not go into effect on the local trolley lines today, neither did it commence anywhere else. The idea of "saving fuel" by letting cars stop only at certain points originated in the Public Service office and was not sanctioned by the Public Utility's Commission. The proposition has now been put before as Fuel Commissioner Garfield and the trolley will stop as usual until he decides whether or not the plan can be put in force.

When announcement of the Public Service's intention was made last week vigorous protests were filed with Mayor Calkins. He is now conducting an investigation and should the rule be put in force, he will attempt to have stops made at more convenient corners than those designated by the railway people.

New Buildings At Pond Plant To Cost $55,000

The Niles-Bement-Pond Company yesterday filed plans with Building Inspector Doane for the erection of two more factory buildings in connection with the big improvements going on at the Pond plant on South Second street. The two structures will represent an outlay of $55,000, which make the grand total which the concern has spent in the last year to nearly half a million.

One of the structures for which the plans have just been submitted is to be a forge shop built of brick and steel. It will be located at the western end of the factory yard near Clinton avenue and in dimensions will be 197 feet long, sixty feet wide and forty-eight feet high. Harris & Richards, of Philadelphia, are the architects and the H. E. Baton Company, also of Philadelphia, which make the grand total which the $125,000 office building on South Second street, has been awarded the contract on a bid of $40,000.

The other new building planned is to be a storage house to cost $15,000. It will be of brick and steel and will be located directly at the corner of South Second street and Clinton avenue. It will be so erected that a spur from the New Jersey Central will pass through the center, thus permitting cars to be loaded or unloaded direct. The Lewear Construction Company, of New York, has the contract.

Council Renews All Liquor Licenses

The licenses of all Plainfield liquor dealers were renewed at last night's meeting of the Common Council. The eight retail and three wholesale applications went through with only one negative vote, that of G. Herbert Condict, who was elected from the Third ward on a "bone dry" platform. No one was in the "gallery" to express remonstrance but the customary protest was received from the W. C. T. U., signed by Mary B. Tomlinson, who stated that she spoke in behalf of 200 members.

The dealers securing licenses were as follows: Wholesale—Frank Lanke, George Wescott and Eastern Bottling Company; retail—Godfrey Weinman, J. J. Sullivan, J. A. Staats, E. C. Wescott, Jacob Blimm, Henry Windham, Michael F. Watson and Michael J. Devine.

Louis Kornfield Buys Big Tract On Park Avenue

One of the most important realty deals occurring in the business section the past six months became known yesterday, when a deed recorded at the county registrar's office in Elizabeth announced the transfer of the property at 304-312 Park avenue, inclusive, from Miss Anna Bolce to Louis Kornfield, the West Front street baker. The consideration price mentioned was $38,000.

The property in question extends from the VanZandt & Voorhees building adjoining the New Jersey Central Railroad, to John J. Traed's tailoring establishment. It has a frontage on Park avenue of 53.66 feet, a depth of 277 feet and includes the *one-story and three-story struc*tures occupied by the Martin Automobile Company. The three-story building is the one which was damaged by fire last week to the extent of $10,000. Two other smaller structures are located at the back end of the lot, reached by a drive*way from Park avenue. One of them* is occupied by L. C. Whitehall, the produce man, and the other by George D. Wilson as a carpentering shop. The site was at one time a portion of the David J. Bolce lumber yard, destroyed by fire in 1891.

Louis Kornfield, the purchaser, was interviewed by a *Record report*er this morning but declined to say what he intended to do with the property. His bakery is located in the rear of the Vooht building at 127 West Front street.

Negotiations for the sale of the property in question were conducted and brought about by Edward C. Hardingham and the State Trust Company, who are also handling the insurance settlement for the damage sustained by the Martin garage last week.

DIED AT HOSPITAL.

George Edwards, aged twenty-five years, died in Muhlenberg Hospital early this morning. He had been at the institution since last Saturday undergoing medical treatment and roomed at 122 Watchung avenue. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been made.

COUNTY COURTS OPENED.

The January terms of the Circuit and Common Pleas Courts started at Elizabeth this morning with Judge Oliver presiding over the former and Judge Connolly over the Common Pleas Court. It marked the opening of the last term at which he will sit, his term expiring in April.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The Hamilton Bowling Club, of this city, will conduct its first annual ball in Saengerbund Hall tonight and preparations are being made to entertain a large crowd. Music will be furnished by Eddie Marks' five-piece jazz orchestra. The committee in charge is composed of Frank Ferraro, chairman; James Taylor, Arthur Dunn, C. H. Betzenberger, Harry Worrall and Edward Koechlein.

Children at the home of Howard Foster, 932 West Seventh street, form an old phonograph case last Sunday night, and threw the pieces into the fire in an open grate. Varnish on the wood blazed up fiercely and started a fire in the chimney. In response to a telephone call, No. 3 engine company was sent to the scene but the blaze had been put out before the men arrived.

Samuel Johanson, of Scotch Plains, who has been connected with the Scott Company in this city for more than twenty years, resigned his position as press-erector for the concern this week in order to take charge of the press-room of the Detroit Evening News. This newspaper has the largest battery of printing presses in the world and were installed by Mr. Johanson for the Scott company a short time ago. In his new capacity he will have complete supervision of all his machinery and because of his knowledge of the equipment's construction will make a most valuable asset in the publication's staff. As a token of its appreciation, the Walter Scott Company presented Mr. Johanson with a beautiful gold watch at the time of his retirement here.

The Educational Committee of the Plainfield and North Plainfield chapters of the American Red Cross announces that there are still a few vacancies in the afternoon and evening classes in home nursing to be given at the headquarters, 1107 Watchung avenue. It will be necessary for applicants to register for the course at once, paying the registration fee of fifty cents at the headquarters and the balance of $4.50 upon entering the class. The afternoon class will be held on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and the evening class will also be held three times each week for the 15 lessons. This will be the last opportunity to attend Red Cross home nursing classes this winter. The value of the course, with the practical instruction in the care of the sick, cannot be overestimated and it is earnestly hoped that the few remaining vacancies will be taken advantage of at once.

Division No. 4, A. O. H., has announced that its annual St. Patrick's reception and bill will be held on Friday night, March 15, owing to the fact that St. Patrick's Day this year falls on Sunday. The affair will be held in Columbus Hall. Professor Brogan's "rag" orchestra, of Elizabeth, will furnish music for the customary dances but Irish pipers will also be present in another part of the hall for those who prefer jigs and reels familiar to sons and daughters of Erin.

The following officers were installed at the regular meeting of Court Watchung, Independent Order of Foresters, Monday night: Court deputy, John Daub; chief ranger, Joseph Edgar; past chief ranger, William Cranelman; vice chief ranger, John H. Fraed; recording secretary, C. Broward, financial secretary, Harry Davis; treasurer, John M. Lewin; orator, Walter Bradford; senior woodward, Charles Harrell; junior woodward, Joseph Mellik; senior beadle, Henry Vogel; junior beadle, Frank Woodruff; trustees, John Daub and Frank Woodruff; finance committee, Frank Woodruff, Charles Harting and George Townley.

Under the auspices of the Daughters of Isabella an enjoyable time was had last night at the home of Mrs. Jeffrey Thompson, of Central avenue, when euchre and five hundred were played. After the play the prize-winners were announced as follows: Mrs. McCaffery, Mrs. Robert Hand, Miss Helen Casey, Miss Hughes Brady, Miss Annabelle McAfee, Miss Mary Donnelly, Miss Gertrude Blimm and Miss May McAfee. During the evening there were vocal selections by the Misses Elinor McCarthy and Mary Donnelly, accompanied on the piano by Miss Betty Mara.

Among the appointments made by Governor Edge this week were those of Andrew E. Kenney, of Watchung avenue, as a member of the Somerset County Board for the Equalization of Taxes, and Captain William C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, as a member of the Board of Managers of the Soldiers' Home at Kearny. Both men have been serving in their respective capacities and the re-appointments meet with the approval of Plainfield and North Plainfield citizens.

S. W. Stern, of Newark, whose automobile in August last ran down and fatally injured Charles Hill, the fourteen-year-old son of John Parker Hill, of 429 West Front street this city, this week made a settlement in the father's suit for damages. The amount paid Mr. Hill was $900 and was secured through Attorney Robert Dewton Crane.

The employes of the Walter Scott Press Works are now working on a ten-hour-a-day schedule in order to catch up with important government work. Other local manufactories are also placing their men on overtime, the Wood Printing Machinery Company, formerly the Potter Press Works, last week changed the time-honored custom of the shop of closing down from Friday night until Monday morning, the plan being put in effect by Charles Potter, to further his religious belief as a Seventh-Day Baptist. Hereafter the employes will work Saturdays the same as other manufactories.

The local branch of the S. P. C. A. is considering the advisability of giving up its monthly meetings dur*ing the period of the war because so* many of the members have their time taken up by other activities. The annual meeting of the society was to have been held last Monday, but as a quorum was not present the date was put ahead to Tuesday, February 5. Mrs. S. G. VanHoesen, local agent, states that she had only one case to take to court this winter and as a rule teamsters are exercising much better judgment in the care of their horses than heretofore.

The Missionary and Aid Society of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church, the borough, will hold a supper in the church on Wednesday, February 6. There will be no tickets sold at the door and those who desire to attend should bear this in mind.

Hoover Wants Legislation In Fight For Food

Herbert Hoover warned Congress that if he is not given the power to enforce food conservation in the country, Congress alone shall bear the "grave responsibility" for failure of the food program. Voluntary conservation, Hoover said in a letter to Representative Sydney Anderson, of the House agriculture committee, is showing wonderful results. But, he adds, there are the minority of unpatriotic who discourage the faithful and who cannot be reached except by legislation.

Hoover declared in his letter he wants the powers to enforce the following:

Wheatless and other "less" days per week.

Forbidding use of foodstuffs in non-food products.

Limitation on food served in public eating places.

Control of distribution, that all classes and localities may fare alike and that unnecessary consumption should be prevented.

Control of use of foodstuffs in food manufactures, with a view to eliminating the less essential manufactures.

Control of commodities critically necessary for the production and preservation of foodstuffs in order to prevent great losses or military seizures.

"While it is vitally necessary to regulate the consumption of food in public eating places," Hoover wrote Anderson, "they consume on various estimates from 12 to 20 per cent. of the total foodstuffs, and if they were also serves to prove to have the necessity to have some further powers in distribution. During the entire recent sugar shortage the gross supply amounted to eighty per cent. of normal consumption, yet we had sporadic famines and privation all over the country, because no organized distribution could be effected. The greedy got the sugar and others went without.

"As to conservation measures necessary to apply to commodities needed for the production and preservation of foodstuffs, I may cite the case of ammonia which is critically necessary to maintain our cold-storage warehouses in which must repose over $500,000,000 worth of food from time to time. The production of ammonia in 1917 was about 130,000,000 pounds. Of this the demands of the army and navy for explosive purposes are estimated to us as being 150,000,000 pounds per annum and the amount necessary to maintain cold-storage warehouses is 40,000,000 pounds per annum. In other words there is an absolute shortage of 60,000,000 pounds per annum at the present moment, which may later on be partially reduced by increased production. Yet, ammonia is being used to a very considerable extent in the maintenance of skating rinks, in cold storage of furs, alcoholic drinks, household ammonia, etc. I think the War Department has recognized that the maintenance of the cold-storage warehouses is vital to the food supply of our people and that they therefore themselves be obliged to reduce the amount of explosive manufactured and thereby possibly jeopardize our military possibilities until production can be built up.

NEWARK KENNEL CLUB'S ANNUAL SHOW FEBRUARY 6

The sixth annual show of the Newark Kennel Club to be held at the First Regiment Armory, Sussex avenue, Newark, have entered for this event over five hundred dogs and each of the 54 breeds have been represented. Boston terriers have entered over fifty dogs; Pekingese forty dogs, Pomeranians 38, bulldogs 25, and the average is about this same in all of the various breeds. The leading kennel owners in the United States have entered their string of champions and the representative dog fanciers from New Jersey have all entered their dogs at this show. Among the New Jersey exhibitors are Francis G. Lloyd, Scotish terriers; J. A. Kelly, Bostons; Thos. Parvin, bulldogs; Miss Elsie Hydon, Pomeranians, Collies and Chows; Alstead Kennels, Collies; Patrick Tully, Collies; Mrs. May McCurdy, Collies; Robert Craig, Bostons; Julius Faugman, Bostons and French bulldogs; A. Rother, Chows; Mrs. O. E. Lakeland, Pomeranians; Robert Height, Airedales; Mrs. Hale Fiscke, Greyhounds and Spaniels; Mrs. Mable Riddell, French bulldogs; Mrs. Clarence H. Horstmann, Pomeranians; Charmion Kennels, Bengels, and many other large kennels too numerous to mention, have entered at this event. Judging will commence at 11 o'clock Saturday, February 9, and will continue until 9 o'clock at night.

Coal Pool Probable To Aid Distribution

Government pooling of the nation's entire coal output as a war measure loomed today as inevitable. Fuel Director Garfield, as a preliminary move, prepared to put into operation his new zone distribution system. Under this plan the output of coal fields will be assigned by State administrators to the nearest consuming territory. This will apply to all of the bituminous fields, and will remove hadicaps due to cross-hauling.

The zone system to be put into operation as soon as the details of the plan have been approved by Garfield, is said to be the logical step toward pooling. The latter scheme, officials agree, must be adopted finally if the needs of war are to be met and fuel famines averted.

Before pooling is resorted to, however, the experiment will be made of the zone plan in an effort to eliminate long hauls on the way to market. The shipping of coal by the more direct routes, it is said, should tend to relieve transportation conditions in eastern territory most affected by traffic jams.

Walter Sherwin, who has been touring the country with Klaw & Erlanger's production of "Ben Hur," playing the part of "Simonides," concluded his engagement recently and is spending some time at the home of his mother, Mrs. Horace Sherwin, of Washington street.

Playing "Hide and Seek" In Blighted No Man's Land

With the French armies in the field, Dec. 15 (by mail).—Night patroling—reconnaissance—in No Man's Land is a something that every first line soldier knows.

The constant surveillance of the enemy necessitates almost nightly examination of the blighted strip of ground in front of the trenches, with entanglements on the friendly side as well as that of the enemy.

Men who find monotony in night trenches drew their packet of thrills from the silent game of "hide and seek" that can be played in No Man's Land on any moonless night. Trench soldiers curse the moon.

Tonight is moonless. The sky is a speckled dome. Occasional bursts of enemy machine-gun fire and nervous grenade and rocket firing have ceased. Both trenches settle down to a period of quiet which is customary at intervals over routine nights in trenches where both sides have been at it for over three years.

"Give them a few rounds with the mitailleuse and see if they're still alive," the company captain ordered.

A machine-gun lieutenant sent a panoramic sweep of lead out into the darkness. A sheepskin coated poilu, silently occupying his little niche in the trench next, obeying an order, dropped a grenade into the cup-like end of his grenade rifle and fired. The halt pound explosive sing left the cup with a metallic zing and detonated with a roar and white smoke cloud a score of yards in front. The poilu laid his steel helmet on the parapet, and deftly heaved a hand grenade which sent its pieces zinging from just in front of his wire as everybody "ducked." A parachute flare skyrocketed up from a few yards away and floated down, lighting up nothing but the frosty tangle of wire and the dull gray grass ahead. Then it became quiet again. "The boche is not very careful tonight," the captain suggests.

A soldier comes along the trench with a steaming pail. It is the night coffee brewed back in the third line rolling kitchen and carried up. This kitchen soldier is the night's most welcome guest. With the coffee he brings along the "gnole," the French Army's ration of grog. A poilu explained tonight that American soldiers, in this trench some time ago, called it "booze" and drank it with a gulp and a cough. Most poilus mix it with their coffee, though this poilu added that he found it handy fuel when his regiment was on the Chemin des Dames to heat field rations in a stove made of an upturned German shrapnel helmet.

"The night patrol is starting. The trench has been warned not to fire at crawling figures in No Man's Land. A captain and lieutenant crawl "over the top" leading the way. They carry blunt little automatics in one hand. A half-dozen poilus follow, two, deadly "pineapples" bombs in each hand. Last the party picks its way cautiously through the wire.

Traversing ordinary wire entanglements is an impossible task, but here an almost invisible little path winds its crooked way over the dead grass carpet where the wire is lowest and occasionally detours to escape a shell-hole. This path will be wired up tight again before daybreak. The frosty wire rattles and tangs despite utmost care in stepping high, while stooping low and occasionally crawling. Soundest intensity and seem unnecessarily sharp. But to veteran ears they are just the ordinary.

The first entanglements are passed. A short open space and then the next. A soldier stumbles a little over an invisible wire and the captain stops to whisper "doucement." The second "maze" is passed more quietly because it's narrower.

"It always seems a long time the first time you come through the wire," the captain apologetically whispers. But he's telling a polite little lie and knows it, because his first sensation in wire climbing was years ago in this war and now a faded memory.

You are in No Man's Land—waste of gray, grassy ground, except for shell-holes here and there—some old and overgrown with weeds and others now black dirt craters. In front of your is simply blackness hiding other rows of hostile enemy wire ahead. Behind is the vivid frosty stuff you've just come through.

A figure huddles in a shell-hole ten yards away. Everybody sees it and crouching lower, stops. The lieutenant crawls ahead alone, his automatic poised. But nothing happens and he waves the others ahead. It was only a poilu who came out earlier to mend the wire where a Boche shell missed it up early in the day. He had been at little puzzled by the silent patrol.

The party moves ahead, Indian file and in five minutes the novice suddenly discovers that every direction is darkness. The tangle of wire in the rear has faded from view. Occasionally a white object appears on the ground. A close up look and you try to forget it. The rest of the patrol have seen things like this before and think nothing of it. But a straining while thing in the centre of No Man's Land has its food for thought—for the beginner.

"Rat-tat-tat"—a Boche magine gun breaks the silence. Everybody flattens against the ground and waits until the stillness becomes depressing. This "rat-tat-tat" shows that the Boche is still much alive and it's a warning to be cautious. Most any minute an unfriendly parachute flare is likely. The patrol's work is done. It has found nothing "unusual n No Man's Land."

As stealthily as any North American Indian are crouched or crawled the patrol heads back, but ready to flatten out again with a second's notice. But quiet continues and you return to the friendly wire, crawl and wriggle through it and into the trench while, for the first time during the night, the sensation of being the safest place in the world.

Word is passed down the trench to all its silent watchers that the patrol is ended and that trench warfare is on again.

At daybreak there will be more coffee and "gnols" and the night trench dwellers will pass the watch to the day shift, who've been sleeping peacefully in dugouts a few yards away.

After six days and nights of "first trench" life the poilu goes back to "rest and quiet" in the second line.

"It isn't bad when you get used to it," the captain explains.

Intrepid "Sammy" Wins French Bride

With the American Army in France Jan. 15—She is studying English, he is spending all his spare time learning to parley francois—especially in the evenings in the barracks when the others have crawled into their bunks and blown out the candles. You see, he and she were married a week ago in the ancient village church. It was a whirlwind courtship. He won her wavering heart over a handsome young poilu, native of the same village.

The groom—he is a first-class American fighting man—met her in a muddy village street one night and helped her drive in a dozen fractious cows. The next night he called at her home, donned an apron and helped wipe the supper dishes.

Just a week ago the Sammy shipped away from his regiment, with a couple of friends and found her waiting in the little farm village, relieves the Sammy's long hours of back-breaking labor.

The correspondent saw him tonight in the barracks. He found him lying on a bunk with a sputtering candle burning above his pillow laboriously parsing French verbs to the flickering, dancing light.

"A bride like her is worth 60 years of woodchopping," said he. "Her name's Louise. She is 18 and the daughter of the village harness-maker. I'm 20 and I live at Cedar Grove, Ia. I'm just preparing to go to the trenches. After the war I'm going to take my wife back to Cedar Grove where dad owns a big farm."

PYTHIANS WIN RATE CASE.

The Knights of Pythias Supreme Lodge was allowed to increase its insurance rates by a decision of the Supreme Court this week. The decision reversed lower courts.

Miss May Moore and Christian Kroener, both of this city, were married last Sunday night by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, at the First Baptist parsonage on West Eighth street.

Richard Biddle, who has been head butcher for John C. Storm for many years, is seriously ill at his home on West Fourth street, with valvular heart trouble.

NOTES FROM THE PARK AVE. BAPTIST CHURCH

Pastor Swaffield's topics next Sunday will be: Morning, "The Heart of the Gospel;" evening, "Barriers Burned Away." Services are: Bible school, 9:45 a. m.; morning worship, 11:00 a. m.; Young People's Association prayer meeting, 7:00 p. m., topic, "Winning Others to Christ;" evening song and sermon, 8:00 p. m. Everyone welcome to all services.

Mid-week prayer praise and testimony meeting has changed only in time of week, not in point of power, for the Friday night meeting is quite as helpful as the Wednesday evening service. Tonight's covenant meeting promises to be a great source of strength and preparation for the celebration of the Lord's Supper Sunday morning.

The Men's Agoga Bible Class is showing great renewed interest under the helpful influence of its new teacher, Charles F. Dayton.

The "Volunteer" Woman's Bible Class has re-elected Mrs. John Groendyke as president. The class is growing from week to week and working in great power under the stimulating influence of Mrs. D. M. Runyon, teacher, ably assisted by Mrs. C. F. Dayton. Membership and attendance contest begins February 1st and ends Children's Day—second Sunday in June. The losing side to entertain the winners at a supper.

World Wide Guild monthly meeting Thursday evening, February 7, at the home of Mrs. William F. Doscher, 221 East Sixth street. All members are urged to attend.

The "Guild" banquet will be held Monday evening, February 11, at the church. Delegations from out of town are expected in goodly numbers. Speakers and other features will be announced next week.

Sunday evening, February 10, a Lincoln Day patriotic service will be held in the auditorium. All local patriotic orders have been invited. Dr. Swaffield will speak on the life of Lincoln.

JUDGE NEWCORN GETS RULE TO "SHOW CAUSE."

The Supreme Court has rendered an opinion allowing the application of William Newcorn, of Union county, for a rule to show cause why the verdicts he obtained in the county court in suits against Bertha Winebereer, now Livingston, and Leon M. Livingston, defendants, should not be allowed upon considering a brief filed by William R. Wilson, and also the testimony taken at the trial.

MORE AGITATION FOR COMMISSION GOVERNMENT.

The Commission Government idea which has been lurking in Plainfield for more than six years is coming to a head. Citizens who have given this form of civic management close attention are more than ever convinced that it is the best known method of handling the city's business and are now planning the first steps to secure a vote from the people. They point out that Plainfield's affairs have gotten to the point where paid officials, giving up their entire time and personal supervision to the work, should be employed. They do not doubt but what the councilmen who generously give up a large portion of their spare time away from private business affairs are doing the best they can but there is a limit even to the most enthusiastic of volunteer workers.

A group of representative citizens interested in Commission Government discussed the matter at considerable length this week. They are the type of men who keep in touch with municipal affairs and know whether or not public sentiment is in favor or against holding to certain routine. It was pointed out that the City Hall muddle and the improper working of the new joint sewage plan has caused much dissatisfaction, not from the viewpoint that the officials having them in charge have been lax but that proper supervision of enterprises such as these is beyond men who can only attend to them when not engaged in making their own livelihood. There was no City Hall or sewage bed argument when commission form was broached six years ago and given up after an unsuccessful attempt had been made to secure the necessary number of petition signers before a popular vote could be taken. The men interested emphasized the fact that sentiment in favor of paid commissioners has been growing rapidly within the limits of Plainfield and that an attempt now may result in a complete change of sentiment.

Thirty-eight municipalities in New Jersey are now transacting business under the commission form as prescribed in the Walsh act. Newark, Bayonne and Rahway are among the latest converts. In Rahway only 1,000 votes were cast at the popular election which brought about the change, but there was a majority of 400 in favor of the plan. In Newark, the commission vote was almost double that of the opposition, and in Bayonne the majority was so large as to show that very few of the citizens wanted to continue the old method. Not a single city of the many that have been operating under commission rule have recalled an official or have voted to go back to the old style of councilmen elected without pay.

If the people of Plainfield believe commission form would be a good thing, it is only right and proper that a vote should be taken. The majority always rules and if a sufficient number are satisfied that the present administrative methods is satisfactory it should be maintained and given the full support of every resident. The present executive force will appreciate any motive that tends to better conditions and will gladly step down if the citizens so desire. They are denying themselves personal pleasure and family associations in order to give up time for the benefit of the community at large and if certain improvements have not turned out as satisfactorily as anticipated it is through no particular individual fault. It can only be laid to the system and any plan that would reduce civic mistakes to a minimum cannot come too soon.

WHERE ECONOMY HAS BEEN MISAPPLIED.

The Fire and Buildings Committee has not received the general approval of the community in depriving Inspector Doane of his chauffeur and car. Those in a position to appreciate conditions realize that it is a case of "penny wise and pound foolish." The difference between $340, which has been allowed for trolley car fare and taxicab service when needed, and the cost of giving the inspector his own automobile, may seem large at first glance but the amount is not to be considered if the office is to be brought up to its highest state of efficiency.

A delegation of local builders attended the budget hearing of the Council last Friday night and pointed out why it would be foolish to make the inspector go about his field work in such haphazard fashion as walking or traveling on street cars. It was stated by their chairman that at the present time there are seventy uncompleted buildings in Plainfield, a number very much below that in warm weather. Taking the necessary office hours out of the official's working day and deducting time consumed in travel it would give him about twenty minutes each week to inspect a new building. Any one with a grain of intelligence can appreciate the fact that this is not enough to make certain that contractors live up to the city's building code. Later on when construction work gets more plentiful the twenty minutes will be reduced possibly as much as ten minutes. Figure it out for yourself how thorough an inspector can be in crawling about an uncompleted residence or business house to see whether the work is being done properly or not.

The dishonest contractor has noted the building committee's action with great glee. The less the inspector visits his building the better he likes it. He can get away with a surprising amount of inferior work or poor material when only ten or twenty minutes a week can be devoted to examining what he has done. Yes, indeed, the dishonest contractor welcomes the passing of the Chief's automobile. If he had his way about it, Mr. Doane would not even be allowed his carfare or the use of a taxicab at any time. Sometimes a hired vehicle or trolley car on time might get the official to the building sooner than he was wanted.

The honest contractor, on the contrary, is anxious for the inspector to have his machine. It means that there will be no question but what he is living up to the city's restrictions and that when a wall is sealed or flooring laid the right kind of joists and beams will be in position. The honest contractor welcomes close scrutiny of anything he does but he knows better than anybody else that twenty minutes a week is not sufficient. An automobile at the inspector's command can annihilate distance, making it possible for the official in question to get to any part of the city within a few minutes.

Economy, of course, is desired at all times, but it was misapplied when the building inspector's automobile was placed in the discard. Perhaps it is not too late to reconsider and look elsewhere for the saving of a few hundred dollars at the expense of safety. The honest contractor and the people who may be destined to suffer by the collapse of a building will welcome the rescinding of the order.

REALIZING THE DREAM OF YEARS.

The promise of the British Government for the re-establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine has aroused the thirteen million Jews scattered over the world to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Two thousand years ago the Roman legions sacked Jerusalem and the ancient Jewish state, which had endured for fifteen centuries, came to an end. Since then the Jews have been scattered over the earth. The re-establishment of the old homeland has been a hope that persisted through the ages. Many Jews believed, as the centuries went on, that it was a dream destined never to be fulfilled. The British capture of Palestine made the dream a reality.

Since the early eighties, when the Jewish massacres began in Russia, a systematic Jewish colonization has been carried on in Palestine, with the permission of the Turkish Government. The Jewish immigrants settled themselves on the land amid great difficulties. Only the poorest farm-land, swamps and deserts, were open to them. At first the colonists made slow progress, but gradually the old agricultural instinct of the Jewish people asserted itself, and they proved far superior to the native Arab farmers. Forty-eight of these colonies had been established and were in a flourishing condition before the war broke.

The war brought all progress to a standstill. It stripped the country bare. The Turks cut down all the best trees for military purposes and took the pipe lines of the irrigation systems on which most of the colonies were dependent. In many places the colonists themselves were forced from their homes.

The Palestine Restoration Fund is to be a world-wide contribution for the rehabilitation of Jewish settlements and institutions in Palestine and to start the new Jewish state on a firm foundation. It is expected that the amount needed may be as high as a hundred million dollars. The first million dollars of the fund, to be voted to immediate restoration needs, is now being raised in the United States. Wealthy Jews like Nathan Straus and Jacob H. Schiff have given generously, but the object is to make the fund a contribution of all Jews, a truly democratic offering. As soon as the million dollars is obtained a medical unit will be despatched to Palestine, where disease has become endemic owing to want and lack of physicians.

Plainfield's share of the first one million dollars to be raised has been placed at $2,000. A competent committee, of which former Judge William Newcorn is chairman, has undertaken the task of securing this amount. The canvassers will commence their work Sunday morning and it is to be hoped that every citizen will contribute something to this wonderful undertaking. Already a large number of checks have been promised while working men who labor for a day's pay have given as much as five dollars as evidence of their good-will to the movement. Only members of the Jewish faith will be solicited so far as possible but the restoration of Palestine is of such world-wide importance that all nationalities and creeds are to be included in accomplishing the great undertaking. Give your little bit and by so doing aid the Jewish people in realizing the dream of two thousand years.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

And "Sheridan" rode a thousand miles away.

—o—

That unmistakable sound of chuckling which you heard Tuesday came from one P. F. Kenny, a contractor, as he packed up his kit of tools and left the City Hall.

—o—

In the light of recent events, it might not be a slip of the types if the compositor sets it up "fool" administrator instead of fuel administrator.

—o—

Under just what portion of democracy's banner would you place the legislation which compells a mother with small children at home to stand in the Commissioner's office for two hours or more begging for a half ton of coal, while the wealthy men of the community have a carload of anthracite dumped in their bins without so much as staying away from business five minutes? Surely it is not the kind of democracy for which the boys are fighting "Over There."

—o—

One of our contemporaries says that what is needed in this country now is a man of absolute ability capable of taking care of any kind of national problem. What's the matter with McAdoo? He has already proved himself eligible by being secretary of the treasury, director general of the railroads and the administration's official son-in-law all at the same time.

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When Freeholder Bird sold oranges at Front and Somerset streets?

When Hartshorn Vail, if you met him on the street, would give you an original rhyme for the asking?

When a stock company was organized to develop a gold mine on the Cooper farm back of Washington Rock and after "Charlie" Sturtevant had been engaged as engineer, an office opened on North avenue and a shaft sunk, all the investors got for their money was a beautiful certificate with fancy seals and prettily worded phrases?

When Captain Grant told the officers of the Twilight Social Club that they would have to stop selling beer in soda water bottles at the big dances in Crescent Rink and the ofcers complied by thereafter selling the beer in beer bottles?

When "Bill" Graston told the following famous story for the first time: "Yes, sir, snakes was awful out Park avenue in those days. One time when I was pitchin' hay for Ellis Campbell, a copperhead jumped straight at me but I was too quick for him and his fangs sank deep in the forkhandle. Would you believe it, that handle started in to swell up and it swelled so big that when I put an axe to it I got exactly five cords of wood?"

MR. ENGLISH SUPPLIES THE "PUNCH."

As suggested in the Record during the past two weeks, County Fuel Commissioner John K. English took steps yesterday to put "red blood" in the handling of Plainfield's coal situation. Hereafter, a board of administration, selected from the local coal dealers, will pass out the meager supply of fuel on hand and any infraction of this organization's orders will meet with prompt punishment.

This is the only method whereby justice can be accorded to everyone and unscrupulous dealers made to realize that the situation is serious. With the cooperation of the citizens the stringency can be relieved and the possibility of great suffering among women, children and sick people almost entirely removed. The old method which has been in vogue for the past two weeks has been an utter failure and we congratulate Mr. English on the stand he has taken.

Just so long as one body of citizens believes the Fuel Commissioner's facts are meant for somebody else beside themselves just so long will the clamor and turmoil of the past week remain. It requires somebody to tell the "dodgers" and no-patriots a few cold facts and we believe the new organization will show that it means business.

Contractors Called Off

Our business agent has always worked in a harmonious way and in keeping with the laws of our State at all times. As to recent statements made through the public press relative to the 'Hold Up Game' on the new City Hall, our council wishes to state, without fear or favor, that we had nothing whatever to do with the matter, as Corporation Counsel Reed and T. F. Hyland of the Building Committee, were invited to attend a regular meeting of our council, and our standing was laid before them in a clear-cut way and action was taken on floor of our intention, in Corporation Counsel Charles Reed's and Chairman Hyland's presence.

"Several different times statements were made through the public press asking whether the things W. H. Lunger is doing are being done with the knowledge and approval of the Building Trades Council which he is a representative of, as we wish to go on record to advise the former writer and the public that we do know what our business agent is doing at all times, and concur in and approve of his actions, on all matters pertaining to his office; and his standing relative to his duties and dealings with the master builders of our city, as far as we know, have always been respectful in words and actions; also for the good and welfare of the masters and journeymen.

"Our council on December 8, 1917, through the press, was itself held answerable by the Building Committee of the City Hall for their inability to keep union carpenters on the job, and through the press of January 18, 1918, the president and the recording secretary were invited to enter the building during reasonable hours of the day when they wished to do so.

"This invitation is not accepted, inasmuch as W. H. Lunger's exclusion from the building was due to the attitude which he has displayed in the past with regards to the construction of the building. Our council would thank anyone for proof on any action relative to any interference with men working on the City Hall, by our business agent, W. H. Lunger.

"Our council feels very much hurt by previous statements and actions against our council and business agent. Our council hereby wishes to go on record as placing the new City Hall building unfair to organized labor until such times as Business Agent W. H. Lunger, either by letter to our council or through the public press, will be granted permission to enter the City Hall building to attend to the duties of his office, which has never been to cause trouble or to injure the interests of the city in which he lives, and has no reason to bring a burden on the tax payers, who are members of our organization to a great extent; therefore, we would not allow our business agent to go so far.

"Hoping these statements will enlighten the public and the taxpayers as to our standing relative to the Building Committee and their inability to keep men working on the job.

"Respectfully submitted,
"Plainfield Building Trades Council.
"H. H. CORBY, President.
"J. CORDOVA, Rec. Sec."

Building Inspector Loses "Half of His Act"

The working force of the city's building department was decreased by fifty per cent. last night, when John H. Cose, Jr., severed his connection with that branch of municipal service. He had been engaged as stenographer and chauffeur for Inspector Doane at a total original salary of $40 a month, which was increased to $60 at the beginning of this year.

On second consideration, however, the Councilmanic Fire and Buildings Committee decided that the department was costing too much and planned to let the inspector get along without his stenographer, chauffeur and automobile, so at one fell swoop all were ordered removed. Hereafter Inspector Doane can have his choice of walking, riding on trolley cars or in extreme cases, hiring a taxi-cab to carry on his work of looking over new buildings. An appropriation of $400 has been allowed him to meet these expenditures. What is to be done with the Ford car which has served the Chief for eight months has not been made known as yet but it may possibly be turned over to some other department or official.

Mr. Cose, the eliminated fifty per cent. of the working staff, concluded his city employment last evening and next week will enter the office of a New York brokerage firm as stenographer.

Use of Oil Stoves Result In Two Fires

The use of oil stoves to save coal resulted in two small fires in this city within twenty-four hours. The first call was received at headquarters at 7:47 Tuesday morning, and came from the home of H. P. Thomas on Belvidere avenue, the house being at the same location as the memorable Letcher blaze of ten years ago. An oil stove used to help in heating the kitchen had set fire to some inflammable material nearby but members of the household extinguished the blaze before the men and apparatus arrived.

The second alarm was sent over the telephone at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning and was for a threatening blaze in a grocery and cotton store kept by Mrs. Rebecca Tofel at 902 West Third street. An oil stove left in the front part of the store to keep water pipes from freezing over night set fire to a counter and the flames were creeping up to the second floor when discovered. Members of Mrs Tofel's family, who occupy another part of the building, were roused from sleep by suffocating smoke and a hurried investigation showed from where the trouble came. Number 3 Hose Company was sent to the scene and by the use of chemicals extinguished the blaze in about ten minutes. The loss is placed at $750, covered by insurance. B. Semmer is the owner of the building.

New Vaudeville at Plainfield Theatre

"The Five Entertainers," a vaudeville act introducing a real jazz band yet seen in this city, heads the new program which opened at the Plainfield Theatre yesterday. The "Five Entertainers" are clever musicians who have a knack of introducing specialties that makes their performance doubly enjoyable. A young drummer with the troop is especially accomplished in his particular line and adds all the thrills that make Jazz stay what it is.

Other features on the new bill which is to be continued today and tomorrow, are Katherine Murray, a clever singing comedienne, Conway and Day, singers and dancers, Irving Geer and Harry Stewart, in a comedy sketch, on the plan of "Pat and Perlmutter," entitled "Partners." The Three Scores, an acrobatic novelty, and Hathaway and Company, in a musical skit. Pictures are also on the program and include a new Pathe News Weekly, which came out yesterday for the first.

The program for next Monday and Wednesday will be on the same plan as the foregoing of this week, vaudeville and photo-plays. The big film feature will be William Farnum in a gripping drama, "When a Man Sees Red," taken from Larry Evans' story, "The Painted Lady."

R. CARTWRIGHT ENTERS NAVY.

Robert Cartwright, of Jerome avenue, was given a farewell at his home last night, previous to his departure today to enter the navy as an electrician. About forty friends were in attendance, Mr. Cartwright expects to go to Newport News.

Local Activity In "Restoration" Drive Begins Next Sunday

Next Sunday morning has been fixed upon as the opening date for the drive to secure $2,000 as Plainfield's share of the $1,000,000 Palestine Restoration Fund. All arrangements have been completed by the committee of local citizens which is headed by Judge William Newcorn, chairman; Henry Rosenbaum, secretary, and Max Tepper, treasurer. The captains and the respective teams have been selected, each unit being taken from some local organization, and all will commence their canvass in the firm belief that the amount needed here will be oversubscribed. One check, the first to be received at headquarters, is already in hand, and calls for the significant amount of $100.

This fund is to be a world wide contribution for the rehabilitation of Jewish settlements and institutions in Palestine, and to start a new Jewish state on a firm foundation. It is expected that the amount needed will be easily raised as Jews, regardless of class, all agree that this is a momentous event of tremendous significance for the future of the Jewish people.

Wealthy Jews like Nathan Straus and Jacob Schiff have given generously, but the object is to make the fund a contribution of all Jews, a truly democratic offer. As soon as the million dollars is obtained a medical unit will be despatched to Palestine, where disease has become epidemic, owing to want and lack of physicians.

A commission of Jewish scientists is also preparing to leave England in the next few days under the supervision of the British Government, who will report on the immediate needs of the reconstruction of the country.

Every local Jewish organization has been invited to participate in this drive and they have generously accepted to serve and the following teams have been made up:

Hadassah Chapter—Mrs. Morris Fiedler, captain; Mrs. Jacob Shlarew, Mrs. Samuel Schwartz, Mrs. Jacob Fass.

Hebrew Ladies' Benevolent Society—Mrs. Abram Victorson, captain; Mrs Samuel Rosenbaum, Mrs. Harry Dreier, Mrs. Augusta Levine.

Y. W. H. A.—Miss Marion Sachar, captain; Miss Grace Semer, Miss Celia Gollinson, Miss Mildred Weintraub.

Louis Rosenthal, captain; Morris Block, Samuel Rosenbaum, Philip Stelzman.

Harvey Hothberg, captain; M. J. Hendelson, H. Sandler.

I. O. B. A. Lodge, No. 627—Jacob Sklarew, captain; E. Zeckendorf, Max Weintraub.

Y. M. H. A.—Benjamin Kline, captain; Samuel Krautbamer.

Congregation Children of Israel—Louis Shiff, captain; Nathan Meyers, Jacob Sachar, Harry Perlman, Morris Rosenbaum.

William Augenblick, captain; Harry Katz.

A meeting for the volunteers was held last evening at the Y. M. H. A. rooms and prominent speakers made addresses. A luncheon was served by the auxiliary to the Ladies' Organization Hadassah.

Much Interest In Automobile School

The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. automobile school is creating a great deal of interest in all the towns from Somerville to Elizabeth, which shows that there is a real need for such a practical school in this section of the State.

A great many students in these towns are going to the New York city automobile schools and are paying from $10 to $20 more for the same course which the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. is giving. In addition to this expense they have their carfare and the great amount of time consumed in travel to consider.

Every man, woman, older boy, and girl who may be called upon by our Nation to assist in some form of war service should by all means learn to operate a car, for this knowledge will be a most valuable asset.

Following is the complete class schedule:

Classes for Men Only

1 x1. Every Monday and Thursday from 8:00 to 10:00 p. m.

2 x2. Every Tuesday and Friday from 8:00 to 10:00 p. m.

3. Every Wednesday and Saturday from 8:00 to 10:00 p. m.

4 Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 4:00 to 6:00 p. m.

Classes For Women Only.

5 x5. Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m.

6. Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 1:40 to 3:30 p. m.

7. Every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m.

8. Every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m.

9. Every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from 4:00 to 6:00 p. m.

Note:—Classes masked (x) are already filled and the others will begin next week or as fast as each class has a full enrollment of ten.

The Y. M. C. A. is very anxious to make this course intensely practical and helpful and the committee in charge will gladly welcome any suggestions which students or prospective students feel might be of real benefit to them and the school.

There are a great many chauffeurs who have never taken the full mechanical course who would be more efficient if they would enroll in one of the "Y" classes. In many cases it would be to the advantage of the employer to pay the fee of his or her chauffeur.

There are a great many employed in the nearby factories who ought to know more about the principles of motor operation. They can get such information in this school.

Building Inspector Gives Year's Report

Building operations in Plainfield during 1917 reached a total of $749,589.00. This information was contained in the annual report of inspector T. O. Doane, as made at the Common Council meeting last night. The total number of permits granted was two hundred and four, a somewhat surprising number in the face of extremely high prices and general unrest of labor conditions.

During the year previous, commencing January 1, 1916, the value of building operations in Plainfield reached the one million dollar mark, the greatest in the history of the city. It was not generally expected that 1917's figures would approach anything like this amount, but as a whole the total mentioned by Inspector Doane is accepted as a fair figure under the circumstances mentioned. The total was helped out greatly by the new work being done at the Pond Machine Tool plant on South Second street, where fully half a million dollars' worth of new buildings are either under way or in preparation. The new work at the Scott Printing Press plant and the proposed residence on Belvidere avenue for W. A. Garrigues are included in the 1917 figures, both of them representing large amounts.

Although no mention was made of the fact in the report, Inspector Doane believes that a big boom will be on in the summer of the present year. A study of conditions has shown him that a lot of alteration and repair work was let go in the rush of 1916 that will have to be taken care of now, in addition the material market and labor conditions are getting better so that much new building will have to be done to care for the ever increasing demand for moderate priced houses. In his optimism Inspector Doane makes no hesitation in predicting that old and new work for 1918 will represent an outlay of considerably more than a million dollars.

The report submitted last night urges the completion and printing of the new building code which has been ordered by the Fire and Building Committee of the Common Council. Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, when he left for Florida two weeks ago, took the rough draft of the code with him as it was prepared by experts and is now carefully looking into the various sections. It is understood that the men who are preparing the code are to receive $1,000 for the job, this amount to be divided between them.

Inspector Doane's report in full is as follows:

During the year there have been two hundred and four (204) permits granted. The total estimated value of the buildings for which these permits have been granted is $749,589. The following is a classified list of permits granted during the year: 72 for frame garages, 39 for frame dwellings, 23 for frame extensions to frame buildings, 8 for frame barns, 7 for brick extensions to brick buildings, 5 for demolition of frame buildings, 3 for demolition of brick buildings, 3 for hollow tile garages, 3 for hollow cement block garages, 3 for frame sheds, 3 for brick store buildings, 3 for brick and iron extensions to brick factories; 2 for brick garages, 2 for frame store and dwellings, 2 for brick dwellings, 2 for frame store buildings, 1 for hollow tile dwelling, 1 for hollow tile addition to brick building, 1 for brick office building, 1 for frame gate house, 1 for frame storage building, 1 for hollow tile machine shop, 1 for hollow cement block store, 1 for brick store and dwelling, 1 for hollow tile storage building, 1 for brick power house, 1 for hollow cement block addition to H. C. B. building, 1 for hollow cement block addition to concrete building, 1 for frame extension to concrete building, 1 for volatile tanks, 1 for hollow cement block office building, 1 for frame office building, 1 for frame extension to brick building, 1 for hollow tile broader house, 1 for brick paint shop, 1 for iron storage building, 1 for frame work shop, 1 for brick store and dwelling, 1 for hotel, 1 for hollow tile store and dwelling, 1 for frame tool house; total, 204.

I would respectfully recommend that the Committee on Fire and Buildings give their immediate attention to have the new building code completed and indexed. We have been without any codes of building codes now for three years and it is not fair to builders, owners and architects to be without them.

War Prevents Settling of Plainfield Estate

Letters of administration on the estate of Thomas Drzewiecke, of Plainfield, were applied for in Surrogate Coding's court Tuesday. Leon Drzewiecke, of Bridgeport, Conn., made the application. The value of the estate is placed at $2,000. Drzewiecke left a wife in Russian Poland and the administrator makes affidavit that he is unable to communicate with her on account of the war. As a number of funeral debts are to be paid he made application for probate of the will.

Jennie MacConnell Smalley is named as executrix of the will of her mother Elizabeth MacConnell, who died at her home on West Third street a few weeks ago, filed in the court Tuesday. No estimate of the estate is made. Attention is called in the document to the fact that one of the heirs-at-law, a son, James MacConnell, has not been heard from in five years, having last been in Detroit, Mich. The amount of the estate was not made known.

MARTIN HANSEN DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS.

Martin Hansen, aged fifty-seven years, died yesterday morning at his home, 615 East Seventh street. He had been ill a short time with pneumonia. Beside his wife, he is survived by a son, Corporal Max Hansen, now at Camp McClellan; a daughter, Miss Alma Hansen, and the following brothers and sisters, B. P. Hansen, James C. Hansen, of this city; Mrs. John Benson, of Dunellen; Mrs. Marie Claassen and Mrs. Peter Marky, of this city, and Mrs. C. C. Soelle, of Boston.

The funeral arrangements have not been made pending word from Corporal Hansen, who, it is believed, will be given a furlough to come home. The service will probably be held either tomorrow or Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thompson, of Stebbins place, are the parents of a girl born yesterday.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

GENERAL WILLIAM H. STERLING

Following an illness of three months from complications peculiar to old age, death came yesterday morning to General William H. Sterling, on first place. He had not been in the best of health for a long time and his friends were prepared for the news when it came. The funeral will be held at the family residence this afternoon and will be in charge of Rev. S. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace P. E. church, of which the deceased was a member. Burial will be at Dover, Del.

General Sterling was born at Philadelphia in 1829 and came to Plainfield forty years ago. He was a most exceptional man in many ways, and although living a quiet life had an acquaintance with old and young all over the city.

General Sterling was graduated with high honors from West Point, and became staff officer for General McClellan at the outbreak of the Civil War. He was stationed for the most part at New Orleans.

At the termination of the war he came to this city, where he and his wife have lived ever since. His wife, who was Miss Matilda Parker, of Philadelphia, survives him.

General Sterling was prominently associated with the Democratic party in this city. He was one of the oldest members of Grace Episcopal church. The general was a courtlous gentleman of the old school, and a delightful conversationalist and a loyal friend.

He was a captain in the regular army, while General McClellan was in command of the Union forces. Years after the war, when McClellan was Governor of New Jersey, 1878-1881, he appointed Captain Sterling his chief of staff, which carried the title of general. For some time General Sterling was Inspector of rifle practice on the range on the Newark meadows, during Governor McClellan's incumbency, but the range was discontinued after the Governor's term.

General Sterling devoted much time to the cause of Civil War veterans, and their dependents, securing for them pensions, without any charge to them, and he was always ready with assistance to deserving persons.

In the past year, when his eyesight had failed so that he could not indulge in his favorite habit of reading, he learned from Mrs. Sterling how to knit, and occupied his time in that way, still doing his bit for the service.

MRS. MARY McDONOUGH.

Mrs. Mary McDonough, widow of Michael McDonough, died Wednesday afternoon at her home on Lehigh avenue, South Plainfield. She was born in Ireland but had lived in this county thirty-five years, twenty-four of which was spent in South Plainfield. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. William Parrell, of Metuchen, and four sons, Edward and Anthony McDonough, of this city; John McDonough, of South Plainfield, and Patrick McDonough, of New Brunswick.

The funeral will be held in the Church of the Sacred Heart, South Plainfield, tomorrow morning at 9:30, and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

MRS. EUGENE BROKAW.

Mrs. Martha A. Brokaw, wife of Eugene W. Brokaw, died early Tuesday morning at her home on Columbia avenue, following a long illness. She had been a resident of this city for the past thirty years, coming here from Mattatuan, where she was born in 1845. She was a member of the First Methodist church and had a wide acquaintance throughout the city. The family lived for a long time on East Fourth street, near Washington street.

Beside her husband, Mrs. Brokaw is survived by three daughters and two sons. These are: Mrs. W. C. Coddington, of Newark; Mrs. Milliken Disbrow, who has been making her home with her mother on Columbia avenue; Mrs. John T. Bolsterle, of Oxford place; Harry Brokaw, of Ottumwua, Iowa, and Marion Brokaw, of Newark. The funeral will be held at the late home this afternoon and Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson is to have charge of the service.

MRS. DOMINIC CAPPARELLI.

Mrs. Josephine Capparelli, wife of Diminick Capparelli, of North avenue, died Sunday night in Muhlenberg Hospital. She had been at the institution only a short time. Mrs. Capparelli was twenty years old and was married only six months ago. Beside her husband, she is survived by her parents and several other relatives.

The funeral was held in St. Mary's church yesterday morning, at which time Rev. Father Hennessy conducted the requiem mass. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

JOHN ABBOTT.

The community received a deep shock Tuesday through announcement of the death of John Abbott, a highly respected citizen and leading contractor, which occurred on that afternoon after an illness of only five days. He had been in his usual state of health up to a week ago yesterday, when a sudden attack of heart failure compelled him to take to his bed although at the time it was not believed that fatal results might follow. A sudden turn for the worst came Tuesday morning and his strength ebbed away despite extreme methods used by the physicians in charge.

The funeral was held at the late home at West Front and New streets yesterday afternoon and was in charge of Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Abbott was one of the oldest members and president of the board of trustees. The gathering of relatives and friends in attendance was extremely large. Every part of the city was represented and there were also many other mourners who came from distant places. Numerous beautiful floral tributes attested to the affection and esteem in which the deceased was held. Burial was in the family plot in Hillside cemetery, sons and sons-in-law acting as pall-bearers.

Mr. Abbott was a native of Broadstairs, Kent, England, where he was born in 1845. He came to this country at the age of 27 years, first locating at Newark and later at Ithaca, N. Y., where he became a leading builder. Securing a large contract in Princeton, this State, he came back to New Jersey and on completing the work decided to locate in Plainfield. This was thirty years ago, and since that time Mr. Abbott had erected many of the finest homes and business houses in this vicinity. He enjoyed the reputation of being absolutely conscientious in everything he undertook and there was never a time when he was known to "skimp" on specifications or materials.

Mr. Abbott had but few interests outside of his home and his work. He never participated in political or civic affairs outside of casting his ballot as a citizen and his only fraternal affiliation was with Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, of which he was one of the oldest members. He took his letter to the First Presbyterian church on first coming to Plainfield and always remained one of the most earnest workers in the congregation. His death removes a most desirable citizen, one of the kind commanding absolute respect because of the simplicity of his life and whose departure will leave a vacancy hard to fill.

Mr. Abbott is survived by his wife, four sons and two daughters. They are: The Misses Jennie and Ada Abbott, living at the family home; Mrs. H. J. Spencer, of New York, wife of Dr. Spencer, and Mrs. L. H. Redelings, wife of Dr. Redelings; John C. and William H. Abbott, of this city.

GEORGE H. FISHER.

George H. Fisher, a resident of Plainfield for the past twenty years and regarded as one of the best known carpenters in this locality, died last Saturday afternoon at his home at 224 Manson place. He had been ill for a period of six months, during which he had been confined to the house most of the time. Propsy and complications brought about the demise.

The funeral was held at the Monroe Avenue church Wednesday afternoon at 2:30, a large gathering of relatives and friends being in attendance. Rev. John W. Flynn, the pastor, officiated. The floral tributes included a beautiful set piece from the local Carpenters Union, of which the deceased was an active member. Burial was in the Bound Brook cemetery.

Those who acted as pallbearers were: Peter VanFleet and Lester Matthews, representing the Carpenters' Union; Charles Smith, of New Market; Peter M. Smith, of Middlesex Borough; D. D. Clark, of Bound Brook, and William Sowden, of this city, all four of whom are relatives of Mrs. Fisher.

Mr. Fisher was a native of New Brunswick, having been born in that city on August 16, 1853. He learned the carpenter's trade and worked for many years in various parts of Middlesex county. His services for a time were engaged by a contractor who had a number of buildings to erect at Long Branch and through going to the shore resort Mr. Fisher secured appointment as pier master at that point. He held the position fifteen years, the period being just at the time when Long Branch was the most popular summering place on the Jersey coast. As superintendent of construction work on the piers and bulkheads, Mr. Fisher came in contact with many prominent persons who had cottages in the vicinity and his acquaintanceship with some of them was carried until his end came.

Mr. Fisher moved to Plainfield about twenty years ago. He became interested in the development of West End realty and erected many houses in the vicinity of Monroe avenue and Third street. He was employed by various local contractors at odd times, the last one being Walter Apgar. Mr. Fisher was of an inventive mind and patented several improvements in house construction. One of his ideas resulted in the Fisher "Hold Bag," a device attached to blinds, which prevents birds from roosting upon them.

The deceased was the father of George H. Fisher, Jr., the well-known local architect, who is now in France as a member of the Quartermasters' Corps. He was one of the first big contingent sent to Camp Dix from this city last September, and because of his adaptability to the purchase and distribution of stores, was made a clerk in the Quartermasters' Expeditionary Force. He was sent abroad two months ago in company with Augustus C. Nash, of Prospect avenue, who was placed in the same unit. A cablegram message was sent to the son on Saturday but so far no reply has been received.

Beside his son, Mr. Fisher's only near surviving relative is his wife, who was Miss Hester Smith, of Lincoln.

MRS. AMELIA BOWMAN.

The funeral of Mrs. Amelia Bowman, who died in Muhlenberg Hospital Sunday noon, a short time after she had received severe burns about the head and body in an accident at her home, was held at the home of her son, John Bowman, 322 West Front street, yesterday afternoon. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First Methodist church, was in charge and many relatives and friends were in attendance. The floral tributes included set pieces from Plainfield Lodge of Elks and Perseverance Lodge, Knights of Pythias, to which sons of the deceased belong. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Bowman, who was eighty-nine years old, had an apartment in the Manning building on West Front street, directly across the hall from the one occupied by her son. Early Sunday morning she started to shake down her kitchen fire and through leaning too near the grate, her light house clothing ignited. Her cries for assistance brought help from her son and Mrs. Erwin Neighbor, but the flames had gained great headway before being extinguished. She was burned unusually bad about the chest and head and possibly inhaled considerable flame.

Dr. C. B. Lufburrow gave temporary treatment but ordered the sufferer to Muhlenberg Hospital in the hope that her life might be saved. The shock, coupled with her advanced age, proved too great for her and she passed away soon after being received at the institution.

The deceased was born at Richmond, Pa., but had lived in Plainfield more than forty years. She was the widow of William L. Bowman, a widely known veteran of the Civil War, who died about three years ago. For many years, Mrs. Bowman conducted a boarding house at 327 West Front street, where the Sebring building is now located, and later in the Neal property at Front street and Central avenue, before the present stores were built in front. She was a wonderful woman in many ways, keeping active right up to the time of receiving her burns and attending to household duties with the agility of one nearly half her junior in years. Both she and her husband had a acquaintance that extended to all part of the city. The sad end that came after such a long and useful life has resulted in the sympathy of the entire community being extended to the relatives.

Besides her son John already mentioned, Mrs. Bowman leaves one other son, Edward Bowman, of West Second street, and a sister, Mrs. Emma Frazeb, of East Second street. John Bowman is an employe of the Pond Tool Company, where he has been foreman in the foundry department for many years.

MRS. GEORGE F. EDWARDS.

Mrs. Ella Edwards, wife of Captain George F. Edwards, died early Sunday morning at her home on East Sixth street. She had been in failing health for several years and her ailment took an acute form a few days before death ensued.

Mrs. Edwards was the daughter of the late Joseph Kay and Anna M. Kay, of Ardmore, Pa., and was born in that city. Following her education she lived in Philadelphia for a time but removed to North Plainfield about twenty-five years ago. The family had resided either in the city or borough since that time. Mrs. Edwards was a member of Grace P. E. church and was the possessor of many womanly qualities that endeared her to her relatives and friends alike. She is survived by her husband, one son, George F. Edwards, Jr., and four daughters, the Misses Marguerite, Ann, Eleanor and Emily Edwards.

The funeral was held at the family residence, 123 East Sixth street, Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. S. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, was in charge and burial was at Philadelphia.

MRS. JULIA WALLACE.

Mrs. Julia Wallace, one of the oldest and best known residents of Newood, died Wednesday in Muhlenberg Hospital, following a brief illness with pneumonia. She was eighty-five years old and a native of Ireland, but had lived on either Terrill road or Midway avenue, Fanwood, for nearly fifty years. Her husband died a long time ago. She leaves one son, Lawrence Wallace, who made his home with her on Midway avenue.

The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church, this city, tomorrow morning, and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

JOSEPH ZELLER.

Joseph Zeller, who was born at Watchung and lived for many years in North Plainfield, died suddenly Tuesday at his home on West 145th street, New York. He had returned from a visit to a doctor's office, having been under treatment for heart trouble, and collapsed as he reached the top of the stairway in the apartment where he lived. The funeral was held in St. Charles' church, New York, yesterday morning, and the body was brought to Plainfield on the train reaching the North avenue station at 1:16 in the afternoon. Burial was in the United States army.

Mr. Zeller was fifty-eight years old and for a long time had been assistant superintendent in the engineering department of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York. He was the father of Arthur Zeller, a major in the United States army, who is known as "Poster" Zeller, because the Government selected his picture as a negative for the marine posters displayed all over the United States. The artist making the drawings declared "Poster" Zeller's form and features were ideal and his face is familiar to all who have gazed at the lithographs calling for volunteers in the naval service.

Beside the son mentioned, Mr. Zeller leaves his wife, one other son and one daughter. The latter are: Joseph Zeller, Jr., of New York, and Mrs. Theodore, of Bound Brook. He also leaves three brothers and a sister, Mrs. Burns and George Zeller, of Brooklyn; Frank Zeller, of New York, and John Zeller, of Lane avenue, this city. Mrs. Henry Windham, of East Front street, is a cousin of the deceased.

EDGE'S SENATE FIGHT WILL BEGIN IN HUDSON.

Governor Walter E. Edge's campaign for the Republican United States Senatorial nomination to be made in September will be formally opened in Hudson at a big dinner to be given at Bayonne right after the close of the legislative session in Trenton, probably at the end of March or the beginning of April.

An imposing committee to look after Edge's campaign in Hudson will be appointed this coming spring. Among the names mentioned is that of former Judge Robert Carey.

The grass will not be allowed to grow under the feet of either Edge or Colgate from now on. Edge will do all he can to build up his forces in the making of his appointments. Colonel Colgate's boosters will do all they can to predict by any notes and disappointments that may develop on account of the Edge appointments.

PERSONAL

Ned Cole, Jr., a member of the 114th Field Ambulance Corps, stationed at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala., is spending a two weeks' furlough at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cole, of The Castle building, Madison avenue. He will begin the return trip South on Tuesday.

Miss Julia V. Rowley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rowley, of Grove street, has returned to her studies at Syracuse University, after a long visit at home because of illness.

John Powers, of West Fourth street, was able to return to work at the North avenue barber shop Tuesday, after two weeks' detention at home because of a sprained ankle. The injury still bothers him somewhat but is rapidly getting better.

William W. Corbett, of Belvidere avenue, who has been holding a clerkship commission in the Quartermaster's Department at Washington, has been promoted to the rank of captain. He is the son-in-law of former Mayor and Mrs. J. F. Buckle, of Watchung avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Carroll, of 145 West Front street, are the parents of a ten-pound baby boy, born early this Monday morning. Mr. Carroll is a member of the City Fire Department, stationed at No. 3 house on West Fourth street.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Neva Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace, of East Seventh street, to Edson A. Woodhull, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd T. Woodhull, of Dale avenue. No date has been set for the wedding. Mr. Woodhull is in the service of the Naval Reserve and at present is located at the Scott Paper Works.

Jonathan Potter, father of Mrs. D. J. Hellenger, is seriously ill at the latter's home at 901 West Sixth street. His trouble originated in a slight infection of the foot which developed a severe case of blood poisoning. Because of Mr. Potter's advanced age it is believed that fatal complications will result.

Alfred Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Greene, of Seventh street and Monte avenue, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, Tuesday, for an operation. He had been ill for the past three weeks with blood poisoning in his left hand caused by the dye of his stocking infecting a slight sore in his heel. The operation was performed by Dr. Hughes and is believed to have been successful.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Kenna, of West Fifth street, gave a dinner to eighteen friends at their home this week, during which announcement was made of the engagement of Mrs. Kenna's brother, Maurice P. Daley, and Miss Anne E. Dunne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dunne, of this city. No date has been set for the wedding.

Harry Gould, of West Third street, is a patient in Muhlenberg Hospital, following an injury received while at work in one of the local shops a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Saffren, who were married by Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring at his home last Saturday afternoon, have returned from their wedding trip and are now making their home on West Front street. Mrs. Saffren was formerly Miss Margaret Williams and has recently been in the employ of L. F. Hersh & Brother as bookkeeper. Mr. Saffren is a sergeant in the Plainfield police force.

Miss Margaret Meade, of High Bridge, has been spending the past week in this city as the guest of her sister, Mrs. John Brown, of West Fourth street, and Mrs. Frank Hill, of John street.

A cablegram message received by Mrs. A. M. Harris, of Central avenue, the forepart of the week, announced that Mr. Harris had arrived safely in France. He has enlisted in the Y. M. C. A. secretarial work for a period of six months.

James S. Kelsey, of 728 West Third street, is a patient in Muhlenberg Hospital, following an operation performed a few days ago. He was reported this morning as "improving nicely."

Miss Alice Rogers, of 942 Arlington avenue, is one of the latest additions to the "wing department" at the North avenue plant of the Standard Aero Corporation.

John Townley, a member of the local fire department, who has been stationed at No. 1 house, is seriously ill at his home on East Second street. He was first taken with a slight cold which developed grip and other complications.

Warning! Get Your Gardens Ready Now

Now is the time to plan home gardens for 1918. The demand for vegetables will be greater this year than it was last, and production may be more difficult. Seeds will be scarce and there is likely to be a shortage of commercial fertilizers. Owners of farms, suburban property and backyard lots should buy seeds as soon as the spring catalogues are available and should secure the necessary fertilizers from stables, street departments or abattoirs. So far as possible, residents should purchase their seeds and fertilizers in the city or town in which they reside, thus relieving the overtaxed mail service and transportation systems. The home garden should be planned out on paper within the next few weeks. The plan should be drawn to scale and liberal spaces to be devoted to the various vegetables and arranging the plots, so that some sections can be used for early vegetables and then reclaimed for late vegetables.

The foregoing is the advice of experts in the Department of Agriculture. How shall we get our garden plots ready? is a question asked hundreds of times a day in letters received by the department. The department advises the questioners first of all to determine the location and the area to be planted to vegetables. The plot should be cleared of rubbish, and a compost heap should be started. Arrange, if possible, for the necessary fertilizer for the garden from local sources. Add these materials to the compost heap so as to insure as large a supply as possible of suitable material with the small-est practicable use of commercial fertilizers. This is desirable to insure plant food and to save expense. Commercial fertilizers are scarce and high, and in garden work, even when such materials are abundant and relatively cheap, they cannot entirely replace stable manure and compost. Each city or town should be able to supply the major parts of the needs of its gardening population, if the fertilizers produced within its limits are husbanded for their use.

The man who owns or can hire a little plot of land and who doesn't make the most of the opportunity will have no one but himself to blame next summer, if he finds at that time that vegetables are scarce and prices are high. He should get a garden catalogue as soon as they are available and should select the seeds needed to plant the area to be used for gardening. In choosing them he should bear in mind the sorts which the family relished the most, and should determine the quantity of each variety in order that only the seed actually needed to meet the requirement be purchased. The supply of some of the important varieties of garden seeds is limited and if all are to obtain the quantity needed every one should cooperate to make the supply available produce a maximum crop. Plan your seed orders carefully, is the department's warning. In planning the garden, the owner should have due regard to supplying the family with fresh vegetables as well as vegetables desired for canning or drying. He should refrain from entering the field of commercial vegetable production unless he is an experienced, practical gardener with suitable soil and location. Planning the garden on paper—that is, drawing a plan to scale on which are indicated the spaces to be devoted to early planted and later crops, the best planting dates, etc.—is an interesting winter evening employment for the entire family. See that garden seeds are properly protected and are ready for spring use. Have fruit trees and small fruits pruned and sprayed at the proper seasons if you want maximum crops. The expense is small and the profits are large.

The experienced gardeners of a neighborhood will find profit as well as pleasure in the formation of a local garden club. The meetings can be conducted on the basis of experience meetings to the mutual advantage of all. Beginners should take advantage of the experience of successful local gardens in planning their operations. Many valuable hints can thus be obtained which cannot be found in books or papers on gardening. In these times it is not only a privilege but a duty to pass on the results of garden experience when such experience may save another from error or increase his chances of success.

A little city in Iowa is leading the Nation in getting ready for the next garden campaign. A survey has been made of the city and, as a result, seventy-five acres of land suitable for gardens, in addition to all space devoted to gardens last spring, have been located. The city has found three hundred tons of manure which was not being used. It also found that needy people were paid $2,000 in cash by the city government last year and that ninety per cent. of the potatoes consumed by the city in 1917 were shipped in from outside points. What is the city doing about it? Committees have been appointed by the City Council and the commercial club for every voting precinct. These committees will arrange for teams, wagons and plots, and will organize the work so that it can be done efficiently and economically. The mayor says city money will be used to pay for the teams, wagons and plows, if necessary. It is further planned that those who receive support from the city must take care of a garden according to instruction, providing they are able to work.

Take thought of the spring garden now. Notwithstanding the large production of vegetables last year and the great quantity put into cans and jars for winter use, the demand for production and conservation in 1918 will be greater than ever before. There is no small way in which the millions of people at home can help win the war. The average owner of suburban property should be able to raise most of the vegetables he needs during the summer. Unless he has an exceptionally large lot and is experienced in gardening he should provide only for his own family. He should make his seed supply one hundred per cent. efficient. He should husband the local fertilizer supply. He should tell his neighbor the sorts that did best last year. He should point out the "don'ts" as well as the "do's." Help your neighbor to help himself.

Pierson's City Manager Bill Attracts Much Attention Here

Assemblyman Arthur N. Pierson's bill, known as the city manager bill, has already created widespread interest throughout the State, and hearings have been set for a discussion of the features of the bill at Trenton. The success of the measure is being watched in Plainfield by many interested in the workings of the municipal government, especially now that a move for commission rule is in the air. There are some who do not favor the provisions of the Walsh act, but who are not opposed to the municipal manager plan, pointing out that it is more adaptable to conditions here. Among local leaders in both parties are those who have kept in close touch both with the success of the city manager plan in the several municipalities in which it is in force and where it is considered successful.

There is growing sentiment in some circles here, it is understood, in favor of awaiting the passage of the Pierson bill and considering that form of government together with the commission plan and with the system under which the city is now ruled.

The municipal manager act as outlined by Assemblyman Pierson may be adopted by municipalities, towns, villages, boroughs and townships. Recent laws which have adopted and operated under the Walsh act for less than four years.

Its composition provides for a council and manager, and their powers are those as enumerated in the act and other acts relating to municipalities.

A petition for the adoption of the election must be signed by voters equal to at least twenty per cent. of the vote cast for members of the General Assembly at the last preceding general election. The basis of adoption is a majority of the votes cast, provided such majority equals at least thirty per cent. of the number of ballots cast for members of the General Assembly at the last preceding general election.

In case it is rejected at any election, no further proceedings can be taken until after the beginning of the next year of the term of the mayor elected at the election following the rejection of the act.

With the adoption by any municipality of the city manager act, its corporate existence is not affected; any inconsistent acts are inapplicable, and the old government is abolished. The system of public instruction is unaffected and the sinking fund and sinking fund commissions are not molested, and the system cannot be abandoned until four years have expired.

The method of choice of officers and their terms, qualifications and general restrictions do not differ from those now in force in municipalities.

The organization now consists of five members, one of whom is to be presiding officer with the designation of mayor.

The qualifications of commissioners include residence within the municipality for not less than two years, and his term of office shall be four years unless recalled by the voters of the municipality.

The commission must meet seven days after election to organize and elect a presiding officer, the Mayor.

The Mayor has a vote in all proceedings of the council, but has not power of veto. He is to be the official head of the municipality for the purpose of serving processes and for all ceremonial purposes.

The council is the governing body. It can create and abolish administrative departments, appoint a manager, assessor, auditor and attorney of the municipality. It can appoint criminal officers analogous to justices of the peace. It can fill vacancies in the Board of Education, and appoint advisory boards. It determines the conditions under which funds can be spent, cause examination of the books and accounts to be made, and publish a statement of the same.

A recalled member of the council is ineligible to appointment again for a municipal office for one year.

Should a vacancy occur in the council it shall be filled by the man who received the next highest vote at the election to the fifth man elected to the council. If other vacancies occur, the seventh, eighth and ninth highest shall be named in their order.

The city manager is named by a majority of the members of the council and shall be qualified and not a member of the council. His ter mof office shall be as long as he performs the duties to the satisfaction of the council. His duties and pawers shall be to be the budget officer, execute laws and ordinances, appoint and remove heads of departments and all other offices and boards not otherwise provided, supervision of his appointees, enforce franchise rights, attend meetins of council and participate in discussions, without right to vote, however.

A municipal clerk shall be named by the city manager seven days after his appointment, and he shall act as clerk of council, has custody of papers and records.

In regard to legislation ordinances of finance must be adopted by vote of one more than a majority of all members of council.

They must be advertised in a newspaper, and ten days at least must be allowed before new ordinances are made effective.

Council to pass ordinance within twenty days or submit same to popular vote at special election within ninety days.

Fifteen per cent. of the electors can petition for an ordinance.

The procedure for a referendum on an ordinance is a petition signed by electors equal to at least fifteen per cent. of the number of ballots cast at the last preceding election for members of the General Assembly, and it shall act as notice to council that an ordinance is to be repealed or else submitted to a referendum vote before taking effect.

The election is to be held on the fourth Tuesday following the adoption of the act; thereafter, every four years on the second Tuesday of May.

Nominations can be made by at least one per cent. of the entire number of votes cast at the last election for members of the General Assembly, but in no case less than twenty-five.

Names of candidates to be published in the newspapers and arranged on the ballot in alphabetical order. Election officers are to indicate on tally sheet first choice, second choice, etc. The next day the tally sheets are to be canvassed and it is determined what nominess reasectively received the first, second, third, etc., highest number of votes.

The act takes effect immediately upon passage.

"HOW THE WATCHUNG FROGS GOT DRUNK."

By J. Watson.

Oh! don't you remember the log, Ben Bly,
The old hollow log near the stream,
Where often we hid the brown jug full of rye
That was labeled "Potato Bug Cream."
And don't you remember the fullbrogs' serenade
To the lady frogs out on the marsh,
The boozey, hoarse songs that our preacher oft said
To his ears sounded ribald and harsh.

But little he knows 'till this day, Ben Bly,
How the bullfrogs and treetoads got drunk,
Or why, in the gloaming, they'd whoop up the cry,
Jug-o-rum! Jug-o-rum! Plink-a-Plunk!
The brown jug got broke, and the rum soaked its way
Through a place where the log wasn't sound,
And the booze hit the frogs in the right place, they say:
And they still hope that more will be found.

There are one or two frogs in Dunellen, Ben Bly,
But their voices sound plaintive and weak,
And the Netherwood frogs have a thin little cry
Like an old rusty wheelbarrow's squeak.
What they need is a slug from the little brown jug,
Just a "three-finger sniff" and the wail
In their throats will give place to a deep mellow chugg
Rich and strong, like the snort of a whale.

Editorial Briefs

COMMENT EXPRESSED BY NEWSPAPER MEN IN THIS AND OTHER STATES ON CURRENT TOPICS.

From Peace to War.
(From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

The proposal to make Chautauqua an agency for war propaganda shows how far we have traveled since the sixth of April.

Push the Tunnel Project.

Governor Edge, having conferred with Governor Whitman in regard to harbor development and also the vehicular tunnel project, has no doubt impressed upon the New York Executive the sentiment in New Jersey in favor of speedy action in favor of that tunnel between Jersey City and New York.

Under the Wolverton bill the money to pay for New Jersey's share of this proposed tunnel would not be raised until four years hence, that is, until after all the money needed for the proposed State highway system shall have been collected by the direct State tax of one dollar per thousand ratables.

The vehicular tunnel is not only an economical necessity, but it is a war measure. Nobody can foresee how vital such a tunnel may be to the National welfare in the days to come. Such a tunnel would practically give new life to Jersey City and give North Jersey a great impetus, as well.

There has never been any objection to a direct State highway tax, equitably levied. There will be no objection to the immediate construction of a vehicular tunnel if the financing of such an enterprise is based on fair dealing to all concerned.

Examination of Registrants to Begin Tomorrow

Examination of the first quota of Plainfield registrants placed in division 1, class A, of selectives through the answers on questionnaires will begin at the Evergreen Avenue School, tomorrow afternoon at 1:45. Fifty men have been notified to appear at that time and according to schedule will be disposed of by 3 o'clock when another batch of fifty will appear. Those found to be physically fit will be listed in the order they are called to await instructions from General Crowder designating the next class destined for Camp Dix. Of the original allotment of 205 men to this district, eighty more are yet remaining.

A second examination will be held at the Evergreen Avenue School building Wednesday, February 5, when another 100 men will appear before the doctors. The third examination will be one week from tomorrow and after that the dates will be announced by the Exemption Board.

One of the registrants who will appear tomorrow is David G. Turner, colored, of East Third street, whose original registration number, 258, was the first one drawn in the great draft of last summer. At the original examination he was exempted because of having a dependent wife who is suffering from a pulmonary complaint.

New Motor Being Placed In "Hoodoo" Nott Pumping Engine

Prospects of the Nott pumping engine being returned to service in the city fire department were made bright this week by the arrival of the new Wisconsin motor which experts believe will make the "hoodoo" apparatus worthy of its keep. John Cline, the East Second street automobile man, has the machine in his garage for the installation work and may possibly complete it within the next few days. It will then be given a thorough testing out before being added to the headquarter's equipment.

The new motor was ordered by the Fire Board of last year after experts had said that the trouble with the engine could be overcome in this manner. The bid of the Wisconsin company to furnish the necessary appliance at a cost of $1,800 was accepted, but owing to the difficulties in railroad transportation the motor did not come to Plainfield until the past week. It is believed that the installation will cost an additional $150, a rather small amount that is made possible because of only few changes being necessary in the old driving arrangement. Men versed in fire apparatus and motor construction are of the opinion that the city can secure at least fifteen years of good service out of the Nott after the present change is made.

The engine was purchased by the city about five years ago, the manufacturing company having since gone out of business. Although the machine met the official test it never seemed to work satisfactorily when put to actual use and invariably returned from a fire in bad condition. It was overhauled several times to no purpose and was about to be discarded entirely when the idea of a new motor was suggested. Since early last summer the department has had only one pumping engine to fall back on, the American-LaFrance, at the Netherwood house. It was brought down town last week for service in connection with the Martin garage place on Park avenue and for more than four hours and a half pumped 700 gallons of water a minute without seeming to show any strain.

The Test of An Undertaker

Like doctors, lawyers, and other professional men, the undertaker has a reputation to maintain. The up-to-date funeral director nowadays attends conventions, studies his trade publications, and keeps abreast of the improvements of the times.

Just as an experiment, sometimes, ask any live, up-to-date undertaker about the Norwalk Vault. A leader won't wait to be asked; he will tell you at the first opportunity a dozen reasons why the Norwalk has been accepted throughout the country as the very foundation of the modern, sanitary burial. Joint Sewage Hearing Develops Knotty Point

"It's the law of the land," declared William A. Coddington, before Vice Chancellor Lane yesterday, that private property can't be taken or to public uses without just compensation." Mr. Coddington was arguing against the right of this municipality to maintain and operate a sewage disposal plant in Middlesex Borough, in conjunction with the Boroughs of Dunellen and North Plainfield, to the manifest injury of property owners in the vicinity. Mr. Coddington combatted the proposition advanced Monday by J. Edward Ashmead, of Lindabury, Depue & Faulks, that, inasmuch as the location and construction of the disposal plant had been approved by the State Board of Health, pursuant to an act passed in 1910 that lent to such construction full legislative authority, the operation of the plant could not be enjoined on the ground of nuisance.

When Mr. Codington declared that the Constitution of the United States

d: "Apparently our Court of Errors has until recently been wrong, Mr. Ashmead's legal proposition.

The injunction suit, brought by John H. Sebring and others, first came on for final hearing before the Vice Chancellor Howell in May, 1916, six months before the plant was ready for operation. At that time Mr. Ashmead raised the same contention as to a court of equity's jurisdiction to entertain the suit, but Vice chancellor decided to go on with the taking of testimony and hear the legal questions injected into the case by Ashmead in abeyance of the conclusion of testimony and argument.

On resumption of the long intermitted hearings before Vice Chancellor Lane Monday, Mr. Ashmead restated his point for the vice chancellor's benefit, and cited cases, in particular, one decision by Justice Beasley, in support of his contention. It was these decisions that the vice chancellor had in mind when he said that the New Jersey Court of Errors had "apparently nullified" the constitution guarantee relied upon by Mr. Coddington.

Tentatively holding the position taken by Mr. Ashmead to be legally sound, the vice chancellor consented to the taking care of the testimony of the witnesses in attendance, that they need not come back, but said that he would hear further argument on Mr. Ashmead's contention yesterday. Upon conclusion of the resumed argument the vice chancellor said he was of the same opinion still, namely, that the question of law should first be passed upon by the Court of Errors on an appeal from his dismissal of complainants' bill. He suggested, however, that the pleadings be amended by the filing of a supplementary bill, in order that the issue might be squarely presented to the higher court, inasmuch as the plant had now been in operation

Coddington urged that while the disposal works were located and constructed with the approval of the State Board of Health, that body had not approved the method of operation. "The act of 1910," Mr. Coddington said, "does not in a declaratory sense give the defendant municipalities the right to continue the disposal works in operation if such operation constitutes a nuisance. The Legislature never intended to give to a municipality the right to maintain even the most scientifically constructed plant if its operations results in nuisance."

"I think that the Legislature intended that very thing," the vice chancellor made rejoinder. "I don't say," he went on, "that the Legislature meant that persons injured by the operation shouldn't be compensated in some manner, but the legislators must have had it in mind that

Who Can Answer "Charlie" Hand?

Charles H. Hand, who erected more than 150 buildings of all sizes in Plainfield and who at the present time is one of the largest taxpayers in the city, makes it a point to keep in touch with municipal affairs. As a subscriber to the Record, he noted the article in the last issue telling of plan to commence an agitation for ommission form of government and as made it a point to offer a few uggestions why the new form of official management would be advisable. Mr. Hand has a reputation of being a spade a spade and does not ace matters when he has anything n his mind as the following communication to the Record will show:

Editor, The Record:

The article in last week's Record, telling about plans for commission form of government in Plainfield takes me as being pretty good but does not go far enough in specifying reasons why we should have a change. The City Hall and new joint sewer propositions are only a few of many that we could ask about if we bought information about civic affairs. In thinking things over, the following came to my mind and I present them in the form of interrogations:

1. When is the city going to sell the old sewer beds on Rock avenue, the "sanitary plant" on DeKalb avenue which has gone to rack and ruin, the old Carr lot at Plainfield avenue and Third street, which is an eyesore to the neighborhood?

2. When are the people going to be full fact about the City Hall site and when may we expect to read that reception in the building by the Mayor originally scheduled for January 1, 1918?

3. Why should we be called upon to spend $35,000 on the new joint sewage disposal beds when they have only been in operation a year and if a little bit of grease thrown down the kitchen sink puts the whole system out of kilter, why should we go on dumping in good money after bad?

4. Why should an official of the fire department be given a month's leave of absence without any apparent good reason or explanation to the citizens?

5. Why is Building Inspector Doane any better to walk than was Health Inspector Addis, who is about the same age and who tramped about the city for years without any private horse and runabout or automobile to help him along?

6. When are we going to get a live Board of Trade in town or enough public spirited citizens to keep manufacturing plants like the Standard Aeroplane from moving elsewhere?

7. Why do not more New York and Brooklyn people come to this city to make their homes?

8. Why is it that we have so many cliques here, none of which do the city any good?

9. If I have been informed correctly the Edward V. French is to receive $100 a month as clerk of the works "until the City Hall is constructed," is his salary going on forever or is there to be some termination before the original amount appropriated for the building is exhausted?

CHARLES H. HAND.

Simon Hirsch Held for Trial

Simon Hirsch, the West Front street women's furnishing dealer, was this week arraigned before Judge James C. Connolly in the County Court at Elizabeth on a charge of "fraudulent representation in advertising all wool skorts." The complaint was made by the Plainfield Business Men's Association and is being pressed by Assistant Prosecutor *Martin O'Connor. Through his coun*sel, Harvey Rothberg, of Judge William Newcorn's office, Hirsch entered a plea of not guilty and trial was set down for February 14. Bail for the defendant to the amount of $400 was furnished by Leo Slonim.

The indictment of Hirsch was brought about by the Business Men's Association after a close investigation of the merchant's methods had been made. It is alleged that a large number of witnesses have been secured to give testimony at the trial.

LOCAL MEN ENLIST IN ORDNANCE DEPARTMENT

Joseph J. Greene, of East Seventh street; George V. Gulick, of West Third street, and Ralph Runyon, of East Fifth street, were this week accepted in the Enlisted Ordnance Corp National Army and assigned to duty at the Scott Press Works, this city. All three were Government employes before enlistment and for this reason had to go to Washington for physical examination and classification. Washington will be their official headquarters but they are liable to detached duty anywhere in this country or abroad.

Both Mr. Greene and Mr. Gulick are former employes of the Standard aAro Corporation and have had a wide experience in manufacturing plants. Mr. Runyon has had a wide reputation as an athlete, being especially proficient in running and jumping. He has won numerous medals in these events at big meets throughout the country.

MUCH SMOKE; LITTLE FIRE.

The borough fire department was called out at 6:25 last night for a fire in the basement of Mrs. Goldstein's plumbing establishment at 64 Somerset street. Heavy volumes of smoke poured out of the windows but it proved to be due to burning bags of oakum. The blaze communicated with a few floor beams but one stream of water was sufficient to kill the blaze. The damage is placed at about twenty-five dollars.

Lincoln

By J. WATSON

The painted hands on the painted watch that hangs above the door of the jeweler's store point to eighteen minutes past eight, the hour and the minute when Abraham Lincoln, sixteenth President of the United States, seated in one of the boxes of the old Ford Theatre in Washington, April 14th, 1865, felt the shock of the assassin's bullet.

The maniac who lifted his pistol and aimed it at "Lincoln's" heart, aimed it at a heart that "bore malice and envy to none." A heart that was fathomless in the depths of its infinite love for all mankind. A heart that was the homing place for the kindred spirits of Charity, of Pity and of Mercy. A great warm heart where the sorrows of all found refuge and comfort. The heart of one of God's good men, attuned to the pulse-beats of Heaven. "Lincoln" died mourned by all the world.

Booth, his murderer, with broken limb, died in a ditch—died snarling like a rabies-crazed dog—a fitting death for so foul a beast.

Every year as the martyred President's birthday draws near from gifted pens flow eloquent words of tribute to his memory. But nothing written by the poet's pen, or uttered by the tongue of eloquence equals in power or beauty "Lincoln's" own simple words that flowed from his heart one day on the shell-pitted field of Gettysburg:

"For there he stood we are told
Proclaiming in language sublime
That our land in immortal youth would bloom
Three times and more."

LINCOLN'S GETTYSBURG SPEECH.

(Address at the Dedication of Gettysburg Cemetery, November 19, 1863.)

Fourscore and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent, a new nation, conceived in liberty, and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting-place of those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—this ground The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power, to add or detract. The world will little note, nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion—that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain—that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom—and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth. [An accurate version of the Gettysburg Address as revised by Mr. Lincoln and printed in "Autographs of our Country's Authors," Baltimore, 1864.]

Nurses Enlist For Red Cross Service Abroad

The National Red Cross Society yesterday announced the enlistment of two local young women in the nursing division for field service. They are Miss Ethel E. Humparey, of Park avenue, who has been chief nurse in the Visiting Nurses' Association in this city for the past two years, and Miss Eleanor Schenck, of Scotch Plains, also a member of the Visiting Nurses' Association. Both have been assigned to two years' service in the Jefferson Memorial Hospital unit, of Philadelphia, which has recently been recruited to full strength in anticipation of early departure for France. The unit numbers 200 doctors and orderlies and 100 nurses.

Both Miss Humphrey and Miss Schenck were graduated from Muhlenberg Hospital's training school, the former in the class of 1909 and the latter in the class of 1913. They practiced their profession in this city before receiving appointment to the Visiting Nurses' Association. At a meeting of the board of directors of the association this week the two "recruits" were given leave of absence during the entire period of their service in Red Cross work and will be re-appointed to their positions on their return to Plainfield, should they so desire.

Miss Helen Wilpee, also of Park avenue and a member of the class of 1910 of Muhlenberg Hospital, entered the Red Cross service some time ago and has also been assigned to the Jefferson Hospital unit.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE NEXT SUNDAY.

The eleventh annual lecture for the First Church of Christ, Scientist, will be delivered in Proctor's Theatre, West Front street, Sunday, February 10, at 3:30 o'clock, by Francis J. Fluno, M. D., C. S. D., of Oakland, California. He is a member of The Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church The First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, Mass.

Dr. Fluno had the privilege of studying Christian Science with Mrs. Eddy, personally, and has lectured on this subject for a number of years. Those interested in this subject should avail themselves of the opportunity given them of hearing him.

MOTOR TRUCK'S LOAD BRINGS VISIONS OF "TERRIBLE DISASTER"

Rumors that a disabled auto truck, which was taken to the Mono Garage on East Fourth street, was carrying a load of nitro-glycerine, caused Chief A. D. Jennings, of the fire department, and Chief P. S. Kiely, of the police department, to conduct a hurried investigation last night.

It was found that the auto truck was heavily laden with steel bound iron casks similar those in which explosives are shipped but the driver of the machine insisted they contained only dye stuffs. The chemical works at Bound Brook, he said, was shipping the consignment to New York, from which point it was to be sent to London, Eng. The officials of the Bound Brook company were gotten on the telephone and stated positively that the casks were filled only with chemicals that were non-explosive but would burn readily if placed near an open flame, just the same as gosaline or any other volatile liquid would. The two chiefs accepted the statement but made the request that the consignment be gotten out of Plainfield as soon as possible. It is probable the truck will be repaired sufficiently to be able to proceed today.

The rumor of a possible explosion because of the presence of casks was greatly heightened when a New York truck driver, sent to Plainfield to tow the disabled machine to its destination, refused point blank to have anything to do with the outfit. He declared there could be nothing else but explosives in the consignment and he immediately set out for the return trip to the city, pushing his machine to the limit in order not to be within a radius of a few miles when "a second Halifax disaster" took place.

FROZE HIS THROAT.

William F. Wilson, of Front street and Clinton avenue, had his throat badly frozen in the extreme cold of last Tuesday. He drove his automobile about town for several hours without realizing the full extent of the frigid atmosphere until he returned home and found his throat greatly swollen and very painful. He found it necessary to seek the services of Dr. F. B. Cregar to secure relief, but still feels the effects of his unusual experience.

OFFICIALS PAY INCREASED.

On a recommendation by the alms committee, the Common Council at the meeting Monday night, voted to increase the salary of Overseer of the Poor Garret T. Dunham from $1,040 to $1,200 per annum and that of the superintendent and matron at the Industrial Home from $675 to $750 per year.

Coal Situation Improved Today

Old Sol's warm rays in the past two days have gone a great way toward relieving the coal situation in Plainfield but so far as incoming consignments are concerned there is very little difference than what has existed for the past two weeks.

No coal reached Plainfield today, but fortunately there were few callers at the Commissioner's office on oNrth avenue, everybody deciding that there was no special need of hurry at this time. Four cars were delivered at the freight house yesterday morning. The contents of these were quickly doled out but as the big rush of Monday and Tuesday dropped off, there was enough to go around. A few odd lots were left over for delivery today.

The mild atmosphere that eleven cars were started for Plainfield yesterday and should reach here by tomorrow or Monday, thus giving assurance of a good supply early next week.

A. C. Wadley, of the firm of Wadley & Goodenough, who is acting as one of the coal commissioners, makes the request of the people in this district not to become irritated if coal ordered by card is not delivered within a few hours. The men and teams from every yard are being put to the limit and have to cover all the territory from Netherwood Rock avenue and from upper North Plainfield to the city line on the South. As the coal is all taken out in quarter-ton or half-ton lots, it requires one team almost all day to put out a few tons. Those who have been given cards will receive their coal but the delivery may not occur on extreme occasions for two days.

Mr. Wadley also states that the inconvenience of standing for an hour or two in a big crowd before being waited upon at the Coal Commissioner's office has been done away with. There are now eight or ten assistants helping out each day and no one should be kept in line more than ten minutes. He suggests that those needing coal apply for it now while the moderate weather prevails as the rush will undoubtedly begin as soon as the thermometer takes another drop toward zero.

Provost Marshall's Latest Order Indicates Summono Will Not Stop When City's Original Quota of 203 Selectives Is Secured. Next Contiegents Begin to Leave for Camp Dix February 23

Prospects that Plainfield's original quota of 203 men for the National Army may be increased to include

fficial communication to the local Exemption Board received yesterday, it appears that the remaining thirty-four per cent. of the 203 selectives designated last summer should be in readiness to proceed to Camp Dix beginning February 23. They will be ordered out in delegations of from ten to twenty for the five succeeding days after that until the full number is in the cantonment.

From then on, the communication states, the adjutant general will call for other selectives as they are needed to fill up gaps in certain divisions. No specified quota is given but the inference is that practically all the men will be summoned from Class 1, Division A, before spring has well advanced. A total of about 500 men in Plainfield are included under this classification and of these 200 have been examined. The remainder are to appear before the examining board either tomorrow, next Wednesday or the following Saturday.

Of the 200 examined last Saturday and Wednesday, ninety were accepted for general military service. The others were placed in the deferred class for special service, dismissed because of physical defects or held over for further examination. The work has been carried on at the Evergreen School, where the Exemption Board and a big staff of physicians is handling the registrants as they appear in delegations of fifty. Many of those accepted the past week had previously been accepted in the examinations of last fall but went through the physical scrutiny for the second time because of the re-adjustment of classes. One of those accepted for general military service is Charles Drake, who was sent to Camp Dix with the big delegation last September, but who was returned after failing to pass the army medical doctors. The local board decided that he met all requirements as far as its instructions were concerned and the camp staff would have to sent to Camp Dix previously but who were returned by the doctors there, were re-examined the past week and placed on call for special service.

The Plainfield board makes the request that all registrants who file appeals or send any communications to the local exemption officials be sure to give both their order and serial numbers, as it greatly facilitates the work of the organization and enables the registrant's case to be considered much quicker. Provost Marshal General Crowder's order to send the remaining quota of selected men to the various camps beginning February 23 will affect 74,000 registrants who have been placed in Class 1, Division A. Of this number, Camp Dix is to receive 7,000.

The disposition of the 200 men examined at the Evergreen Avenue School the past week was as follows:

Accepted for General Military Service

David Turner
Joseph Pisano
Vincenzo Apisa
Thomas P. Duffy
Isadore Levine
Philip Phillips
Oran Hull
Alfred T. Slauson
Herman Hopson
Charles M. Barnes
Clarence Pickell
John M. Doyle
Lawrence Powers

Charities Aid In Yearly Meet

The annual meeting of the Union County Committee of the State Charities Aid and Prison Association was held at the residence of Mrs. Tiffany in this city, the past week. The committee greatly regretted the retirement of Mrs. Allan Cowperthwait, who was obliged to decline renomination as chairman, owing to war exigencies and consequent removal from Plainfield. C. Ames Brookes as secretary, and Rev. Dr. Read as treasurer were renominated and unanimously elected.

A communication from T. F. Haviland, chairman of the Prison Farm Committee of the board of Freeholders, reported that the committee was holding weekly meetings and working with the sheriff and warden, also was arranging to place the building in a tenable shape in relation to heat, water, etc., and was hoping to have the premises ready for the reception of prisoners in the early spring. Warden Hughson, of the county jail, assured the committee that he prisoners would be employed uring the entire year as soon as the farm was in operation.

Also it was reported that at a meeting of the Charity Organization Societies of Union County, held in Cranford last summer, R. C. Calhoun, of the Elizabeth C. O. S., was delegated to bring the matter of a Union county almshouse before the freeholders at a special meeting. This he did, and the Board voted unanimously favoring the plan. The Union County Committee was glad to know that the Elizabeth officials did not favor any extensive changes in the Elizabeth almshouse, until the Freeholders had come to a definite decision in the matter, all plans to be held in abeyance until the close of the war. The committee expressed the desirability of the same action in connection with the Plainfield and Rahway almshouses. Leslie R. Fort, recently appointed chairman of the alms committee of the Plainfield City Council, had made favorable mention of the Plainfield almshouse, and both in it and the Rahway institution the inmates are kindly and generously cared for, though the old buildings are inadequate to the carrying out of the more modern and improved methods of management.

By the request of Mrs. Henry F. Johnson, of North Plainfield, the committee endorsed the legislative bill No. 15, providing for the appointment of a salaried commissioner having charge of all penal institutions. Also, by the request of Miss Mabelle C. Phillips, of this city, the bill providing for the appointment of a judge for a juvenile court was endorsed.

Miss G. L. Sutton, of Elizabeth, elected as chairman to succeed Mrs. Allan Cowperthwait, who had been active in organizing work in Monmouth county. In connection with child welfare, was reported as strongly in favor of making an extensive survey of the condition of children in Union county, whereby special classes may be established for various types of inefficiency. This need having been clearly proved, the State may be asked to provide competent teachers for these children.

Frost Bite and Illness Follows Bus' Stalling

Frost bite and illness marred the trip of thirty Young Women's Hebrew Association members and ten male friends Monday night to Perth Amboy. After receiving a beating at the hands of the Perth Amboy Y. W. H. A. basketball team, the members were held at Woodbrook Farms when their auto bus broke down on the way home. Miss Rose Rosenberg and Miss Sadie Markovits became ill and were removed to a nearby farm. They attributed their illness to some oysters they had eaten.

Walking two and a half miles to this city, Napoleon Austen, of Madison avenue, driver of the bus, obtained another machine and returned to the stranded party. The relief bus also became stuck in the snow a few minutes after taking on the passengers. Most of the young women were cared for at nearby places until other machines arrived. Austen was brought home suffering from frozen hands and ears.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The Knights of Columbus War Camp Fund committee will meet at the Columbus Club next Tuesday night to hear final reports on the recent campaign in this city. So far as known the amount collected was about $12,000, although the sum may be enlarged through belated contributions coming in. Plainfield's quota was $25,000 and though it was not secured, the committee feels elated at receiving as much as it did as local citizens have been responding generously to other drives. The quota for New Jersey in the Knights of Columbus national campaign for $10,000,000 was about $750,000 and the amount so over-subscribed. Orange was given a quota of $35,000 and raised $50,000; Elizabeth oversubscribed a $25,000 quota by $13,000, and Newark went "Over the Top" of its $100,000 allotment by about $15,000.

The board of directors of the Y. W. C. A. this week elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Charles Hyde, honorary president, Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, vice presidents, Mrs. Joon Gray Foster and Mrs. Elliot C. R. Laidlaw; treasurer, Miss Ethel Titsworth; secretary, Mrs. John Y. Brook.

Big initiation classes continue to be the rule at the meetings of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias. At the regular session tonight, several candidates will be given the first degree and irectly afterward twelve pages will receive the rank of esquire. The work will be followed by a social session. Arrangements are now being completed for the celebration to be held in connection with the recent membership campaign which was won by Senator William N. Runyon's team.

Bishop H. L. Birleson, of South Dakota, addressed the Women's Auxiliary to the Board of Missions of the Episcopal church at a neighborhood meeting in Grace church parish house, Wednesday afternoon. He was heard by a large and highly interested audience.

John C. Knox, assistant United States district attorney in New York, addressed a large gathering in St. Stephen's church parish house, Netherwood, last night, on the subject, "Dealing With the Alien Enemy in New York."

Before United States Commissioner Hitchcock, in New York today, Samuel Schwartz and his brother, Harry Schwartz, will be given a hearing on a charge of using the United States mails to defraud. As officers of the Cameon Realty Corpbration, the men are said to have represented building lots in South Plainfield to be located in Bound Brook.

Orville James, of this city, was arraigned before Judge James J. Connolly in the County Court at Elizabeth, Tuesday, on a charge of stealing shoes from the Globe Shoe Store on West Front street. He entered a plea of not guilty and trial was set down for February 20. United States Commissioner F. J. Pfaff was assigned to defend him.

Charles F. Ivins, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt C. Ivins, of Hillside avenue, has been named as principal for first appointment of the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, upon the recommendation of United States Senator J. S. Frelinghuysen, to fill one of three vacancies at the academy. Mr. Ivins took the preliminary examination for Annapolis early in January, and the fact that he has been amed as principal shows that he passed a highly creditable examination. He has a brother, Clinton, who is in the Government service.

Dr. George E. Vincent, son of former Methodist Bishop John H. Vincent, and a former resident of Plainfield, will be given a reception at the Lotus Club in New York tomorrow night in honor of his assuming the presidency of the Rockefeleir Foundation. Many distinguished men will be in attendance. Dr. Vincent resigned as president of the Minnesota University to accept the foundation presidency. He was graduated from the Plainfield High School in 1875, and since leaving Plainfield has frequently returned for visits. Vincent chapel, of the First M. E. church, was named in honor of his father.

A combination of children and matches started a fire in a bedroom at the home of Wesley Hall, at 302 Madison avenue, Wednesday morning, which resulted in the fire department being summoned. A bed was destroyed and other damage occasioned to the extent of twenty-five dollars. The children escaped harm from the flames but suffered severely at the hand of parental indignity later in the day.

The following vice presidents of the Monday Afternoon Club were elected at the regular meeting this week: Mrs. Duncan W. Taylor, Mrs. C. G. E. Larrson, Mrs. John B. Tapon, and Mrs. C. B. Munro, as treasurer.

Albert Martin, Carl Nellson, Samuel Neill, Edward Dwiels, Harold Scranton, Charles McCormick, Carl A. Gullberg, James S. W. Tunnison, all of this city, have been selected from among the men at Camp McClellan to be transferred to Camp Hancock, at Augusta, Ga. Sergeants H. J. Vogel and Robert McGoldrick, of this city, have been designated to enter the musketry class in the divisional school at Camp McClellan.

Rehearsals are now in progress under the direction of Miss Etta Robert for the presentation of the sacred cantata, "Ruth, the Gleaner," at Trinity Reformed church on Thursday and Friday nights, February 14 and 15. A large cast and chorus will interpret the principal parts, and much care is being exercised in the preparation of costumes and scenery. The presentation will be under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society.

The Young Peoples' Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church, at its annual meeting held at thehome of Thomas Fitch, of Park avenue, Monday night elected these officers: President, William F. Doane; vice-president, Miss Jean Dayton; secretary, Miss Ernestine Wilson; assistant secretary, William H. Tease; treasurer, Miss Edith Bush; assistant treasurer, Frederick Attlee and Murray Stalker. The following were chosen as heads of committees; Prayer meeting, Roy Coakly; membership, Thomas Fitch; music, Mrs. Charles B. Hellyer; lookout, Miss Ethel Hall; social, Miss Grace Hunt.

The Loyal Band of Trinity Reformed church, observed its teneh anniversary in the Sunday School rooms Tuesday night. An attractive program was enjoyed which included selections by the Dutch Arms Band. Henry Seader, is the leader of the Loyal Band and there are now thirty eight members on the roll. These officers were elected at a business session during the evening: President, Mrs. William Trembath; vice-president Mrs. A. Zimmer; secretary, Mrs. Albert Jackson; treasurer, Miss Louis Hahn.

The members of the Watchung Avenue Presbyterian church, tendered a reception to Rev. Dr. John T. Kerr, of Elizabeth, the acting pastor, at the church parlors, Wednesday night.

Mayor W. L. Smalley, of North Plainfield, Tuesday took over the supply of coal at the Harrison Avenue School for distribution among the residents of the borough needing fuel.

"WHEN FOR COAL YOU GO."

When now a man must buy some coal
He wears out many leather soles;
In running here and running there
It makes his life too hard to bear.

When now the coal is almost gone
He rises in the early dawn,
And hastens now to get in line,
And wonders if he's then in time.

With sinking heart he gazes 'round
To find so many hither bound.
From everywhere they now appear—
It seems that new the whole town's here.

The man who now controls the fuel,
The wagons, horses and the mule,
Tenders you a most lengthy blank
To fill out with your name and rank.

How much coal you now desire,
The size and shape to make your fire,
The kind of house you now live in,
How many rooms are there within?

MowH much coal you used in the past,
How long now can you make it last,
How much now have you got on hand,
How much do you expect to land?

Are statements true in every way?
Then in advance you all must pay.
With blank filled out you hand it in,
You get your card with cheerful grin.

Then to coal office you must go,
Where all are standing in long row;
With peaceful feeling in your soul
At last you've reached the longed-for goal!

Down in your pockets for the chink.
"When will I get it?" now you think.
Coal man says, "In a day or so."
And then for home you blithely go.

A day goes by and then some more.
All kinds of wagons pass the door;
Through icy panes you gaze in vain—
You gaze some more and then again.

At last the longed-for wagon comes,
Into cellar the chute now runs,
A few lumps often and chute comes out.
You wonder what it's all about.

So thus I'll end my tale of woe,
For coal may come and coal may go.
It goes much faster than it comes—
The next I hope to count by tons.

But just a word to this I'll add,
To get so little makes us sad:
The fool man is a kindly man,
And does for us the best he can.

What Becomes of the Dollar Spent At the Hippodrome

A dollar has changed a great deal in size in the course of the last two or three years. A dollar, in fact, used to be a respectable member of the financial family in good and regular standing. In the old days you could even buy something with a dollar in addition to changing it for car fare.

Those days are no more. Introduce a dollar bill today to a bushel of potatoes, a bag of flour or sugar or coal, and then—boy, page Mr. Houdini! The dollar has vanished. But there is one last stronghold from which the dollar has not yet been ousted, and that is Charles Dillingham's "Cheer Up!" at the Hippodrome.

A dollar is probably buying more sheer joy, pressed down and running over, in that huge playhouse than it ever did before. In the first place there is no war tax on laugater. And there is plenty of laughter at the Hippodrome, with the shining eyes of children to add to the more joyful eyes of sophisticated grown-ups.

But to get down to real money values. That dollar which you pay at the Hippodrome ticket office has to be stretched and pulled to cover so many items in the organization of the biggest show in the world that it really is a wonder that it can stand the strain, especially in war times when dollars have developed a shrinking proclivity that is positively appalling.

It costs the big playhouse $30,000 a week to operate. That thirty thousand has to be divided and subdivided into forty different fractions to cover all the departments of the organization. And your dollar as an integral part of the whole must submit to the same divisions.

Say fifty-one cents of it go for the stage salaries. For of course, the people who entertain you are entitled to the first whack at the dollar. Out of the fifty-one pennies must come the salary of half a dozen different stars, any one of which would be enough to carry an ordinary show. Houdini the Handcuff King must get about eight cents of your dollar for his disappearing elephant mystery and his thrilling submerable box stunt wherein he smilingly risks his life twice a day.

A few more cents of your dollar buys Sybil Vane, the pocket prima donna who was the sensation of Convent Garden before the war, and whose pure vibrant tones fill the big theatre, although the little songstress stands just 4 ft. 9 inches in her dainty stocking feet.

May Wirth, daring little queen of circus riders, with the whole Wirth family supporting her in "The Circus Modern," will walk off with at least ten cents of your dollar. Then Bluch Landolf, funniest of funny clowns—every child, yes, and grown ups, too, will vote Bluch a fair share of the fifty-one cents. And the six Berios, whose svelte and stunning forms, in spectacular dives and one piece bathing suits make the last cheer particularly cheering, should get at least a cent apiece.

Willie Evans, king of the hoboes, must get his pennies, as must the four Amaranths, acrobatic dancers, and the spinning whirling Arabian acrobats under Slayman Ali. And surely three cents must be left out for the chorus of four hundred girls, with half a dozen songs and as many changes of costume. Oh, and two cents for the elephants, without which no Hippodrome show would be complete.

Of your other forty-nine cents, the first and biggest item is the cost of operating of the greatest theatre in the world, with the blocking front on Sixth avenue for which twelve cents must be allowed. Then five cents must be reserved for the Hippodrome orchestra of some sixty men, with Raymond Hubbell himself leading them through the spirited strains of the music he writes each year for the big show. Five cents more will just about pay for the advertising and publicity, which informs the big public what is going on among the 1,075 people who make up the army that begins to draw salaries when the Hip opens its doors each day.

Another five cents must pay the salaries of the forces in the front offices, including two cents worth of ushers and doormen, to see you safely inside and pilt you courteously to your seat in the playhouse.

And what is left of the poor exhausted, attenuated dollr bill is simply passed around for light and heat, for the force that keeps the Hippodrome clean and shining, for costumes and properties, for the detective who watches your valuables, for insurance and storing facilities. The fact that the dollar is still able to stand the strain is one more reason for the perenial popularity of the greatest and best governed playhouse in all the world.

"Du Barry" With Miss Theda Bara Coming Next Week

The great William Fox photoplay, "Du Barry," in which Theda Bara does her most brilliant work, will appear at the Plainfield Theatre on Monday and Wednesday, February 11 and 13. This play is the most wonderful creation of its kind that has ever been presented on the films. All that Miss Bara has done only gives a suggestion of the charm and elaborateness of this great production.

The story is a historic one, which many have attempted to write, and it has even been seen upon the stage, but it remained for the films and Miss Bara to give to the world the revelation of the character of this wonderful woman. It is known that the great actress spent a long time in studying the times of Louis XV and the woman who pervaded them, before she attempter the creation of this photoplay. There is no doubt that she has succeeded in a marvelous manner in grasping the subject, and in putting it upon the screen.

One of the most remarkable features of the play is the dresses that Miss Bara wears, which were specially designed by her, after long consultation with experts on the period of Louis XV. These dresses are peculiar, however, in one way. They might easily appear in drawing rooms of today. Every one of them is a study of the art of womanly adornment, and is a thing of beauty in itself.

Miss Bara has discovered and revealed a thousand little details of the womanly toilette which will be immensely interesting to every woman. These secrets are revealed upon the screen in a most fascinating way, and make the film additionally attractive to all whom women charm.

In this play Miss Bara does her best work, due to the fact that she has grasped the possibilities of the drama and has entered into it with a spirit which only she possesses. There are myriads of gorgeous scenes each filled with brilliancy and charm.

In addition to the "Du Barry" feature film, the program at the Plainfield next Monday and Wednesday will include a specially selected vaudeville offering of all-star acts.

A SLIGHT FIRE.

The fire department responded to a telephone alarm Tuesday afternoon at 4:25 for a chimney fire at the home of Dr. Peebeles, Park avenue and East Seventh street. The blaze was put out with chemicals before any serious damage had occurred.

Asks Mayor's Aid to Further War Insurance

Mayor Calkins announces the receipt of a communication from the New Jersey State Council of Defense urging publicity in advising the relatives of soldiers and sailors to induce men enlisted in the army and navy to take out war insurance. The notice states that the time expires on February 12, and that a large number of the men in the National service still remain unprotected. The Government has figured that the low rate at which the insurance is offered places it within the reach of all the enlisted men; and in the interest of those dependent upon them it is highly desirable that they protect themselves. Relatives of enlisted men in the various camps of this country should write them immediately and urge them to give immediate consideration to this matter.

County Engineers Favor Arrow Shaped Markers

Arrow-shaped signs for road markers are recommended for New Jersey in a report jus made to the State Association of County Engineers, a copy of which was forwarded to the State Highway Commission by the association's highway sign committee. The report is the result of a survey of states east of the Mississippi River, and the form of marker selected as the most desirable is that now in use in Connecticut.

The members of the engineers' committee are R. P. McClave, of Bergen county; Thomas Wasser, of Hudson county, and George Cooper, of Monmouth county. In its report the committee says no attempt may be made to establish a national standard for road signs, but that it believes some consideration should be given the future use of the markers and that the best obtainable design should be adopted.

Some regulation of advertising signs, used for road markers, is also desirable, the committee believes. It finds some of these signs give excellent service, but favors giving official markers preference, with those privately owned, if acceptable, given secondary positions on the roads.

The arrow sign recommended conspicuously carries the name of the most important town on the route and the two towns nearest the sign in smaller, but legible, lettering.

Eight of the states with which the committee communicated were ready to co-operate in a movement for standardized signs. They are Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Illinois, New Hampshire, North Carolina, Virginia and Wisconsin.

Becometh and Behooveth Mr. Wadsworth, Mr. Lodge, Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Roosevelt and All Their Phonographic Cult, to Chirp Like a Cricket, Not Roar Like a Lion

An Editorial by Martin H. Glynn in The Times-Union, Albany, N. Y., January 28, 1918.

Today the people of this country are divided into two camps. Those who wanted war at any price.

And those who hoped for peace, peace could be maintained, without the sacrifice of national honor.

Now we are at war and we have the astonishing anomaly of the leaders of the "war-buzzards" trying to saw the vitals out of our Commander-in-Chief, while the great majority of those who stood for peace, while peace spelled honor, are upholding the President's hands as Aaron and Hur upheld the hands of Moses in his battle with Amalek.

The present volcanic attack against the war policies of President Wilson is no haphazard incident. It is a well-laid plot, nicely trained and strategetically timed. Its purpose, no matter how secretive its sponsors, how insinuating its methods, how seductive its arguments, is to give the Republican party a majority in the next House of Representatives and to pave the way for a Republican President in 1920. From a political point of view this may be tolerable: from a patriotic aspect, in a national crisis like this, it is odious and detestable.

The business of the nation today is to win the war, and the political leaders, for party gain or personal aim lay the slightest obstacle in the way of the happy consumation of this business, clothe themselves in diabolical livery and surround their political machinations with a brimstone scent, a sulphurous odor offensive to people who revere patriotism in politics but abhor politics in patriotism.

For months Col. Roosevelt has been injecting politics into the war through his articles in the Kansas City Star and Metropolitan Magazine. With craft and caution he has planted a bomb intended to blow President Wilson out of political existence and in this "Guy Fawkes" plot he has had the unctious assistance of Senator Lodge of Mass., and the crafty support of Senator Wadsworth of New York. But cunning and unconsciousness can not win a contest like this. The mountain of truth is too big to be disclored by such daubing brushes; the facts too potent to be minimized by finish dissimulation or distorted by cunning qualification.

The Bible says, he who draws the sword, shall perish by the sword. Well, Roosevelt and his followers first drew the political sword in this dispute, and with their assumptive valor they should not cry for quarter before the blade of their own rapier.

For sixteen years before the present Democratic administration, the Republican party was the custodian of the welfare of this nation and in all those sixteen years if did but little to put this country on a basis of adequate preparation for war. Grover Cleveland started the American navy on its way to imperial strength; but Theodore Roosevelt, as president of the United States, inaugurated a naval program that curtailed the Cleveland policy. Great as our navy is today, it would be far greater still, if the policy of Cleveland had prevailed and the plans of Roosevelt buried in the bottom of the sea. And as it was in the navy, so was it with the army; for Theodore Roosevelt left the army of the United States weaker than he had found it seven years before.

No sooner, however, had Woodrow Wilson, with his panoramic view of the history of the world in peace-time and in war-time, his thorough knowledge of democratic aspirations and economic possibilities, his sympathy with the masses and his consideration of the classes—no sooner had he become President of the U. S. than the wheels of progress were set in motion to equip this nation as never before she should have been prepared for the handling of contingencies of an international nature.

The rehearsal of all the legislation of Pres. Wilson to carry out this progressive program would be superfluous here. The world knows it by heart. It enshrines him a splendid place in of the annals of statesmanship. It is the unmistakable triumph of the democratic yearning with which the heart of mankind throbs and pulses today. And it carried Woodrow Wilson to a wonderful victory in 1916 against an avalanche of money and a labyrinth of intrigue.

His Federal Reserve Bank Law, which McAdoo, the famous English economist said was of more worth to the world than the Panama Canal, saved this country, with the advent of the war, from the most stupendous panic in history and enabled us to ride the tumultuous waves of "world war" finance with hardly a squeak or a tremor of our old ship of state. Without this Federal Reserve Bank today the United States would be grinding and pounding on the rocks of disaster.

Now is this all.

From a vision almost prophetic came the Federal Revenue Bill which raises a large portion of governmental revenue from internal taxes instead of from tariff imposts which under the baneful influence of war destructed to a sum insufficient to provide lubrication for our years of government, let alone provide fuel for the treasury boiler that makes the wheels of national life go round.

Our national experience, since the war started must carry conviction to every fair minded American that for these two measures alone we owe an ineffable debt of gratitude to the wisdom and the statesmanship of Woodrow Wilson.

And of our military realm, we have the selfsame tale.

Theodore Roosevelt may indulge himself in all the weird juggling of language that pleases his fancy, he may inoculate himself in such inspired diet of emotional frenzy as may give fire to his tongue and flare to his imagination;—but the fact remains undeniable, ineffaceable, irremovable, that in two years of antebellum days Woodrow Wilson did more to put our army and our navy on a footing for war than both William Howard Taft and Theodore Roosevelt did in the whole eleven years of their supine realm.

During these two years prepardness for a possible war was pushed by President Wilson as far as the sentiment of the country would permit and quite as fast as even the most violent of his present-day critics then deemed expedient or politic.

Suddenly, however, conditions created by the autocratic dogmatism of Germany disregarding treaties and throwing promises to the winds, hurled us into the seething whirlpool of war. Then the very men who had been at the helm of the ship of state for sixteen years, the men whose policies had weakened the army and the navy, began to howl because we could not equip a million men over night and put them in the trenches of France in a day. They forgot the experience of England; they forgot the experience of France; they forgot their own neglect of our martial strength; they forgot everything but their own personal advancement and their own political advancement.

Mythology tells us that Minerva sprang full-armed from the mind of Jupiter, and, despite the fact that so many mythological miracles has passed, these acrimonious critics demanded that the United States whittle rifles out of the air and by some sort of prestidigitorial art transform a million civilians into full-trained veterans before the sixth sun had risen at the rising of the sun. What these critics had failed to do in sixteen years, they insist that Woodrow Wilson should do in sixteen days. The wind listeth in the night, the dew falls, the stars come out, the mysterious work in magic charm and behold at dawn a full-grown mushroom whitens the lawn where at sunset only an embryonic stalk snuggled in the grass. This is the kind of marvel, this the kind of impossible legerdemain that Col. Roosevelt and his school demand should be duplicated in our military world. They demand that an invincible army be created over-night out of wind and dew, of starlight and moonshine. But they fail to provide the Aladdin's lamp with which to work the miracle; they fail to furnish the necromantic art wherewith to ram into a night the task of a decade.

And this miracle, too, they demand in the teeth of the hoary-headed truth that from the days of Washington, Franklin and Adams this nation has set its face against a militaristic policy. A large army, a potential military establishment, has been the ghost that has given this country sleepless nights for one hundred and forty years—a factitious ghost, perhaps; but nevertheless a ghost hyperbolic in its influence and awesome in its sway. And the navy, too, has been hampered by a short-sighted sentiment of the great interior part of the country whose congressional representatives persistently opposed large naval appropriations from fear of retrenchment against the "home-town" projects of their own native heaths. For this ingrained repugnance to a big army, an adequate navy, neither the Republicans of today, or the Democrats of today, are to blame. Thefault lies at the door of the predominate sentiment of the nation since 1776. And as we have sown; so today we reap.

General Winfield Scott, one of the world's greatest soldiers, compressed an historic situation in a nutshell when he said:—"Republics are never prepared for war."

The business of republics is peace; the business of autocracies is war.

Autocracy lives by the sword. The father and grandfather of Frederick the Great said so; Frederick himself said so; and so saith the Kaiser, and the Crown Prince too.

A love and a craving for peace, however, form the very genesis of a Republic. To this genesis Republics are true; from this genesis Republics depart only at the call of honor of the command of necessity.

Hence it is, though critics may forget, the people remember, that in eight months of war the United States under the leadership of Woodrow Wilson, has done twice as much and even more than England, and France did in the corresponding period of time. The accusations, the exacerbations the fabrications, the distortions of supercilious censors and envious-fanged contemners of the Wilsonian policies wear such a flimsy gossamer covering as to expose this political plot in all its naked baleousness.

We make no claim that the administration has created sunbeams out of cucumbers or performed feats beyond the pale of human possibility; but we do maintain that its efforts have been amazing, its accomplishments beyond compare in the history of modern warfare.

We have not whipped the Kaiser yet; but we will whip him if calumniating critics do not dampen the fires of enthusiasm or grease the tracks whereon must ride our national chariots of war. We have more men in France today than Roosevelt knows or Germany suspects; and a million more are waiting for the ships.

We have an army so well cared for that the death-rate in our ranks for the four months ending January 1, 1918, averaged only 7.5 per thousand—a death rate, mind, you less than the death rate for men of a like age in peaceful avocations.

Compare this with the death rate of 20.14 per thousand under the good old Republican rule of the days of the Spanish-American war. Compare these figures, and then applaud the Roosevelt charges, if you can!

True, we have made some mistakes, but in the magnitude of our undertaking, some mistakes were inevitable, unavoidable. In balance though with the wondrous achievements, these mistakes have been trivial and not worthy of the attention of the men who minimize their aims by piling a magnify molehills into mounains.

And furthermore, unlike the Spanish-American war, in which Mr. Roosevelt was a king-pin:

We have no army contract scandals.

We have no embalmed beef horrors.

We have no fat old generals going to war in carriages and leading battle charges from easy rocking chairs.

We have no unpleasant gossip about the appointment of political generals and society admirals.

We have no Round Robin Letters from presumptuous and inferior officers demoralizing discipline and exalting self.

In the face of these facts, the wild ravings of Roosevelt and his fellow political conspirators are boomerangs, pestilential to the ears and revolting to the sensibilities of others, but harmful only to the men who hurl them. On the estimation of thoughtful people these critics make no indelible impression. They may ruffle the surface of the pool of comment, but they stir not the depths of public opinion. And with Roosevelt, Lodge and Wadsworth as the chief creators of this curtain of camouflage politicians, led by the lissome and polititious misrepresentation, fanned by the sinister winds of political oratory,—there stalks forth from memory's closet the skeleton of Alger's embalmed beef with its concomitant stench; there looms into view the Commander of the U. S. Forces in Cuba, too fat to ride a horse, going into battle in ac arriage, and lolloping in a portable bath tub while our soldiers had no medicines to conquer tropic ills;—there looms into view this self same Commander in chief of U. S. forces in Cuba fighting his battles from the sensuous folds of a soporific hammock while through the stupidity and carelessness of an inefficient military medical force our soldier boys found typhoid fever more deadly than bullets from the Spanish guns.

And so in view of these verities which no political manipulation can snatch from history's page; in view of the official funereal-hued glories and the official scarlet-tinged scandals of the Spanish-American war; in view of Alger's embalmed beef of odoriferous memory; in view of inferior ships purchased by the government at superior prices; in view of the stigma and isgrace that typhoid fever killed more of our soldiers than Spanish bullets sent to their graves; in view of the cable which Dewey cut to save the navy from the malefic influence of Republican politics at Washington; in view of army contracts which brought a blush to the cheek and rage to the heart of the nation; in view of the attempt to deprive Schley of his share of glory in the Santiago victory; in view of the papier-mache generals created as a sort of "iron-cross" reward for services rendered the good old Republican party on many a bloodless field of politics—in view, in fine, of the bathos and the pathos of flagrant Republican mismanagement in the Spanish-American War, it becometh and behooveth Mr. Wadsworth, Mr. Lodge, Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Roosevelt, and all their phonographic cult, to chirp like a cricket, not roar like al ion.

Merchants Plan A "Dollar Day" On February 27

Wednesday, February 27, has been selected by the Plainfield Business eMn's Association for another of its "Dollar Days," those occasions when shoppers at the local stores are given splendid bargains at a cost of not more than 100 cents.

Preparations are now under way to make the coming "Dollar Day" the most successful of any yet conducted. Several new ideas have been introduced that will help bring merchandise to the attention of local people who are in need of it and at the same time benefit merchant and customer alike through the sale. The date of the opportunity for barbains is to be extensively advertised through all the surrounding towns within a radius of twelve miles.

At the meeting of the Business Men's Association Monday night it was decided to keep the stores of the *members open on the coming Lin*coln's and Washington's birthdays. Heretofore it has been the custom of the Plainfield merchants to aspend business for half a day on Lincoln's birthday and all day on Washington's birthday, but the upsetting of routine through Commissioner aGrfield's Monday closing order made the change necessary.

The association passed a resolution to the effect that it did not favor any plan to abandon number 1 fire house on West Second street. It was the opinion of the members that a station is needed in this location in order to properly protect the business district from the danger of fire.

Pay Your Income Tax or Someone Will "Peach"

Somebody is going to tell on you if you don't pay your income tax. Congress has fixed it so that somebody must tell, whether he wants to or not.

One section of the war income tax law, exhaustively comprehensive in scope, requires every person, without exception, and every corporation, partnership, association and insurance company, in whatever capacity acting, who paid $800 or more to another person, corporation, partnership, association or insurance company, as interest, rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensation, remuneration, emoluments or other fixed or determinable gains, profits and income, to report the name and address of the person, corporation, etc., to whom the payment was made, together with the amount of the payment, to the commissioner of internal revenue, at Washington, *using a form prescribed for the pur*pose—form 1099, now to be had from all collectors' offices. The forms must be filled and returned on or before March 1, 1918, accompanied by *form 1096, which is a letter of trans*mittal, and affidavit certifying the accuracy of form 1099.

Lieut. Crist and Comrades Express Thanks For Plainfielders' Gift of Xmas Candy

The Record is in receipt of an open letter from Dr. Chalmers L. Crist, of Park avenue, who as a lieutenant in the Dental Division of the 28th Infantry Medical Corps, is stationed in France. In the communication, he expresses the appreciation of himself and comrades for a consignment of candy, numbering sixty-five boxes, sent to him last Christmas by a party of Plainfield friends.

The gift box was gotten up by Frederick Kling and family, of Sandford avenue, and the contributors in*cluded Mrs. Maude Price and son*, Harold; Mrs. Charles A. Sturtevant, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Townsend and Mrs. William Schloss. Those with a "sweet tooth" who have been in a position to want some favorite sweet meat, without the ability of getting hold of it, can appreciate to its fullest extent the gratitude of "Doc" Crist and his associates as expressed in the letter as follows:

France, Dec. 31, 1917.

Mr. F. Kling,
Plainfield, N. J.
My dear Mr. Kling:

I am taking the liberty of writing this letter to the papers, knowing that through their medium all those who so kindly and thoughtfully donated the candy will know that same was greatly appreciated.

The day that it arrived was very cold and a Polar wind had been *sweeping down upon us, with a bliz*zard of sleet and snow, and the frost covered trees loomed up like monuments to the fallen heroes of this great war, the whole world seemed covered as if by a white shroud, it was just the sort of day that Santa Claus would choose to spread cheer and happiness, and he did choose this day, for my orderly came to my billet, bringing with him a large box, telling me that there were two more at headquarters of like nature for me. No doubt the letter advising me that they were sent was either lost or has been edlayed, but seeing your name on the boxes as the sender I found box after box filled with good cheer and candy, and a card giving the name of the donor. There were so many that I naturally did not have time to open many, otherwise I would mention the names. I then realized that a very pleasant duty had been assigned to me, that of being a Santa Claus.

It was a very happy time for me as I gave each squad leader one of the boxes. It is impossible for me to fully express their appreciation and gratitude. Some of your will hear from them—some of you will not, as there is naturally a great uncertainty of the delivery of mail during these times. If you do not hear from them, I can assure you it will not be due to lack of appreciation or gratitude. If you could have but seen the expression on their faces as I handed the boxes to them, you then would have been repaid in part for your kindness.

The officers were immensely pleased to know that their men were thought of, for they all take a great interest in their men. They with one accord said Plainfield must be a fine place—and it was, believe me, with a great deal of pride that I naturally answered int he affirmative and told them it's "The Plainfield Way."

I want to thank all of you who were instrumental in helping to bring this happiness to the men. I want to thank you on behalf of the men and endeavor me to perform such a very pleasant and happy duty.

Very gratefully yours,
CHALMERS L. CRIST,
1st Lieut. D. O. R. C.,
28th Inf., A. E. F. France.

"Knock-em-Dead Bill" Smith Describes Camp J. E. Johnston, at Jacksonville, Fla.

A large number of Plainfield *young men who enlisted in the quar*termaster's corps are at present stationed at Camp J. E. Johnston, near Jacksonville, Fla. One of them is William A. Smith, known among his friends as "Knock 'Em Dead Bill." Smith who at the time he entered the service was assistant manager of Swift Q Company's local beef house on East Third street. Because of his knowledge of the selection and preparation of meats he realized his value to the government and enlisted in the quartermaster's department at Fort Slocum last December. He was assigned to the First Provost-Butchery Company and was immediately sent to Camp J. E. Johnston, where he has since been located.

One of "Bill's" cronies when in town was "Jack" Hall, a member of the North Avenue Hot Stove League, which held sessions for several winters around Pat Melvin's "Boiler" at the latter's famous "beanery." In a letter sent to Hall this week, "Bill" tells all about the Florida camp and gives some interesting gossip that might be appreciated by his local friends. He tells of meeting Clifford Cole of the undertaking firm of Cole & Hich, and "Bennie" Rosenson, two Plainfielders who are in the same catonment. His letter in full is as follows:

Camp J. E. Johnston.
February 1st, 1918.

Dear Jack:

At last I have found the time and ambition to write you a few lines in regard to army life. So far we have had things pretty easy, only having exercises and drills every day. Saturday afternoon and Sunday are holidays for us down here, so we get into town once in a while. Jacksonville is about 10 miles west of the camp and is a pretty nice city. Of course, you cannot compare it with any city of its size in the North. For my part there is nothing in the South outside of the warm climate, that compares with us up North. At present we do not have to worry about coal, but once in a while we get a cold spell and have to start up the furnace which is in the center of each barracks. The barracks down here are two stories high and each accommodate 64 men. They are well built, also plenty of ventilation. We have to be good boys when in the army, as the lights go out at 9 o'clock and we get up at 6:15 a. m. I have gained 5 pounds since enlisting, so you see army life and I agree.

As for the eats we get plenty. The food we get is plain, but you never get up from the table hungry. If you do it is your own fault. When we first came down here, I could not drink the water, owing to the strong sulphur smell and taste. Now they have overcome that in some way, but it is not like that we have in Plainfield.

This camp here is for the quartermaster's corps only and at present there is about 20,000 in camp. Among the few I have met is Ben. Rosenson and Cliff Cole of the old town. The camp is about 3 miles long and a mile wide. At the end of the camp is a tent city of about 100 tents. They are all right to live in, until it rains and believe me we have some heavy rains once in a while. In the camp we have some fine brick roads; some are not completed as yet. The country through here is pretty level, so it makes a good trip for anyone to come out to the camp. Sometimes we see a woman through here.

Saturday and Sunday is when we generally see them. The Y. M. C. A. and the K. of C. are doing great work and without them camp life would be dreary. They both deserve the support of all people, as we can get plenty of writing paper and envelopes and many littlel uxuries from them.

Every Thursday evening the K. of C. hold boxing bouts and you have to come early to avoid the rush. The officers encourage sports of all kinds. Every day we have a game of ball, between drills, and sometimes hold a regular field day among our company. I am at present in the First Provost-Butchery Company and from the looks of it we will be leaving the U. S. A. pretty soon. You know us butchers have the contract to take care of Kaiser Bill when they get him. Along with this letter I am sending you a copy of Trench and Camp, which is issued weekly. I think you will enjoy reading it.

Pass my regards along to all my old friends and say I am in the best of health and spirits. I suppose you miss the old stove in Pat Melvin's this winter! I know I would if I were in town.

Tonight this letter will find you in good health and spirits (not Scotch) and that you are "knocking 'em dead" as usual. I remain,

Your friend,
BILL.

Pvte. Wm. A. Smith,
1st Prov.-Butchery Co.,
Camp J. E. Johnston,

Public Service Allowed An Increase in Rates

The Board of Public Utility Commissioners *Tuesday afternoon allow*ed the application of the Public Service Gas Company and Public Service Electric Company for immediate charge of what is known as "the twenty-five-cent service charge" against users of gas, and a proportionate increase to the commercial power users of electricity.

Counsel for the companies told the board at the hearing at the State House there was such an increase in the cost of operating the plant it was necessary to take the action which will net them about $1,485,000 annually. E. G. C. Bleakly, counsel for the city of Camden, said after hearing that his municipality would most likely ask for a rule to show cause why the order should not be revoked. Payment of the new charges must be made the first of every month.

SENATOR RUNYON'S HOSPITAL BILL.

By the terms of Senate bill No. 84, introduced by State Senator William N. Runyon, of this city, the hospitals of the county may soon share in an appropriation of $75,000 instead of $50,000, which is now apportioned to them through the Board of Freeholders.

The bill has already passed the Senate and seems likely to pass the Assembly and receive executive approval. The increased allotment is sought because of the rising cost of maintaining the various hospitals of the indigent patients of the county. Several of the hospitals have found it necessary to apply for an increase of their allowance from the county, and to meet this requirement the increased appropriation is asked from the State authorities.

By alloting moneys to the various hospitals the county is not compelled to maintain its own institution for indigents. Each institution receives its share of the hospital fund to aid county patients.

Bonnie Burn sanitarium for tuberculosis patients is the only exception to the rule, and hospitals will not take tuberculosis patients. It costs the county $115,000 to maintain Bonnie Burn and it would be a greater burden than the $75,000 asked for the various hospitals if the county were compelled to maintain its own hospital for indigent patients.

The $50,000 appropriation at present made gives the following institutions the amounts credited to each: Elizabeth General Hospital, $18,000; St. Elizabeth Hospital, $12,500; Alexian Hospital, $7,000; Plainfield, $7,000; Summit Hospital, $3,500.

In case the $75,000 is available the freeholders might find some way to increase this year's appropriation, having the power to increase individual appropriations five per cent., but not to exceed the budget amount over ten per cent.

Should the bill go through, it will mean that Muhlenberg Hospital's share of the increase will be $2,000, a sum not to be sniffed at in these times of inflated values and pressing needs. It may seem small to some but will enable the board of governors to carry on their eleemosynary work with much better satisfaction to themselves and the patients who have no other place but the hospital to go to when illness becomes their lot. Senator Runyon's measure is worthy of commendation and support.

THE WIDENING OF WATCHUNG AVENUE.

To some of the citizens who heard of the Common Council's plan to widen Watchung avenue, it may seem that such an undertaking at this time is an unnecessary step. If such be the case it will be because the individuals in question have not given the matter the proper attention.

It is quite true that Watchung avenue seems to be wide enough now for all ordinary purposes but it has gotten to be one of the city's most important thoroughfares and is rapidly taking on increased business activity. Like many other streets about town, however, it lacks a prohibitive building line, that is, a limit to which structures may be shoved forward to the sidewalk. As it stands now there is an irregular frontage of the buildings and the only way to everoome a difficulty such as this in the future is to establish a line that will make all building uniform hereafter. This cannot be done without widening and that is why the Watchung avenue improvement is to be brought about by the Common Council.

The only fault that can be found with the action of the City Fathers in this respect is that the improvement does not go far enough. Instead of being framed to include only the block between Front and Second street, the ordinance should include the entire stretch from Green brook to the Jersey Central Railroad bridge. The proposed line is clear the greater part of the way but there is no telling how long it will remain so. A large structure on the Durlach property at the Front street corner would mean almost prohibitive expense and should property owners between Front and Second street decide to build out to the recognized sidewalk line there would be the possibility that the widening could never be accomplished.

The citizens have had examples of this on several previous occasions. One of them was on Somerset street from Front street to the bridge, where a splendid chance for an needed improvement was allowed to go by before the United building was erected on the Gloekler property. The councilmen who passed up that chance will some day be referred to in anything but soft and soothing terms. The congestion at that corner even now is deplorable and what it will be a quarter or half century can only be estimated at this time.

Park avenue is another example of what could have been done with a minimum of cost if some official had acted at the proper time. The narrowness of the sidewalk on the west side of the avenue between Front and Scond streets is a thorn in the sides of both officials and business men and though some entertain fond hopes of a widening in the "sweet bye and bye," the chance of betterment is further off now than ever before. The expense of shoving back buildings is too great in these days when three dollars have to do the work that one could do before. If a proper building line had been put in effect long ago, Park avenue would be in much better condition today.

By all means, widen Watchung avenue and let it be for three blocks instead of one. If the city goes ahead and does it perhaps some day the borough will follow suit and the two municipalities will have a business thoroughfare they need feel no shame in showing visitors. The widening is needed and the uniformity of building fronts may show the people what could and should be done in other parts of the business district.

OFF-SETTING THE GOOD OF "HEATLESS" MONDAY.

It is well nigh impossible to figure out what sort of patriotism permeates a large number of Plainfield merchants. They know full well that when Commissioner Garfield issued his "workless" Monday order it was to save fuel and give the railroads a chance to emerge from their transportation tangle. The only way this could be brought to a successful issue was by everyone accepting the decree as a national necessity and doing everything possible to promote the Commissioner's idea.

Three of the suspended business days have passed by with a large amount of coal saved. Now, the Plainfield merchants have decided to keep open on *Lincoln's and Washington's Birthdays, hithereto ob*served as a half-holiday and holiday, thus off-setting one-half of what was accomplished by the Monday closing. Mr. Garfield figured that the two anniversaries would be included in his plan and if the shopkeepers of every city went against his wishes, all the inactivity brought about by "heatless" Monday would be for no purpose.

Patriotism is not a quality intended for a few. It is meant for everybody and the individual who seeks to get around a certain point meant for the best interests of the entire nation, is not doing his duty by the men who are to be responsible for success or defeat. The merchants can do their bit by closing on the coming holidays.

SAVING FUEL BY SAVING DAYLIGHT.

President Wilson has given his approval to the Calder daylight saving bill, which has been passed by the United States Senate and which is now pend*ing in the House. The plan contained in the bill* is to set the clocks ahead one hour in the spring and back again in the fall. The author of the plan, which was originally proposed by Benjamin Franklin more than a century and a quarter ago, estimates that it will save at least a million tons of coal yearly.

In the opinion of those who have studied the situation, the fuel shortage cannot be overcome for several months, perhaps in not less than a year. Within a few weeks the days will be of such length as to enable the country to gain the full hour of daylight by simply setting the clocks ahead, and the saving of a million tons of coal this year is well worth while. That will be sufficient to supply the Public Service Corporation with fuel for the next twelve months.

Public sentiment favors the Calder measure, and the sooner it is enacted into law the better it will be, not only for this country but for our allies in the war. Sufficient time has been given to its consideration in Congress and the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce should report it without further delay and press the bill to a vote.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

You have noticed, no doubt, that those ancient citizens who are always talking about "the old-fashioned winters" have had bad cases of lock-jaw the past few weeks.

—o—

The Elizabeth Home Defense League is making preparations for a big entertainment to be given the latter part of the month. We have it on good authority that one of the features of the program will be a comedy skit entitled "Carrying Coals to Newcastle," with the scene of action laid in Plainfield.

—o—

The "John J. Kenney" accepted by the local Exemption Board for service in the National Army is not our friend of coal fame. The "Baron" is over the draft age and besides he doesn't have to go to France for a fight. He has one of his own at the Council chamber rooms every week-day morning.

—o—

A lot of Plainfield people are making sarcastic remarks about Dr. Garfield because he permitted dances to continue on heatless Mondays, explaining his actions by saying he believed dancing was "edu*cational.*" Don't see why these kickers should pick the coal administrator out for their ironical abuse. The Courier-News has even gone further as on Wednesday night of this week it classified the following under the head of "Education:" "Eddie Marks, Jazz Orchestra;" "Vacuum cleaning done at your home by the hour or job;" "Dr. L. H. Abeles, Chiropodist, Woodhull-Martin Building;" "Local and Long Distance Moving by I. Steinman & Son;" "Why not have your bathroom tiled, Thomas H. Ross," and "Economy Auto-Radiator Works."

—o—

Red tape was knocked all to smithereens by Mayor "Bill" Smalley this week when he found that some of his constituents needed coal to keep their homes and children warm. He sallied over to the Harrison Avenue School and took out a sufficient amount of fuel from the reserved stock to tide over the situation. He asked nobody's consent nor did he propose to stand any interference when it was a case of absolute emergency. Somehow or other it puts us in mind of the time when Brother "Newt" was chief executive of the borough. He told the Plainfield Street Railway Company to stop running "pneumonia" expresses through the corporate limits. The railway officials said there was no law which gave the Mayor permission to designate what kind of cars they should run, but they woke up when they tried to persist in the practice. "Newt" stationed his chief marshal at the Somerset street bridge and every car that failed to pass approval was refused admittance in to North Plainfield. The Somerset street line was out of commission only two hours when the railway heads realized that "Newt" Smalley had an original way of doing things. Seems as though Mayor "Bill" is not far behind his brother in doing the right thing at the right time.

When George E. Firstbrook assumed the editorship of the Greenwich, Connecticut, Press, the Record predicted that the bloated bondholders of the "Billion Dollar" town would get some real news on the front page of their favorite newspaper. In corroboration of our statement we reprint the following lifted from a star box in the lead column of the Press the past week and bearing the caption, "Mule Feasts on Pies:"

"Greenwich can boast of having in her midst a mule who doesn't believe in 'Feedless Days,' or going hungry occasionally when pies are near at hand.

"Said mule was pulled up to the curb by its driver in the rear of Conklin's pie bakery wagon, which was standing in front of Luke Whalen's lunch wagon on Greenwich avenue yesterday at the noon hour.

"The pie salesman had entered the lunch emporium to take an order from Mr. Whalen and, when he returned to the wagon he discovered the mule busily engaged in devouring the stock of pies. According to his records twenty-three pies were consumed.

"It practically depleted his stock with the exception of the lemon pies which the mule 'passed up.'"

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When folks made their own soap and put it in the attic to dry?

When the best baseball lot, the finest coasting hill and general all-around playground for the boys was in the yard of John Laing's hotel on West Front street?

When the aerial hook and ladder truck soon to be discarded by the Plainfield fire department, first came to town and was considered the greatest piece of fire apparatus in New Jersey?

When "Phil" Breen, afterward, "Chief of Police", kept the hotel near Tier's lake on a point where Watchung is now located?

When officer Sleeper refused to let the boys out of the first Methodist church, "eel pot" when the fire bell rang, because they made too much noise rushing down the stairs?

JOINT SEWAGE HEARING DEVELOPS KNOTTY POINT

persons living in the immediate vicinity of such works would have to bear with the resulting discomforts."

When Mr. Coddington in the course of his argument adverted to the pollution of Green brook, into which stream the plant's effluent discharges, the vice chancellor interrupted him, saying that he need not stress that point.

"It," he added, "the other side should have any number of witnesses testify to the contrary, I wouldn't believe that the brook is not being polluted."

This declaration by the court was received with manifest interest, quizzical glances being cast in the direction of expert witnesses in attendance waiting to be called to testify "to the contrary," among them Captain Charles Hommon in full uniform. The captain is stationed at Camp Gordon, near Atlanta, Ga., and his specialty as consulting engineer is sanitation and the treatment of sewage to render it innocuous.

There was a degree of comfort for the objecting property owners of Middlesex borough also in a remark by the vice chancellor that he would "have no difficulty with the facts," if the Court of Errors should determine that the disposal works cannot be operated in such manner as to create a nuisance.

Thirty-four witnesses on Monday condemned the disposal plant as a nuisance by reason of the foul odors engendered therefrom and the swarms of moth flies bred in the sewerage beds.

The plague of flies, which were described as of a breed so small that screens afforded no protection at all, in the opinion of several witnesses, was responsible for the death of a number of cows pastured within a half-mile radius of the plant, while others were said to have been blinded by the pests.

Even the extreme cold of the last several weeks, witnesses averred, did not mitigate the malodorousness of the plant. Mrs. Francis Bogart, for instance, after describing the smells as "indescribably nauseating," was asked when she had last perceived them. Her reply was "Yesterday," and it drew from the vice chancellor the comment: "That's near enough."

A fair sample of the kind of testimony adduced was that of Mrs. Caroline Habermann, who lives on her own property in the Greenwood road about half a mile from the plant. After telling how "terrible" the odors and the flies are, Mrs. Habermann testified that about four years ago she put all her money in the four-acre tract on which she lives and so was "compelled to stay." The flies, she testified, would settle in swarms on the wash hung out to dry and if she attempted to brush them off with a whisk broom, their remains simply discolored the clothes, necessitating a rewashing. Last Friday and Saturday the odor was "very bad," the witness said.

Mrs. Josephine Trust, who lives on a fifty-acre tract of which she is part owner and which is on the market that the estate may be partitioned, testified that no one wanted the place because of the nearness of the disposal plant. She told further that before the plant became operative she used to entertain a good many friends from the city at her place and also kept boarders, but that since the plant has been in operation her friends shun her place, while boarders are no longer to be thought of. "No one wants to stay on the place any more," Mrs. Trust declared.

Her son, George Trust, corroborated her story, and added to it that in the summer of 1917 six cows sickened and died, in his opinion, from the effects of the plague of flies and the pollution of Green brook, into which the plant's effluent discharges.

At the outset of the hearing it was contended by J. Edward Ashmead, of Lindabury, Depue & Faulks, in behalf of the defendant municipalities, that inasmuch as the disposal plant was constructed with the approval of the State Board of Health, under a statute which lent to such construction full legislative authority, the plant could not be condemned as a nuisance.

Vice Chancellor Lane at first dissented from Mr. Ashmead's expostulation of the law, as did also, as a matter of course, William A. Coddington, counsel for the complainants. But Mr. Ashmead was able to cite cases that upheld his contention that such damage as is set out in the bill of complaint is "damnum absque injuria" (damage with out injury). In other words, a damage for which the courts can afford no remedy.

After perusing the several cases handed up by Mr. Ashmead, the vice chancellor asked Mr. Coddington how he proposed to get away from the Court of Errors rulings cited by his opponent. Mr. Coddington's reply was that the same contention had been raised when the case came on for final hearing before the late Vice Chancellor Howell and that the latter at that time concluded to go on with the taking of testimony and hold the legal question injected by Mr. Ashmead in abeyance until final argument. In conformity with such ruling, Mr. Coddington further informed the court, Vice Chancellor Howell did go on and take testimony for the most part that of experts, for three days, and the case was then adjourned, with the result that Vice Chancellor Howell, who died in September of that year, 1916, never heard it again.

Vice Chancellor Lane, however, said that he did not feel disposed to go with the taking of a great volume of testimony, that he would hear more testimony after Monday. The legal question raised by Mr. Ashmead, the vice chancellor said, ought to be first threshed out both before him and before the Court of Errors and it would depend upon the latter tribunal's finding whether complainants could go on with their equity suit.

New Members Already Secured for Y. M. C. A.

The workers engaged in the Y. M. C. A. membership drive were much encouraged last night, when it was reported that about one hundred and fifty new members had been enrolled the first three days of the "Big Drive" for 500 members. The success that has been attained at the start has greatly encouraged the various committees and the belief exists that when the campaign closes the full number desired will have been secured.

It is the earnest wish of the association officials that every old member renew his connection with the Y. M. C. A. as the association must keep its home base strong if it wants to continue the great work among the soldiers and sailors in the camp and overseas. The Y. M. C. A. is introducing many new activities and hopes that every man and boy will avail himself of this opportunity by joining the association. If you have been overlooked by one of the team workers, please fill out the coupon found in this issue of the Record, and mail same with check to the Y. M. C. A.

In his statement to the men and boys of Plainfield in connection with the membership drive, Secretary Baxley made the following remarks:

"We are counting on your co-operation. The association is doing a great work among the soldiers and sailors of the United States and her Allies. No other organization has ever attempted its like. The position held by the association is not therefore the result of an accident. It is as logical as it is unique. It is the result of years of efforts and success at the home base.

"The efficiency of the home base measures the efficiency of an army. Back of every man in the trenches are five at the base. If our splendid contributions of men and money to the army Y. M. C. A. work are to continue, higher standards of conservation work at home must be maintained. We cannot do this without your hearty support.

"We are planning many new and worth while activities this year, which will be in keeping with the spirit of the times. In view of the fact that war conditions are temporarily holding up the new building plans, the directors have decided to make a few changes in the present building. Messrs. Hodge and Brady will soon vacate the stores on the main floor, and the men's or senior department will be installed in those fine big rooms. The boys' department will be brought from the third floor to the second floor, and the third floor will then be turned into dormitory rooms and educational class rooms. These changes will enable the association to put on many new activities and to accommodate at least 500 new members. We want you as one of these new members. Come in and help us 'Keep the Home Fires Burning.'"

GIVEN JAIL SENTENCES.

"Mike" Cumisky and Hugh Breen were each given sixty days in the county jail when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the City Court this morning on a charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct. They were arrested last night by Patrolman Martin. Cumisky is an old offender and was only recently given his freedom after serving six months at Elizabeth.

GEORGE YORK IMPROVING.

District Court Constable George York, who has been seriously ill at his home on Columbia avenue for the past two weeks, is now improving steadily and may be about again in a few days. His physician, Dr. William H. Anthony, has advised a trip to Florida for a complete cure and he may possibly go South for the remainder of the winter.

ELKS' ANNIVERSARY.

Plainfield Lodge of Elks will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Elks' order by giving an entertainment and reception at the Watchung avenue club house tomorrow night. The affair will be in charge of the entertainment committee, of which James Hart is chairman and will be for the benefit of the Elks and their friends.

WESTMINSTER GUILD GIVES ENTERTAINMENT

A very interesting program was presented by the Westminster Guild at the First Presbyterian church last night, with "The Family Album" the principal feature. The entertainment was attended by a capacity audience which greatly appreciated very number.

In addition to recitations and a barnyard talk by Allen Beals, those taking part in the "Family Album" portrayal were the following: Mrs. Florence Disbrow, Miss Alma Laird, Miss Edna Hyatt, Miss Winifred Palmer, Miss Sue Farland, Miss Betty Price, Miss Betty Palmer, Miss Margaret Swain, Miss Belle Williams, Miss Clara Kerner, Miss Elizabeth Manning, Mrs. Frances Woodland, John Johnston, Samuel Harper, Howard Satterfield, Nestor Albert, Carl Klutz, Joseph Angerbauer, Alfred Smith, Newell Karner and Allen Beals. A further number, "The Winding of the Maypole," was given by nine little girls. Miss Phoebe Herrmann's solo, "Just a Song at Twilight," as a part of the "Family Album," was very sweetly rendered. "Loves Old Sweet Song" holds within its gracious melody the silken thread of memory that links the Silver and the Gold:

PHOEBE

"LOVES OLD SWEET SONG"

(Sung as a songbird sings)

Just a song at twilight
When the lights are low
And the flickering shadows
Softly come and go
Tho' the heart be weary
Sad the day and long
Still to me at twilight
Comes loves old sweet song

Just a song at twilight
I saw last night in the roseate light—
That glowed on a concert stage
A girlish face, with the winsome grace
And garb of a by-gone age,
From her beautiful throat came a beautiful note,
Of music—that rippling on—
Carried away my thoughts to a day.
When I first heard "Loves Old Sweet Song."
Comes loves old sweet song.

Sweet and low, soft and slow
An echo came back down the trail of years
Of a story told, that never grows old—
When whispered by sweetheart to sweetheart ears.
When the last sweet notes from the beautiful throat
Of the singer flowed over the silent throng,
The glistening prize of tear-wet eyes
Was won by "Loves old sweet song."

COLLES CASE NAMED AS SANITARY EXPERT AT HOUSTON, TEXAS

Collis H. Case, of East Front street, who enlisted last summer as a member of the U. S. Medical Corps, was this week appointed by the Government to be Chief Sanitary Inspector of the Military District at Houston, Texas. This includes full supervision of the city itself and Camp Logan, located just outside the municipal limits. Mr. Case has been acting as Inspector for the Plainfield Board of Health during the past five years and tendered his resignation to that body Tuesday night in order to leave as soon as possible to take up his new duties. He will proceed South via Anniston, Ala., commencing today and will stop off at Camp McClellan for a brief visit before reporting at Houston.

The appointment has been received by Mr. Case's friends with a great deal of favor as he is looked upon as being capable of handling the big tasks that confronts the official taking charge of a military district. He was graduated from the Plainfield High School, studied later at the Mount Hermon preparatory school and was taking an advanced course in medicine at Columbia University when the war broke out. Shortly afterward he volunteered his services to the Government and passed all examinations with exceptionally high percentage marks before being assigned to a medical unit now on call.

The young man gained a wide practical experience in sanitation through his connection with the Board of Health and also as health officer for Roselle, holding the latter position for several years. He is of a progressive disposition and may be counted upon to show splendid results in maintaining proper sanitary conditions in the Texas district. He has the power of appointing his own assistants and will do this when he reaches Houston. Mr. Case is the son of Mrs. I. L. McVoy, of East Front street, and has one of the largest circle of acquaintances of any young man in the city. All who know him wish him the best of success in his governmental position.

FORMER RESIDENTS RENEW ACQUAINTANCES

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bond, who were well-known residents of Plainfield about twenty years ago, spent the past week-end in this city as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sears, of West Sixth street. Their home is now at Richmond Hill, L. I., and Mr. Bond is connected with the Brad street agency in New York.

When the old "Plainfield Boys' Club" was in existence in the '90's, Mr. Bond acted as the first manager and developed the organization into a most worthy enterprise. Scores of boys who are now representative men in the community were provided with clean wholesome amusement and afterward taught the rudiments of many trades and professions. The headquarters at first were in what is now the Depew building at Park and North avenues, but were afterward removed to the old Plainfield Bicycle Clubhouse on Sycamore street, since made a part of the Laing garage and at one time used as police headquarters. hTe membership in the height of the club's existence numbered about 500.

Mr. and Mrs. Bond left Plainfield when the former accepted the position of director of the George, Jr., Republic at Canaan, N. Y., located for the furtherance of American citizenship among boys, and strongly supported for many years by the late eNw York American. It is still in existence and continues to do a great work. Mr. and Mrs. Bond made a host of friends during their stay here and returned at intervals to keep up the old associations. They made use of the opportunity Sunday and Monday to call upon many old acquaintances, among them several Plainfielders who were members of the Boys' Club during Mr. Bond's regime.

PIONEER LUNCH WAGON OWNER VISITS IN TOWN

Among the former Plainfielders who made use of the past Sunday and Monday "vacation" to renew old acquaintances in town was "Jack" King, proprietor of the first lunch wagon brought to this city. He is now a prosperous resident of Webster, Mass., where he conducts a large cafe.

Mr. King came to town Saturday in company with his son, Lieutenant Clarence King, now stationed at Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I. They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Johnson, of Spooner avenue, near whom they lived when residents in Plainfield and between whom a strong friendship has always existed. "Jack" was only a young fellow when he came to Plainfield with the pioneer lunch wagon. It was located on the curb line at Second street and Park avenue and was not only an object of curiosity but a great "institution" as long as the novelty of eating within it continued. The proprietor did a big volume of business for several years and the wagon was still one of the most popular restaurants in town when he sold it to Ben Silverstein. The latter conducted the business for six years, selling it out to Joseph Myers, who still continues it in the rear of the Marsh building on East Second street.

After leaving Plainfield, Mr. King went to Massachusetts and eventually located at Webster, where he has been highly successful. He has new citizenship among boys, and strongly supported for many years by the late eNw York American. It is still in existence and continues to do a great work. Mr. and Mrs. Bond will bring him back for a brief visit with the "old delegation."

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

MISS H. LOUISE DEPEW.

Miss H. Louise Depew, aged eighty-two years, died Monday night, in her apartment at Truell Court. She had been in failing health for some time because of the infirmities of age. The funeral was held yesterday morning at the home of her niece, Mrs. S. H. Patterson, of 1171 Park avenue, and was in charge of Rev. E. Byers Stevenson, rector of Grace church, where the deceased was a member and faithful attendant for many years. Interment was in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

Miss Depew was born in New York and was the daughter of the late Joseph and Hanna Ackerman Depew. She had been a resident of Plainfield since 1885. She was a sister to the late Mrs. Carl Pfender, whose home was on East Ninth street and also of E. Holbrook Depew. She is survived by three nieces and three nephews. They are Miss Helen Pfender, Mrs. Stuart H. Patterson, of this city, and Mrs. August W. Kleinecke, of New York, and her nephews, R. Henry Depew, of this city; Carl Pfender, of Ridgewood, and Louis Pfender, of Cranford.

WILLIAM McCARTHY.

The funeral of William McCarthy, whose death occurred at his home, 648 East Sixth street, last week, was held in St. Mary's church, Monday morning. Rev. Father B. M. Bocan conducted the mass in the presence of many relatives and friends and numerous floral tributes were the evidence. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. McCarthy was forty-seven years old and had lived in Plainfield the greater part of his life. He was a mason by trade and held the office of secretary of the Masons' Union for fifteen years. Death came after an illness of more than a year although he had been confined to his home only about two months. He leaves his wife, one daughter, Miss Mary E. McCarthy, who recently returned to Plainfield after graduating at Madison, and three sons, William McCarthy, Jr., Michael J. and Francis P. McCarthy.

ISAAC WILLET DE KAY.

The funeral of Isaac Willet DeKay, who died at his home on Carlton avenue Saturday night, was held at the resident Tuesday night, and was in charge of Rev. D. W. Skellenger, pastor of Hope chapel. Burial was made Wednesday in the cemetery at Newton, Sussex county.

Mr. DeKay was born at Newton in 1860, and when only a young man entered the employ of Francis H. Leggett & Company, the New York wholesale grocery house. He was promoted to various positions until at the time of his death he held the title of senior salesman. His service with the concern covered a continuous period of thirty-eight years, one of the longest on record in New York's down town district.

Mr. DeKay's death came after an illness of nine weeks with a complication of diseases. His nearest surviving relatives are his wife and one son, L. Shepherd DeKay, of this city; a sister, Mis Cornelia L. DeKay, of Irvington-on-the-Hudson, and two brothers, William M. DeKay, of Newton, and Alfred C. DeKay, of Newark.

FRED DOUGLAS RANDOLPH.

Fred Douglas Randolph, aged fifty-two years, died Sunday, at his home on Cottage place, after a brief illness. He was born in this city and was employed as driver. For many years he held the reputation of being one of the best hunters in this section and is remembered by Plainfielders as being out with his dog and gun on the first day of the rabbit season every year. His only surviving relatives are his wife and one brother. The funeral was held at the late home Wednesday afternoon in charge of Rev. Mr. Hammond of Westfield, and burial was in Hillside cemetery.

MISS SUSAN McCOUN RAFFERTY.

Miss Susan McCoun Rafferty, a former well-known North Plainfield resident, died Sunday at the Marie Antoinette, New York, where she was spending the winter with her sister, Mrs. I. H. Bigelow. Miss Rafferty lived at Sycamore and Willow avenues until about ten years ago, when she removed to Denver, Col. Mrs. Bigelow, she leaves two other sisters: Mrs. Isabella Milne, of Denver, and Mrs. D. DeWitt Brokaw, of Sycamore avenue, the borough. Alexander Milne, of North Plainfield, is a nephew.

The funeral was held in New York and the interment was private.

ALEXANDER SMITH.

Alexander Smith, brother of Captain W. C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, the borough, died Monday night at the Soldiers' Home in Kearny, where he had been spending a portion of the winter. Death came after only a few days' illness with pneumonia. The funeral will take place at the deceased's former home in Keyport this afternoon and burial will be at that place.

Mr. Smith was a native of Monmouth county, where he was born ninety-two years ago. He was the oldest of ten children, seven girls and three boys. Only three are now surviving. Captain William Smith, who is the youngest of the family, is the only son.

Mr. Smith enlisted in the Fourteenth New Jersey regiment after the outbreak of the Civil War, but was later transferred to the Navy. He served throughout the conflict with great distinction. Despite his advanced age, he continued to be a great traveler almost up to the time of his death. He made it a point to come to Plainfield from Keyport several times each year and also visited relatives in all parts of the country. His last trip to this city was on Thanksgiving of last year, when he enjoyed dinner at the home of his brother, Captain Smith. He was the possessor of splendid health at all times and maintained his faculties until the end. He was visited at Kearny by Captain Smith on January 27 and at that time Mr. Smith attended church, according to his son. A slight cold contracted during the recent frigid weather brought on the pneumonia which caused his demise.

Beside his brother, Captain William C. Smith, the deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Jesse Johnson, and three sons, all living at Keyport; also two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Atkinson, of Freehold, and Mrs. Mary Walters, of Keyport.

JOHN HERRMANN.

John Herrmann, a former well-known resident of Sterling, who had been making his home in North Plainfield for the past year, died Wednesday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Herman Brenner, of Jefferson avenue, the borough. The funeral services was held at 10 o'clock this morning, in charge of Rev. J. T. Scheumann, of Sterling. Burial will be made this afternoon in the family plot in the Sterling cemetery. Mr. Herrmann was born in Switzerland seventy-one years ago, but came to this country in 1868. He located in Morris county and for twenty-two years had conducted a farm at Sterling.

The deceased is survived by six daughters and six sons as follows: Mrs. L. Ortman, Mrs. Gustav Wolfe, and the Misses Elizabeth and Phoebe Herrmann, all of Sterling; Miss Rosa Herrmann, of Juan, Cal.; Mrs. Herman Brenmer and Marshal John Herrmann, Jr., of North Plainfield; the Rev. Jesse Herrmann, of Cincinnati, O.; Frederick Herrmann, of Utica, N. Y., and Charles, Ernest and George Herrmann, of Sterling.

Plainfield Boys In Texas' Oldest City

San Antonio, or to give the city its full name, San Antonio de Bexar, to which many Plainfield boys have been sent as members of the Aviation Corps, is the oldest and largest city of Texas. In its busy streets the past, present and future of the State seem to meet. Rows of prehistoric hunting houses, and then cuddling confidingly against some modern little Mexican structures; with tumbling roof and age-stained walls. Dusky belles in black shawls mingle with the American throng; indolent dark-skinned youths curled in shaded corners smoke the inevitable cigarette, peacefully indifferent to the noisy motors and street cars. Texas of a century ago watches Texas of today with undisturbed repose.

Near the center of the city of today stands the Alamo, the Thermopylae of Texas. Here Travis, Crockett and their tiny band died and Texas freedom was born. The numerous cottonwood trees, under whose shade the good Catholic fathers walked so long ago, give the old mission its name. The State has now purchased the mission and the barracks in which most of the fighting took place, and has to some extent restored it to its old-time quaint beauty. "Remember the Alamo" was the cry that urged Houston and his men to victory at San Jacinto, and San Antonio is determined that the Alamo shall always be remembered.

When speaking of San Antonio you think Texan forgets its lonely title and gives it the affectionate diminutive of San Antone, for the city is the pride of not only its own inhabitants, but in spite of municipal jealousies it is regarded with proprietary affection by the whole State.

1,739 Cases In City Court During 1917

A total of 1,739 cases were heard in the City Court during 1918 and from these $3,503.55 was collected in fines, according to the annual report of Judge William G. DeMeza as submitted to the Common Council, Monday night. These figures are the largest on record from this department and show how greatly the work of the court has increased since the present magistrate first assumed his seat. Many of the cases on the docket required long hearings which resulted in dismissals after every detail of evidence had been heard.

Routine matters disposed of at the Council meeting at which the City Court report was heard included the following: The appointment of Jeremiah Cash, Thomas Gage, Joseph Haggerty, Joseph Delehanty, Thomas Harkins and W. Benton as special policeman; the promotion of John Wirth to be advanced from Class D to Class C; Thomas Bebout, Class E to Class D, and William Russ, Class E to Class D; the adoption on third reading of the ordinance changing the name of Union street to Kenyon avenue, and the approval of the Board of Education's appointment of Floyd T. Woodhull and Archibald Cox as members of the Board of School Estimate.

The financial budget for 1918, as presented at the recent public hearing, was adopted in full with the exception that $50,000 was transferred from the surplus account. On recommendation of the finance committee, two notes for $100 and $600 were borrowed in anticipation of taxes and a license to conduct an employment agency was granted Mrs. Martha A. Sage.

America Should Send 3,000,000 Men to France

Until the United States has 3,000,000 men in France, the war will not be won, Representative Miller, of Minnesota, who has just returned from the French battle front, told the House Tuesday.

"We must have 3,000,000 men and we should have 5,000,000," he said. "We are in a novel win the war by a revolution in Germany. Some slight eruptions may occur, but not sufficient to be of any particular value. There is just one way to beat Germany and that is to beat her army." Germany has 9,000,000 men, "perfectly trained and splendidly equipped," Miller declared. "The weak spot in our preparations to beat such an army is our weakness in the department of transportation. And British officers told me transportation is ninety per cent. of the game."

Summing up the submarine situation, Miller said the Germans had built all told 265 submarines and the allies had destroyed more than 100. Now submarines are being destroyed as fast as they are manufactured. With the return of summer there will be a large increase in the total tonnage destroyed by U-boats, Miller predicted.

He insisted that one step that must be taken to increase the efficiency of the shipping the United States has is to put the whole transportation problem in the hands of the navy.

Many Distinguished Officials Attend Trinity Inspection

Many distinguished personages in Templarism were present in Plainfield last Monday night, including practically all of the officers of the Grand Commandery of New Jersey.

The annual inspection of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, was the occasion for their presence in this city. The Knight Templar Asylum in the Babcock building was well filled by the local knights and their distinguished guests and the inspection of the Plainfield Commandery was conducted by Eminent Sir James A. Cortright, grand captain general.

The following distinguished visitors were present at the inspection, having previously been entertained at dinner by Commander R. F. R. Huntsman at his East Front street home: Right Eminent Sir Joseph MacDonald, Jr., grand commander of the Grand Commandery of New Jersey; Vice Eminent Sir Gilbert W. Chapman, deputy grand commander; Eminent Sir Henry F. Barth, grand generalissimo; Eminent Sir James A. Cortright, grand captain general; Eminent Sir Archibald G. Smith, grand senior warden; Eminent Sir Thomas H. Riddle, grand junior warden; Right Eminent Sir William Carman, grand treasurer; Eminent Sir John M. Wright, grand recorder; Eminent Sir William M. Muschert, grand sword bearer; Eminent Sir Charles H. Russell, grand warder; Right Eminent Past Grand Commander Nelson Y. Dungan; Right Eminent Past Grand Commander Josiah S. Davidson.

Commissioner Dill Ends Auto Reciprocity

The big New York corporations that have been sending their motor trucks into New Jersey on a New York license will not have to register their vehicles in New Jersey. The reciprocity agreement which carried a fifteen-day privilege will be discontinued.

New York has interpreted this agreement as meaning that all autos are allowed to operate in the other States for fifteen days, except cars owned by a corporation foreign to the State. Accordingly it has been compelling New Jersey corporations to register their cars even if they sent them to New York for only one day.

After receiving the first few complaints William L. Dill, commissioner of motor vehicles for New Jersey, communicated with the New York commissioner and learned that this was the construction the New York authorities were placing on the agreement. So Mr. Dill has made a similar rule to New Jersey.

"This is the only fair thing to do," said Mr. Dill. "New Jersey has always construed the reciprocity agreement liberally, and has allowed all motor vehicles the State's hospitality for fifteen days. Inasmuch as New York wants the lines drawn lighter we have nothing to do but follow suite."

Mr. Dill's inspectors will be placed at all the ferries beginning February 1, and will stay there for sixty days in accordance with the annual custom. The ruling does not apply to pleasure vehicles nor to business vehicles of individual or independent ownership.

Council Paves Way For Resuming Work On City Hall Job

Though no actual work has been done as yet since the contract of P. T. Kenny on the new City Hall was officially terminated, the Common Council is preparing to complete the structure without entering into an agreement with any other contractor. A competent man is to be hired to superintend operations as carried on by individual workmen hired for the purpose, subject to the approval of the architects, Peck & Bottomly.

This decision was agreed to at the regular monthly meeting of the Council, Monday night, on recommendation from the City Hall building committee, of which Mayor Calkins is chairman. The matter was brought to the attention of the Council in the following communication from the chairman's office.

To the Honorable, the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

The employment of Patrick J. Kenny as contractor having been terminated by action of your honorable body at its meeting on January 21, 1918, so that the City is now at liberty to finish the work on the new municipal building by whatever method may seem most expedient to determine, the City Hall Building Committee recommends that instead of entering into a new general contract a competent man of practical experience by employed by the City to superintend the work remaining to be done under the direction of the architects; and that the City thereupon proceed to finish the work itself, either by direct purchase of materials and employment of labor, or by entering from time to time into separate contracts on the several branches of work to be done, or partly by one means and partly by the other as may seem most advisable. We further recommend that the sum of two thousand dollars ($2,000.00) be appropriated from funds available for the construction of the building to be expended by the Building Committee in carrying the work forward without further authorization from the Common Council. We attach resolutions prepared by Corporation Counsel and recommend their adoption by your honorable body for the purposes above set forth.

February 4, 1918.

CITY HALL BUILDING COMMITTEE.
By Leighton Calkins,
Mayor and Chairman of Committee.

Tumulty Gets Credit For Open Theatres

Credit for the modification of the fuel restriction order permitting theatres to continue open on Monday, but to be closed on Tuesdays is due in a large part to the efforts of Joseph Tumulty, secretary to the President. Mr. Tumulty was a guest of the Lambs' Club in New York early last week, when a plan for the reopening of theatres was being discussed. He assured his friends that he would "go to the front" for them. He obtained an interview with the President for the delegation of theatre men on Thursday, but the members were so stage struck that they forgot to propose the Tuesday night closing.

Mr. Tumulty managed to get the plan before the Fuel Administration and favorable action followed.

A Joy Forever

YOU WILL NEVER GROW TIRED OF THE NEW EDISON DIAMOND DISC

The music of the great composers of years ago is living today and will live on far into the future. Why? Because it is a true expression of the human emotions.

And for the same reason you will find a greater joy each day in the possession of a New Edison Diamond Disc.

You will never grow tired of its re-created music any more than you would grow tired of the living tones if the actual artists could come to your home each day to play and sing for you.

But Mr. Edison, in his remarkable new musical instrument, has found a way to preserve this subtle breath of reality. Actual comparisons with the living tone, made in the greatest musical centers in the country, have proved this to be true. It is re-created music—pure, true, unblemished. It will thrill you a year from now—five years from now—just as truly as it will today.

Chief Jennings Favors Purchase of Aerial Hook and Ladder Truck

A fair idea of the activities and needs of Plainfield's fire department is given the laymen by Chief Andrew D. Jennings' annual report to the Common Council, submitted for approval at Monday night's meeting.

In it he states that during 1917 there was an aggregate of two hundred and twenty-one alarms. The total amount of property involved, buildings and contents, was $707,-172.51, but the loss was held down to the surprising figure of $42,507.-35. "This is a record that undoubtedly compares favorably with any municipality in the State and reflects great credit on the ability of the men.

Emphasizing the fact that he fully appreciates the advanced cost of all fire department supplies, Chief Jennings states in his recommendations that there are certain needs that should be attended to even though the price may seem prohibited at this time. He advocates the removal of the Fire Alarm system to the City Hall, the installation of additional fire alarm boxes and designating red lights, the placing of fire alarm wires underground, the motorizing of No. 1 chemical and hose wagon and the old No. 1 steamer now held in reserve and the *purchase of a seventy-*five foot auto, spring balanced aerial hook and ladder truck, in addition to others of a minor nature.

The Chief's statement in reference to the aerial hook and ladder truck came as a surprise to many who believed such a piece of apparatus was not really necessary. The old truck in service at the present time, but which is to be discarded as soon as the new, fifty-foot service truck arrives is an aerial extension but has gotten into the "antique" class. Its removal, however, will take away a valuable reserve and the Chief believes that he should not be deprived of an aerial apparatus. He quotes figures to show the height of buildings, the number of people employed on upper floors and the hundreds of school children that are well above the ground every day, and accordingly standing in need of adequate protection in the event of a conflagration. The Chief's words have already carried weight and the agitation commenced may result in an order for the aerial ladder being ordered in the near future.

The report has numerous details of the department's work, and requirements that are of decided interest to every taxpayer, and for this reason is given in full as follows:

To the Honorable Common Council of the City of Plainfield.

Gentlemen: I have the honor to submit herewith my second report of *the condition of the Fire Depart*ment for the year ending December 31st, 1917, giving the number of alarms and fires attended by the De*partment during the year, and the* amount of losses and insurance as near as can be ascertained.

Manual Force.

One chief engineer; one assistant chief; four (4) captains; thirty-one privates, ten of which are on trial, four appointed regular men this year, elected to fill vacancies, and there is still one vacancy to be filled *and one man authorized by the com*mittee but never put on.

Pension Roll.

Thaddeus O. Doane.

Houses.

There are four engine houses owned by city, headquarters building, Nos. 145 and 149 East Second *street, is occupied by the Chief en*gineer's offices, No. 2 hose wagon, No. 1 hook and ladder truck, No. 2 pumping engine (out of commission), Chief's car and Assistant Chief's car. No. 4 engine house, Nos. 206 and 208 West Second street, No. 1 hose wagon (horse drawn), supply wagon, and steam fire engine in reserve.

No. 3 engine house, Nos. 720 and 722 West Fourth street, *auto com*bination chemical and hose wagon.

No. 5 engine house, Nos. 1015 and 1017 South avenue, is occupied by a motor pumping, chemical and hose wagon.

Hose.

There are 11,550 feet of hose in the department, 2,300 feet in good condition. Hose tested, June 11, 1917, with water pressure over 200 pounds.

Hose purchased, 1900 to 1911, 6,-250 feet; hose purchased 1913, 900 feet; hose purchased 1915, 1,900 feet; hose purchased 1917, 2,000 feet. Total, 11,550 feet.

Some hose now in service since 1900. The life of the hose is considered seven years at the most.

Hydrants.

Four hundred and seven, ten installed this year.

Horses.

Four horses in use by the department in poor condition.

Fire Alarms.

Our system is of the Gamewell type, with 59 fire alarm boxes. Three boxes are private. Three boxes installed this year. We have about thirty-five and a half (35½) miles of overhead wires; with five 15 inch house gongs; six inch tanners installed in the homes of members of the department, newspaper offices, etc.; one six circuit automatic storage battery and repeater switchboard having mounted on it instruments for testing and charging; one seven circuit repeater; two house and five alarm circuits; punching register and time stamp with paper take up reel. Power is furnished for system by Public Service Electric Corporation.

For the year ending December 31, 1917, total number of alarms, six hundred and twenty-one (221), with insurance and losses as follows: Total value of property involved in the fires, buildings, $450,975; contents, $256,197.51; total, $707,172.-51; total insurance on property, buildings, $237,150; contents, $215,-664.67; total, $540,814.67; total loss, buildings, $15,878.74; contents, $26,629.21; total, $42,507.95.

Duty.

Beaten out, 52; chemical tanks, 17; garden hose, 1; no duty, 43; hydrant, 5; hydrant streams, 23; hydrant and chemical tanks, 12; hydrant and engine, 3; small extinguisher and chemical tanks, 15; small extinguisher and hydrant, 1; small extinguisher, chemical and hydrant, 2; total, 231.

Causes of Fires.

Alcohol lamp, 1; ashes, 6; automobile, 1; backdraught, 1; backfire, 1; bonfire, 4; children and matches, 7; chimney, 21; cigarette stubs, 2; debris, 9; dump, 2; electric wire, 1; error in alarm, 1; false alarm, 3; firecrackers and fireworks, 2; gasoline, 1; grass fire, 1; gun, 1; gunpowder, 1; hot ashes, 6; automobile heater pipes, 5; gasoline torch, 1; grass, brush, woods, 88; grease on stove, 2; heater, 6; hot iron, 1; kerosene lamp, 3; lightning, 2; out of city, 7; overheated fireplace, 1; smoke, 4; smoking in bed, 1; sparks from engines coming in contact with 6; steam boiler, 2; stove, 8; tar pot, 2; tar wagon, 2; tramps and matches, 1; unknown, 28; vulcanizing tire, 2; total, 221.

Conclusion and Recommendations.

The fire and building committee *gives time and attention to the in*terest of the department, always ready to listen to suggestions for improvement and where practical and possible do for the good of the department. The war question only a few words as it effects the fire department. Many articles used in the department cannot be procured at any price, others have doubled in price and quality not as good as in the past. During the year a new heater has been installed in No. 1 engine house; new doors at No. 3's house; punching register and time stamp at headquarters. The Nott engine is still out of commission, a new motor has been ordered. A city service truck, 50 foot ladder has been ordered.

I would recommend that the fire alarm system be removed to the City Hall; that additional boxes be located; red lights repaired and new ones located; fire alarm boxes painted; fire alarm wires placed underground; motorize hose No. 1, doing away with two horses! motorize engine No. 1.

An minor repairs are made to apparatus by firemen, equipment should be purchased; purchase early in the year, 1,000 feet of 2½ inch hose; sanitary conditions at headquarters should be recommended; the floor and walk at No. 1 house should be renewed; fence be constructed.

Purchase a 75 foot auto, spring balanced, aerial truck. Plainfield has about 2,600 children in schools on and above the second floor; about 600 employes in factories on and above second floor; more than 200 people in hotels on or above second floor.

That a telephone switchboard be installed at headquarters; install hydrants; two additional men; that fire chief's headquarters be at the City Hall; the National Board of Fire Underwriters recommend additional hydrants; men added, aerial truck; fire alarm system to a fireproof building; additional boxes; at each station a punch register; red lights with red bands on poles.

The Committee on Fire Prevention of the National Board of Fire Underwriters will be pleased to mail those interested a copy of report on Plainfield, N. J.

The fire alar msystem is cared for by Hyder & Graves' Electrical Company, and has given satisfaction during the year. The Telephone Company has always given the department all aid possible. Police and health departments *keep in close touch with the fire de*partment, ready and willing to do for the general good.

To his Honor the Mayor, Leighton Calkins; Corporation Counsel, City Clerk, Chief of Police, all City Officials and Public Service Corporation, I wish to express my appreciation for the interest shown in the department. The members of the department, while they were disappointed in the vote on the two-platoon system, have been loyal to the interest of the department. War wages and hours have taken several men from the department. Plainfield, the only city in the State where votes were cast that did not give the firemen all asked for. Some western cities have adopted the three-platoon system.

I have pointed out above what I thing is essential in the making of a first class fire fighting organization. An organization which at all times should be adequate for the protection of both life and property of the citizens of Plainfield, and in which the men in the department would have full confidence and in doing this I feel that I have done my duty as the active head of the fire department. On the other hand I fully appreciate the earnest effort made by the Mayor and Committee, members of the Common Council to keep down the expenses in our city government and in that way try to alleviate the hardships that are bound to fall upon all because of the abnormal condition under which we are now living and I can assure them that while I ask it, were it possible to have all the things I feel are necessary for the building up of a fire department I will do the best possible and I know every other member of the department will also, and whatever they in their good judgment feel they can give us. Again assuring the Mayor, Common Council of my hearty co-operation in their patriotic endeavor to lighten the burdens of the taxpayer, I am,

Respectfully,
A. D. JENNINGS,
Chief F. P. D.

Dill In Report Answers Critics

As it to answer the operators of motor truck vehicles in New Jersey who are said to be back of the suit in the Legislature to abolish his department and place it under the jurisdiction of the State Road Department, Motor Vehicle Commissioner William Dill, in his annual report Tuesday to the Legislature, declares that the two laws, one requiring commercial motor vehicles to pay a registration fee based upon the gross weight of the vehicle and load, and the other‡ that they be equipped with tires built sufficient strong enough to support the load, have already demonstrated that they are the most progressive type of traffic legislation which has yet been adopted in any State. Although the report of Commissioner Dill makes no reference to the bill introduced by Senator Mackey, of Bergen county, the comment with respect to the laws on motor trucks is regarded as an answer to the interests which are said to be back of the Senate measure.

"The opponents of these two laws apparently forget for the moment the question of the extension and maintenance of their highway system, and yet they are the ones who will most directly reap the benefit by a system of highway construction that can be properly maintained," said the commissioner.

Commissioner Dill said no one will deny the damage done to the State roads by the heavy hauling to which the motor vehicles has adapted itself, and he asks who will question the right of this commonwealth to enter a claim at headquarters. The Nott engine is still out of commission, a new motor has been ordered. A city service truck, 50 foot ladder has been ordered.

"The fees now collected by the State which they do to the State roads. He also says that the law requiring that a truck be equipped with tires ample to support the load, thus reducing to the smallest minimum the wear and tear on the highway, is no secret that this department predicts that within a short time it will be universally copied by every State." These laws are regarded here as the reason for the attempt on the part of certain motorists opposing them to endeavor to have the Department of Motor Vehicles abolished.

The report of Commissioner Dill shows that a total of 248 persons were killed in New Jersey by automobiles during the year of 1917, an increase of thirty over the previous year, and four over the year 1915. When it is considered that 56,752 more machines were registered in New Jersey in 1917 than were registered in 1915, to say nothing of the tramé from other States, the report says, it is a matter for much gratification that the number of fatalities has not increased in proportion to the number of cars. The reason for this is placed to the credit of the department's rigid enforcement of the law and the prompt revocation of the licenses of every driver involved in a serious infraction.

The income received by the department for the past year were $1,923,-163.63. In 1916 the figures were $1,402,695.05, making an increase for 1917 of $520,468.58. Commissioner Dill predicted a year ago that the receipts of the department in 1917 would be in hich as $1,900,000

A total of 2,121 cases were heard before the commissioner sitting as a magistrate, an increase of 156 over the previous year; 389 drivers' licenses were revoked; 217 names blacklisted; 89 licenses suspended; 35 reciprocity privileges were suspended; 74 car registrations were revoked; 14 motorcycle registrations were revoked, and 100 licenses restored. A otal of $7,565 in fines was imposed and collected, which is an increase f $3,264.25 over 1916.

The total number of violations reported to the department is 10,952, of which 8,331 were of minor character. The amount of fines collected by inspectors of the department was $21,681, and the amount of new registrations and license fees collected by the same officials amounted to $22,260.50.

Pointing out that the present system of registering cars is wrong, stating that he believes there should be a system of registering them upon horse-power, the report of the commissioner suggests a fee of 40 cents a year for horse-power, with a graduated reduction every three months. The owner of a small car then would pay no more than is required now, while the owner of a larger car should not object if he paid in proportion to the horse-power of his machine.

City Receives Its State School Money

Plainfield received $68,085.12 Wednesday from County Collector Nathan R. Leavitt as the city's share of the fund made up of ninety per cent. of the State school tax. Mr. Leavitt has sent out the amount apportioned to each municipality, as follows:

Clark township, $1,560.33; Cranford, $17,009.04; Elizabeth, $164,-277.98; Garwood, $6,262.30; Plainside, $8,940.45; Kenilworth, $3,963.-49; Linden, $20,256.72; Mountainside, $855.77; New Providence borough, $4,976 04; New Providence township, $3,057; Rahway, $25,059.-90; Roselle, $14,316.07; Roselle Park, $16,439.99; Scotch Plains, $7,385.45; Springfield, $6,725.48; Summit, $25,529.49; Union, $9,868.-05, and Westfield, $27,293.60.

New Councilman Takes Seat Soon

The vacancy in the membership of the Plainfield Common Council brought about through the resignation of Charles A. Loiseaux, was filled Monday night by the appointment of Marion S. Ackerman, of Crescent avenue, to fill the position. The selection has meet with the approval of the entire city as well as the residents of the Second ward, who the new incumbent is to represent directly. He will take his seat for the first time at the regular semi-monthly meeting on Monday night, February 18.

Mr. Ackerman was born in Plainfield and has always made his home here. While not a participant heretofore in what might be called official activities, he has always interested himself in civic affairs and has never failed to give of his time or means for any local cause. Since the war broke out he has been particularly active in patriotic movements, one of which was helping to form the Plainfield Home Defense League. In this organization he has held the office of commissioner and has taken part in all the "field" work.

Mr. Ackerman has been associated with his brother, former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, in the management of the Lawrence Cement Company, one of the best known concerns of the kind in America. The business experience he has gained in this capacity is a most valuable asset that will serve him in good stead while helping to conduct the city's affairs and Plainfield residents will profit accordingly.

Mr. Loiseaux was elected to the Common Council from the Second ward in 1916, taking his seat at the organization meeting on New Year's Day, 1917. In answering his country's call as a member of the National Army, he was compelled to leave the city and in consequence could not continue to serve in the position of councilman. His resignation was received last month with deep regret on the part of his associates. His term would not have arrived until January 31 of the present year, making it necessary to elect a new Second ward representative next fall. It is probable that Mr. Ackerman will be a candidate at that time for election to the full term of two years.

Welfare Program For Employees of Standard Company

The initial step in a welfare program intended to interest and benefit every employe of the Standard Aircraft Corporation's plant in Bayway will result in the opening on Lincoln's birthday of a cafeteria designed to serve 1,000 people in thirty minutes. The building will also house a model bakery and kitchen, assuring to the employes fresh, well-prepared food served in sanitary, pleasing surroundings, and at cost, too.

The new building now nearly completed is located on the company's property convenient to all the buildings of the factory. The structure is wood, with a concrete base. In the bakery all articles of pastry will be produced, and in the kitchen the latest equipment will afford the sanitary preparation and serving of all food.

The next move in the welfare project of the Standard Community will be the opening in a few weeks of a dormitory accommodating 150 of the young unmarried workers at the plant. The rooms of the dormitory are 9 to 11 feet in size, each room is to accommodate one man. Each room will have abundant light, and baths will be conveniently located. On the first floor of the building will be a reception hall.

In the spring a clubhouse will be erected at the edge of the flying field. This will be equipped with shower baths and lockers for every man, in the clubhouse will also be a recreation room, a gymnasium and hall seating 1,000 persons. The hall will be used as a congregating place for the workers for entertainment and instruction. Many educational features will be embodied in the welfare program, such as lectures by efficiency experts and industrial leaders.

On the flying field a double baseball diamond will afford ample opportunity for baseball games and handball courts and tennis courts will also be prepared for the workers.

The Standard Corporation has outlined a program believed conducive to keeping efficient, contented workers so time and expenditure of money will not be limited in the investment. The best trained workers will be obtained to direct the various welfare projects.

Another winter it is honed to have every arrangement completed so that the workers will be afforded gymnastic and athletic training together with social advantages and educational opportunities.

SENTRY THE "BUSIEST" MAN IN WASHINGTON.

The busiest man in the world has been found—in Washington, of course. He's neither the President, a Cabinet member nor the stenographer who takes the remarks printed in that breezy periodical, the Congressional Record. He's the sentry at the northwest corner of the White House grounds.

This sentry goes on duty each afternoon just after four. He carries a rifle. The rifle must be brought to "present arms" every time a commissioned officer passes his post. There are something like 2,000 officers on duty in the War Department across the way, and almost as many in the Navy Department. They all leave work and walk by the White House between 4:30 and 6. You can figure to yourself how many times that sentry has to come to "present."

The Test of An Undertaker
Like doctors, lawyers, and other professional men, the undertaker has a reputation to maintain. The up-to-date funeral director nowadays attends conventions, studies his trade publications and keeps abreast of the improvements of the times.
Just as an experiment, sometimes, ask any live, up-to-date undertaker about the Norwalk Vault. A leader won't wait to be asked; he will tell you at the first opportunity a dozen reasons why the Norwalk has been accepted throughout the country as the very foundation of the modern, sanitary burial. Draft Board Gets Call For Twenty More Men

In addition to the sixty-two selected men who are to leave for Camp Dix on February 25, the Plainfield District Exemption Board announced today that at least fourteen and possibly twenty others would be ordered to the same destination before March 1. An order to this effect was received from Adjutant-General Gilkyson last night. The latter stated that Plainfield should have had sixty per cent. of its gross quota of 208 men in camp at the present time but as this number had not been reached, the next delegation should number perhaps eighty-two.

The work of notifying the sixty-two men specified Tuesday is still going on and in order to give the other selectees a chance to arrange their private affairs they will not be sent to Camp Dix until a few days later. The names of these men will be announced the first of next week.

Another order reaching the Exemption office today, came from Provost-Marshall General Crowder and notified the Board to forward to Washington the names of all registrants who had not filed their questionnaires. In Plainfield, there are over 100 who have not complied in this respect and the police are now rounding them up. Fifty per cent. of this number is credited to men who are in the service but as they have failed to file sufficient proof to this effect, they are to be included in the list of names for Washington.

The names of the sixty-two men who are to leave for Camp Dix on Monday morning, February 25, taking their departure from the North avenue station at 9:20, are as follows:

Jury Finds Hirsch Guilty

Recommends Mercy for Plainfield Merchant Convicted of Misrepresenting Goods

After remaining out two hours, a jury in the Union County Court at Elizabeth, yesterday, brought in a verdict of guilty against Symar Hirsch, the West Front street women's apparel dealer, who was indicted by the January Grand Jury on a charge of alleged "misrepresentation of merchandise." A recommendation for mercy accompanied the jury's report and sentence will be passed by Judge James J. Connolly next week.

The specific charge against Mr. Hirsch was made by two detectives at the instigation of the Plainfield Business Men's Association which had received numerous complaints about Mr. Hirsch's skirts and dresses. In the particular instance on which he was brought to trial he sold a skirt to the detectives for two dollars and seventy-five cents, which he claimed was "all wool." In the testimony yesterday there were various opinions as to what constituted an "all wool" skirt and whether or not the defendant had been guilty of any misrepresentation in selling the garment as he did.

A. E. Force, the West Front street dry goods merchant, was "star" witness for the Business Men's Association. He asserted that the skirt sold as "all wool" was forty per cent. cotton. This led to the contention on the part of Judge William Newcorn, as counsel for the defense, that there were commercial designations for "all wool" which did not necessarily mean that they were 100 per cent. any more than a gold coin is all gold. Numerous experts were brought in to testify as to what constituted all wool goods, cotton goods, mercerized cloth and other material used in the manufacture of clothing. Mr. Newcorn produced in Hirsch's behalf the sales girl who had sold the skirt to the detectives, four other employes of the Hirsch store, several cotton and wool experts and ten character witnesses, one of whom was Councilman Marion Sherman.

Judge Connolly gave the defendant every benefit of the doubt in making his charge to the jury, explaining clearly many of the technical points brought out on the construction of cloth and the possibility of their having been an odd skirt in a consignment placed in a rack for a "special sale." The jury went out at 4:45 yesterday afternoo nand returned at 7 o'clock last night. Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein handled the case for the plaintiffs.

The court action was the outcome of a campaign conducted by the Business Men's Association to put an end to false advertising and misrepresentation of goods. Its executive committee had repeatedly been importuned by shoppeds to prosecute dishonest dealers and special representatives conducted an investigation for several months. It resulted in several West Front street business houses changing their methods of *advertising and brought about the in*dictment of Hirsch as stated. Beside A. E. Force, one of the special witnesses for the plaintiffs was J. H. DeMott, secretary of the Business Men's Association, who has played an important part in compelling unscrupulous merchants to adopt honest tactics in dealing with the shopping public.

Trades Council Will Discuss Mayor's Letter

Mayor Calkins' open letter to the Building Trades Council in which he rescinds the order prohibiting Business Agent William Lunger from entering the City Hall building and asking the co-operation of the Council in completing the structure will be taken up at a meeting of the organization tonight.

It is rumored that even though the Mayor has taken an entirely different attitude from that which he displayed when declaring Agent Lunger under no circumstance could enter the Hall that his offer of "team work" may be refused. The opposition to organized labor, it is said was so apparent that many of the members are not inclined to receive a retraction in good faith and prefer to let the city proceed with the municipal building without the aid of local mechanics. It is also asserted that no audience will be given either the Mayor or any of his representatives for the purpose of talking over the situation.

The Mayor's letter was made public yesterday and will be taken up in detail at tonight's meeting of the Trades Council.

Private McCarthy Seriously Injured at Camp McClellan

George McCarthy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McCarthy, of Orchard place, is in the military hospital at Camp McClellan, suffering from internal injuries and other hurts that may keep him confined to his cot for a month or six weeks. A letter received by his parents states that he may not be able to continue in the service, but as long as there is a possibility of his recovery he intends to remain until actually discharged by the Government. As he expresses it himself, "as long as I have gone this far, I intend to go the rest of the way."

Private McCarthy went South as a member of "Troop D" and after this organization was split up, he was assigned to the Military Police. It was while doing duty in this capacity that he met with his injuries. A "bad horse" he was helping to tame down, managed to throw him to the ground and afterward jumped on his prostrate form. Comrades saved him from being stamped to death, but he was hurt so badly he had to be taken to the hospital at once. The accident happened about ten days ago.

Before entering the service, Private McCarthy was employed by a New York real estate concern.

William L. Callahan Dies After Operation

William L. Callahan, for many years proprietor of one of the best known livery businesses in Plainfield, died at Muhlenberg Hospital last night, following a severe operation performed on Monday. He had been ailing for a long time and previous to going to the hospital had been seriously ill about one week. The fun*eral will be held in St. Mary's church* Monday morning at 9 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. Callahan was born in Ireland seventy-three years ago. He came to this country when a young man and after living at Rye, N. Y., for a short time removed to Plainfield directly after the Civil War. For the past forty years he had resided in the house on Woodland avenue, which he had built for himself. His livery business was commenced on a small scale but gradually developed until at one time he had as fine an outfit of horses and carriages as could be found in Union county. The radical change in pleasure vehicles brought about by the advent of the automobile was partially responsible for his practical retirement a few years ago.

Mr. Callahan had a wide acquaintance throughout this city and was held in the utmost respect by all who knew him. Beside his widow, he leaves one daughter, Mrs. John J. Kelly, of Woodland avenue, and two sons, William H. Callahan, of Westfield, and Anthony Callahan, of this city.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED.

Mrs .G Ransom Allen, of Westervelt avenue, has announced the engagement of her niece, Miss Ada Belle Woodruff, to William M. Walsh, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Walsh, also of Westervelt avenue. No date has been set for the wedding. Mr. Walsh is the pro*prietor of Walsh's pharmacy at* North and Watchung avenues, and has a very wide circle of friends. His bride to be is also extremely popular and announcement of the engagement has produced many congratulations.

Councils Will Spend $35,000 On Sewage Beds

Improvements Are Urgently Necessary But Engineer Cannot Promise Difficulties Will Be Permanently Overcome.

Meeting in joint session in the city executive rooms on North avenue, last night, the Common Councils of Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen, by unanimous vote, authorized the Joint Sewage Committee to spend $35,000 for improvements at the joint sewage beds near Greenbrook.

The action was taken on a resolution offered by Councilman Thomas P. Hylan, chairman of the sewage committee, based on a recommendation made by the sewer expert, George A. Fuller, who was the engineer in charge of the preparations and construction of the disposal works. Although the system was put into operation little more than a year ago, it has not been working satisfactorily and Mr. Hylan explained that there was no way to avoid spending the $35,000 suggested. Even at that, he told the councilmen, there was no assurance that this expenditure would remedy the trouble.

"In fast," he said, "we are simply groping our way and must take things as they come."

The session lasted about an hour and was taken up with the recommendation of the engineer, who was present, *and the answering of ques*tions by the latter and Mr. Hylan as they were propounded by the various officials. Mayor Calkins was also in attendance and caused a ripple of laughter when, having in mind the Courier-News' story of Plainfield's "high living" being responsible for conditions at the disposal plant, he asked:

"Is the sewage in Plainfield any different than that of other cities?"

The Mayor's question was not taken seriously at first but he insisted that he meant it. Mr. Hylan then explained that the newspaper had no authority to print the article about Plainfielders' use of oranges and other things was back of the trouble.

"No statement of this kind was authorized by the committee," he said, "and as a matter of fact, there is nothing to this story of 'high living.' Plainfield's sewage is no different than that of other cities, but householders should be careful in pouring greasy waters down the sink as it does not benefit the system."

Mayor Calkins put the question point blank to Mr. Fuller that if he was to start all over again to build a sewer syste mfor the three municipalities, would he recommend such a one as is now installed? Mr. Fuller replied that he would.

"It is all right," he said, "for a town like our Plainfield."

Giving further details of the plant's failure to work properly, Mr. Hyan said the hard water in Plainfield also had something to do with the conditions at the disposal works. Mr. Condict added that the level condition of the country in the territory played was another factor in the factor in the non-success as it did not permit the sludge to be broken properly.

Replying to questions put by Councilman Fort, of Plainfield, and Councilman Williams, of Dunellen, Engineer Fuller said he believed the spending of $35,000 would be all the new expense needed until six or eight years hence, when it would be necessary to build additional sledge beds. Those in operation now, he stated would be amply sufficient unless there was the succession of heavy rains.

In asking for permission to spend the $35,000, Mr. Hylan asserted that no time should be lost in "red tape," if urgent conditions were to be met. He stated that the State Board of Health would meet next Tuesday and that preliminary plans should be submitted for its approval on that date. With the State Board's consent, he said, the committee should even "cut corners" by not advertising or going through the legal routine to secure contractors' bids. The improvements could be made, he said, by day's wor kwith perhaps one or two exceptions. There was considerable discussion as to what part of the sewers could be used as Mr. Fuller explained that the committee would have to "shop" in order to get what was needed. The kind now in favor will serve the purpose for some time but later on they may have to be housed by glass, something on the plan of flower or vegtable hothouses. This plan is now in successful use at Rochester, N. Y., and Reading, Pa.

The recommendation of the engineer specifying why the $35,000 appropriation is necessary is as follows:

Plainfield, N. J., February 14, 1918.

To the Joint Meeting of The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, the Borough of North Plainfield and the Borough of Dunellen, Plainfield, N. J.

Gentlemen:

In accordance with the advice of your engineers to your operating committee, we herewith formally recommend certain betterments to the sewage disposal plant, as listed below with detailed descriptions, with a view to improving the operating conditions as to sludge handling, lessening of odors, and a reduction in the amount of special labor needed for operation.

The our judgment it is advisable for the Joint Meeting to authorize the adoption of a program whereby these improvements can be installed at the earliest practicable moment so that the benefit thereof may be secured during the coming summer.

In our opinion the nature of these improvements is sufficiently indicated in the descriptive list below to allow the State Department of Health to give without delay a general approval subject, of course, to presentation of detailed plans as the work progresses.

It is not practical to fully detail in advance the plans of the substructures nor even the superstructures of a building in which to house a mechanically-operated fine screen and neither is it practicable without some delay to show in complete detail just how best to arrange pipe changes for delivery of sludge to new beds similar to those already installed. The general program however as to details, can be readily explained to the State Department of Health and its engineering bureau.

The State Department of Health meets on February 19 and again on March 5. We desire to put this general program before the department on February 19 and hereby request authorization of the Joint Meeting so to do.

Fine screens and the housing thereof, the sludge beds, certain pip*ing and pumping arrangements, will* have to be built by contract, and we request that as soon as the State Department of Health has approved the plans for the same the Joint Meeting authorize bids to be received for this work with the least possible delay, as at best it will probably be about July 1 before the bulk of these improvements can be completed.

A number of the piping changes can best be made by day labor owing to the difficulty of specifying the manner of doing the work with the least interference to the regular operation of the plant. We request authority be given the engineers and superintendent to make such improvements under the direction of the operating committee.

List of recommended betterments with estimates of cost thereof:

A. Changes in piping connections and conduits to convey the effluent of the sprinkling filter to the center of the final settling tank so as to allow the effluent to flow to either or both ends of the tank, thus reducing the velocity of flow ..... $ 1,500

B. New sludge beds similar in construction to the present beds and sufficient to increase the area by at least 5,400 square feet 2,700

C. Rearrangements of pumping and piping facilities for delivery of sludge to the new sludge beds; cutting down of vertical pipes in gas vents so as to allow, with the aid of plugs, the removal of them through the top of piping to the sludge beds; incidental improvements in piping arrangements for sludge handling 3,800

D. Removable wooden covers for dosing tanks and gas vents 1,000

E. Mechanically-operated fine screens for the removal of the coarser solids from the sewage before its entrance into the preliminary settling tank; such screens to be of demonstrated efficiency and equal to the Reinech-Wurl screen, 10 feet in diameter, with slots 1-16 of an inch in width; together with suitable substructure and brick superstructure to house the same. 19,000

$28,000

Add 25% for omissions and contingencies 7,000

Total $35,000

GEORGE W. FULLER.

Auto License Tag Brings Former Plainfielders Together in California

How a New Jersey automobile license attached to the rear of a machine speeding down the main street of Los Angeles brought two old-time Plainfield friends together in the California city a short time ago is interestingly told in a letter received this week by Miss Hazel Mitchell, of John street, from his sister, Mrs. Harry Mitchell, a resident of Los Angeles for the past eighteen years.

Mrs. Mitchell, who was Miss Mary Harding, daughter of the late John Harding, of South Second street, had been on a shopping trip in the business district of the noted California city when she saw the motor machine pass down the street. To all appearances it was no different than the hundreds of other machines that roll along the avenue every day, but a glance at the identification tag was all that was necessary to make Mrs. Mitchell deeply interested in the auto and its passengers. It was a New Jersey license number, indicating that the car had come all the way from the "old home State" and prompted by that indefinable something which makes everyone appreciate meeting folks from the native heath, Mrs. Mitchell watched where the machine went.

It drew up to the curb less than a block away and the interested Jersey woman inquired of the driver if he was from the Garden State. He replied that he was and also that his home had been in Plainfield but that he had just come to California to locate. The surprise of Mrs. Mitchell can be better imagined than described when she learned that the car was directly from the scene of her birth. On the other hand, the driver and his companions were as equally pleasantly surprised when their questioner asserted that she also was from Plainfield. Then followed a rapid fire conversation in which the Los Angeles resident found that the automobile passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Line and that the latter and Mrs. Mitchell had been acquainted in their girlhood days. Mrs. Line was formerly Miss Brouwer, daughter of the late Aaron Brouwer, who lived on a farm near New Market. Naturally enough, an invitation was extended to the newcomers and Mrs. Mitchell showed them what a delightful brand of hospitality is derived from a mixture of the New Jersey and California grades.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell left for the Pacific coast late in 1900. The former *at one time conducted an ex*press business in the city but at the time of his departure was employed in the Potter Press Works. He now holds a responsible position in one of Los Angeles' largest department stores.

Mr. Line lived in Plainfield practically all his life and conducted a mason contracting business locally. A few months ago he decided to try his fortune in the West and made the trip across the continent by automobile, accompanied by his wife. They had only just arrived in Los Angeles when Mrs. Mitchell noticed the license tag and broached the conversation which brought the former Plainfielders together nearly 4,000 miles away from "home."

Frank Donnelly Honored By Former School Mates

Mr. and Mrs. Garret A. Keating, of Lee place, gave a farewell gathering at their home last night in honor of Frank J. Donnelly, of West Fourth street, who is to leave for Camp Dix on February 25 as one of Plainfield's selected men. Those in attendance were all members of Mr. Donnelly's class in St. Mary's school at the time of his graduation and each of whom features was the reminiscent school talk which followed the serving of an elaborate supper.

During the evening Miss Betty Mara presided at the piano and rendered several selections beside acting as accompanist for Miss Mary Donnelly and Miss Eleanora McCarthy, who gave vocal solos. Numerous speeches were made and in conclusion Mr. Donnelly was presented with a pair of army socks by Miss Bessie Farnel, who knitted them herself.

Those in attendance beside Mr. and Mrs. Keating, and Mr. Donnelly, were the Misses Eleanora McCarthy, Muriel Hepner, Mary Donnelly, Betty Mara, Helen Deady and Bessie Parent; Mrs. John Sullivan and the Messrs. Neil Regan, William Sullivan and Frank Cullen.

GEORGE YORK PROMISES ORANGES AND ALLIGATORS

District Court Deputy George York, who has been seriously ill at his home on Columbia avenue for the past three weeks, left today for Florida, where he will remain until April and possibly later for the benefit of his health. His trip South started at New York on the steamer "City of Montgomery," which stops at Savannah, Ga. From that point he will proceed overland to Eustis, Fla., where he will be the guest of his cousin, Mrs. Fanny White, a prominent resident of that place.

Mr. York came down town yesterday to say good-bye to all the folks in the City Building before leaving and was deluged with expressions of good will and hopes for a return in the old time condition. He has promised to send quantities and quantities of oranges, alligators, grape-fruit and other Florida products to his Plainfield acquaintances and asserted also that he might run over to Palm Beach for a round on the golf links with Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, who is stopping at that resort.

Mr. York has been suffering from a chronic complaint during most of the winter and the Florida trip is being taken on the advice of his physician, Doctor W. H. Anthony.

ENTER YALE "FLYING CORPS."

Godfrey Hyde, son of Charles L. Hyde and Francis Day, son of Thomas M. Day, Jr., of West Eighth street are among the Plainfielders who have enlisted in Uncle Sam's service during the past week. Both entered the Yale College "flying corps" as aviators and will be assigned to training grounds within the next few days. Both have been students at Yale.

WHY "WEST ENDER'S" LETTER IS NOT PRINTED.

The Record has received a forceful reply to Charles H. Hand's questions as published in last week's issue but is unable to use it because the authorship is hidden under the signature of "West Ender." If the writer will make his identity known and permit the use of his name the Record will be very glad to give his communication space in these columns.

The Record has made it an absolute rule to print no communications unless the author's name is used in full. We appreciate letters from the people but believe in fairness to the persons most concerned that the source of criticism or approbation, as the case may be, should not be concealed by anonymous signatures. "West Ender's" letter has plenty of merit but we will have to hold it on file until he gives his right name.

UNDERGOES OPERATION.

Miss Caroline Scheidecker, of New street, a member of the office staff at Muhlenberg Hospital, underwent an operation for appendicitis at the institution this morning. It is believed to have been entirely successful and the patient shows every indication of speedy recovery.

EPWORTH LEAGUE CONVENTION AT PLAINFIELD IN MAY.

The annual Epworth League convention of the Elizabeth District will be held on Thursday, May 23, in the First Methodist Episcopal church, this city. An excellent program is being arranged. Watch the papers for further notices.

JOHN CASEY ON FURLOUGH.

John F. Casey, Jr., arrived in town last night from Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga. He will enjoy a ten days' furlough at his home on West Third street. He has been at Camp Gordon for several months as a private in Battery A, 320th Field Artillery.

FORMER PLAINFIELDER GOVERNMENT EXPERT IN CAMP FIRE PROTECTION

Robert C. Woodhouse, a former well-known resident of the Netherwood district, spent Wednesday, in Plainfield previous to taking his departure for Jacksonville, Fla., where he is to consult with Government officials regarding the establishment of a fire department at Camp J. E. Johnston.

Mr. Woodhouse was formerly rep*resentative for the Nott Engine Com*pany and made the sale to Plainfield of the Nott machine at headquarters. At present he is traveling salesman for a St. Louis fire apparatus concern and in this capacity is frequently called in consultation by Federal officers from the quartermasters' department. Mr. Woodhouse has been active in the placing of motor pumping machines and other fire fighting devices at several of the big cantonments, among theirm Camp Dix at Wrightstown and Camp Upton at Yaphank, L. I. It is now proposed to have a completely organized fire department at Camp J. E. Johnston and it was for this reason that the former Plainfielder was called South Wednesday.

Mr .Woodhouse has been living in New York most of the time since leaving this city but for the past few weeks Mrs. Woodhouse has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Ayer, of Netherwood.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The Junior Red Cross of the Irving and Jefferson Schools will give an entertainment in the Irving School chapel tonight. An elaborate program has been prepared under the supervision of Miss Genevieve Pertie, principal of the Irving School, which is to include a play entitled "Cinderella." A matinee performance of the same entertainment was given at the school yesterday for the benefit of the children.

An Arlington avenue trolley car, backing around the curb at Front and Somerset streets, Monday afternoon, crashed into the forward end of a Union car. The passengers were given a severe shaking up but no one was hurt. The platforms of both cars were damaged and each one lost glass out of vestibules and windows.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association is continuing preparations for the grand ball to be held in the new addition to the West Front street club house on Washington's Birthday eve, February 21. The decorations will be unusually elaborate and numerous features of a surprising nature will be introduced during the evening.

Miss Elizabeth Williams, of East Fifth street, and Miss Elizabeth Wilson, of Lenox avenue, who enlisted in the Red Cross nursing corps last September, will leave tomorrow for Camp Merritt, Tenafly, having been assigned to duty at that point. Both are graduates of the Muhlenberg Hospital training school.

The action of the Public Service Corporation in turning off the local street lights last month saved the city a total of $623.48 in its January light bill. The expense of maintaining the street illumination in December was $1,450 and in January $834.51.

Five per cent. of the gross receipts at the local store, of the United Cigars Corporation yesterday was turned over to Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, for its War Campaign fund. This action was in conformity with an order from the officials of the corporation which included every one of its stores in the United States.

John J. Praed, the Park avenue tailor, has given Chief A. D. Jennings a check for twenty-five dollars to be applied to the Firemen's Pension fund. The contribution was made by Mr. Praed in grateful appreciation of the splendid work done by the local department when his building was threatened with destruction in the Martin garage blaze of two weeks ago.

The congregation of Grace M. E. church will hold an anniversary tonight, to which all members and friends are invited. Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, of the borough, who was the first pastor of the church, will be in charge, and beside addresses special music will be rendered by the choir.

Seven laborers who have been employed by the New Haven Wrecking Company, tearing down the old Netherwood Hotel, started a small-sized riot on the premises Tuesday, because two other men refused to go on strike for more pay. The agitators were rounded up by Lieutenant Higgins after a complaint had been made to police headquarters that they had attempted to wreck the laborers' barracks adjacent to the old building. In the city court Wednesday, Judge DeMeza fined five of the prisoners $5 each and two others who had been in little more "fractious" than the rest were given their choice of $10 or thirty days in jail.

Mrs. Francis S. Martin, of Hillside avenue, and Carl Turner, of East Seventh street, have been notified by the War Department of the death of their brother, Lieut. Frank Browne *Turner, a member of the U. S. Avia*tion Corps in France. He was killed during an action on January 20. Lieut. Turner enlisted in the service last summer and after completing his preliminary training at Mineola sailed for France in October.

Plainfield Lodge of Elks will hold its regular monthly reception and dance at the Watchung avenue clubhouse on Thursday night, February 27. DeLisle's orchestra will furnish music and the committee is preparing several unique features.

The board of directors of the local Y. M. C. A. has elected Arthur M. Harris as president to succeed William D. Murray, resigned. Mr. Harris is at present doing secretarial work for the association in France.

The teachers' committee of the oNrth Plainfield Board of Education has announced the resignation of Frants Johnson, instructor in manual training, who has accepted a position as instructor in mechanical drawing in the Battin High School at Elizabeth. He will leave here before the end of the present term. Miss Ella Wirth, of the Harrison School, has also resigned.

Andrew Polon, a former Plainfielder and brother of William Polon, of the Hotel Kensington, received a broken leg and other severe injuries at New Brunswick, Monday, when a team which he was driving ran away. He refused to be taken to a hospital and is confined to his home on Remsen avenue, New Brunswick.

The home of Lorenzo D. Townley, of 284 Watchung avenue, the borough, was damaged by fire Saturday, caused by a defective flue. The loss was $1,500.

Ralph Smalley, son of Mayor and Mrs. W. L. Smalley, of North Plainfield, has entered the service of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and will report at Port Richmond, S. I. Mr. Smalley, who is a Cornell University student, tried to enlist in the aviation corps, but because of an injury to his arm was not accepted.

General Secretary W. H. Baxley, of the Y. M. C. A., a few days ago received a request from the Red Cross headquarters at Washington to go to Jerusalem with a unit to take up reconstruction work, but declined.

Miss Helen E. Minch, extension specialist in home economics at Rutgers College, spoke at the Plainfield High School, Wednesday afternoon, on substitutes used in bread making.

The Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein has completed all arrangements for its annual masquerade ball in Saengerbund Hall on Washington's Birthday eve, February 21. Halbfoerster's orchestra, of Elizabeth, will furnish music. This masquerade has been one of the features of the Gesang and Turn Verein for many years and never fails to draw a large crowd.

John J. V. Powlison, of West Fifth street, has enlisted in the ordnance department of the U. S. Army and this week went to Washington, where he was assigned to duty as a draftsman. He had been employed in this class of work at the local plant of the International Motor Company.

John Hope, an employe of the Plainfield Cab Company, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court Monday morning, charged with the embezzlement of $121 of the concern's money. He furnished bail to the sum of $500 to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The Parent-Teachers' Association of the Washington School held an anniversary meeting in the school auditorium, Wednesday afternoon. A feature of the program was an address by Dr. Henry M. Maxson. There were also exercises and recitations by the school pupils and refreshments were served in conclusion. The members contributed a sum of money which was sent to the National Congress of Mothers.

The annual reception and dance of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, will be held in the Plainfield High School Auditorium next Thursday night, February 21. The committee in charge has received assurances that many Templar officers from various parts of the State will be in attendance, among them Right Eminent Sir Joseph MacDonald, Jr. McKee's orchestra, of New York, will furnish music.

Perseverance Lodge, Knights of Pythias, will confer the third degree on six candidates at the regular meeting of the lodge tonight. Members of Unity Lodge, of this city, will be in attendance and a social session will follow the initiatory ceremonies.

Three hundred persons attended the pre-Lenten dance given by Court Watchung, Daughters of Isabella, in Columbus Hall, Monday night. Music was furnished by Venable Brothers' orchestra. A feature of the affair was the attractive manner in which the auditorium was decorated with American colors and portraits of Presidents Washington, Lincoln and Wilson. Mrs. Jeffrey Thompson was chairman of the committee who made arrangements.

PARROT LIKELY TO BE RETAINED BY SURROGATE.

Indications are that Surrogate Charles N. Codding will not make an appointment as deputy. In talking on the subject on his return from a trip to Boston yesterday he declared that he was satisfied with the way things are at present and that he believed others who are in touch with the office are also pleased. he could not see that any benefit could be gained by a change.

Walters B. Parrott, brother of George Parrott, a former surrogate, has been retained by Mr. Codding as assistant when he took office last December. At the time he stated that he would not make a choice for several months, and his remarks of yesterday would seem to indicate that he has decided not to make any at all.

CONGRESS TAKES STEPS TO REGISTER WEALTH.

The first step toward actual registration of wealth in the country will be announced soon. Representative Howard, Georgia, has drawn a measure, known to be welcome at the Treasury Department, authorizing the commissioner of internal revenue to name a day upon which all people in the country subject to income tax shall register the total of their moneyed possessions and other valuables coming under the income tax

Analysis of Assembly Vote On Police Bill

By a vote of 34 to 26 the House of Assembly, Tuesday night, went on record in favor of the creation of a State Constabulary for New Jersey. The galleries were crowded with la*bor men, many of whom went to* Trenton in a big delegation from Hudson county, and they punctuated the two hours of debate with much applause. When Speaker Wolverton announced the final vote, hisses greeted his declaration that the bill had passed. The following is the way the House voted:

Ayes—Abbott, Agans, Allinson, Amerman, Applegate, Blair, Bostock, Burroughs, Champion, Cochran, Edmar, Fowler, Glover, Hagaman, Herrick, Hobart, Kellam, Lake, Lewis, Litchfield, Lord, Morgan, Pierson, Pruden, Read, Roberts, Schneider, Stewart, Warner, Whitney, Wilson, Winne, Wolverton and Young—34.

Noes—Badgley, Close, Dungan, Eaton, Foxhall, Gaede, Gallagher, Gill, Hanley, Hershfield, Hirschberg, Hurley, Marfulli, McAteer, McGovern, Nolan, Reeves, Robinson, Rogers, Simpson, Smith, Snow, Stout, Tattersall, Vreeland and Yarrow—26.

An analysis of the vote showed that thirty-two Republicans and two Democrats supported the bill and fourteen Republicans and twelve Democrats voted together against it. Republican Leader Pierson and Speaker Wolverton were placed in the affirmative column. Democratic Leader Simpson voted "no." The entire Passaic Republican delegation and five of the twelve Essex Republicans refused to be bound by the Republican caucus on the proposition. Gill, Republican Assemblyman from Mercer, together with the G. O. P. representatives from Cumberland and Salem and Vreeland, of Morris, also opposed it.

The two Democratic voters for it were Herrick, of Warren, and Agans, of Hunterdon.

Only one amendment was tacked to the bill before it went to a final vote and that was a "sop" to the labor men and Assemblymen opposing the measure. It provides that the State Police are not to be used in a municipality having a regular police force, except by order of the Governor or on the request of the authorities of such municipality, but no such order is to be issued by the Governor except in case of actual riot, tumult or disorder.

Assemblyman Simpson asked Mr. Hobart, of Essex, whether a strike trouble would not be regarded as a "tumult." There was no answer. Simpson characterized the addition to the bill as a "camouflage amendment."

By a vote of thirty-two to twenty-*eight the State Chamber of Com*merce Assemblyman refused to permit the adoption of an amendment offered by Simpson which would have attached a referendum to the Constabulary Bill and not permitted it to become effective until the majority of the people of the State said so by their vote.

Following this Assemblyman Close, of Essex, offered an amendment providing that the bill should not become operative until the United States should end its war with Germany. This went down to defeat also by a "aye" and "nay" vote.

Assemblyman Foxhall, of Passaic, in support of this amendment declared that if the bill passed without it the "idea would not be to provide a real military force, but a collection of thugs to be saddled on the people of New Jersey."

"Some one behind this bill has vision," said Yarrow, of Essex. "When the war ends they intend to use this body of police to force down the wages."

Assemblyman Champion, of Essex, spoke against the amendment, saying his travels through Pennsylvania, where the Constabulary is in operation, convinced him it was a good idea. Bostock, of Essex, who holds a union card as a former glass blower and has since entered the employers' class, spoke for the bill as originally presented.

Wilson, of Sussex, its introducer for the State Chamber of Commerce, read a letter from Governor Brumbaugh, of Pennsylvania, declaring the State Police of that commonwealth had been satisfactory.

"To pass a good bill at a wrong time is as noxious as to pass a bad bill at any time," said Gill, Republican, of Mercer, speaking against the bill.

Assemblyman Simpson, Democratic leader of the House, made one of the leading speeches against the bill. He said in part that "this is not a police bill, but one to suppress labor, there is no doubt about that. It will permit these men of the constabulary to ride into a community and intimidate men on strike. The labor men in the galleries here tonight are wearing the red, white and blue. This is not the time to put across a bill like this when we need these people to work; when they are giving their body and souls for their country, look out for the result. If any man votes for this measure to-night he can be classed as a pro-German because he is trying to disorganize this Government in a time of war, when we need the laboring man; when we need the rich man and the poor; the intelligent and the ignorant, and we need them all. Don't sow dragon's teeth and reap armed men." Simpson concluded.

Assemblyman Warner, of Union, spoke for the bill, as did Kellam, of Camden, both Republicans. "I don't recognize anything in this measure detrimental to the labor," asserted Warner. "I have received no letters from manufacturers to support it, and I believe the Union county papers have not opposed it," he went on to say.

One of the best speeches against the bill was made by Assemblyman Close, of Essex, who said that Assemblyman Wilson, of Sussex, was not the author of the bill. He declared if the real authors are the publicity bureaus of the great corporations.

"I have been advised by a representative of the State Chamber of Commerce that if I vote for this bill my road to Washington would be clear, and another member of the organization informed me that if I oppose the bill I would, this night, witness my political funeral," further declared Close.

This Essex member said he would have to vote against the bill as a matter of conscience, as well as one of paper statesmanship. He declared it was asked for by the capitalists "whose son is a fool and daughter a foreign princess."

Assemblyman Snow, of Hudson county, caused a laugh when he asserted that the farmers of Hudson county are against the bill. He said, "If this measure passes tonight it will create 5,000 Socialists, and let United States Senatorial candidates beware that it will also make 74,000 Democrats."

Details of Colonia Hospital, Near Plainfield, Where Wounded "Sammies" Will Receive Treatment

Taking form on the top of a series of hills several miles to the south of Plainfield is a huge hospital where the American boys who have been wounded on the battle fields of France will be given medical treatment, employment and education. To the government it is known as the United States General Hospital, No. 3, Iselin, N. J.; to the general public as a huge project of Uncle Sam's at Colonia, costing close to $1,000,000, for the nursing of war-wrecked soldiers back to health, and to one who sets out to visit it on a February afternoon as the terminus of one of the muddiest, most uncomfortable journeys imaginable.

Spread out over something more than forty acres and complete with everything from a fire house to a chapel, it will leave the hands of those who are constructing it early in June, with room for a village numbering thousands of souls, those who have "been across" and those who are bringing them back to *health and usefulness, all living un*der federal protection. The making of a lease by which Charles Freeman is to receive the sum of $1 a year for the use of his estate took care of the latter detail.

The one line of communication that at present connects the spot with the outside world is a jitney line, the owners of which refuse to run unless they get a good deal more than a jitney as recompense. By reason of much threatening the army officials have succeeded in establishing a rate, but that, like the route, is uncertain. Of course, there is the interminable line of huge gray trucks trundling materials and supplies to and fro, but after two or three have been seen to pitch and lurch along the slimy roads even walking seems better. Already the bus drivers have become adept at passin gthem on a path menat for one.

When the site of the hospital is gained, however, it is well worth the trip. Wednesday there was a tinge of spring in the air that thrilled. When summer comes a place more ideal could not be found.

The pounding of hundreds of hammers is the first intimation to be had of the neanress of any activity, once the intervening ground has been covered. Then the road takes a decided curve, crosses a sort of causeway marked off by two huge stone pillars and starts climbing a gentle slope, to pass along the tops of a dozen succeeding ones.

Just inside the gateways is seen the first hint of what is to be. Perched up on four posts for want of more substantial support is a gray shack labeled "Employment Office." In there have been hired the 200 men no wtolling on the hills in back and from there also must the 400 others that will be needed obtain their identification buttons before they may start work.

A few feet further on a rambling, one storied, frame building is located on the edge of the driveway. Signs over the two doorways point out the offices of the construction quartermaster and his assistants. From inside Major Edward B. Elliott directs the entire project, with Captain L. M. Lang and Captain Frederick B. Smith to see that they are carried into execution.

All three are workers, with reputations for getting things done, and with a detachment from the Quartermaster corps as further aid. The senior officer of the three is of the lean and wiry type, while both the others are stranping individuals of six feet and more.

Directly in back of the office are several storehouses and further up are the shelters for the army men, who now live there. Within the next few days a commissary will have been established and quarters provided so that the workmen may remain there night and day.

Those are all temporary structures, necessary while the work is going on. Futher up on the crest of the first rise the permanent buildings start in. A dozen skeletons loomed in the air, signs of what are to follow, and over and around them 187 men, according to the Major's list, were swarming.

By the time they are through there will be seventy separate structures. To start with, there will be an administration building from whence the orders will come. The nurses' quarters will also be an important link in the chain. It will house the several hundred young women who are to bear such an important part in the program. The officers' ward will be another, followed by seventeen single wards, physical therapy building, laboratory, operating pavilion and mess hall of three wrings. Then there will be the all important kitchen, a post exchange, fire station, garage, chapel and mortuary, three storehouses and ten two-story wards, together with the isolation ward and officers' quarters.

Besides all these there will come a school building, shop and two garages, the shops, the two are the features. By that coined word they are to be known because upon them will largely depend the recovery of possibly thousands of invalids.

All of the buildings are to be of frame construction but so erected that they will be practically fireproof. Forty will be two stories in height and the remainder of one story.

If everything is to be finished on time there will have to be many more workmen. As many as apply will be employe dat union hours and for union wages. Carpenters are needed most of all at present, although plumbers and steamfitters to install water and steam heat will be wanted lated. Laborers to construct the sewer system are to be called for, as well as elecricians to light each building and linemen to stretch telephone wires.

The hospital will be entirely independent of everything else. Two 100,000-gallon tanks will provide water, and a spur from the Pennsylvania Railroad will provide an inlet and outlet for both patients and supplies.

Although nothing has been definiteyl decided in the matter as yet, good and wholesome entertainment will be provided for. It is possible that an auditorium will be erected, but the chance of utilizing a natural ampitheatre should make that unnecessary. With little effort it could be made into an ideal open air spot. Several hundred feet across at the bottom and three times as wide at the rim, thousands could comfortably perch on its side and be entertained. Moving pictures and probably other forms of amusement will be arranged for when the condition of the boys permits.

The large staff of doctors and nurses will be installed within a month or so and they will complete the last details for the reception of the first wounded to arrive.

Jersey women will also bear a large part of the task. They have formed themselves into the Mercy Committee of New Jersey and have taken upon themselves the burden of providing cots, bandages and the hundred and one other necessaries that would otherwise have to be furnished by the Government.

Relative to the methods of work to be employed in bringing the wounded back to health, occupations such as basketry, elementary knife work, knitting and block reading, in fact anything which will occupy both the mind and muscles, will be drafted into the program.

As health returns and the soldier boys are allowed to move about they will do so without any fear of coming to grief, for the surrounding country is to be as dry as the Sahara. The schemes of certain people to locate ventures near the hospital have been thwarted and a sharp lookout for undesirables is being kept.

AUTOISTS MAY NOW USE YELLOW LIGHTS.

Yellow lights on automobiles at night will be legalized by a bill, offered by Mr. Stewart, which has been sent to the Senate after having passed the House late Tuesday afternoon. Some opposition was expressed against it, based on the fear of the Motor Vehicle Department that if the use of one colored light was authorized the way would be opened to apply for other colors.

Inquiry was made of Mr. Stewart if yellow lenses were not made by a single manufacturer. He answered that they were manufactured by several concerns. The bill was passed by a vote of 39 to 10.

SENATE PASSES BILL TO END ALL "LOAFING."

Assemblyman Kellam's bill, which would make all able-bodied idlers go to work, at least during the period of the war, was passed by the Senate Tuesday.

It empowers the Governor to see to it that every such man, regardless of his station in life, shall be employed at some useful work and was designed, primarily as a means of conserving the man power of the State. West Virginia and Maryland have similar laws.

The Pruden bill, House 299, to authorize municipal authorities to make appropriations for home defense units was passed upon a bare statement by Mr. Pruden of its object. The vote was unanimous.

Facts About The Climate "Over There"

What kind of a climate is being encountered by the Americans that are going to France?

This question has been asked of the United States Weather Bureau by a number of thoughtful persons, and it is an important one. Climate is a mighty factor in warfare. Man, like all other animals, is adapted by his habits of life, and by his physical makeup—especially the color of his skin, hair and eyes—to certain climatic zones, to certain amounts of light, heat and humidity. To be placed in a zone radically different from the one to which he is accustomed or by nature adapted, and he will sicken, sooner or later he will perish unless removed, just as tropical animals sicken and perish in northern zoos, and domestic animals from the temperate zone die or degenerate when taken into the tropics.

That is the reason why American soldiers and civilian officials are sent to the Philippines only for a few years, as the British soldiers and officials to India, and why many of these develop nervous troubles which other diseases during their short stays. The tropics are suited only to men with dark skins, and who are accustomed to considerable degrees of heat. This is also the reason why Indian and other tropical troops have failed to be of material use on the western front in Europe. They are out of their natural zone.

It will be seen at once that in most of our recent warfare the climate has been on the side of the enemy. In the Philippines, in Cuba, in Porto Rico, forms of diseases and degeneration to which the natives were immune took heavy toll of our troops. This hostility of the tropical climate has been as important factor in all tropical conquests by the white men of the temperate zone.

In France our troops will not encounter a hostile climate. On the other hand, many of them will be going to a climate which is more congenial to them than the one in which they were born, and it is probable that many will benefit by the change, so far as purely climatological influences are concerned. For they will be going to a climate which resembles more than any other the climate of our own North Pacific States, such as Washington and Oregon, and which is known to be one of the healthiest climates in the world for the blonde or Aryan man. To Americans who are of South European or African stock, the climate of the battle line will be much less congenial.

Ethnologists are now pretty well agreed that the type of man known as the dolicho-cephalic blonde, to which most Englishmen, Scandinavians, Scotch, Irish, Germans, Swiss, Dutch, natives of Northern France and all Americans descended from these and other blonde stocks belong, originated in the Baltic region. In this Baltic region the blonde man spent the tens of thousands of years before he became civilized. This cool, cloudy Baltic region is therefore his natural life zone, just as much as the Arctic tundra is the life zone of the musk ox, and he will fail to thrive in any other life zone, just as the musk ox fails to thrive when brought South. That explains why, although white men have been pushing South into the tropics for many centuries, they have never been able to make a permanent habitat of the hot countries. They have to control them by sending men to them for a few years; the dark races still remain the only permanent inhabitants.

It follows that nearly the whole of the American continent has a climate to some extent hostile to Americans. It has been suggested that this is the reason why the old dolicho-cephalic blonde American stock is decreasing in this country and the brunette European stocks increasing. Many other facts might be cited in support of this theory. But the important fact for the present discussion is that a cool, cloudy climate is well adapted to the traditional American type, and to such a climate he is going in this war.

We have heard so much about sunny France that many of us think of it as a warm southern country. As a matter of fact, Southern France is as far North as Boston, and Northern France is in the latitude of Southern Canada, as is all of Scotland. But owing to the influence of ocean currents, Northern France does not experience the extremes of heat and cold that visit most of the northern United States. That great ocean current known as the Atlantic drift brings the warmed waters of the Gulf of Mexico to the western coast of Europe. The sea both gives off and absorbs heat more slowly than the land. As a result of this, the effect of the Atlantic drift is to temper both the winters and the summers. Thus Dunkirk, on the coast of France, has almost exactly the same climate as Seattle, Wash., on our own Pacific coast, where the climate is also regulated by ocean currents.

But in France the influence of these ocean currents is not interrupted by great mountain masses to the same extent as in America, with the result that an equable climate is found much farther inland in France. Thus, although winter and summer are well marked in the interior of France, the winters are not so cold nor the summers so hot as in most parts of the northern half of the United States. In the interior of Northern France, the average temperature for January, the coldest month, is a few degrees above freezing, which is about the same as the average for Southern Missouri and Central Virginia. But in these States there is much more variation; in France the temperatures persist close to the average.

The myth of "sunny France" is completely exploded by a study of climatological data. France is much less sunny than America. But this is not altogether to be regretted, for science has searchingly questioned the popular conception that much sunshine is healthful. It is believed that the excessive sunshine of the tropics is one of the most adverse influences of that climate, and it has been proved that some of the light rays—especially the actinic ray—are positively destructive of living tissue. Heat stroke and sunstroke are ascribed to this fact, as is also the peculiar effect of the nerves of the dry sunny table lands of our Southwest.

A comparison of data for Paris and New York shows that in New York the percentage of cloudiness is less in every month of the year. During January, for example, Paris has on the average 72 per cent. of cloudy days, while New York has but 58.

The heat of the American summer is unquestionably the climatic factor from which the typical American consciously suffers most. This he will escape in Europe. The average temperatures in Belgium and northern France during the hottest months, which are July and August, are from 63 to 65 degrees, which is lowed than the average along the Canadian border. When it is taken into account that the climate is also much more uniform than ours, it is seen that the European summers are much more endurable.

Influx of Workers Increasing Union County's Population

Within another six months Union county will have its population increased by at least 25,000 persons, it is estimated by those who are helping to prepare for the newcomers. They will come for the most part to work in ship yards or factories engaged in making articles for the government use and for that reason federal assistance in providing adequate housing for them is asked.

The solving of the employment problem in connection with the shipyards will come first. Besides furnishing accommodations for the hundreds of men who will be employed at the Bethlehem and Samuel L. Moore & Sons' yards, Elizabeth will be one of the cities that will be expected to house many who will find work in the plants on the Newark meadows.

J. Roger Flannery, assistant to the president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, and director of the housing drive, has about decided that Elizabeth will be one of the places in which to have dwellings built with federal money. He was to have visited that city Saturday, but the trip was postponed. It is not likely that anything will be done until the committee having charge of this zone is appointed. There will be six zones in the country, Elizabeth to be in the same one as New York, Newark and other surrounding cities.

After the problem of housing shipworkers has been attended to, munition and aircraft workers will be considered. This should prove even more extensive in Elizabeth and vicinity than the shipyard proposition. A survey of plants engaged in such work discloses the fact that there are fourteen either directly inside of or in close proximity to Elizabeth, and including those in Plainfield. They are all planning to take on large forces.

Already steps have been taken to aid the government. At its last meeting hte Elizabeth City Council passed a resolution setting forth the advantages of building in Elizabeth. It will be sent to Mr. Flannery. The Chamber of Commerce is also cooperating with Mr. Flannery, and the Rahway Board of Trade has also taken up the matter.

The first actual step in the construction of houses on a wholesale plan as a means of furnishing quarters for the influx of new residents was taken this morning when the M. Byrnes Construction Company commenced staking out the sites for fifty-two dwellings at Fay avenue and Rahway, most of them for the Standard Aero Corporation. They have a contract for the Economical Homes Association, of which Archibald H. Bull is president, for the work at a figure said to be $122,000.

Much Speculation Over Tax Measure

Considerable curiosity has been aroused throughout the State over the committee substitute which has been reported in the Assembly for House 60, one of the set of tax reform bills introduced by Majority Leader Pierson, in connection with the series of measures he offered for the reconstruction of the State taxing system. The substitute is not only a substitute, but an antidote for the first bill, which applies a tax to assessors. Apparently it would give dealt with only elected assessors, the all present elective assessors their positions for life.

Under the original bill, which terms of all were to be peremptorily terminated September 30 next. Their places were to be filled by assessors appointed by the governing body of each municipality. The appointments were limited to five in a municipality, notwithstanding any municipal charter provisions. The appointees were to hold office during "good behavior and efficiency." A method of removal was provided in case of contravention.

The substitute now, however, provides for any continuance in office of all assessors "now in office in each of the municipalities of this State, whether elected or appointed." Each will continue to hold office "during good behavior, efficiency and residence in the municipality, notwithstanding any limitations upon the term for which he shall have been heretofore elected or appointed."

Upon death, resignation of removal of an assessor from office, the governing body is to fill the vacancy for the same unlimited period. Methods of removal are prescribed in the substitute, as is also the peculiar effect of the nerves of the dry sunny requirements. The rights of the State Board of Taxes and Assessments to remove an assessor are retained in the bill. No salaries are prescribed for the assessors, but there is a requirement that they shall not be reconvened January 29, and the substitute was reported Wednesday of last week.

New Jersey's 6,998 Newest Selectives Will Start for Dix

A total of 6,998 New Jersey men will go to Camp Dix in the quota of thirty-four per cent., according to figures given out this week by the draft division of the Adjutant-General's Department. The first contingent will start for the cantonment February 23, and the details as to train movements and time of departure were announced today.

A total of 835 men will go on the twenty-third, a Saturday. On the following Monday, February 25, there will be 1,784 men sent; Tuesday, 1,748, and Wednesday, 621. Following are times of departure on the different days for the quotas from the different municipalities and counties:

February 23,—Burlington, Bergen and Passaic county men.

February 25,—Essex county, 123 men from five draft boards; Newark, 897 men from fourteen boards; all entrain at Market street, Newark, at 9:03 o'clock; Atlantic City, 69 men from two boards entrain at 7:20 from Tennessee avenue.

A total of nine men will leave Orange on the 9:26 train on Tuesday, February 26, and they will pick up fifty-three more at East Orange at 9:31 o'clock.

Camden county, 102 men, two boards; Camden City, 184 men, four boards; all entrain at Camden at 9:20 o'clock.

Middlesex, 126 men, two boards, entrain at New Brunswick at 10:50 o'clock.

Hudson county, 223 men, three boards; Hoboken, 186, three boards; West Hoboken, 128 men, one board; Jersey City, 679 men, ten boards; all entrain at Exchange place, Jersey City, at 10:18 o'clock.

Union county, 62 men, Board No. 2, leave Plainfield at 9:38 a. m.

Bayonne City, 154 men, two boards; entrain at West Eighth street, Bayonne, at 9:40 o'clock.

Atlantic county, 73 men, one board; entrain at May's Landing at 9:22 o'clock.

Following quotas will go on Tuesday morning, February 26:

Monmouth county, 100 men from Boards Nos. 2 and 3, entrain respectively at Matawan and Red Bank at 7:47 and 7:35 o'clock.

Perth Amboy, 127 men from one board, leave at 9 o'clock.

Middlesex county, 106 men from one board; entrain at South Amboy at 9:05 o'clock.

Monmouth county, 52 men from one board, leave Freehold at 9 o'clock.

Monmouth county, 44 men from one board, leave Asbury Park at 2:02 o'clock in the afternoon.

Union county, 61 men from Board No. 1, and the following from Elizabeth: 90 from Board No. 1, 81 from Board No. 2, and 76 from Board No. 3, or 247 in all. Both contingents will entrain at Elizabeth at 11:10 in the morning.

Also 61 men from Union county Board No. 2, who will entrain at Summit at 9:06 o'clock.

Hudson county, 90 men from Board No. 4, who will entrain at Pavonia street, Harrison, at 10:26 o'clock, together with 80 men from Board No. 5.

Middlesex, 112 men from Metuchen Local Board No. 4 leaving at 10:45 o'clock.

Following will leave on February 27, men from Warren, Hunterdon, Mercer and Sussex counties.

HOUSE PASSES CAT BILL MID MANY "MEOWS."

Accompanied by vocal sounds in imitation of members of the feline family, the House of Assembly passed the "cat bill," introduced by Assemblyman Wilson, of Sussex county. It provides that there shall be imposed a license fee of $1 on the owner of every cat in the State. The measures now goes to the Senate. Its passage in the Lower Branch was marked by the usual humor which annually characterizes the consideration of this subject.

Engine Repairs To Be Hastened

The National Railroad today resorted to "speed up" measures in locomotive repair shops to relieve the most appalling motive power situation in railroad history.

Increased hours of labor will be resorted to, following direct appeal to A. C. Wharton, representing the shop mechanics. Overtime will be the rule until every locomotive is back on the tracks with a maximum load. In return the Government will grant wage increases asked by the mechanics averaging, it is believed, about 40 per cent.

The step was determined upon when negligence in handling of locomotives was plainly shown in summarized reports of special investigators for the Interstate Commerce Commission made public by Commissioner McChord. Trains have been made up and allowed to wait on tracks for hours, clogging up freight yards and stopping traffic, because of shortage of engines. Locomotives have been held up for ten hours in roundhouses when they should have been turned in four or five hours. Crews have been held at terminals sixteen hours and then relieved by other crews while waiting for engines. Trains on sidings have been held up until the sixteen-hour law forced roads to send out relief crews. These conditions, set forth by Commissioner McChord's report, were the basis of sensational charges that railroad executives are intentionally negligent to embarrass the railroad administration made by W. G. Lee, of the railway trainmen.

Conditions of locomotives are especially bad on the Baltimore and Ohio, Philadelphia and Reading, New York, New Haven and Hartford, the Erie, the Jersey Central and the Pennsylvania.

These conditions are partly the result of past negligence in failing to repair engines at the first sign of trouble. Such minor conditions as a worn side rod on a locomotive, for instance, could be remedied at a cost of $5 and two hours' work. Ignored, an accident is almost a certainty and a repair cost of $1,500 and ten days in the shops the result.

Engines overworked for months the now breaking down in large numbers. Shop forces are depleted by enlistment and inroads from other industries. Motive power is the crucial link in the whole transportation system, experts point out, and only quick restoration to normal will relieve congestion.

While railroad administration officials in some instances scout charge of "soldiering" against rail executives, other officials of long acquaintance with railroad operation admit the charges have basis in truth. Evidence in this regard is now being collected. Should conditions make it necessary the railroad administration might be compelled to take drastic action, even publicly discharging an offending official as an example to others of its determination to get the best results.

In the Pitcairn yards of the Pennsylvania lines, McChord reported 100 locomotives were turned on February 6 at an average time of nearly seven hours, while on the corresponding day last year 149 locomotives were turned in the average time hour of four hours.

Inspectors at the Oscoola Mills engine house of the Pennsylvania complained one report that foremen were failing to make work reports and engines were not being inspected at the pits. No explanations for failure to make reports were made.

At the Edgemoor yards on February 7 the report states that forty-one engine crews were on hand but there were no available locomotives.

BOARD OF FREEHOLDERS INCREASE CO. SALARIES

At the February meeting of the Board of Freeholders in Elizabeth at the courthouse action was taken on the matter of increases in the salary of the various county employes who have been petitioning for such increases, due to the high cost of living. The board took favorable action in each instance, granting increases to courthouse employes, bridegtenders, attendants at the county jail, as well as employes in the county engineer's office.

Not a dissenting vote was cast when the committee recommendations were read, the twenty members present, Freeholder Henry Krouse being the only absentee, giving approval to the recommendations.

County Collector N. R. Leavitt sent a letter to the board in which he outlined suggestions sent to him regarding any contemplated bond issues by the Freeholders. The letter was in the nature of a warning that the financial market was such at the present time that any contemplated issue would not be looked upon with favor in view of the fact that the Government expects in a short time to call upon the banks for additional funds to carry on the war.

Collector Leavitt's letter is as follows:

"I deem it proper at this time to call your attention to the condition of finances in this country, in so far as it affects or many hereafter affect the sale of bonds issued by this county, for improvements now being made or improvements in contemplation, the cost of which is to be paid by bond issues.

"I received from the Federal Reserve Board a copy of a letter addressed to Benjamin Strong, Esq., governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, by Mr. Paul M. Warburg, chairman, Capital Issues Committee, from which I quote:

"'In order to win the war it is imperative at this time that goods, credit and savings be placed at the disposal of the Government in the most possible measure. Any unnecessary production or consumption of goods, and any unnecessary use of credit, saps and weakens the fighting strength of the Nation.'

"After referring to the willingness of the people of this country to meet the Government's requirements generously and without reserve, it is suggested that a proper control of credit is one of the foremost endeavors of the Nations at war, and that to control credit a committee is to be appointed who will pass upon the following questions:

"(1) Whether the offer of bonds or securities is timely with respect to the financial operations to be undertaken by the Government from time to time.

"(2) Whether the objects for which the funds are to be raised by the offer of securities are compatible with the public interest as above described.

"The letter furter states, that before a State, county or municipality offers bonds or notes to the extent of $250,000, they should seek the advice of the above named committee and ascertain if such a sale at this time would be held to be compatible with public interests. Of course such submission to the committee for its advice at this time is voluntary, yet, co-operation on the part of the board is undoubtedly obligatory in the present critical time.

"Aside from the suggestion made by the Federal Reserve Board, I feel it is the patriotic duty of every official to so manage the finances of the county as to make it unnecessary to issue bonds; and, therefore, may I suggest to the Board, that no improvement be undertaken this year that will necessitate the issuance of bonds to pay for the same, unless the delay would cause hardship of cause loss ultimately to the taxpayers. I feel that every time we offer bonds for sale we are coming in direct competition with our Government, which at this time needs every available dollar for the successful prosecution of the present war."

JERSEY POTATO GROWERS FORM AN ASSOCIATION

Organization of the New Jersey State Potato Growers' Association was effected at Trenton, Monday, when 200 growers from various potato districts in the State attended the initial meeting in Association Hall. Secretary Alva Agee of the State Board of Agriculture, presided and explained some of the advantages of such an organization, the first of its kind in New Jersey.

The organization will be governed by a president, secretary, treasurer and an executive committee, the committee being made up of representatives of county agricultural board and co-operative associations of New Jersey, to be appointed at a later date. Members of the nominating committee include Henry Loveland, of Salem; William Hughes, of Middlesex; E. C. Conover, of Freehold; Walter Minth, of Bridgeton; Jas. Moore, of Mullica Hill, and John W. Hendrickson, of Ewing. John H. Hankinson, of Glen Moore; Frederick Lippincott, of Mt. Holly, and Fred Gardner, of Robbinsville, were appointed as members of a committee to draft the constitution.

H. S. Miller, of Riverton, who has charge of the potato division of the United States Food Administration, addressed the growers, and discussed standard grade and other regulations in connection with the marketing of the product. He went into various phases of potato culture and told how the growers can further assist in the winning of the war. Mr. Miller expressed the opinion that the government would not take a hand in the fixing of prices of tubers.

That the price proposition was referred to by Mr. Miller, upon which it is understood there is a difference of opinion among growers in this State. While it is claimed the practice has proved practical for the growers of round stock, those producing the exceptionally large potatoes do not take kindly to the proposition.

MOTORMAN ANSWERS QUESTIONNAIRE IN RHYME

Many humprous answers to the draft questionnaires have been received by the Plainfield and other Exemption Boards, but one of the cleverest yes noted was sent to the examiners in a Brooklyn district. It *was written by a motorman and re*produced in the New York Sun as follows:

I, Timothy Lynch, do solemnly swear,
I'm the registrant in this questionnaire.
Thirty years old is my age, sir, today,
I live near this school, a few blocks away.
I'm a motorman, and also please add
I live with my wife, and she with her dad.
I work forth Road and truthfully say
I run over people ten hours a day.
So skilful am I in this kind of work
I know I can kill both Teuton and Turk.
Military training I never had,
I was put out of school for being bad.
I speak English well, both pure and profane,
German or French never entered my brain.
And here let me say, and put this in rhyme,
That never was I convicted of crime.
I stand six feet in my—estimation,
And weigh 200 without—exaggeration,
I am physically fit and feeling so fine,
I'll sign my name at the end of this line.
It has never been my fortune or fate
To be employed by this Nation or State.
Am I a minister? You make me smile,
A Divinity student? Wrong by a mile,
I'm not in the naval or military service.
It was my neglect, and not that I'm nervous.
I'm a citizen and am proud to say,
I'm ready to fight for my flag any — day.
Though born in Ireland thirty years ago
I've been in this country ten years or so.
I left one fine day from fair Queenstown port,
Aboard the Celtic and here I was brought.
I came here alone. My parents stayed home,
They were too feeble this wide world to roam.
I got citizen papers in City Hall,
I love this country; I await its call.
I have dependents. I'm married, you see.
There's Bridget, my wife, and our child, Marie.
We all live together, wife, child and me.
It costs a whole lot to care for us three.
But I'm a fighter and it it must be,
My wife will work hard and let me be free
To do my full share for democracy.
I waive all claim for any exemption
I want to fight for freedom's redemption.

THE ADVANTAGE OF HAVING A "KICKER."

Ordinarily when a citizen objects to certain doings in his home town, official and otherwise, he is promptly put down by the unthinking population as a "kicker." The persons so describing the objector do not make use of the gray matter the Lord gave them to figure out that he frequently has reason for lifting up his voice, that he does it not only in his own behalf but for those who work and live in the same community that he does. They simply remark, "Oh, he is kicking again," and let it go at that.

Nevertheless every municipality needs a kicker. If it were not for those of his kind, the great mass of people would go along in their own quiet, serene way until something akin to a crash came and then they would wonder why no one had sounded the alarm. It is the kicker who does it, thereby putting a check on carelessness, negligence or indifference that means financial loss to the taxpayers.

If we may be pardoned for using the term, Charles H. Hand is a "kicker." As one of the men who has to bear a large share of Plainfield's ex*penses, he keeps an eye on official expenditures and* if they are not made to suit him, he makes no hesitation in protesting. Unlike the "knocker" he does not beat around the bush but goes directly to headquarters after first taking the trouble to acquaint himself with facts. The "knocker" jumps at conclusions and criticises for the mere love of the act without offering a remedy for his supposed grievance, but no so with Mr. Hand. He has a broad sense of civic pride and realizes that mistakes are human and can overlook another man's faults but insists that the town should not go on forever condoning the same drawback.

In last week's issue of the Record, Mr. Hand addressed a number of pertinent queries to the citizens as a whole, calling their attention to what he considered irregularities in seeking an explanation of their continuance. They were not without their effect and there has been more or less discussion of his letter since it appeared in print. This week Mr. Hand again expresses views on municipal subjects in a manner which shows that he is not at all "backward" in coming forward. We give his communication in full for the benefit of the taxpayers:

Editor, The Record:

May I again ask space in your valued paper, which I hope will soon be appearing daily, to discuss some of the affairs of our city?

I have been given to understand that the Common Council has had in its employ an engineer, named George Fuller, who has been paid $5,000 a year to watch the sewage disposal beds for the spe*cific purpose of telling us whether or not the water* in them smells. If this be true, it is an absolute needless expense and should not be tolerated under any circumstance. We all know that the effluent at the disposal plant possesses an odor but why in the name of common sense the people should be called upon to pay $5,000 to be reminded of this fact is more than I can figure out. The water smells and always will smell and we don't need any high priced engineer to inform us of something that our olfactory organs can tell us for nothing.

I understand that Assistant Chief Townley has kept a private car at Fire Headquarters for some time and that the firemen take care of it for him when it is in need of repair. In addition to this, the Assistant Chief comes and goes at will in respect to duty, yet receives full pay. Is this right to the taxpayer?

There has been a lot of talk about taking away the car from Building Inspector Doane. If the people who claim it is a shame that the Council saw fit to save the expense of a machine and chauffeur should take the trouble to look into the matter, they would understand perhaps why it was considered too expensive. Besides having to pay $60 a month for the driver, the taxpayers also had to put up for a quantity of gasoline out of all proportion with the work done. In the month of January, the last one the inspector rode, the official statement shows that his car used up fifty-nine gallons of gas while the entire fire department with all its motor apparatus only consumed sixty-two and a half gallons. This latter amount includes more than four hours' running of the American-LaFrance pumping engine at the Martin garage fire. They were only a comparatively small number of buildings to examine in the thirty-one days I speak of and those who know anything about automobiles can appreciate the fact that fifty-nine gallons of gasoline is many times too much for all the use the car was put to. This makes me ask the question, are weekly inspections for Newark, Elizabeth, Asbury Park and other places or has the gas tank of the inspector's car developed a bad leak?

While on the subject of city automobiles, what business has our public cars got being out on Sundays. I understand one of them, at least, has gotten as far as Long Island on the Sabbath day. Perhaps some of our officials have business over that way, but I don't see why the municipal automobile should have had to make the trip when it could be done much cheaper by the usual easy line of travel, the railroad train.

In my opinion, what we want here in Plainfield is a lawyer and an order from the court to investigate our affairs for the interest of all taxpayers. I do not mean to say there is any dishonest office holder; I only want to show how really honest we are. The councilmen hold their office two years without any pay, receive all kinds of abuse for what they don't do, but get very little praise for what they do do. They cannot do and see everything and it is just as much every citizen's duty to see what is going on as it is theirs. The newspapers can do their share to make things better and when they do not perform their duty for the benefit of the community somebody else has to shoulder the responsibility.

Sincerely yours,
CHARLES H. HAND.

HISTORY REPEATING ITSELF.

Those who are inclined to grumble because they are compelled to face inconveniences and hardships in these days of National stress, should not forget that the usual lot of their pioneer ancestors was not less hard to bear. They should remember that their fathers and mothers, grandfathers and grandmothers, during the trying days of the Civil War, met and overcame even greater privations and anxieties and heartbreakings without flinching.

A leaf from the expense account book of a Plainfield resident shows that the cost of living was much higher during the Civil War days and even after the Rebellion ended than the present time. And there was much less chance to earn the money to pay for the necessities of life.

If there is more grumbling now than then, it indicates that Americans of this generation possess less spirit, less patriotism, less stamina, less endurance than in the Civil War period.

GETTING FACTS ON THE COAL SITUATION.

A committee of Plainfield citizens will wait upon Fuel Commissioner English at Elizabeth, this afternoon, for the expressed purpose of getting a uniform rate in this city on the price of all coal. The custom has been, through government sanction, to allow the dealers getting their supplies from the independent companies to charge seventy-five cents a ton more than those handling the old line output. The people who stand in line to get an order from the local commissioner know nothing about the two concerns and consequently there is much dissatisfaction when one man pays his seventy-five cents more a ton than does his neighbor.

While the committee is talking with Mr. English it is to be hoped they get some information on the private shipments of coal to Plainfield men who are not dealers. On Tuesday of this week, nineteen cars were received at the freight house. Fourteen of these were for the merchants and were immediately disposed of by the commission's orders. One of the others was consigned to Mayor William L. Smalley and with his characteristic generosity he turned it over to the authorities for whatever purpose they chose. It was sold at the same figure as that charged by the dealers. The other four cars were consigned to a prominent resident who explained that they had been secured by "pool." He declared that what was left over could be had by anyone needing coal but that because of its being "premium" coal and costing more through extra shipping, it would have to sell for twelve dollars a ton. The commission was not "let in" on the consignment and what became of it is not known.

The men and women who have to stand in line to get an order from the commissioner and wait three or four days for half a ton of fuel, as some of them do, do not take kindly to this private shipping proposition. Those who are committing the practice can do all the explaining in the world, but it falls on deaf ears. Why one set of Americans have to be subject to all the inconveniences of the commissioner's dictation and another set can evade the federal ultimatum by putting up a certain amount of money is not the kind of action that promotes patriotic principles. Furthermore if the Plainfield coal commission is to have charge of the fuel situation it cannot afford to let private carloads come into the city and be distributed at any rate the private purchasers see fit to charge. The Government has fixed a price for coal and if it is not to be lived up to, why should the people support the expensive federal trade board which makes a rate after investigation of the cost of production.

The committee waiting upon Mr. English this afternoon might make itself worth while by finding out some of these important facts.

ACTION NEEDED IF BOYS ARE TO BE HONORED.

Unless immediate steps are taken by some organization or individual, the sixty-two Plainfield district men designated to proceed to Camp Dix on February 25 will leave the city without any demonstration other than that accorded by relatives and friends at the railroad station.

So far no one has shown any inclination to honor the boys as were those who went away last September, when a street parade, banquet and mass meeting formed a program such as none of the selectives will ever forget. It sent every one of them away with lighter hearts and the full realization that "the old town" recognized the sacrifice they were making. The expense attached was so small that it was hardly worth considering in the summing up of benefits derived.

The boys who are to join the colors a week from next Monday are entitled to a rousing send-off, if any, larger yet than the one arranged for their predecessors. The point has been reached in the war where grim determination has supplanted enthusiasm born of patriotic fervor and the best is none too good for the noble lads who are leaving home and luxuries for the rigors of camp and trench.

By all means let us have a demonstration on February 25. Let the Home Defense League, or somebody start the ball rolling and there will be a rush of followers. All it needs is someone to lead the way. Who will be the first?

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

Now watch the paragraphers get off their wheezes about Hog Island.

The North avenue restaurant keepers have a sly way of adding insult to injury. They persist in serving coffee drinkers with nothing but "loaf" sugar on "workless" Mondays.

Did any of you ever stop to notice the striking resemblance the City Hall dome bears to Grant's tomb? The effect is best seen when viewed from a distance, and to carry out the idea keep in mind that things are "dead" at both places.

Just as Dr. Garfield decided to call off his "workless" Mondays the Public Service comes along and shuts off all power from manufacturing plants. Seems like robbing Peter to pay Paul.

During the draft examinations at the Evergreen Avenue School Wednesday, the doctors discovered that one of the registrants could read every line on the optical test card, a feat that no other young man had accomplished. He was accepted and is to go to France, but Plainfield citizens should enter a protest. A boy with sight like that should be kept right here at home. Maybe with a little practice he could see the real state of affairs down at the joint sewage plant and let the rest of us in on it.

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When Fisher's candy store on West Fourth street was the mecca for the down town school children?

When a popular outdoor sport was gathering water cress in "Beachy" Lane's Swamp?

When greasing daddy's boots was one of the daily duties of the boy in the family?

When the wearing of blue glasses was a great fad and everybody, old and young, appeared on the street behind a pair of goggles, the bigger the better?

When baseball games in "Penny Orchard" caused many of the boys to invent excuses for getting to Johnston's Drive on Sunday morning?

When the Park Avenue Social Club and the Summit Lyceum exchanged visits, each one seeking to outdo the other in the royalty of its entertainment, thereby greatly upsetting the morale of certain business houses on succeeding days?

When "Gep" Frazee, "49 er," ran the Tippecanoe Club on East Front street and taught Plainfielders of today how to play the game of politics?

When the atrocious comic valentines known as "penny terribles" filled the shop windows previous to Valeinte's day and permitted people with vindictive dispositions to get a sly dig at their enemies?

"Ruth, the Gleaner"

A Sacred Cantata

By J. Watson

"Ruth, the Gleaner," a sacred cantata, was presented in Trinity Reformed church, last night, under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society and the direct supervision of Miss Sara Etta Raybert. It was witnessed by a large gathering which assembled in the lecture room and will be repeated this evening.

• • • • • • •

"Intreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee, for where thou goest, there will I too go, and where thou lodgest I will lodge, Thy people shall be my people, and Thy God, my God, where Thou diest will I die"—thus spake Ruth of old in the harvest fields of the land of Moab three thousand years ago.

Last night, another Ruth, with a voice as tenderly sweet, re-echoed the words of love and loyalty spoken so long ago in the storied land of distant Araby. "Beneath the softened lights of an occidental hall, the glowing jewel of the Orient shone for a while, as radiant and as gorgeous in its setting, and as wonderful and beautiful in its blend of colors, as the lusterous robes of the bride of the morning as she comes through the gates of dawn."

The story of Ruth is a story of love, of faith and self-abnegation that reaches the heights of sublimity, a story that has lifted its gentle heroine high above the daughters of men, and as it was told last night, it lost none of its tender grace and charm. Each scene of the cantata added to the mystic atmosphere of the East, that like a tinted mist of romance enveloped the players and the audience.

Miss Sara Etta Raybert, as Ruth, in all her sweetness and lovable simplicity, and tragic pathos.

Miss Marion Woolley, as the "Namoie" of the story, held her audience with the power of her splendid voice, a voice I understand, that has never yet known the guidance of the teachers' art. It is doubtful if even the so-called technique of the singing masters' trade could impart more melody to the gift bestowed by nature upon Miss Wooley.

F. S. Cutter, singing the part of Boaz, helped by his rich strong voice, to make the cantata a success.

Space will not permit the giving to each one of the company who took part in the cantata the measure of praise they deserve, and I may add that the writer is not a hired press agent, seeking to earn his fee by spreading over the company the tured daubs of the laurels of flattery. They did not need it. They are not "artists" in the cheap meaning of the word as mouthed by the egotists of the "Rialto." They were just our own clean-hearted women and men of Plainfield, freely giving their time and their talents in a labor of love for sweet charity's sake.

Miss Helen Woodruff, at the piano, assisted by the Dutch Arms orchestra, deserves much credit for the musical success of the evening. The full cast of characters was: Ruth, the Gleaner, Miss Sara Etta Raybert; Naomi, wife of Elimelech, Miss Marion Woolley; Orpah, wife of Chilion, Mrs. E. D. Young; Boaz, Frederick S. Cutter; Elimelech, harvester, Cornelius Schenck; Mahlon, harvester, son of Elimelech, Horace J. Martin; Chilion, son of Elimelech, scribe, E. D. Young; Miriam, an Israelitish maiden, Miss Adele Freeman; head reaper, kinsman, H. Koch. Ladies' quartet, Miss Adele Freeman, Miss Jennie Sears, Mrs. Sebring, Mrs. A. K. Willett; mourners' chorus, Miss Maud McAfee, Miss Jennie Sears, Mrs. J. B. Carbart, Miss Koller, Miss E. Brokaw, Miss E. Hillpott, Miss M. Dilts.

E. R. Ackerman Mentioned for Next Congress

Friends of former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, are urging him to become a candidate for Congress in the Republican party primaries this fall. It is now recognized that Congressman John H. Capstick, owing to the condition of his health, will not be a candidate again.

Unfounded rumor has connected the name of State Committeeman Hamilton F. Kean with the Congressional campaign, but those who are well informed on Union county politics know that there is no likelihood of Mr. Kean becoming a candidate. Mr. Kean's business interests are known to be very large and calling for close attention. With an international crisis complicating business affairs everywhere it is said to be out of the question for Mr. Kean to enter a strenuous primary and general election battle.

Former Senator Ackerman's candidacy is said to be gaining in momentum daily, despite the fact that Mr. Ackerman has never made his attitude on the Congressional campaign known to the public. It is recognized, however, that this is not necessary, since the former Senator is continuously active in the big affairs of the State. Recently he has attracted wide attention among the business men of the State by his sane and helpful speeches on National affairs connected with the war. Mr. Ackerman is also a member of the State Board of Education, taking an active part in the deliberations of that organization.

Senator Ackerman's exceptional record as a representative of the county in the State Legislature is generally recognized to be greatly in his favor, giving him a fine start in the race, should he decide to make it, whoever the other candidates for the Congressional honor may later prove to be.

The former Senator's name will always be connected with civil service in New Jersey. During his first term as Senator twenty-four bills which e introduced were signed by the Governor. During his second term his name was connected with the employers' liability law and the commission which secured data for the workman's compensation act of 1911, his legislative record, in fact, is a long and enviable one.

DEATH NOTICE.

CALLAHAN—In this city, on Thursday, February 14, 1918, William L. Callahan, in his seventy-third year.

Funeral at his late residence, 748 Woodland avenue, Monday morning, February 18, at 8:30, and in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock, where a requiem mass will be said for the repose of his soul. Interment in St. Mary's cemetery. Please omit flowers.

Last of Class "A-1" Examined Tomorrow

The last eighty men placed in Class A, Division 1, by the local Exemption Board will be examined at the Evergreen Avenue School tomorrow afternoon. Fourteen others, who were previously put through the physical test and rejected, have been recalled because of later regulations received from the War Department and will be added to the list for tomorrow, making a total of 94 men in all.

It was stated at the office of the Exemption Board today that no other registrants remain in the first division of class A. After the sixty-two men are sent to Camp Dix on February 25, all others held in reserve from the acceptances will be ordered to cantonments as the Government calls for conscripts to fill up ranks. There is no immediate possibility of the entire list being taken, at least for several months, but should the quota become exhausted examinations of the other divisions of Class A will be ordered.

The men who are to appear before the Board tomorrow are the following:

Bayard B. Alcorn
Luigo Appezzato
Victor T. Attlee
John J. Brennan
Frank W. Bulsky

NOTES FROM THE PARK AVENUE BAPTIST.

Dr. Swamfield next Sunday will preach in the morning on "Our Responsibility for Souls." This sermon is at 11 o'clock and in the evening on "The Wonderful Conversion of the Bad Son of a Good Father." Evening song and sermon at 8 p. m. All the young people and older, too, are urged to be present at the Young Peoples' Association service at 7 o'clock. The Volunteer Bible Class for Women is in splendid shape and will continue its membership and attendance campaign until Children's Day in June. The class is doing efficient work under the able teaching of Mrs. Dayton, assisted by Mrs. Runyon.

Dr. Swamfield has received from his former church in Boston the gift of a serviceable and beautiful baptismal set which he will use for the first time next Sunday, February 24.

Plainfield, N. J., December 31, 1917.

FORMER COMPANY K MEN IN ANNISTON SCHOOLS

Three commissioned officers of the old New Jersey Second Infantry, stationed at Anniston, and a large number of enlisted men are this week taking the prescribed courses in divisional schools, the former serving as instructors and the latter being on the students' roster.

Captain Charles A. Peterson, of Company F, 113th Infantry, formerly of Company K, of Plainfield, is one of the instructors in the field fortifications class; First Lieutenant Arthur R. Phillips, also of old Company K, but now assigned to the new battalion of the 114th Infantry, is a teacher in the automatic arms class, and Second Lieutenant Walter Borcher, of Trenton, who has been promoted from sergeant to a commissioned officers' rank since going to Anniston, is on the teaching corps of the bayonet school.

The following former Second Infantry enlisted men, now comprising the Second Battalion of the 113th Regiment, have been assigned to the various schools for instruction:

Bayonet—Corporals Harold Melzter, James Stead and Gus Lentz and Sergeant William H. Hampston.

Grenade—Corporal Herbert Bishop and Sergeants Harold Hirsch and Raymond S. Tice.

Gas defense—Corporals P. Vanderhoef, J. J. Cashli and G. S. Trexler.

Automatic arms—Sergeants Harry Rich and John Dudash.

Field fortifications—Sergeant J. B. Holtzman and Corporal S. Metzen.

Horse shoers—Corporal William VanHouten and Private Michael Lyons.

Teamsters—Privates Gus Johnson, Steve Borisuk, Roland H. Kimble and William A. Merritt.

Divisional instruction work in the different modern warfare branches have now reached a point where scores of experts are being turned out each week. These in turn are sent back to their respective units to be used as teachers.

Touring car for private parties can be procured for transportation to Camp Dix by telephoning 3030 or 1176-J. Rates reasonables.—Adv. tf

HOUS EINCREASES CIRCUIT JUDGES' SALARIES.

By a vote of 46 to 2 the House Wednesday passed the Mackay bill increasing the salary of Circuit Court judges from $9,000 to $10,000 a year. Lawyers of the Assembly declared these judges work harder than members of the Supreme Court. Bergar of Middlesex, spoke against the tendency of the lawmakers to advance salaries.

NOTES FROM THE PARK AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH

The Mission Circle met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John C. Abbott, 820 Carlton avenue.

This has been missionary week in Park Avenue. All branches of the church have taken up some part of the work for missions.

The World-Wide Guild banquet, held last Monday evening, was a great success. Delegates from Scotch Plains, New Market, and the First Baptist Guild, of this city, were present and enjoyed a most delightful supper and missionary program.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

MRS. JACOB KIRKNER.

Mrs. Anne Elizabeth Kirkner, widow of Jacob Kirkner, died Monday night at her home, 411 West Eighth street. She had been ill for a long time with complications brought about by the infirmities of age. The funeral was held at the family residence yesterday afternoon at 2:30 and was conducted by Rev. Howard E. Clarke, pastor of the Congregational church, of which the deceased had been a member for many years. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Kirkner was born in New York eighty-two years ago but had made her home in Plainfield since 1865, at which time she and her husband removed here. Mr. Kirkner died about nine years ago. He was one of Plainfield's most prominent citizens for a long time and as a member of the Board of Education aided in laying the foundation of the city's present excellent school system. He was one of the men instrumental in having the Stillman High School erected at Fifth street and Arlington avenue in 1867, this structure housing the higher grades until the present High School was built on West Ninth street.

Mrs. Kirkner's near-surviving relatives are two sons and a daughter. They are: Miss Mae S. Kirkner, living at the West Eighth street home; George M. Kirkner, of New York, and John W. Kirkner, of this city. There are also four grandchildren and a brother and sister surviving. The grandchildren are George Newell Kirkner, Frank Moss Kirkner, Mrs. William Cuttle and Miss Margaret C. Kirkner.

MRS. FANNY D. CORBUSIER.

The home of Dr. Harold D. Corbusier, on Park avenue, was filled with relatives and friends last Saturday afternoon when the funeral service of his mother, Mrs. Fanny Dunbar Corbusier, was held. It was conducted by Rev. W. Vivars Stevenson, rector of Grace church. The attendants included Dr. Corbusier, who has been stationed at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and who made a hurried trip north on receiving news of his mother's death. The end occurred at her home on Crescent avenue, Friday night, after an illness extending over twelve months.

The body was sent to Washington, D. C., Sunday, and burial was made in Mount Arlington cemetery on Monday.

Fanny Dunbar Corbusier was born in Baltimore, Maryland, May 15, 1838. She was the wife of Lieut. Colonel William H. Corbusier, U. S. Army, retired, and the mother of five sons: Captain Claude R. Corbusier, First Anti-Air Craft Battalion, now in France; Major Harold D. Corbusier, of Par kavenue, this city, Medical Reserve Corps, U. S. Army, Fort Oglhtoepe, Georgia; Lieut. Colonel Phillip W. Corbusier, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army, on duty in France; Francis A. Corbusier, Alameda, Cal., a member of the First California Volunteers during the Spanish-American War, serving in the Philippines; William T. Corbusier, Boy Scout Master, Elmira, N. Y.

Her father was George Towers Dunbar, Deputy Surveyor-General of Lousiana, and Surveyor, Second Municipality of New Orleans, who stopped the great Sauve Crevasse in 1849.

Her paternal grandfather, George Towers Dunbar, the first cashier of the Commercial and Farmers' Bank of Baltimore, was one of the defenders of that city at the battle of Fort Mettony and North Point in September, 1814. It was at this time and the occasion as the subject that Francis Scott Key wrote "The Star Spangled Banner."

Mrs. Corbusier's maternal grandfather, Brig. Gen. Jos. Robinson, also participated in the battle of Fort McHenry and North Point in 1814. She was a member of the Society of Colonial Dames of America, through her descent from Major General John Hammond, of the Western Shore of Maryland, and a member of the Council of Maryland; from Colonel Thomas Hammond, member of the Maryland Assembly of aAllimore County, and from Captain John Worthington, member of the Assembly for Anne Arundel County, Maryland.

After her marriage March 22, 1869, in Amite Louisiana, Mrs. Corbusier spent a number of years at various army posts on the frontier where her husband was located. It was a characteristic of her that wherever her husband was stationed, she established a real home, and made herself a strong influence for good among the officers and enlisted men and their families. Many an officer of the old army remembers with gratitude her early interest in him during his early days in the service. A devoted lover of nature she always found much to interest her even in the most unpromising surroundings.

Her long life of nearly eighty years was full of rich experiences and radiant with blessing and service to others.

MRS. THOMAS CLACY.

The funeral Mrs. Catherine Clacy, widow of Thomas Clacy, of Orchard place, was held in St. Mary's church yesterday morning. The solemn mass of requiem was said in the presence of many relatives and friends by Rev. Father Hennessy. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Clacy was sixty-two years old and had resided in Plainfield for many years. Her husband, who has been dead a long time, was employed by the A. M. Griffen Company and was widely known. The deceased is survived by one sister, Miss Margaret J. Spillane, of Orchard place, with whom she made her home.

EGBERT DOUGLASS MURPHEY.

Egbert Douglass Murphey, a resident of this city for the past twenty-eight years, during most of which time he read been in New York commuter, died Monday night at his home on Grant avenue, near South Second street. He had been ailing for more than a year with a blood trouble brought about by a slight infection. The funeral was held at the family residence in charge of Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring yesterday afternoon and burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Murphey was a native of Canton, N. Y., and when he first came to Plainfield made his home on Sandford avenue, removing from there to Grant avenue about two years ago. He retired from active business in 1915. He leaves beside his widow, one son, Chauncey R. Murphey, and a sister, Miss Emma Murphey, both of this city.

ALVAH GRAY.

Alvah A. Gray, one of Dunellen's leading citizens and widely known in Plainfield, died at his home in the former place last Saturday morning, following a brief illness with acute indigestion. The funeral was held at his late home on Washington avenue, Dunellen, Tuesday afternoon, and was in charge of Rev. Ernest R. Brown, pastor of the Presbyterian church, of Dunellen, of which the deceased was a member. It was attended by a large gathering composed of relatives and friends from the home town, Plainfield and other nearby places.

Mr. Gray was born at German Valley, Hunterdon county, in 1849, but had lived in Dunellen for the past forty years. He was one of the organizers of the old firm of Garretson & Gray, which later became the Dunellen Lumber and Stone Company. The firm operated a lumber and coal yard in Dunellen and also owned the trap rock quarry in the Watchung Mountain just west of Washington Rock. Mr. Gray assisted in organizing the First National Bank of Dunellen ten years ago and remained as its president until the time of his death. He was largely interested in Dunellen real estate and was in every way considered a representative citizen.

Mr. Gray is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. William E. Terry, living in Dunellen, two brothers and two sisters living in other parts of the State.

MRS. JOHN POWERS.

Mrs. Maude C. Powers, wife of John Powers, died Sunday night at her home on Essex street, following an illness of two weeks with pleurisy and complications. She lived for several years on West Eighth street and removed to Essex street last May, following her marriage to Mr. Powers. She was possessed of many estimable qualities that endeared her to everyone and which won her many friends. Beside her husband, she is survived by two stepdaughters, Mrs. Phillip Maguire, of Park avenue, and Mrs. Harry Deenklay, of Forster avenue, near Clinton avenue.

The funeral was held at her late home Wednesday morning and burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

MRS. LISA MATTSON.

Mrs. Lisa Mattson, aged seventy-three, died Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Herbert Anderson, 866 Leland avenue. The funeral was held at the late residence Wednesday morning in charge of Rev. Gottfried Sjoblom and burial was in Hillside cemetery.

MRS. THEODORE ROEDER.

The funeral of Mrs. Harriet Genevia Roeder, wife of Theodore Roeder, of 0Sith Bethlehem, Pa., whose death occurred in Muhlenberg Hospital, Friday, was held at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Day, of 241 Somerset street, the borough, Wednesday afternoon. The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, and burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Roeder lived for many years in Solon, Maine and Plainfield previous to her marriage. Mr. Roeder was for a long time in charge of the Union News stand at the North avenue station but removed to Elizabeth about sixteen years ago, after the company transferred him to that point. Later he went to South Bethlehem, Pa., where the family had been located for some time and from which point Mrs. Roeder came to Plainfield to undergo an operation. She had been severely ill for some time and her physicians deemed it advisable. After undergoing the ordeal at the hospital she seemed to rally at first but complications developed which brought the fatal termination.

Mrs. Roeder was forty-three years old and beside her husband leaves three sons. They are Claude, who is a railway mail clerk in the Pennsylvania terminal at New York; Dean, engaged in the printing trade at South Bethlehem, and Clare, a schoolboy thirteen years old. She is also survived by her parents, two sisters, Mrs. Albert Colton, of Watchung, and Mrs. Luella Demarest, of Somerset street, and two brothers, Elson Day, of Race street, and Le-Roy Day, of Somerset street.

ISAAC E. HOUSTON.

Isaac E. Houston, a veteran of the Civil War and resident of this city for more than thirty years, died Tuesday night at his home at 937 West Front street, following a long illness. The funeral will be held at the family residence this afternoon, in charge of Rev. Dr. Philip B. Stronk, and burial will be in Hillside cemetery. A detail from Winfield Scott Post, No. 72, G. A. R., of which he was a member, will be in attendance to accord the last honors to a soldier.

Mr. Houston was a native of New Hampshire, where he was born seventy-three years ago, but afterward made his home in Massachusetts. He was one of the few remaining men who came from Worcester with the Pond Machine Tool Company, when the concern built the local plant on South Second street in 1887. He had continued in its employ up to the time his illness began. He was a machinist by trade and was held in high esteem by the Pond officials.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, Mr. Houston enlisted in Company K, Sixth New Hampshire Vols., and served in many important engagements of the great conflict. He possessed a fine singing voice which was developed through membership in the Plainfield Choral Society, the leading musical organization in the city up to about twenty years ago.

The deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Daisy Whitlock, and one son, Victor Houston both of whom live at the parental home on West Front street.

New Army Plans Call for Total of $268,650,000

Many new construction projects for the army, including munition plants, ordnance depots, storage plants, port terminals, hospitals, aviation work, cantonments and housing, were disclosed in a statement given the Senate Military Committee at Washington, Wednesday by the War Department. The work will cost $268,650,000 and, while some of the projects had been announced before, in most cases the location and cost had not been given.

The statement shows that $37,000,000 will be spent in building a gasmaking plant at Edgewood, N. J., while forty interior storage depots, to cost an aggregate $30,000,000, are to be constructed at unnamed points. On aviation work, including a new cantonment, the location of which was not given, $16,000,000 will be expended.

Ordnance depots are to be built on the south Atlantic coast and at "some seaport" at a cost of $4,000,000 each. Another on the middle Atlantic coast will cost $8,600,000. An ammunition depot at "some seaport" is to cost $7,500,000, and a like sum is to be expended for an ordnance depot in central Pennsylvania.

Hospitals for soldiers sufferinh with tuberculosis are to be built in Denver, Col. and Asheville, N. C., at a cost of $700,000 and $1,800,000. It is to be spent on hospitals at thirty-two army training camps.

A division cantonment for the Regular Army is to cost $8,000,000, but its location is not given. It may take the place of the Regular Army training camp at Charlotte, N. C., which soon is to be abandoned because of the unsuitability of the ground on which it is located.

"Hello" Girls Can Help Win the War

Here's an opportunity to serve your country in France with General Pershing's Expeditionary Force—a chance to do as much to help win the war as the men in khaki who go "over the top."

Uncle Sam wants to have his telephone system in France operated by the most efficient operators in the world and that means by American young women. The Signal Corps have asked the telephone companies in the United States to secure these "switchboard soldiers" for them.

Just because you are or have been a telephone operator, don't think that you therefore can easily secure a position in this expeditionary operating force. The first and fixed requirement is "an ability to speak and read both French and English fluently and be able to understand the French spoken over a telephone line." The American telephone system in France not only links General Pershing's headquarters with various points of military importance, but it also connects directly with the French Government telephone system, and so unless your French is very, very good, do not consider yourself a qualified applicant. Knowledge of switchboard operation is also desirable, but if you do not have this knowledge and if all the operators needed are not obtained from mthose already having experience, you may be accepted without previous experience and given the necessary training by some telephone company.

Therefore, if you can handle the French language as well as you do the English and are dependable, resourceful and able, if necessary, to "go it on your own" as the soldiers say when the tide of battle compels prompt, individual action to meet a serious situation,—then by all means apply. Nearly a hundred young women have already been selected and judging from them this unit will meet all those requirements and be one of the most democratic and truly representative American forces sent abroad. Its personnel is being selected from applicants from all parts of the country, who, as fast as they are selected, are given such training either in their home town or city or at some training center to which they are sent for final preparation and from which they will be ordered to a port of embarkation for outfitting as different groups become ready to sail.

Every member of the organization must wear a standard uniform that has been specified by the War College. This uniform must be worn at all times and civilian clothing cannot be worn and will be of no use to these young women soldiers "over there." The different ranks will be distinguished by different insignia on the white brassard worn on the left arm. Operators will wear a white brassard with a black telephone transmitter. Supervisors' brassards will have a gilt laurel wreath underneath the transmitter. The brassards of the chief operators will have the two symbols mentioned surmounted by the gilt lightning bolts used as insignia by the Signal Corps.

In every respect these young women will be soldiers coming under military restrictions at all times. The pay will be $60 a month for operators, $72 for supervisors, and $125 for chief operators, in addition to which, allowances will be made for rations and quarters when these things are not provided by the Army.

The Signal Corps authorities point out that this operating force is not going on a "pleasure trip or "joy ride" and that no evening dresses need be taken and that social opportunities are not at all included in the program. It will be a war task of the nature and size that always appeals strongly to American womanhood and for handling it, the Signal Corps seek level-headed young women who are resourceful, able to exercise good judgment in emergencies and willing to work hard and even endure hardships if necessary. At the same time they point out that everything possible will be done to insure the comfort and well-being of these young women in the service.

Information as to how application can be made can be obtained from the chief operators in the local telephone central offices or application blanks can be obtained from the Chief Signal Officer of the Army, Room 826, Mills Building Annex, Washington, D. C., who makes the appointments to this work.

Washington Plans To Divert Shipping As War Emergency

New developments in the shipping situation, according to official announcement, are the creation by the United States Shipping Board of a division of planning and statistics to determine how imports may be regulated in order to free for war needs ships now used in South American and Pacific trades, and the contemplated formation of six shipbuilding zones, three on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, two on the Pacific and one on the Great Lakes.

Each of the zones will have a director who, according to Charles Piez, vice president and general manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, "will be the head of one of the leading ship building companies in that particular zone." These zones, it is understood, will not include the three government ship fabricating plants, one at Port Newark, N. J., which, as heretofore, will be in general charge of Rear Admiral Bowles, assistant manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation.

It is the expectation that, by the regulation of imports and of ocean trade generally, something like a million tons will be added to the overseas war service. This will be accomplished principally by withdrawing from non-hazardous zones vessels suitable for transatlantic service, substituting for them neutral ships and also sailing ships. It is the understanding that the War Trade Board will co-operate importantly with the shipping authorities in determining the program with respect to imports.

E. F. Gay, who, since 1908, has been dean of the Graduate Schoor of Business Administration at Harvard University, will be director of the Shipping Board's division of planning and statistics. The board announces that no hasty action which might result in embarrassing America's business interests is contemplated.

WILL SOJOURN AT PINEHURST.

George A. Bowman and daughters, the Misses Ruth and Kathryn Bowman, of Evergreen avenue, will leave next week for Pinehurst, N. C., where they will sojourn for an extended period.

A Joy Forever

YOU WILL NEVER GROW TIRED OF THE NEW EDISON DIAMOND DISC

The music of the great composers of years ago is living today and will live on far into the future. Why? Because it is a true expression of the human emotions.

And for the same reason you will find a greater joy each day in the possession of a New Edison Diamond Disc.

You will never grow tired of its re-created music any more than you would grow tired of the living tones if the actual artists could come to your home each day to play and sing for you.

But Mr. Edison, in his remarkable new musical instrument, has found a way to preserve this subtle breath of reality. Actual comparisons with the living tone, made in the greatest musical centers in the country, have proved this to be true. It is re-created music—pure, true, unblemished. It will thrill you a year from now—five years from now—just as truly as it will today.

Miss Ruth Kenny, of West Third street, who is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital, following an operation performed last week, continues to improve steadily.

Ferdinand Kassler, father of Mrs. May Tenner and Mrs. Samuel Mendelson of this city, died at his home in York, Monday. The funeral was held yesterday and was attended by relatives and friends from Plainfield.

Two Big Features In New Vaudeville

Manager Shannon's prediction that he would have a cracker-jack show for the patrons of the Plainfield Theatre the last half of this week were verified when the new bill was shown yesterday for the first time. Every number was a winner, while two of them were unusually pretentious. The latter are the Great Phillis family of acrobats and riders, carrying their own magnificent trained horses, and Russell's Minstrels, headed by the favorite comedian, Fred Russell, who was been seen here on several previous occasions. Each of these acts deserves the distinction of "headliners" and were encored repeatedly at their appearances yesterday afternoon and last night.

The remainder of the program, beside the movine picture portion, is full of variety. It includes Dewey and Dewey, juggling comedians; Jimmy Connors, Mac Fiske & Company, in a comedy playlet, "Detective Detective," Virginia and Conrad, in a musical skit, and Hort and Allan, comedians. These features will all be retained for the shows of today and tomorrow.

For the forepart of next week the offering will again be a combination of feature photo-plays and vaudeville. The special film will be a five-reel William Fox release, "The Conqueror," with William Farnum in the principle role. Plainfield Theatre audiences are familiar with Mr. Farnum's work and recall distinctly his excellent interpretation of the hero in "When a Man Sees Red" two weeks ago. The vaudeville features for the first of next week will include Grace Cameron and Company in a musical comedy.

AUDUBON SOCIETY FROWNS ON BILL IN LEGISLATURE

The New Jersey Audubon Society, which has many members in Plainfield, is opposed to a bill introduced in the Legislature which would divert funds derived from the sale of hunting licenses into the State treasury and provides the money may not be used by the Fish and Game Commission, except by special appropriation from the Legislature. The society claims the bill's enactment into law would be a serious setback to wild animal life conservation in the State. The bills the society favors follow: Assembly No. 71, which would remove protection from the European starling; Assembly 128, extending for three years the closed season on wood ducks; Assembly 245, providing for licensing of cats; Assembly 245, providing for a five-year closed season on quail or bobwhite.

Large Audience Hears Dr. Fluno Give Christian Science Lecture

A large and appreciative audience assembled in Proctor's Theatre last Sunday afternoon for the purpose of listening to an address on Christian Science by Francis J. Fluno, M. D., C. S. D., Member of the Board of Lecturership of The Mother Church, The First church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. It was heard throughout with marked attention. The address in part was as follows:

The claims of Christian Science on the modern world are really the claims of Christian Science on the prehistoric age, the ancient age, the medieval age, the present age, and the ages to come. It makes no new claims on the modern world; its claims are only new to the limited sense, the finite vision, and the materially beclouded perception.

The average man, until awakened by the study in divine Science, is mainly in his mental swaddling-clothes, and his horizon is marked by the age in which he lives; or, more limited in his life and living, he sees only to the boundaries of his own few years; or, still more limited, he sees the way he and their ways of life only in his own immediate business, church, or creed. If anything new comes to him, he is apt to deem it some insane or foolish inconsistency, some infringement upon the Scriptures, or some new attempt of the evil one to win him from God.

Christian Science is not a discovery of a new truth, but a new discovery of an old truth. It is as new as the infant thought, and as old as "The Ancient of days." It was, before Jesus was born in Bethlehem. Before Abraham was, was Christian Science.

Before the infant earth was cradled in the sun,
The Science of being spoke from her eternal throne.
"Twill ever be new,
'Twill ever be old:
'Twill ever be telling,
'Twill ever be told.

If one shall say, My religion is the religion, because it is the oldest religion on earth, and my church is the church, because it is the first church militant, then must divine Science say: My religion is the religion, because it is religion itself and is therefore the religion of all heaven and earth, and is as old as being or existence is; and my church is the church because it is the church triumphant; the church of the ever living God and co-existent man.

Christian Science is the law of divine Principle, and is therefore the Science of sciences, the religion of religions, and the church of all churches. It is not the gleanings from every other religion. It includes and comprehends the whole of being; hence, every other religion will be found to be gleanings from divine Science, and must eventually gravitate back to the one scientific fact of a perfect God and a perfect creation as the basis of every conclusion. What primarily was true, will always be true; is all that is true, or ever will be true.

Christian Science makes no unreasonable claims upon the modern world; our claims are based upon the spirit of Love, and this is reflected in health, kindness, charity, and good will to all. It comes as it came to the shepherds of old, heralding kingdom "in earth, as it is in heaven," "on earth peace, good will toward men." It comes as it came to Jesus the Christ, not to rob or to plunder, but "that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." It takes nothing from the world, but gives all to the world. In the place of war we find peace; and universal peace is raised to the dawn of that glad day "when all shall dwell together, one shepherd and one fold."

Instead of quarrels and dissensions we find friendship and kindness; and the standard of friendship and brotherly love is raised to God's kingdom "in earth, as it is in heaven." Instead of divorce and separation, we find oneness and union. Happy homes and peaceful are raised to a higher standard of union and a more perfect bond of love. The sick are raised to health, and the healthy are raised to a standard of health far beyond their present conception. The blind are restored to sight, and the seeing growing into a more permanent type of seeing. The deaf are restored to hearing, and the hearing find a more improved kind of hearing. The lame are made to walk, and those who walk have a greater reliance on their ability to walk, for they learn to walk in wisdom's ways.

Christian Science not only heals mortals of sickness, but it corrects the world of such a thing as sickness. It not only heals individuals of sin and iniquity, but it corrects the world of such a thing as sin and iniquity. Christian Science takes the world where it finds it, and raises the lower to the higher, and the higher still higher. It raises the unreliable to reliability, the reliable to faithfulness, the faithful to a state of reliable and trustworthiness that is honor Principle and permanency.

When the unsuccessful business man on the verge of bankruptcy and failure finds Christian Science, he finds himself unconsciously, as it were, demonstrating business and success; and when Christian Science in its purity and simplicity comes to the well-established and successful business man, it raises him to where he sees a standard of business and success as eternal law, which can no more fail than the eternal God can fail. From this it follows that failure only is lost, and this is lost and swallowed up of success, as darkness is swallowed up of light; hence nothing is lost, and everything is gained.

Christian Science lifts the mentally unbalanced and insane to sanity and mental balance; and the well balanced and sane it lifts to a standard of sanity and equilibrium of mind that can be more full and be lost than God Himself could be lost; for God in Christian Science is found to be Mind, the only true Mind. The so-called mortal or finite mind that can be lost is no more Mind than darkness is light, and is no more a part of Mind than darkness is a part of light, or wrong is a part of right.

"Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." As the problem in mathematics is found after the solution to be not only perfect and correct, but always to have been perfect and correct, likewise man in Christian Science is found after the solution of the problem not only to be perfect like the Father, but always to have been perfect; that the errors of human belief never were true any more than the errors of the mathematical problem were true. There is nothing supernatural or far-fetched in the Science of our own being. It is not hypothetical or speculative; it is the religion that reveals the scientific and natural relation between God and man, between Principle and its expression, between cause and effect.

Christian Science, unlike every other religion, admits of no error either in premise or conclusion. God and His creation always were perfect, are now, and forever will be. Christian Science comes to this material age and throws the X-ray of spiritual and scientific understanding upon all material things, revealing them to be merely mortal thoughts which have no more existence or reality than the horizon that is seen over the mountain. And with the elimination of all these things necessarily vanish all their concomitants, sickness, disease, and sin, mortality and death; and everything that in any way limits or seems to limit everlasting Life, or is opposed to God and His perfect spiritual creation.

Christian Science is not essentially iconoclasm. It does not break images, tear down altars, and break up churches, clans, and societies; neither does it use the old as a foundation upon which to construct the new. It evolves out of the old into the new; out of the lower into the higher; out of the false into the true. The Science of Truth, like the garment of Christ, is a seamless robe, woven throughout from top to bottom, complete in itself. Nothing can be added to it and nothing taken from it; and nothing can be true that is not included in it. It does all for mankind, because it is all and includes all; in it mankind and the world will find all their needs supplied and all their real desires fulfilled.

But the laws of God are not the laws of mortal mind or of matter. The so-called laws of health are no more the laws of God than the law of evil is the law of good, or the law of wrong is the law of right. The so-called laws of health which civilization makes and breaks, and yet builds upon, are as changeable and unreliable as the wind that blows; they are all built on the shifting sands of physical observation, conjecture, doubt, and fear, having no principle or foundation in fact. The divine law of health, which is the law of Life, that is the law of God, is as changeless, immutable, pure, and perfect as the eternal God Himself.

Christian Science shows that the error of the ages is in having two powers, one of good and the other of evil; and this belief beclouds the eye of reason, shuts out the true sense of being, and robs man of his God-given inheritance. This belief, in belief, makes man mortal instead of spiritual; makes man subordinate to every beast of the field, every fowl of the air, and every plant that springs out of the earth; makes man a slave instead of a master.

When man begins to see himself as a child of God, a child of Spirit rather than a child of the dust, then he begins to take possession of himself in the name of Almighty God, and to claim his birthright of health, happiness, harmony, and immortality. He then begins to take dominion over the beast of the field, and over the fish of the sea, the fowl of the air, and over every thing that "creepeth upon the earth;" but this dominion is not expressed in the power of might, of physical strength and mortal cruelty, but in the power of love, kindness, gentleness, and helpfulness to all that is below him.

Christian Science, ever loving, ever gentle, and ever kind, will never take away one single thing that you hold dear without returning more than it took away, and that is the true love into the spiritual unfoldment of divine being, in the understanding of God and the Christ. His truly and only begotten Son, our Redeemer. It is waiting for every one, and sooner or later every one must enter its sacred precincts, and none can stay away.

Christian Science shows that the error of the ages is in having two powers, one of good and the other evil; and this belief beclouds the eye of reason, shuts out the true understanding of life, and seemingly robs man of his God-given inheritance. As time goes on and the great facts of eternal Life as taught in Christian Science, the Science of Life, are better understood and demonstrated, the name of Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, and the author of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," will stand out in the world's great history like a star of the first magnitude; and she herself will be honored and loved for what she has done for mankind and for the world.

APPEALS FOR LABORERS TO HURRY SHIPBUILDING

General Lewis T. Bryant, commissioner of labor, and State director of the U. S. Public Service Reserve, has received the following message from Washington:

"To State Director of U. S. Public Service Reserve:

"The number of men that we can place and maintain in France will depend upon the number of ships available for their transport and their supplies.

"We learn from the shipping board that the yards are ready—that the materials have been collected and the ways built. We learn also that the yards are working one shift of eight hours during six days in the week, when they should be working seven days a week and twenty-four hours each day. This lack of necessary skilled labor in the yards may retard the movements of our troops overseas.

"For that reason I want to ask the friends and families of the men in our National Army to lend their support in every way to the shipping board to the end that the necessary efficient labor may be enrolled in the United States shipyard volunteers. The yare doing a work of vital importance to the defense of the Nation, and the men who enroll in the shipyards are undertaking a patriotic service as great as any that can be performed behind the firing line."

GENERAL GOETHALS TO QUIT STATE POSITION

General George W. Goethals, who has been in charge of the engineering and construction work of the Edge road system, will retire on March 1. He has notified Governor Edge that by reason of his duties in connection with the National Government it will be impossible for him to continue with the work.

General Goethals will recommend to Governor Edge the name of the engineer to succeed him. It was said this week that General Goethals will probably recommend the name of Frederick A. Reimer for the position.

Mr. Reimer, who was formerly chief engineer of Essex county, is now attached to the Federal Government, holding the position of major of engineers. An attempt is now being made to have the Federal Government release Mr. Reimer in order that he may take charge of the work of building the State highways system.

General Goethals, it is said, has had several conferences with Mr. Reimer and has a very high regard of his engineering abilities. Mr. Reimer, who is at present connected with Camp McClellan at Anniston, Ala., went to Trenton on Monday and held a conference with Governor Edge.

Predicts Commuters Will Shortly Be Using Aeroplanes

A prediction that the aeroplane industry will equal the automobile business within ten years was made by H. C. Daisch, of the Standard Aircraft Corporation, in an address at the opening exercises of the Pingry School, Elizabeth, this week. The speaker instructed the students about the different types of flying craft and then discussed the future development of the industry along commercial lines. He urged the boys to study the fundamentals of airplane construction and flight in order to keep abreast with the new field of enterprise. Headmaster Pendleton introduced the speaker after the exercises were opened with Scripture reading, prayer and singing.

At the outset Mr. Daisch explained the two types of aeroplanes—the pusher, with the propeller behind the engine, and the tractor, with the propellers in front of the engine. He described also the three classes of planes—the monoplane, the biplane and the triplane. The maximum speed of an aeroplane, the speaker said, was from 110 to 120 miles an hour. High speed records were made, he said, with the plane traveling with the wind. To correct the popular belief that flying is a dangerous occupation, Mr. Daisch asserted that an airplane, when not engaged in fighting, is as safe as an automobile.

In this connection, he showed that in fighting planes, stabilizing surface was reduced to a minimum to enable the flyer to make quick turns and dives. This, of course, increases the danger of accidents. After giving an interesting description of the tail spin and nose dive, the speaker told something of the most of motors for flying machines. The average motor, he said, was built at a cost of $3,000. Mr. Daisch mentioned the Liberty motor that develops one horsepower for every two pounds of its weight, whereas most engines now in use get one horsepower for every three, four or even five pounds of their weight.

The speaker then told of the rapidly increasing aeroplane industry, predicting a business in ten years equal to the automobile business. In speaking of future uses for aircraft, Mr. Daisch mentioned mail carrying, express service, reaching isolated telegraph wires to repair sudden breaks, carrying emergency messages, sporting, etc. He said that within a few years New York business men living within a great radius of New York would commute daily by the air route. He also said that England, in anticipation of a great after-the-war traffic, had mapped out the sky, setting various elevations for different types of aircraft.

AMERICA MUST SEND MANY MORE MEN ABROAD

There will be more transport losses, but America must keep a steady stream of men flowing across the Atlantic to build up the Allies' man-power," Sir Eric Geddes, first lord of the admiralty, declared this week.

In the latter part of this year the burden of maintaining the man-power in Europe will fall largely upon the United States, he warned.

Geddes said he feared the loss of the Tuscania would be only one among several big ships as a result of Germany's latest submarine offensive. The man-power burden in the first hauf of this year, he asserted, would fall on the British and French, but thereafter the Americans must increasingly fill the gaps in the Allied line.

The United States, he said, is showing the greatest energy in training and equipping a splendid army. The only uncertainty is with regard to how many fighters can be safely transported across the Atlantic.

COUNTY MOSQUITO BOARD LOSES IN SUPREME COURT

The motion of the Union County Mosquito Extermination Commission to quash the return of an alternative writ of mandamus made by the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union county, asserting that it would not comply with the command of the writ to include in the tax of the county the full amount of $26,585, instead of $24,000, to be used in the wor kof the extermination commission, has been denied in the Supreme Court.

It was argued by the Supreme Court that inasmuch as the County Board of Taxation was required by law to fix the amount appropriated to each tax district for the county expenses on or before the third Tuesday in September, and because the relator delayed its application until after this date, it could not allow the motion.

FORMER LOCAL WOMAN NOW DEAN OF COLLEGE

Dr. Martha Tracy, formerly of this city, has just accepted permanent appointment as dean of the Pennsylvania Women's Medical College at Philadelphia, of which she has been the acting head since last June. She will have supervision over the studies of a student body of forty-five women.

Dean Tracy is a graduate of Bryn Mawr and the Woman's Medical College. She took postgraduate work at Cornell, University of Pennsylvania and the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale. Last year the U. of P. awarded her the degree of director of public hygiene.

Dr. Martha Tracy is the daughter of Evarts and the late Mrs. Tracy and lived with her parents and brother, J. Evarts Tracy, until several years ago. The brother is now serving in the American army in France. The father, now living at Muncie, Ind., with a daughter, Mrs. Charles Mix, was formerly a member of the noted Manhattan law firm of Tracy, Beaman & Choate.

BOY FARMERS NEEDED TO HELP BIG BROTHERS

The boys are home are needed to help their big brothers at the front by working on the farms and in the shops their big brothers have vacated. Crops must be planted in the spring and harvested in the summer and autumn, and the boys at home must do the planting and harvesting.

To mobilize the boys at home who are 16 years of age and over, and under 21 years of age, the United States Boys' Working Reserve has been organized and has been made a War Emergency Bureau of the Department of Labor.

Beginning Monday, March 18, and continuing for six days, it is planned to hold a National Enrollment Week when a great drive will be made to enroll every boy of fit age and physical condition into the United States Boys' Working Reserve, chiefly for work upon the farms, and secondarily for work in the shops in some industry essential to winning the war.

It Costs Less--At First

To bury in a wooden box, a slate or brick cistern or even a cement vault with an unsealed lid costs less than the Norwalk. A heavy top lowered and sealed by hand is naturally more expensive. But once you have seen with your own eyes the workman cement the top and bottom of the Norwalk Vault together into one solid piece of masonry you are satisfied; and that comfort is worth any price you could pay. That's why every modern undertaker is glad to use the Norwalk—he can guarantee his work. Your undertaker can give you the necessary information.

City Hall Architects Present Claim For Extra Supervising Fee of $3,200

Cost of Completing Municipal Structure Is Placed at $40,000 in Explanation of Bill---More Expense Through Carpenters' Raise in Pay April 1st

The City Hall Committee, already beset by trials and tribulations, arising from the tangle over the municipal structure, found a new and unexpected development the past few days when Peck & Bottomley, the supervising architects, submitted a bill of $3,200 as extra compensation for the work arising from the delay in bringing the building to a finish.

The architects, whose offices are in New York, base their claim for additional compensation on one of the provisions contained in the contract which permits them to do so. It is section eight in the specifications adhered to by the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects and reads as follows:

"Sec. 8. If, after a definite scheme has been approved, CHANGES IN DRAWINGS SPECIFICATIONS OR OTHER DOCUMENTS are required by the owner, or if the Architect be put to extra labor or expense by the delinquency or insolvency of a constructor, the Architect shall be paid for such additional services and expenses."

Peck & Bottomley claim that there is $40,000 worth of work yet remaining to be done before the City Hall is completed and they ask eight per cent. of this amount. This makes the bill as submitted $3,200 in addition to what has already been paid or agreed upon.

It is understood that the matter has been placed in the hands of the finance committee of the Common Council but there is an inclination on the part of the members not to pay the full eight per cent. It has been pointed out that Architect H. K. White, of this city, who was in charge of the Plainfield High School addition when the Exner Company failed, received only $500 extra compensation although at the time John Dahl took hold of the job to complete it, there was $75,000 worth of work yet to be done. What will eventually become of the bill is not known at this time. There is a possibility of a compromise being reached before the matter is submitted to the Council as a whole for final approval.

A further extra expense of perhaps $1,000 and possibly $1,500 will result from an increase in wages to be granted local carpenters April 1. According to an agreement existing between the journeymen and bosses, the pay of the former is to be raised from $4.50 per day to $5.20 per day on that date. This means that every carpenter on the City Hall job will get seventy cents more each day than what he would if he was working on the structure now. As a great deal of the operations still remaining to be done are classed as carpentering it can be seen where the extra $1,000 or $1,500 will arise. According to one estimate, if the work was started at the present time it would take a large force of carpenters until June or July to finish up the flooring and other details.

Miss Mabelle C. Phillips Enlists in Wellesley Reconstruction Unit

Miss Mabelle C. Phillips, of Madison avenue, who has been general secretary to the Charity Organization Society for the past ten years, has been named as one of the first eight Wellesley College graduates who are to go to France for re-construction work in the unit organized by that institution. It is possible the party will leave this country about April 1 in charge of Dr. Louise Jones, of Washington, D. C., who organized the reconstruction party which was at work in that country at the time of the German invasion. Twelve more Wellesley girls are to join the unit later in the spring, the entire party of twenty being selected from among one hundred enlistments.

Service in the Wellesley unit is purely voluntary each young woman taking care of all personal expense, including trans-Atlantic transportation. Miss Phillips was graduated from the college in 1900 and since that time has had a wide experience in community work. Her activities in Plainfield have been exceptionally wide, including not only the numerous duties pertaining to the Charity Organization Society, but other organizations for charitable and uplift work. She has frequently introduced improvements and innovations for the care of the poor in the city and borough that have been of incalculable benefit to the community. Her experience had much to do with her selection as one of the first eight of the party to go abroad.

The enlistment of Miss Phillips will make the fourth of her immediate family to be in the country's service. Two of her brothers are already wearing Uncle Sam's uniform and another is to don the khaki next week. The first brother to become a soldier was Corporal "Jack" Phillips, who went to Camp McClellan as a member of Troop D. At the present time he is in the 106th Heavy Field Artillery. Last September her second brother, Kenneth Phillips, became a meber of the 311th Infantry and later voluntarily entered the 502nd Engineers for immediate service in France. He went abroad several months ago and soon after enlisting Corporal Kenneth was made a corporal. Next Monday, a third brother, Phillip Phillips, who has been known since school days as "Peter," will go to Camp Dix as one of the newest members of the National Army from the Plainfield district. He passed his twenty-first birthday only a short time ago.

The parents of the four workers for Uncle Sam are Mr. and Mrs. Percy F. Phillips, of Madison avenue, who are the second father and mother in Plainfield who can place four stars in the service flag displayed at their home. The other Plainfield parents having this honor are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Linke, of West Second street, who have three sons already in uniform and a fourth going to Camp Dix next week.

600 Persons Attend Grand Reception of Trinity Commandery

Fully 600 persons, many of whom came from distant points, were in attendance at the reception and dance given in the Plainfield High School auditorium last night by Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar. Added dignity was lent the occasion by the presence of the Grand Commander and other officers of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey. Frank McGee's famous orchestra, the artistic organization which plays for Victor records, furnished music for the dancing, which took up a large part of the evening and which was enjoyed by more than 600 couples.

Previous to the reception at the auditorium, Charles H. Russell, who is Grand Warden of the Grand Commandery, entertained the Grand Commandery officers, their wives and others at his home on Kenyon avenue, where a dinner was served at 6:30. Covers were laid for fifteen. Those in attendance included Grand Commander Joseph MacDonald, Jr., Grand Captain General James A. Cartright, Grand Junior Warden Thomas H. Riddle, Past Grand Commander Dr. D. C. Adams and daughter Miss Helen Adams, and Commander Robert F. R. Huntsman, of Trinity Commandery.

In adjourning to the auditorium at 8:30, the Grand Commandery officers were accorded all the public honors observed by the Commandery in the waiting lines of Knights Templar. There were fully seventy-five in their dress uniforms they presented a most striking appearance. It was impossible to give a grand swing to the lark of floor space as the members of Trinity Commandery executed a march that, elicited expressions of praise. After the preliminary salutations, Grand

Advisory Board Will Come Here For Examinations

Owing to the limited facilities at Elizabeth and the inconvenience of sending men to that point, no more Plainfield district registrants held for the Medical Advisory Board at Elizabeth will have to go to that point for further examination. Arrangements have been made to bring the doctors to this city and those scheduled for appearance tomorrow afternoon have been notified that they need not present themselves until notified later. There are still about 200 in this class who are to be passed upon before final disposition is made.

Forty-five registrants went to Elizabeth yesterday afternoon and were disposed of as follows: Accepted for military service, five; accepted for special or limited service, twenty-one; rejected, or physical or other reasons, nineteen.

Advisory Board Hears Appeals Of Local Men

Sitting at Newark during the past week, the New Jersey Division Board considered several hundred appeal cases of Union county registrants who claimed various classifications other than that of I-A, which is the only one now under call. Among those whose appeals were denied and who were placed in I-A, thus making them liable of call at any time, were Harvey I. Rothberg, the well-known local attorney, and William Breen, of the Hotel Kensington.

The disposition of the Plainfield cases so far taken up was as follows:

Andrew Palmer, claimed II-D, skilled industrial laborer; placed in Class I.

Vincent Bociaro, claimed V-F, resident alien; placed in Class I.

Walter E. Bell, claimed III-L, assistant industrial manager; placed in Class I.

Frank W. Burke, claimed III-B, dependent parents; placed in Class I

William J. Breen, claimed III-B, dependent parents; placed in Class I.

Harvey I. Rothberg, claimed IV-A, wife dependent; placed in Class I.

John Pittpatrick, claimed III-B, dependent parents; placed in Class I.

Herman N. Rossenson, claimed III-L, associate industrial manager; sustained.

Frederick Reibold, claimed III-K, mechanical expert; classified as II-D, skilled industrial laborer.

Herbert P. Grant, claimed III-B dependent parent; sustained.

William Brown, claimed III-B, dependent parents; sustained.

Carl F. Bock, claimed III-B, dependent parents; placed in Class I.

Emil Newman, claimed III-B, dependent parents; sustained.

James B. Pitzgerald, III-K, mechanical expert; classified as II-D, skilled industrial laborer.

Sven Gilberg, claimed II-D, skilled industrial laborer; placed in Class I.

Edward Mattell, claimed IID, skilled industrial laborer; sustained.

Herman Boise, claimed III-K, mechanical expert; classified as II-D, skilled industrial laborerm sustained.

FUNERAL TOMORROW OF DANIEL T. HEAUME.

The funeral of Daniel T. Heaume, who died at his home at 1156 Myrtle avenue, Wednesday night, will be held at the family residence tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. The service will be in charge of Rev. John W. Flynn and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Heaume, who was born in the Island of Guernsey sixty years ago, had been a resident of Plainfield since 1905. He was originally a contractor but for the past nine years had been in the grocery business at Dunellen under the firm name of D. T. Heaume & Son.

The deceased is survived by his widow, two daughters and three sons. The latter are: Mrs. W. B. Law, of Dunellen; Miss Hazel Heaume and George Heaume, residing at the parental home; G. Harry Heaume, of Rhodesia, South Africa, and Clarence Heaume, of Malay Peninsula, Asia.

Latest List of Men Picked to Go to Camp Dix Monday Morning

After working steadily on revisions for the past week, the Plainfield Exemption Board today completed the list of sixty-four selected men who are to go to Camp Dix Monday morning. Because of changes having to be made through men with earlier numbers being removed from another class after special medical examinition or refusal of appeals by the District Board at Newark, the list is apt to undergo slight alterations up to the moment of departure.

It was stated today that so far as possible all the sixty-four would be assembled at the old postoffice in the Babcock building tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock. There they will receive comfort kits from the local chapter of the Red Cross and be informed of plans for departure from the North avenue station Monday morning on a special train at 9:34. It will start at Somerville and will carry the men from North Plainfield who are to get on at the Somerville station, also the men of the Bound Brook district and those of Westfield, Cranford and other points in Union county. On arriving at Elizabeth, another special train will be taken for the Pennsylvania station going direct to Camp Dix.

The sixty-four selectives will again assemble at 8 o'clock Monday morning at the local Exemption Board office at Park avenue and Second street, where final instructions will be given. From this point they will march to the North avenue station, headed by St. Mary's Fife and Drum Corps, the only demonstration that has been arranged so far. The Plainfield Home Defense League will be at the North avenue station to look after the interests of the families and friends of the selectives gathered to say good-bye to the boys.

The sixty-four men on the list as corrected up to noon today is as follows:

Public Up In Arms Over Action of Two Citizens

Assertions That Messrs. Evans and Frost Sold Coal at Advanced Price During Critical Period May Lead to Call For Federal Investigation

Open declaration that two well-known Plainfield men had sold coal at about $2 above the Government's fixed price during the extreme shortage of last week was made at a committee meeting of the Common Council, Monday night. The statements came in the course of a discussion which had for its object the consideration of one of the men concerned as a public employe but in the absence of important facts at the time action was deferred. It was declared by one of the councilmen, however, that he did not propose to let the matter drop and that he would place the entire proceedings before the Federal Commission at Washington as soon as he had acquainted himself with the full particulars.

The Plainfielders concerned in the so-called "deal" are Benjamin Evans, clerk to the Board of Education, and Charles H. Frost, proprietor of the Courier-News. On Tuesday of last week, when Fuel Commissioner John J. Kenney and his assistants were issuing cards for quarters or half tons of coal to a long line of waiting applicants, it is asserted that Messrs. Evans and Frost were offering to sell different grades of anthracite in almost any amount at from ten dollars to twelve dollars per ton. They had at their disposal four cars of coal which came over the Lehigh Valley to Bound Brook and thence to Plainfield over the New Jersey Central billed to one of them. It was asserted that some of the fuel was to be used by Mr. Frost and the remainder was to be given to anyone applying for it and willing to pay the advanced price, made higher than the Government limit, it was said, because extra freightage had to be paid through two roads being used. It is stated by freight agents that the extra charge for hauling in a case of this kind is seventy-eight cents per ton.

Herbert Metz, manager of the Lyric Theatre, is one of the purchasers of coal from Messrs. Evans and Frost. Because of the scarcity of the commodity, his application had been refused by the Fuel Commissioner in order to live up to the Government ruling of "families first." Metz heard of the outside arrival of four cars and paid, according to his own admission to a Record reporter, $100 for ten tons of pea coal. This was placed in the bins for his picture theatre on West Front street. It is asserted that of the remaining supply from the four cars, five tons of a household grade were contracted for by the Green City Hotel management for twelve dollars a ton.

The statements as mentioned were brought to the attention of Archibald Cox, president of the Plainfield Board of Education, because of Evans being an employe of the School Board. Whether or not he made use of his position in order to secure "priority" coal is not known but it was afterward stated that Evans had been dabbling in coal sales since last April. A councilman took the matter up with Mr. Cox prior to the meeting and the various details were mentioned at the committee session of Monday night. It was at first suggested that Mr. Hight, chairman of the Public Affairs Committee, who recently went to Washington for the expressed purpose of getting Dr. Garfield to send more coal to Plainfield because of the stringency, should explain the matter on the floor of the Council and ask permission for authority to investigate the entire proceedings. For some reason this was not done. It was afterward declared by one city father that the disinclination was due to nothing more or less than a severe case of "cold feet." It was then that the assertion was made that the Federal Board would be asked to make inquiry as to how two private citizens could get shipments of coal over the heads of legitimate dealers and why the Government price of approximately nine dollars should be jumped to ten and twelve dollars.

There are two phases to the situation which could result in official action. One is the apparent disregard of the Fuel Commission's orders relating to "families first" and the jump in price. The other is Evans' part in the affair as a public official. It was the latter proposition which particularly interested President Cox, of the Board of Education, and which may result in that body asking its clerk for an explanation.

The impression prevails in certain circles that Mr. Frost was innocent of any intentional disregard of Government rules when he entered into the sale of the coal. He was anxious, it was said, to secure an adequate supply for his own plant and after paying for the shipment of four cars, turned the balance over to Evans for distribution.

Mayor William L. Smalley also received a carload of coal on the same day last week that the four cars mentioned arrived in Plainfield. He took none of the consignment for himself but turned the entire tonnage over to the Fuel Commissioner for whatever disposition he saw fit. This was doled out by card in quarter and half ton lots, although many of the applicants asked to be given at least a ton. When they learned that other persons were receiving practically all the coal they wanted by paying a certain price, like Metz for instance, their disapproval became absolute and the various objections led to the feeling that an investigation should be made.

Coal Commission Gives Complete Price List And Explains "Old Line" and "Independent"

A committee composed of members of the local coal commission and citizens held several interviews with Fuel Commissioner English at Elizabeth the past week for the purpose of trying to get a uniform charge for the "Old Line" and "Independent" coal sold in Plainfield. The difference is about seventy-five cents, the higher price being paid for the "Independent" product. No agreement could be reached, however, and for that reason one person will pay a certain price for a ton of fuel while a next door neighbor will get the same thing for seventy-five cents less.

It has been a hard matter for the commission to explain the difference to applicants for cards between the "Old Line" and "Independents" and consequently new objections are registered every day. The idea of the matter is this:

When the government commission investigated the cost of coal production it found that the "Old Line" operators were those who controlled the big collieries and consequently mined fuel in immense quantities at a minimum cost. The same rate per ton that was fixed for them could not be applied to the "Independents" as they are the small mine owners and their output is very little in comparison with the "Old Line" people, consequently they were given an increase of about seventy-five cents, to prevent their being put out of business. Their net profit is only the same as the big rivals as the extra money is applied to production, thus evening the net price for the mine owner.

The way coal is being shipped into Plainfield today, none of the dealers know whether the consignment will be "Old Line" or "Independent." For that reason the price cannot be fixed until they receive their bill of lading and that explains why one person is charged a certain price and another person pays seventy-five cents more.

In order to let Plainfielders know just what they should pay for coal by the bag, quarter-ton, half-ton or ton lots, from either companies, the accompanying table has been prepared by Commission John J. Kenney and his assistants:

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

At the evening service in Hope chapel, Sunday, George T. Leighs, chairman of the chapel official board, presented the congregation with a service flag containing twenty-seven stars. It was received in behalf of the members by Rev. D. W. Skeilenger, who, in doing so, spoke of the service being rendered by the young men in whose honor the flag was prepared by the women of the chapel.

Guy D. Peck, of North Plainfield, has presented to Martin A. Korff, of the North Plainfield Home Defense League, a pair of field glasses used by his father, Captain William Guy Peck, a regular army officer, who served in the Mexican War. The glasses will be turned over to the navy.

The State convention of the Gideons will be held in the local Y. M. C. A. tomorrow and Sunday. George R. Pohl, of Jersey City, president, will be in charge of the convention. The local churches will co-operate with the Y. M. C. A. in receiving the delegates.

The sacred cantata, "Ruth, the Gleaner," which was successfully presented at Trinity Reformed church last week, under the direct supervision of Miss S. Etta Raybert, will be repeated in the Plainfield High School auditorium next Monday night, February 25, for the benefit of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. Tickets may be obtained at the association rooms, the members of the boys' division or at the auditorium door on the night of the presentation.

William V. Rafferty, of Sandford avenue, this city, who is a practicing attorney with offices in Newark, has been retained by Miss Sarah Carney, of Central avenue, to bring suit for $50,000 damages against William H. Alderman, of New Haven, Conn., and Frank Carpenter, of Rahway road. A collision between automobiles owned by the two men resulted in Miss Carney being severely injured as she was walking on Central avenue, near West Third street, on September 28 last. One of the machines after the collision leaned the curbing and pinned the plaintiff against a railroad bridge wall, inflicting injuries upon her which have since kept her in Muhlenberg Hospital. It is probable that the case will be heard during the April term of the Union County Court.

Muhlenberg hospital placed a new ambulance in commission the past week to take the place of the one wrecked in an accident at Lyons Farms two months ago. It is a Reo and is fitted with all up-to-date conveniences. The demolished machine was presented to the Board of Governors by a philanthropic Plainfield woman and had a special top built by F. L. Graves, of Rahway. The machine was on the way back from Newark, after delivering a patient, and in seeking to avoid a collision, driver Van Law turned sharply to one side crashing the car against a tree.

The famous Walter Damrosch orchestra, one of the best known musical organizations of the kind in the country, will give a concert in the on Thursday night March 14. The appearance will be under the auspices of the Dutch Arms Band of Trinity Reformed church.

Rev. George B. Shaw formerly pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church of this city, now pastor at Ashaway, R. I., has just received a call to the New York city church. He is a brother of Rev. Edwin Shaw, also a former pastor of the local church.

A telephone alarm called apparatus from fire headquarters to the Rink building Monday morning where a blaze, originating from the chimney threatened serious damage. It was confined to the apartment of William Spencer and resulted only in the loss of about $200, practically all of it on the building. One tank of the chemical engine was used in putting out the flames.

The Climax Gun Club will hold an all-day shoot on the Plainfield avenue grounds today. There will be competition for two cups, one of which will be shot for by teams representing the Perth Amboy Gun Club Duane Gun Club of Elizabeth, Princeton Gun Club and the Climax Club The other cup will be for the winner of the highest individual score.

Charles W. McCutchen, of the borough, has tendered his resignation as chairman of the music committee at the First Baptist church, a position he has held for many years. Under Mr. McCutchen's direction, the choir has been a feature of the First Baptist services and has included many famous soloists in its personnel.

William Locke, of West Sixth street, who has been on duty at the Ordnance department at Washington for the last month, has been transferred to the Department Headquarters at 224 Madison avenue, New York as Executive engineer on the new U. S. Powder plant, which is to be built in West Virginia. This plant is the largest powder plant in the world and will employ some 20,000 men when completed.

Richard H. Depew, Jr., son of Richard H. Depew, of Hillside avenue, is now instructor in aviation at Miami, Fla. Following preliminary training in this country he spent several months in the foreign service.

H. C. Krebs, superintendent of Somerset county public schools, addressed the Parent-Teacher Association of the North Plainfield High School on Tuesday night on "Awakening Ambition in Children."

The annual district school meeting for oNrth Plainfield will be held in the Somerset School on Tuesday night, March 19. The budget this year is $1,700 less than that of 1917, although an increase in salary has been granted the borough teachers.

Stuart H. Patterson, of Park avenue, *who is comptroller of the Guar*anty Trust Company, New York city, has been called to Washington by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, to advise with the authorities regarding some of the accounting problems in the Treasury department.

William S. Voorhees, D. C., graduate of the Palmer School of Chiropractic, at Davenport, Iowa, and who has been living in New Brunswick, has opened offices for practice in the Babcock building, suite 210-211, Mr. Voorhees has removed to Plainfield and make his home here in the future.

Rev. John Baltzly has tendered his resignation as rector of All Souls' Episcopal church on Park avenue. The resignation takes effect April 1, at which time the clergyman will *remove to Boston, where he is to en*gage in denominational work.

J. Nelson Ramsey, of Crescent avenue, has lately received his commis*sion as lieutenant observer in the* Balloon Division, Aviation Section of the Signal Corps. Lieutenant Ramsey has been assigned as flight instructor at the army balloon school at Fort Omaha, Nebraska, where he received his training. His work consists in taking up students of the school on flights, instructing them in observation work, and teaching them the handling of the captive balloon. In addition to his commission, Lieutenant Ramsey has qualified for and received his license as a pilot from the Aero Club of America.

Under the direction of Dr. E. Mettler Davis, organist, a musical service will be given in the Crescent Avenue church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The program will include six organ selections and five oratorio numbers. A general invitation is extended all persons interested.

City Men Make The Best Soldiers

City-bred boys! Here is something in your favor. The common belief that your country cousin is physically more sound than the boy reared in a city has been refuted.

An experiment conducted at the behest of Provost Marshal General Crowder developed the proof. The country boy, a report of the experiment shows, may be more muscular, but he is not superior in the essential details necessary to his acceptance as a soldier.

For the purpose of the experiment, rural and urban districts, with a total population of 315,000 boys were selected. The regular army examinations were given. The results show that of the country boys, 27.96 per cent. would not have been physically fit for army duty, while of the city boys, 23.47 per cent. would have been rejected.

SOLDIER BOYS RETURN T OSUFFRAGETTE CLUB

The quarantine which has been in force at Camp Dix since the middle of January was lifted last week, and immediately the soldier boys went trooping over to the Soldiers' Club at Wrightstown to see "Mother" Laughlin, as they call her, and get some of her famous coffee. One hundred and eighty cups of this beverage were purchased the evening after the reopening of the club.

Taking advantage of the enforced absence of the soldiers the suffragists have had the curtains and furniture covers washed, the floor finishing renewed and additional bookshelves put up. The house looked ver yquick and span on the occasion of its re-opening.

A recent gift to the Soldiers' Club was a sofa and three chairs—substantial affairs of oak and leather, presented by a group of young Jersey City women, friends of Miss Clara Daniels of the Suffrage League of that city. Wishing to do something to help the club they held a card party and cleared enough to buy these very welcome additions to the furnishings of the club.

The suffragists feel very much pleased with the result of their patriotic venture at Camp Dix. During the first seven weeks that the club was open 2,768 *different men regis*tered, and the average attendance on days when the men have a few hours' leave from camp is from 150 to 200.

COMMENT EXPRESSED BY NEWSPAPER MEN IN THIS AND OTHER STATES ON CURRENT TOPICS.

Looking Out for Jersey.
(From the Trenton Times)

Governor Edge has suggested to Secretary McAdoo, as Director-General of the railroads, the desirability of making the Central Railroad of New Jersey and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad with the Hudson River tunnel, "in order that the thousands of New Jersey citizens living along these railroads may have the benefit of the quick and convenient access to New York which this tunnel affords," and he refers to other benefits that would accrue, both to New Jersey and to the Federal Government.

There can be no question as to the desirability of the proposed change from a New Jersey standpoint, and if practicable there can be no better time to make it than the present, when the railroads are under a single general management; but there will probably be opposition from Long Island and other New York State interests that may be affected. The question will be whether the benefits will be greater than the damage to those interests.

The communication is interesting as showing that the Governor is trying to take advantage of every opportunity that offers to promote the welfare of New Jersey. He is responsible for the State highway system that is to be built, and for the Hudson River tunnel and the Camden-Philadelphia bridge projects that have been formally authorized by the Legislature. This latest suggestion for greater use of the McAdoo tube is even more important and will be less expensive.

Overtime and Half-Pay.
(From the Springfield Republican)

One of the best Lincoln tributes is that for the most of his life he worked overtime for half pay; and it might be added that in doing so, he saved his Union.

Gloves and the War.
(From the Boston Transcript)

The next is to be an administrator of leather. This functionary is promised because the army must have two and a half million pairs of leather gloves ready for use by next September. Gloversville, N. Y., is the center of America's glove manufacturing industry and Gloversville glove authorities say that civilians will pay double prices next year and find gloves with difficulty at that. Leather shortage is a contributing cause of this, a shortage which was producing dearth and high prices before the war, but which the war promises to accentuate. Lack of leather comes as a natural sequence to lack of cattle, which is rapidly be*coming world wide. Sheepskins,* horse hides, and other foundations of leather production fall for the same reasons, and substitutes, though many are proposed, have not yet come to fill their places. So, according to Gloversville, women's gloves will double in price and men's wear in leather will more than double, partly through scarcity of leather, but also because all glove factories will be overwhelmed with war work.

Probably so far as use and comfort go civilians need not worry. Monday wood shopping has taught us that tenement cotton gloves—mother*man's wear*—are pliable, protect the hands while working, and are surprisingly warm. Then, too, with everybody, women, children and many nice men, knitting we may expect mittens to be popular. Here is a chance for Dame Fashion, good Parisian as we all know and therefore intensely patriotic, to do a tactful thing. Let her declare the cotton glove de rigeur for working, the home knitted mitten an felt for street wear. Then the soldiers will get all the gfood leather gloves they need and the civilian will still be comme il faut.

This Lenten Opportunity.
(From the Baltimore News)

Lenten Opportunity opens wide this year. Our country has been through a great deal during the past, and wonders have been accomplished. But much more is still to be done, and until every American has consecrated himself to the inescapa*ble obligation he owes his country of* giving it, if needs be, everything he possesses, both spiritual and material, wonders will be done and more wonderful spring that will come with the declaration of a victorious and permanent peace will be postponed, perhaps indefinitely.

The observance of Lent teaches us that the religious fathers of the early days of the Church realized the necessity for abstinence, for fasting—in a word, for self-denial—in the process of spiritual development. Humanity, however, is not constructed so that it can practice a continuous regime of asceticism, and the observance of the forty days that orthodoxy has fixed as an inviolable fixture of the Church calendar is probably about as much as could be expected.

The American people, however, have got to learn new lessons in self-denial, of how to live on considerably less than they are accustomed to, of individual and collective economy. This need not bring with it an epoch of suffering nor of material privation, nor need it to be accompanied by lamentations and the voicing of complaints. All that is required is strict observance of economic standards of living, and this can be done simply by the process of elimination of the waste for which the Nation in the past has been notorious.

Vermont Gets Ready to Tap.
(From the Springfield Union)

"Save sugar by gathering sap," is the slogan of the Vermont farmers, who are already mending their sap buckets and getting everything in readiness for a bumper maple sugar crop the coming spring. More trees than ever before in the history of the State will be tapped, and the State's production of maple sugar and syrup probably will be a record breaker, as heavy sap run nearly always follows a winter in which the weather has been extremely cold. It is, however, doubtful whether the export of syrup from Vermont will be larger this year than heretofore, regardless of the increased yield, as the farmers of Vermont have learned a lasting lesson from the cane and beet sugar shortage, and are likely to see that their own needs are well provided for before they ship any of the maple product to the market. Be that as it may, the increased production of maple sugar and syrup will aid materially in the conserva*tion of cane and beet sugar,* and will be of direct public benefit in any event.

Not a Matter of Taps.
(From the Philadelphia Telegraph)

Seven million taps have been made for the Fuel Administration to be attached to coal shovels, warning people not to waste coal. Perhaps this will help some, and at all events it will do no harm.

What seems to be most needed, however, is a vigorous attack by the Fuel Administration on the main difficulty with the coal situation. So far as the public is informed there is plenty of coal, but a lack of means for getting it to the consumer. The coal traffic needs no long held up by priority orders for other freight that the situation has become very serious.

It has got far past the tag-the-shovel stage, and there will have to be very prompt and sufficient relief if public disorder and grave menace to health and life are to be avoided. Illness and death have already re*sulted from insufficiently warmed* homes; suffering in many instances has been intense.

The railroads are not to be blamed. They have been under Government orders, many of which, from their conflicting character, it was impossible to carry out. Even with priority orders set aside there still appears to be a want of system which is essential to the relief now so urgent.

People are not wasting coal. Something more than tagging the shovel is needed. Great the coal to market.

Nobody Reads Aloud at Home.
(From the Omaha News)

Edison is most to blame for the decline of the pleasant and profitable old custom of reading aloud. The electric light, affording convenient illumination for every book or paper in the family, started it. Substitution of the phonograph and moving pictures as a means of entertainment did even more.

Good poetry can never be fully appreciated until it is read aloud, even to oneself. Whitman and Swinburne, for instance, are not poetry at all without the magical sound of the syllables. The better the poetry the more it is improved by correct and leisurely reading.

But the principal gain lies in drawing the family together and in educating the children. Not even hard study will improve the spoken vocabulary of a child so much as listening to good literature and taking a turn in reading. The "hard words" become easy and common when father or mother can help with pronunciation and definition.

Stirring stories from the Bible, "Robinson Crusoe," Mark Twain's "Tom" and "Huck," Cooper's tales, "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," Dicken's and Scott's works, "Pigs Is Pigs," "Little Women" are just a few suggestions. Reading aloud is pleasant in itself and forms a background for character building.

ALL HAIL THE NAME OF WASHINGTON

At Bridges Creek, Virginia,
In seven-teen-thirty-two,
Was born our own George Washington,
So noble, good and true.

He was born of English parents,
And surveyor was his trade,
And through his own integrity
This big Nation has been made.
But pneumonia overtook him,
In seventeen ninety-nine.
We lost our noble Patriot,
And to this day his loss we pine.
We hold in fond remembrance
February; every year.
And when his name is mentioned,
It is greeted with a cheer.
So, hail, the name of Washington,
And shout from State to State,
And hold in the loving memory,
A man; noble and great.
And let the Nation understand,
We know what has been done.
And let the joyous bells ring out,
The name of Washington.

JURY COMMISSIONERS NAMED BY CHANCELLOR.

The appointment of new jury commissioners to serve in each of the counties of the State was made recently by Chancellor Walker. Each of the commissioners is of a different political faith than the sheriffs of each of the counties, which is necessary under the law. All but three are reappointments. Charles P. Russ, Democrat, of Elizabeth, was named for Union county, and E. V. Cruser, of Somerville, is to be the commission for Somerset county.

U. S. Aeroplanes Carry Appeal to German People

American aeroplanes are firing on the German Junkers with "bonds of democracy."

William Churchill, representing the committee on Public information, yesterday told the House Postoffice Expenditures Committee that our planes are now penetrating 300 miles into Germany dropping appeals to the people to "throw off the imperial yoke."

"That work," he said, "is bearing fruit, according to our best information."

Churchill told how co-operation and support has been given Germans in Switzerland who are striving to make a republic out of the Kaiser's empire. Forecently, he said, "a remarkable appeal to the German people to break away from their military rulers" was launched by these Swiss Germans and spread broadcast over Germany by American flyers.

SENATE PASSES ELECTION BILL SUBSTITUTES.

The Senate Monday night passed the Senate committee substitute for Senator Richards election bills and. The substitute provides that county boards are to be nominated by Supreme Court Justices and Common Pleas Judges and confirmed by the Governor. They are to be bi-partisan boards of four members; county boards are to select local boards and school teachers may volunteer for the local boards but are not compelled to serve; schoolhouses are to be used for polling places in municipalities of more than 10,000, excent where inconveniences would result.

1777--Washington Rock--1918

Then and Now

By J. WATSON

One cold and dreary winter day, in the year of our Lord 1777, and by His Grace of America's Declaration of Independence, the Second, General George Washington, commander-in-chief of the ragged army of the Revolution, stood upon that towering sentinel rock high in the Watchung hills that now bears his name.

Below him the valley stretched wide and far, its fertile fields covered with a thick carpet of shimmering snow. Here and there, with broad gaps between, were clustered spots dark against the white surface of the landscape. They were the stockaded settlements of the pioneers of freedom. There are but few whose walls still rest upon their original foundations remaining today. The ravages of war and the ravages of time have long since laid them low. The eyes of the silent watcher on the Rock were heavy-laden with sorrow, eyes that mirrored the grief and almost hopeless despair that weighed down his brave and gallant heart.

Low over many of the settlements there hung a deep dark pale of smoke—not the smoke that curls upward from the kitchen fires of peace and plenty—but the smoke clouds of death and destruction that hover over the path of the ruthless invader, when grim visaged war stalks over the land.

It was the ever-increasing number of the mourning flags flaunting above the hard-won homesteads of the Pioneers in the valley below that brought to the eyes of Washington that day their look of misery and pain. For darker even than the smoke wraiths that floated over the fair valley were the clouds of misfortune that enveloped him and his gallant little army that starved and shivered there with him amongst the snow-bound gorges of the Watchung hills.

Up from behind a broad belt of pine trees far below him there arose clear on the frosty air the winding notes of a horn sounding in mocking derision, the fox hunter's signal, "S-t-o-l-e A-w-a-y! S-t-o-l-e A-w-a-y!" A few minutes later a company of mounted troopers —their scarlet coats gleaming brightly against the snowy background—cantered out into the clearing. Their captain must have espied the figure on the Rock above, for he halted his troop, and they turned their faces toward the hill. A moment and again the hills re-echoed the hunter's cry, "S-t-o-l-e A-w-a-y! S-t-o-l-e A-w-a-y!" Washington heard the cry and his eyes grew hard and cold.

From a cluster of trees that flanked the Rock on its western side came a thick-set ruddy faced man wearing the well patched coat of a general officer of the Continental Army. He joined Washington, remarking as he halted by his side:

"I see Howe's merry hunters are afield in the valley, General."

"Yes, Sullivan, and they have found their quarry beneath the rooftree of many a loyal homestead, and they have 'smoked him out.' It is Howe's day today, Sullivan. It will be ours tomorrow, and the American hunter's cry 'There he goes!' will not as sweetly sound in the ears of Howe and his royal masters, hired trappers from beyond the Severen and the Rhine."

On the Rock that day stood a man that were he cast in a mould less noble, could have easily exchanged his days of suffering and ceaseless labor for days of ease and luxury. He had but to descend into the valley below and barter American freedom for the gold and honors that a king would have eagerly, gladly given him. Behind him, hungry and cold, were men who likewise could have sold their birthright but they chose to live and to die, if need be, true to a cause that was Just. The principles of liberty, justice and humanity were higher things to those brave men than all the world besides. It was not "Me and Mine" but "Ours"—"One for all" and "All for one" even unto death that was the bond that held them true. And, because of their faithfulness to each other, "Me and Mine," "Thee and Thine" today possess the land "To have and to hold" as a holy trust sanctified by the blood of the men that that day dyed red the snow on the slopes of the hills of the Watchung.

Today from the summit of "Washington Rock" can be seen in the valley below many black plumes of smoke floating upwards in the air. They are the sable plumes that decorate the cap-stones of the tall chimneys of industry; and from many a thousand kitchen fires, burning in the comfortable homes that dot the beautiful valley, rise the feathery fronds of peace and plenty. They rise from the homes of many gallant young men of the type and spirit of Daniel Arthur Compton—the type and spirit of the men who stood with Washington on the "Rock" that wintry day.

And the smoke wreath of peace and plenty also rises above the roof of at least one dwelling in the valley that will forever be known as the birthplace of a coward. The name of the young man whose pitiful letter to the Secretary of War couched in language born in a heart too pale to beat in the breast of a man shall forever be lost in the gloom of infamy's oblivion. That the farm his father bought in this fair valley of ours was first paid for in the red coin of the blood of American patriots fails to find within his shrunken soul the echo of gratitude is too shameful for human tongues to tell. God help him; he is to be pitied rather than censured. As years roll on the burden of his soul's reproach will become heavier and harder to bear.

The "Road From France" leads upwards to the pinnacle of the Rock. A beautiful shining road, and along it one day, with their faces turned towards it, came a brave company of volunteers, wearing in their chapeaus the white cockade. God rest their souls, those gallant men from a fair and gallant land.

Today a company of men as brave with their backs turned to the Rock and their faces turned towards the Vosges are marching, marching, steady and strong, along the fair white way of honor that leads across the world from the crest of "Washington Rock."

"My Country 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty,
Of thee I sing."

LIEUTENANT MILLER TO WED MISS RICHARDS.

The engagement is announced of Miss Claire R. Richards, of Orange, N. J., to First Lieutenant M. Valentine Miller, Medical Corps, 105th Machine Gun Battalion, N. G. Army, (N.) stationed at Camp Hancock, Augusta, Georgia. Miss Richard is the daughter of Lieutenant George R. Richards, formerly of the Medical Reserve Corps, U. S. Army. Lieutenant Miller is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and a son of the Reverend Doctor and Mrs. [illegible] Columbia, Pennsylvania. The marriage will probably take place at an early date and before Lieutenant Miller's departure for the front.

Miss Richards is a graduate of the Dutchess School of this city, and has been very active in Red Cross and hospital work.

Franklin Association Makes Contribution

Voluntary contributions amounting to five dollars were made at the monthly meeting of the Franklin Parent-Teachers' Association, Tuesday afternoon. The meeting was held in the Franklin auditorium and the president, Mrs. Albert Wilson, pointed out the appropriateness of the twenty-first anniversary of the Child's Welfare Day as an occasion on which to give something toward the "mothers'" building to be erected at Washington by the National Committee. The building is to be used by enlisted men of the army and navy stationed at the Capitol.

In the regular order of business two committees were named one for nominations preceding the annual election in May and the other for entertainment purposes. Those named on the nominating committee were Mrs. Charles Higgins, chairman; Miss Kinney and Miss Beckwith. Those for the entertainment committee were Mrs. Keller, chairman; Mrs. William Baker and Mrs. George Rittenhouse. There will be no meeting of the association next month because of a union gathering of all the associations in the city to be held at the High School auditorium on March 13.

Following the business on Tuesday, the members enjoyed a program given by the children of the kindergarten under the direction of Miss Radford and the pupils of the second grade in charge of Miss Hugg.

"Jack" Caulfield In Line For Commission

Sergeant "Jack" Caulfield, who went South last summer as a member of "Troop D", stands excellent chance of having a lieutenant's bars on his shoulders before many more days have passed. Reports from the Camp McClellan Training school, to which he was assigned some time ago, state that he has received ninety-seven per cent in all examinations so far and the instructors have recommended him for a commission. It has been the custom to give the rank of only second lieutenant to the graduates of the training schools but because of the practical experience Sergeant Caulfield and other Anniston men have had, the grade may be advanced to first lieutenant.

Sergeant Caulfield enlisted in Troop D in the spring of 1916 when the Plainfield cavalry organization was ordered to Sea Girt in preparation for the Mexican border campaign. He made a splendid showing at Douglass, Ariz., where the outfit was stationed for several months and was highly commended by the officers on their return. He held an excellent position with the concern building the new Brooklyn subways when Troop D was ordered into action after declaration of war against Germany. At Camp McClellan he was first made a member of the 113 Heavy Field Artillery but was lastly connected with the 104th Ordnance Mobile Repair Shop.

All of "Jack's" friends in Plainfield and they are numbered by the hundreds, are hopeful that the expected lieutenant's commission will be given him very shortly.

News of the Theatre

"Court Atmosphere" In Petrova Picture Coming Next Week

The first Petrova Picture, which is to be shown at the Plainfield Theatre the first part of next week, will mark the first time in the annals of American Cinematography that a motion picture production is being put upon the screen with all the technical detail and requisite atmosphere worked out with the consummate skill of a connoisseur. The story, dealing as it does with court life, calls for several foreign settings of great beauty.

In these scenes the "business" transacted is absolutely true to locale and national custom—not guess work. There are scores of officers, diplomats, functionaries, and dignitaries of all kinds and all of them are correctly dressed and correctly mannered—not just a foolishly festooned mob trying to look "swell." The hussar is hussar all through, not infantry as to trouser legs and naval as to unic. Baron Dewitz, the reisseur, and Director George Irving have taken infinite pains to comply with Mme. Petrova's desire to have all the details correct.

The diplomat is all diplomat and not 50 per cent. nondescript. The Crown Prince is a human being, not an impossible regal automaton, and being a captain in the Royal Navy he is dressed in strict accordance with his rank, while his aide-de-camp is two stripes lower as a subalicutenant. Moreover, the Crown Prince is not suffered to appear about in full-dress uniform all the time, a favorite trick of the average director. He only wears gala when the occasion requires it. Otherwise he is arrayed in smart, snappy fatigue uniform or mufti, as the occasion may require. His aide follows suit, of course. Even the royal orders and decorations worn by the Crown Prince are changed according to the uniform he wears. There are a thousand details of this caliber throughout this unusual production, which is brimful of that rarest of all screen attributes—atmosphere.

Supplementing the Petrova picture the program at the theatre for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday will include a special vaudeville bill with every number worthy of being alluded to as "headliner."

"Pass Puss" Coming To The Plainfield

Jean Bedini will present his well-known Parisian burlesque novelty, "Puss Puss," as the attraction at the Plainfield Theatre next Tuesday, afternoon and night. In offering his show this season Mr. Bedini is giving the lovers of good, clean, wholesome burlesque the kind of a show that is bound to meet with the approval of the real critical theatre-goer.

This season "Puss Puss" is a brand new attraction, everything with the show is new with the exception of the title. The entire production is handsomely equipped and costumed and it can be safely said that the show vies with anything so far seen over the burlesque boards.

The burlettas written by Jean Bedini himself are up to the minute in every respect and include a number of novelties new to burlesque, the musical numbers are tuneful and catchy, while the bits blended with good clean, wholesome comedy are bound to please throughout.

The cast is made up of a number of well known performers and included in the cast are such capable artists as Clark and McCullough, tramp comedians; Bob Harmon, eccentric comedian; Bob. Murphy, straight; Syd. Malcolm, juvenile; Geo. Brooks, characters; Jean Bedini himself, Helen Lorayne, prima donna; May Myers, ingenue; Marie Sabbott, soubrette; the Five Aerial Dolls, The Mishka Pipik Troupe and the original Puss Puss chorus of twenty beautiful kittens.

Performing Seals At the Plainfield

A "glimpse" of the North Pole is to be had at the Plainfield Theatre for the remainder of the week through the appearance at the popular playhouse of Captain Rakimo and his troop of juggling seals. The setting which surrounds these frigid zone natives brings visions of the Northern Lights, ice bergs and all that goes to make up the accepted vista of the Arctic region. The real awakening comes when the seals go through a series of astonishing tricks, chief of which is the expert tossing of balls from one side of the stage to the other and catching pieces of fish at no matter what angle or velocity they are tossed toward them. The act was presented at the New York Hippodrome all last season and is shown here exactly the same as at the big playhouse.

Another number on the bill, which opened yesterday for the first and is to conclude tomorrow night, is the "Seven Musical Maids." Each one of these young women is pretty of form and figure and with the help of elaborate costumes their offering is the real delight to the eye and ear. Their songs and dances are all exceptionally good.

Also on the program are Sidney and Townley, in a farcical skit with special scenery entitled "In the Subway;" Markey and Martell, comedy; "Sister Act;" Billy Gaston and Betty Young, presenting "Bits of Musical Comedy," and Divan and Eddie, in the comedy playlet, "The Son-in-Law." Moving pictures are shown at every performance which changes each day. The special offerings include the Pathe News Weekly and Pathe comedies.

THE PUBLIC DEMANDS COUNCIL TAKE ACTION.

If the members of Plainfield's Common Council are genuinely sincere in desiring to represent and protect the citizens in all municipal affairs, the time has arrived for them to prove it. As a body they may not have been informed of the sale of coal at a price above the Government's fixed rate, but the evidence of where coal has been sold at a figure from one dollar to three dollars above the legal rate fixed by the Government after an exhaustive inquiry as to cost of production is to be had for the asking. County Fuel Commissioner English, whose office is at Elizabeth, has the power to act and if he does not when once presented with the proper information, the matter should be carried directly to Dr. Garfield's door at Washington. We believe, however, that Mr. English bears no relationship to the jellyfish family and will prove it if brought to the test. Mr. Jenkinson, the State Fuel Administrator, should also be let into the proceedings to show that his office was meant for something else beside issuing Monday closing orders. Action is what is needed and the sooner we have it Plainfield fathers and mothers will realize their boys are actually fighting for democracy at home as well as abroad. The interests of the United States Government are not being furthered when those who willingly give up loved ones to the horrors of the trenches have to sit in frigid homes or unnecessarily part with hard-earned and much-needed dollars. Once the brave lads "over there" learn of the situation at home, the best officers in the world could not maintain the morale so vitally necessary to push back the Bosche horde.

At the time coarloads of coal were coming into Plainfield for private consignees, namely, one week ago Tuesday, scores of anxious persons were turned away from Commissioner Kenney's office with the perfunctory statement that their request for fuel could not be complied with as there was none to be had. This was Lincoln's Birthday and at noon on the natal anniversary of the far-seeing President who said: "You can fool some of the people all of the time," a card was hung on the front entrance to the City Building on North avenue reading thusly: "No coal until 9 o'clock tomorrow."

The wives of workingmen who hurried down town from the East and West Ends to beg a few days' supply of fuel to prepare the family meals and keep children from freezing retracted their steps with keen disappointment. At the same moment they were informed that not a pound of coal, not even for household use, could be procured, there was being offered all quantities of the precious commodity to those who would pay the price. Ten tons were sold to the proprietor of a moving picture theatre. Householders who were blessed with enough of the world's goods to care nothing for a few dollars, were sold as many as five tons in one lot, while the Fuel Commissioner's office was holding down the regular dealers to orders sufficient for from three days to one week's supply at the most.

There are those who insist that the "philanthropists" who "relieved the situation" did not make a penny for themselves, but dealers who have to pay yard and office rental, bookkeepers' hire, build trestles and meet all overhead expenses make a profit at less than nine dollars a ton for household grades, yet the principals in the transaction that has aroused the city sold stove and furnace grades at $12 per ton without so much as a telephone bill on the debit side after the cars had been paid for. Their friends will have to invent a better excuse than that.

The fact now remains that the honest and law-abiding citizens are clamoring for their officials to get busy. The Council can readily substantiate what has been said in these paragraphs but it should do more. It should find out:

Why Councilman Right had to go to Washington in behalf of the dealers who could not have orders filled and private buyers could get all the coal they wanted without leaving the city?

Why Commissioner Kenney was designated to handle all fuel coming into the city, yet money could secure private shipments?

Why should the people, already bearing the heavy burdens of the war, be told that there is no coal to be had while their more fortunate neighbors get all they want by paying an advanced price?

Why the whole transaction was not brought up on the Council floor last Monday?

GET ON THE JOB, MR. COUNCILMAN, THE PUBLIC AWAITS YOUR ANSWER.

TIME TO SHOW THE RED LIGHT.

To the ordinary layman not versed in the ways of railroads the manner in which the engineer of an express sends his train crashing along at a high rate of speed seems little short of marvelous. Not knowing what there is to guide him in his flying trips along the steel tracks they wonder why he seems to take the chances he does. As a matter of fact the engineer is protected at all times and it is only when something very extraordinary happens that there is any real danger in his seeming intrepidness.

The whole idea of railway travel is based on a series of highly perfected signals, the basis of which is semiphores by day and lights at night. When the pilot of a train sees a white light ahead of him he knows that beyond the inky darkness the track is clear. When he sees a green light, it is a warning that everything is not as it should be and he must proceed cautiously until he learns what is wrong. When a red light flares at him it means that possibly death and destruction are directly in front of him and he must immediately apply the emergency brakes if he wishes to save the lives of his passengers.

The "kicker" in a community corresponds with the railroad signals. He is the man who starts investigating when he learns that all is not right on the municipal railway and seeks the aid of others to find out what is wrong. If there is reason to believe that the civic train is rushing into danger with subsequent financial injury to its trusting passengers, their objections are similar to the green light which tells the locomotive driver to "go slow." When no heed is paid to the remarks of the "kicker" and his colleagues there is nothing else to be done until the red light of public objection is swung in the face of the administration, demanding emergency brakes to prevent a wreck.

The time is almost near when the "red light" will be flashed in Plainfield. Ever since the City Hall tangle became apparent there has been an emerald shaded lantern displayed by the citizens and the color has deepened since the deplorable state of affairs at the new sewage plant came to light. With the Council's determination to pay its share in the further expenditure of $35,000 on the Greenbrook beds, although they have only just been completed, the point of public remonstrance came many steps nearer the red light. The green, however, is still being displayed and the administration should give heed and act accordingly.

In some respect, the sewer plant proposition seems to be even worse than that presented by the City Hall. Plainfield has to pay sixty-eight per cent. of all the cost and it is now at the four hundred thousand dollar mark. The engineers who recommended adding $35,000 to the construction account can give no assurance that it will remedy the trouble that is making the beds a failure and there is a possibility that a great deal larger sum may have to be expended before there is any chance for successful operations.

The time for the engineers to have made plans for expensive screens and other appurtenances was at the beginning of the sewer construction. It is too late to begin a series of experiments now. It may be quite true that Rochester, N. Y., and Reading, Pa., have similar systems working satisfactorily, but in the absence of facts as to how much was spent before they were gotten in working order, we would rather believe that there is no chance of overcoming the difficulty here. If the Emhoff system is a failure, as it is currently rumored, there is no sense in continuing to cry over spilled milk.

Years ago, two able Plainfield engineers drew up plans and made recommendations for a trunk sewer that would have taken care of the city and borough for all time. Each one traversed a different route to the South but the eventual destination was tide-water and the day has got to come when this will be the only feasible proposition. The engineers were F. A. Dunham and Andrew J. Gavett, both of established reputation, but their intimate knowledge of local geological conditions was passed up for the acceptance of an outsider's views. An engineer who knew nothing of the lay of the land in this part of New Jersey, except through some one else's maps, was imported to tell Plainfield what kind of a sewer system it should have. It was only a little more than twenty years ago that the first beds were put in operation on Rock avenue and these have now been abandoned. Even if the new ones at Greenbrook served twenty years it would not be so bad but from indications now they will never be any better than a partial "success" and there is grave possibility that the residents of Middlesex borough may bring about a removal much sooner than expected.

In years gone by Plainfield had "kickers" who brought about improvements for the public good. They started with the green light first and if no attention was paid to it they displayed the red. They were men like the late Dan Marshall, the late John Simpson, the late Stephen A. Ginna, the late George H. Frost, the later Frank Marsh, the late Judge Hetfield, Charles J. Fiske, John B. Dumont and Elliot T. Barrows. Would that we had more like them today.

The City Hall and sewer matters can be supplemented by others although, perhaps, not so serious. The new administration which came into office the first of the year has hardly had time to get into action but we trust that it will do so in the very near future. The green light has been burning steadily for a long time and the oil is getting low. Perhaps when the time comes to replenish the supply the people may decide to not only show the red light but swing it violently.

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When the girls spelled it C-a-t-h-e-r-i-n-e?

When sweaters were an unknown quantity but Cardigan jackets answered the same purposes?

When "Tune" Melick, Mayor of Pluckemin, came to town with a load of dressed hogs and made fun for everybody by his familiar shout of "got 'em a goin'," "got 'em a goin'?"

When the boys hiked toward the mountains the first warm days of early spring to gather slippery elm and birch bark?

When folks were verey economical with matches and when at home used tapers made of paper to light lamps or pipes, getting their flame by sticking the taper in the stove grate?

When an epidemic of epizootic killed so many horses in town, John Rosell, the livery man, did a rushing business at the North avenue station with a team of oxen hitched to a carry-all?

When Tom Fay sat astride of No. 2 Engine Company's old cannon as it was fired on the Grove street bridge Fourth of July eve, escaping with his life but making a second hazardous venture when "Charlie" Dodd convinced him the boys of the company were not ready to chip for flowers?

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

And "Sheridan" Reed still a thousand miles away.

Well, who was it said the backbone of winter was broken?

To get right down to brass tacks, the Trades Council wants His Honor to eat a big dish of crow and say Uncle during the mastication process.

Should you care to receive first hand information as to how it feel to be "on the outside, looking in," ask "Les" Fort and "Charlie" Sminck about last Monday night's caucus.

Once again we pause to remark that these are the days of extremes. First Bill Lunger is refused the right to even purchase a ticket of admission to the municipal building, but within a few weeks he is given an annual pass "free gratis for nothing."

You can't tell absolutely whether there is any fight in a kid by hitting him on the nose or beating up his little brother. If it's a matter you want to bet on and wish a cinch, get somebody to kick his dog.

In explaining an expenditure of $35,000 on the new sewer beds, the joint commission explains that even with this amount the plant has not yet reached the estimated cost of $480,000. Quite true, quite true, but excuse us for venturing the opinion that the original estimate was lavishly liberal.

We call the attention of the Plainfield people to a danger more threatening than the menace of the Hun, more vitally important than the building of ships and further reaching in its effect than the sinister Prussian spy system. Now is the time to act and act quickly. For heaven's sake let someone get busy and stop Bobbie Crane before he unties all the matrimonial knots in town.

"John D. Rockefeller came to the aid of the people of Pocantico Hills and Ossining today in the coal shortage and with his own motor trucks saw to it that 198 families in these two towns received a supply of fuel."—Newark News, February 19.

You will notice that the article does not state where the Oil King got his supply of fuel. Maybe the old boy got in touch with B. Evans & Co., of this city.

Corporal Phillips Describes a Sunday At Camp McClellan

Sunday as it is passed by Plainfielders at home is vastly different from the Sunday experienced by a famous boy in camp. A rare idea of what the Sabbath means to a trooper is contained in a letter from Corporal "Jack" Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy F. Phillips, of Madison avenue, who is stationed at Camp McClellan, Anniston, as a member of the 110th Heavy Field Artillery. He was one of the gallant boys who left home and friends last summer to respond to President Wilson's first call, since which time he has fitted himself into the life of a real soldier.

Corporal "Jack" has a host of warm friends in Plainfield who will be pleased to hear this description of a Sabbath routine and it is given in full as it was written to his mother a few days ago:

Dear Mother:

It is now evening and it is the first chance I have had to write. Every Sunday morning we have an inspection which, with two trips to the stable, uses up the entire morning. This afternoon I got caught on a detail to move some harness and just got back from that in time to go to the stables again and then wash up for retreat at 5:30. After that a rush for supper and through for the day. That is a Sunday schedule and of course other days are different.

We had good "eats" today, so I will tell you what they were: For breakfast: An orange, hominy, buckwheat cakes (2), and coffee, with sugar and milk (evaporated). Dinner: Fricasseed chicken, with gravy, mashed potatoes, green peas, rice pudding and coffee, with sugar and milk. Supper: Corn fritters, apple pie and coffee. The fritters were fine and there were lots of them.

The orange for breakfast was the first time we have had fruit and I guess it was the first time some of the men ever had it for breakfast. Most of them treated it as a dessert and ate it after they had finished everything else. Some others did not get the idea at all so put them in their pockets for later use. You talk about college girls and the way they handle their forks you ought to see some of the ——— "wild animals I have known."

Tomorrow all the fellows that we left in camp to take care of the kitchen and horses while we were out at the rifle range are going out to try their luck at shooting and we will exercise the steeds. This means a lot of hard riding and a lot of cleaning as the horses are cleaned twice a day and we have seventy of them. We may hitch up to the guns and drag them around to get the horses used to them. It is a great game to ride one great big horse and drive another along side of you when both of them are hitched to the collars of a team behind you, which are also hitched the same way, and so on until there are eight horses to each carriage. After the horses get used to the work it will be easier of course, but now they are all green and so are we, so we have some great times.

On Sundays they hold church services in the canteen with the chaplain in charge. The band marches the length of the regiment street playing "Onward Christian Soldiers," then they (the buglers) blow church call and file in just as if it was a regular church, and you should hear the band playing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and a couple hundred soldiers singing it. The band lines right next door to us so we have music most of the time.

Some of the boys are in the bunch to shoot tomorrow and when they get in from that little trip out to the range they will not do much but go to bed after supper. It is a long trip into town after dark and they have to be back at 10 o'clock or suffer the penalties thereof. There might be some little thing like confinement to the camp for a month or to work all day next Sunday or some little thing like that. This is the kind of punishment we have handed to us for being late at night or late on line when the whistle blows.

Good bye now as I have to turn in and call it a day.

JACK.

Knights' Reception

The following, with their wives as members of their family, were present as honored guests of the Commandery as representatives of the affiliated Masonic fraternities in this city: George T. Caskey, district deputy; Charles H. Johnson, master of Anchor Lodge, No. 149; William A. Reynolds, master of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26; Miss Lillie E. Beck, worthy matron, of Lydia Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star; Robert H. Hand, council officer, of Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24; Alfred H. Peck, junior warden, of Jerusalem Lodge; Miss L. Irma Allen, associate matron, of Lydia Chapter; G. E. Angier, council officer, of Jerusalem Lodge; E. R. Leland, senio warden, of Anchor Lodge; W. McD. Cahill, treasurer, of Jerusalem Lodge; W. N. Maxim, secretary, of Anchor Lodge, and Robert S. Howe, worthy patron, of Lydia Chapter.

The decorations of the auditorium were a big feature and helped to make the reception what is declared to be one of the most auspicious and successful Masonic affairs held in Plainfield in several years. American flags and bunting were displayed in great profusion and during the evening calcium lights were flashed on the dancers with kaleidoscopic effect. The grand march was another enjoyable feature in which everyone participated and the scene as the long line of marchers twisted in and out was one long to be remembered. It was led by Grand Commander MacDonald and Mrs. R. F. K. Huntsman. It was well after midnight when the reception terminated.

The entertainment committee of Trinity Commandery, which had charge of the arrangements, was composed of Charles H. Rassell, chairman; Charles A. Lee, Harry W. Marshall, Dr. D. C. Adams and A. D. Honeyman, assisted by Commander R. F. K. Huntsman, Generalissimo Stephen B. Joseph and Captain General William N. Bennett.

MRS. MELINDE GERHOLD.

Mrs. Melinde Gerhold, aged sixty-four years, died yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at her home on Watchung avenue. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the mortuary chapel of J. J. and C. A. Higgins and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. C. S. Gillespie. Interment will be in the North Plainfield cemetery.

The New Definition of Thrift--
"Banked Happiness"

Thrift is more a matter of mind than of purse. Think thrifty thoughts, cultivate thrifty habits, make thrifty plans, and before you know it you will have a thrifty purse.

And in building up a bank account always keep in mind that is it not so much the size of the deposits that brings results as the regularity with which they are made.

NEW SPRING SUITS

and Coats, too, are ready—ready for you to see and to wear.

Jaunty, good-looking models in high waisted and ripple effects, pleated and simple yet stunning untrimmed styles, are developed in attractive suitings. Among them are gabardine, serge, poplin, silvertone, Poiret twill and other materials.

The Coats are more youthful in design than ever; novel pockets and military features are particularly in evidence. Here too, as among the Suits, are found Serges, Poplins, Gabardines and Silvertones, as well as Tricotine, Burella, Crystal Cloth and similar fabrics which for service and appearance both have no superiors.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

MRS. MARGARET BURKE.

Mrs. Margaret Burke, widow of John Burke, died Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frederick Bennett, of Allen place, the borough. The funeral was held in St. Joseph's church, yesterday morning, when a requiem mass was said by Rev. Father P. J. Hart. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Burke was born in 1823 and had lived in this vicinity a long time. She leaves beside her daughter, two grandchildren, Miss Bessie Smith and Clarence Smith, both of North Plainfield.

MISS MAY ALICE DAY.

Miss May Alice Day, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Day, of Church street, South Plainfield, died Saturday night at the parental home. She had been ill a-long time with a pulmonary complaint. The young woman was only eighteen years old and her untimely demise is deeply regretted by her many friends in South Plainfield and this city.

The funeral was held in the Church of the Sacred Heart, South Plainfield, Tuesday morning, Rev. Father Baldwin officiating. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, this city.

ALICE LEIGH DAVIS.

Alice Leigh Davis, the fifteen months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Davis, of Netherwood avenue, died Monday morning. The funeral was held at the home of a relative in Trenton, Wednesday afternoon, and burial was in Greenwood cemetery, Brooklyn.

HENRY B. NEWHALL.

Word was received in Plainfield the past week of the death of Henry Borden Newhall, a former well-known resident. The end occurred at his home in Littleton, N. H., to which place he removed on leaving Plainfield. The funeral and interment took place at Littleton.

Mr. Newhall was a native of Rhode Island, where he was born in 1845. He was engaged in the iron and steel business in New York city, and was one of the organizers of the Newhall Forge Chain Company, which still bears his name, with offices on Cortlandt street, New York. Mr. Newhall retired from the concern a few years ago.

While in Plainfield, the deceased was prominent in the work at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church where for many years he served as teacher of the Bible class. He was also interested in civic affairs and in 1888 was elected to the Common Council, serving one term beginning January 1, 1889. He left the city about ten years ago.

Mr. Newhall is survived by his wife and one son, Henry B. Newhall, Jr.

HOWARD DRAKE.

Howard Drake, a native Plainfielder, and one of the best known young men in this city, died Sunday at his home on Netherwood avenue, after an illness of only three days. A slight cold contracted the early part of last week suddenly developed a severe caseof pneumonia and his condition became critical almost from the outset. The end came as a distinct shock to his host of friends as he had always been of robust physique and seemed capable of warding off any ailment.

The funeral was held at his late home Wednesday afternoon and was conducted by Rev. Dr. Philip B. strong. The attendance of relatives and friends was large and numerous beautiful floral tributes gave evidence of the esteem in which he was held. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Those who acted as pallbearers were: Mr. Hanaford and Mr. James, representing the New Jersey Central engineering department, and Mr. Meyers, Mr. Vernon, Mr. Barlow and Mr. Meyers of the Standard Oil engineering corps.

Mr. Drake was thirty-six years old and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Drake, of 118 North avenue. After completing his education in the Franklin and Stillman Schools he was employed for a time in the special delivery department of the Plainfield Postoffice, but later took an civil engineering under the tutelage of Harry C. VanEmburgh. He remained in Mr. VanEmburgh's employ until 1912, at which time he secured a splendid position in the engineering department of the Standard Oil Company, making his headquarters [illegible]

Four years ago the concern sent Mr. [illegible] to Van Couver, B. C., where he was assistant supervisor in the construction of a big refinery. After this was completed he was sent to Oklahoma for a similar purpose, and came to Baltimore from which city he returned to Plainfield about a year and a half ago. All his recent operations had been confined to Standard Oil work in and about Bayway.

Beside his parents the deceased is survived by his wife, who was Miss Josie Banks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Banks, of Netherwood avenue.

MRS. MARGARET WOODRUFF.

Mrs. Margaret Woodruff, aged eighty-five years, died last Saturday morning in Muhlenberg Hospital, after a long illness. She had been making her home with her son, John Howell, of 216 Pond place. Because of natural infirmities she had been failing for the past six months, but was taken to the hospital only when it was realized that her condition was acute. Beside Mr. Howell, she leaves three other sons, one living in Madison, a second in Westfield, and another at Morristown.

The funeral was held at Mr. Howell's home Tuesday afternoon, and was in charge of Rev. J. W. Flynn, of the Monroe Avenue church. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

JOSEPH F. RAFFERTY.

Joseph F. Rafferty, son of Mrs. Charlotte Rafferty, of 410 East Fourth street, died last Saturday, after a brief illness with pneumonia. He was thirty-five years old and had lived in Plainfield practically all his life. He was a machinist by trade and was last employed by the Spicer Universal Joint Company.

Beside his mother, he is survived by one sister, Mrs. Margaret Burns, of this city. His father was the late Patrick Rafferty.

The funeral was held in St. Mary's church Wednesday morning and was conducted by Rev. Father Hennessy. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

MRS. MARY E. A. BROWN.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Adams Brown, widow of John Crosby Brown, and mother of Mrs. Henry L. DeForest, of Hillside avenue, this city, died last Friday at her home, 244 Thirty-seventh street, New York. The funeral service was held at the residence Monday afternoon, and was attended by a number of persons from Plainfield, who had known the deceased for many years.

Mrs. Brown was the daughter of the late [illegible] Adams, for forty years pastor of the Madison Square Presbyterian church and for seven years president of Union Theological Seminary. Her husband died nine years ago. He was for many years president of the board of directors of the seminary. One son, the Rev. Dr. William Adams Brown, is a professor there.

The summer home of Mrs. Brown was Brightcurst, a large estate in the West Orange mountains, near St. Cloud, N. J. This, as well as her town residence, was a center of hospitality for leaders in religious and missionary work.

Mrs. Brown gave the entire collection of musical instruments to the Metropolitan Museum of Art. These number between three thousand and four thousand pieces, of priceless value. They extend from prehistoric times to the present. Among the most notable is one of the two remaining examples of the original piano made by Cristofore, the inventor of the pianoforte.

Mrs. Brown leaves three sons, Thatcher M. Brown, formerly of 1024 Park avenue, this city, and John Crosby Brown, partners in the firm Brown Brothers, bankers, in New York, and Prof. William Adams Brown, of Union Theological Seminary. Also three daughters, Mrs. Edward Caldwell Moore, wife of Prof. Moore, of the Hartford Divinity School, Cambridge, Mass.; Mrs. Henry L. DeForest, of 955 Hillside avenue, Plainfield, and Miss Mary Barton Brown, of New York.

There are fourteen grand children, the three oldest of who mare in war service, William Adams Brown, Jr., is in Petrograd as a Y. M. C. A. secretary, John Crosby Brown Moore is in ambulance service in France, Miss Dorothea M. Moore is at work in a hospital in France.

MRS. GRACE WALDRON MILLER.

An apoplectic stroke suffered a little more than two weeks ago resulted Tuesday morning in the death of Mrs. Grace Waldron Miller, widow of Major William DeWitt Miller, which occurred at her home, 309 East Seventh street. The funeral service was held at the family residence yesterday noon and was in charge of Rev. Dr. Merrill, pastor of the Park Presbyterian church. New York, where the burial was private.

Mrs. Miller was a native of Hoosick Falls, Mass., and lived for a number of years in Brooklyn before coming to Plainfield in 1879. She was active in the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, consecration and service circle, and was a constant attendant at the Tuesday Afternoon Reading, one of the city's oldest and best known women's clubs. Her husband, to whom she was married in 1872, while then a resident of Brooklyn, died a few years ago. He was one of the pioneers in the steel industry here and was also prominent in the work at the Crescent Avenue church and also at Stone chapel.

Mrs. Miller is survived by three daughters and two sons. They are: Mrs. Frank Wilson, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Theodore Miller, of the Plainfield High School; Miss Frances Miller, Miss Theodora Miller, Miss Waldron DeWitt Miller and Maxwell V. V. Miller. She also leaves one brother, Cornelius Waldron, of Hoosick Falls, Mass., and Mrs. Cornelius Miller, one of the sons in law, is assistant curator of the New York Museum of Natural History.

OTTO MOOR SUPPOSED TO H...

Otto Moor, formerly associated with the Potter Press Works, and more recently with Leslie in the same capacity, left for the Wood Pulp Mills of the Commercial Paper Company in Nekoosa, Wis., on Tuesday, it is rationally ill at his home on West Front street.

Plainfield Women Spend Night at Camp Dix As Guests of Company A, 113th Infantry

Dancing, supper, and impromptu speeches featured the reception and dance held in the barracks of Company "A," 311th Infantry, at Camp Dix, on Friday evening, February 15th. The dance marked the formal opening of the instruction and recreation room which has recently been decorated.

The women guests, who were all from Union county, arrived shortly after 6 p. m., and at 7 o'clock they were ushered into the mess hall, where they enjoyed a regular army dinner in true army style. The ladies were much impressed by the novelty of eating from the tin mess kits. During the course of the dinner, First Sergeant Harry Parker, of Westfield, introduced the company commander, Lott R. Breen, who in his usual pleasing way, delivered a charming address of welcome to the guests, in which he commended the boys of Company "A" for the spirit shown in making the affair a howling success.

Dancing followed the supper in the recreation room, and music was furnished by the regimental orchestra. A dainty dancing souvenir was distributed among the guests, which included the company roster. The decorations throughout the barracks were in keeping with Valentine's Day.

At 11 o'clock the guests were invited to enter the mess hall, where a Valentine luncheon was served by Mess Sergeant Melvin E. Balsh and his "staff." At this time Captain Breen took occasion to introduce Colonel M. B. Stokes, commanding the 311th Infantry, who welcomed the guests, and lauded Company "A" on knowing how to do things in an "A-1" style. Other guests of honor included Lieut. Col. Meyer and Major Haynes Odom.

The committee in charge of the reception included: Sergeant Parker, of Westfield, chairman; Sergeant Balsh, of Westfield, refreshments; Sergeant Pollard, of Rahway, accommodations; Sergeant Terry, accommodations; Sergeant Armstrong, of Plainfield, decorations, and Private Schick, of Plainfield and Private Stiles, of Rahway, arrangements. The work of painting and decorating the recreation room was under the supervision of Lieut. Vanderbilt and Sgt. Armstrong, assisted by W. S. Clark, of Westfield, and P. G. Phillips, of Plainfield, the company mechanics.

The following guests were present from Union county: Miss Virginia Sminck, Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Miss M. E. Hand, Miss Julia Leahy, Mrs. H. L. Terry, Miss May Ayers, Miss Mary Mauhart and Mrs. William E. Van Norden, Jr., all of Plainfield; Miss Marguerite M. Pollard and Miss Ethel Burns, of Rahway; Miss Anna Cagraun and Mrs. Walter Perkins, of Linden; Mrs. Gibbons H. Markley, Miss Gladys Meyer, Miss Natalie Meyer, Miss Ethel Alexander, Miss J. C. Walker and Miss Elda Fink, all of Westfield, and Miss Elizabeth Randolph, of Hillside.

Others present included: Capt. Lott R. Breen, First Lieutenants W. J. Flynn, Floyd Augustine, W. K. Zucker, H. R. Vanderbilt and Barnard Eberlin; Second Lieutenants W. D. Ashmore, W. F. Kelly and J. B. Carpenter, all of Company A, 113th Infantry, and the following noncommissioned officers and privates: First Sergeant Harry S. Parker, of Westfield; Mess Sergeant M. E. Balsh, of Westfield; Supply Sergeant Thomas J. Pollard, of Rahway; Supply Sergeant E. J. Heslin, of Brooklyn; H. L. Terry, of Plainfield; Armstrong, of Plainfield; Corporals G. H. Markley, of Westfield; Frank Maubart, Jr., of Plainfield; Walter Perkins, of Linden; Charles C. Wolfel, of Rahway; Mechanics W. E. Vanden; Mechanics W. S. Clark, of Westfield, and P. G. Phillips, of Plainfield; Privates William B. Carpenter, Rahway.; C. H. Clarke, Hillside; J. E. Johnson, Murray Hill; John F. Mines, Summit; Joseph Gillie, Westfield; H. C. Randolph, Hillside; F. E. Roediger, Rahway; W. J. Roloff, Hillside; D. S. Sminckv Plainfield; Morton H. Stiles, Roselle; A. L. Stretton, Scotch Plains; F. M. Theall, Roselle Park; B. A. Thron, Plainfield; Fred B. Thorn, Westfield; J. W. Vannest, Plainfield; M. J. Waldron, Plainfield; William A. White, Summit; D. M. Wilcox, Plainfield; J. P. Youtautos, Hillside; P. Belvin, Attleboro, Mass.; A. A. Turley, Boston, Mass., and William E. VanNorden, Jr., Plainfield.

The dancing ended about 2 a. m., after which the lady guests repaired to the Company A annex, across the street, which is not being used at present, where sleeping facilities had been arranged. The ladies all enjoyed sleeping between the regular army blankets on army cots.

Through the courtesy of the Regimental Guard Officer, a sentry walked past around the building throughout the night to avoid any molestation for the playing of practical jokes that would disturb the slumbers of the ladies.

Breakfast was served the guests in the Company mess hall at 9:30, and after a visit to the trenches, where they saw some of the finest trench work many A at work, the guests departed for their respective homes after giving three rousing cheers for Company A.

Decorative Scheme.

Ceiling beams white, with brown panelwork. Interwoven beaverboard on sides, cream color; wood base side walls (about 5 feet high) brown, and all posts brown, fencing masks, body protectors and bayonets were arranged on figures in each corner. In the side panels were the allied flags crossed with the American flag. The orchestra was placed in a corner behind a row of stacked rifles over which was draped a large American flag.

The punchbowl was very well camouflaged with laurel, gathered from the nearby woods.

Baird Favored In Senate Talk

The selection of a man for the temporarly appointment to the seat in the United States Senate, made vacant by the death of William Hughes, of Paterson, seems to have simmered down to David Baird, Republican leader of Camden county. Mr. Baird seems to have outdistanced every other man mentioned in connnection with the temporary appointment, and it is believed that Governor Edge will give him the honor. There has been no intimation, however, of this kind from the Governor, but it is conceded on all sides that Baird will be the selection.

It is understood that the temporary appointment will not be made immediately, as the Governor will probably let a little time elapse before making the announcement. He has the alternative of withholding an appointment should he desire to take this course. The Attorney-General, in his recent opinion, said that the matter was in the discretion of the Executive. However, Mr. Edge, it is believed, will not exercise this power in a negative way by refusing to make a temporary selection pending the filling of the unexpired term at the November election.

The selection of Baird will eliminate for the time being the consideration of the name of former Governor E. C. Stokes. Some people are claiming that Mr. Stokes is almost sure to be a candidate this year. Recently Mr. Stokes held a conference with the Governor, after which the Executive said that there would be no contest between the two for the Republican nomination. If that statement continues to stand, of course it means the elimination of either the Governor or Mr. Stokes. The most likely of the two to refrain from entering the primary would be the former Governor as the incumbent of the Executive chair would be regarded as having a very much better chance of winning the nomination.

There is some talk of former Secretary of War Lindley M. Garrison, who has been living in New York and Ilves in Jersey City, Democrats predict he would make a rattling good candidate for either Senator or Governor in 1919.

Two More Firemen Quit City's Service

Floyd Carrol, of West Third street, who has been a member of the local fire department for the past four years, tendered his resignation on Monday to accept a position at the Pond Tool Works. If he had remained in the service until Monday evening, he would have been included in the men who were advanced one class and given back pay from last October but he enlisted only four days before the increases went into effect.

Mr. Carrol has been stationed at headquarters and has been one of Chief Jennings' most valued men. He is a native of Kentucky and was a member of the U. S. Coast Artillery for six years. The twenty-four hour "strike" and installment pay are given as his reasons for leaving the department.

Bert Reinman, who was appointed to the department several months ago, has also tendered his resignation. He will complete his service tomorrow in order to accept a better paying position in a local shop. Reinman's retirement will be the eleventh that has taken place in the department since last November. This number is about one-third of the total membership of recruits in the city fire fighting service and has not only left Chief Jennings without trained men but has also cost him several of his best mechanicians who looked after apparatus repairs.

Commissioners Named for State Tunnel Project

Governor Edge Monday night sent to the Senate the nominations of eight men, who are to constitute the New Jersey Bridge and Tunnel Commission, and later made public letters which he sent to the Governors of New York and Pennsylvania and the Mayors of New York and Philadelphia, urging the appointment of similar commissions and other necessary co-operation for joint operations. The New Jersey commission will be made up as follows:

Weller H. Noyes, Tenafly, four years; Palmer Campbell, Hoboken, two years; Franklin Murphy, Newark, one year; Thomas N. McCarter, Kumson, three years; Samuel T. French, Camden, two years; Richard T. Collings, Collingswood, one year; Thomas J. S. Barlow, Burlington, four years, and Daniel F. Hendrickson, Woodbury, three years.

In the same batch of appointments the Governor included that of District Court Judge John A. Blair, of Jersey City, to be the third Common Pleas Court judge, as provided under an act of the present session; John J. Cunningham, of Boonton, as member of the Morris County Tax Board, and the renominations of Anthony R. Kuser, of Bernardsville, and John W. Herbert, of Helmetta, as members of the State Highway Commission.

In his letter to the Governors and Mayors concerning the Bridge and Tunnel Commission, Governor Edge suggested his willingness to call a special session of the Legislature to hurry the work and make New Jersey's share of the expense available as soon as the other States and cities were prepared to proceed with the bridge and tunnel projects.

The Governor inclosed copies of the laws enacted at the present session providing for the commission, the method of financing that New Jersey has devised, and the names of the commissioners he had selected. He stated that under the new laws approximately $6,000,000 will be raised for tunnel construction under the Hudson river by New Jersey and that it had already been estimated that the tunnel would cost about $12,000,000.

"While the bills provide," Governor Edge wrote Governor Whitman, "that the tax shall not be levied in New Jersey until the bills which in each case shall be framed by New York and Jersey City, Democrats subject to the approval of the Governor of New York, providing for earlier construction, and it is the earnest hopes of all interested in New Jersey that this construction can be commenced in the very near future, as the necessity for the traffic tunnel is certainly apparent right now.

"I sincerely trust the New York Legislature now in session will take definite action looking to the appointment of a commission with full power to negotiate with New Jersey and providing for the financing of the project. New Jersey can do nothing further until some such action is taken by New York. Of course, the matter of a division of responsibility between New York State and New Jersey is entirely New York's problem, but if necessary I would not hesitate to call a special session of the New Jersey Legislature to make New Jersey's share of the expense available immediately a contract is entered into, this must be received as a relief of the transportation problem, the responsibility of which the Governor to a great extent has already admitted and assumed."

The letters were substantially the same sent to the Pennsylvania official except that they were made to apply particularly to the situation in the State and in the city of Philadelphia, which will have to await further legislative sanction in the Keystone State until next year.

Mayor Urges Local Men to Aid Ship Plan

Mayor Leighton Calkins has issued the following appeal to Plainfield mechanics in behalf of President Wilson's shipbuilding plan;

Our Country has gone into a war which must be fought three thousand miles away. There is no question as to the outcome because, having gone in, we shall stay in until the objects have been accomplished for which we and our allies have made the great sacrifice. The only question is how promptly we can bring into play all the power of this great nation and thus be the means of hastening the inevitable end.

Uncommon difficulties attend our participation in an overseas war. Of what avail our wealth, and all our splendid resources in men and material, unless we have the ships to take them over?

The program of the United States Shipbuilding Board calls 6,000,000 tons of shipbuilding a year. It has the money, the yards, the material. It will presently have the housing problem in hand. When it has the workers, and the Shipping Board has recently announced its plan for the creation of a reserve force of skilled labor to be known as the United States Shipyard Volunteers, and to consist of 250,000 skilled mechanics enrolled for service on demand. Artisans who register will engage themselves to work in the shipyards when needed and in the meantime to retain their present positions. They will also be placed in a deferred class as to draft, so long as engaged in shipbuilding work.

Ships more than any other thing will win the war. The United States Shipbuilding Board has come to bring this vital need of the nation to the notice of the skilled mechanics of the city, that they may know of their opportunity to volunteer in this branch of the service.

Full particulars as to the registration, and its benefits and obligations may be had of City Clerk John J. Carroll, hereby appointed Enrollment Agent, office, 149 North avenue, Plainfield, February 19, 1918.

LEIGHTON CALKINS,
Mayor.

Large Attendance At Y. M. H. Dance

The commodious clubhouse of the Young Men's Hebrew Association on West Front street was thronged last night, on the occasion of the organization's thirteenth annual dance. It was the first anniversary of the new building's occupancy and the members were highly delighted with the attendance at the double "celebration." Those present enjoyed dancing, interspersed with entertainment numbers presented by amateur and professional talent until a late hour. Music for the occasion was furnished by Eddie Marks' Jazz orchestra.

The decorations were unusually elaborate. They were composed mostly of American flags and bunting, but the portraits of President Washington, Lincoln and Wilson were used to good effect.

The committee in charge was composed of Samuel Krauthamer, chairman, assisted by Max Tepper, Benjamin Spritzer, Jacob J. Schwartz, Joseph Lange, Arthur H. Richard, Harry Fox, M. Berger, J. Golfson and Alex Goodman.

Boys at McClellan To Ride Mules In Washington's Honor

Featured by an inter-Ally relay race, a series of mounted events will be held as part of the Blue and Gray division's celebration of Washington's Birthday. Entries for the meet, which closed Monday, include men from all organizations in the division.

Officers and non-coms representing England, France and the United States, limited to four for each nation, are eligible for the inter-Ally race, which will consist of four half-mile heats. Army mules will be the mounts. Each nation must carry its flag through the four relays.

Representatives of the British and French missions who are at the camp as instructors will enter teams in this event against four men from the division picked to represent the United States.

Other events will include a flat race for enlisted men, a flat race for officers, a mule race for enlisted men, a mounted tug-of-war, with teams consisting of six men mounted bareback on horses, a hurdle race for officers and one for enlisted men.

Both cups and money prizes will be distributed. These will be given out immediately after the conclusion of each event. The highest money prize will be given in the mule race for enlisted men, $5 to the winner.

Colonel E. E. Goodwyn, commander of trains, will be chief judge, with Lieutenant Colonel N. B. Rekford, of 304th Artillery, and Lieutenant Colonel W. S. Wood, commanding the 112th, also on the board. Captain Ralph Hutchins, of the 118th Infantry, will be starter, and Lieutenant Stephen B. Brooks, of the 110th Artillery, clerk of the course.

With the Sunny South coming back into its own after a hard winter, work in the big reservation of the Blue and Gray is getting a new lease on life. For the past week, while snow covered the ground in the North, Camp McClellan has enjoyed weather such as the Jersey boys usually encountered up North along in April. Not even the nights have been cold, and at noon time the warm sun has brought high temperatures.

With the return of better weather the artillery has resumed firing. The 113th Regiment, Maryland and District of Columbia men, were on the range this week, two batteries at a time, solving problems in fire that simulated war conditions.

Assured by a letter he received from a friend in Passaic asking if it were true that soldiers men had frozen to death in camp during the winter, Major General Charles G. Morton, division commander, gave to the newspaper men accredited to his headquarters a copy of his reply.

"Not only is there no truth in the report, but there is no foundation of it," ran the letter. Even injuries that he told, it continued, had been at a minimum.

After adverting to the harm that such reports work, General Morton concluded his letter by saying, "There is no suffering here due to cold, lack of shelter, lack of food or lack of anything that contributes to personal comfort."

Commendation from General Morton was sent this week to the 114th Infantry, a Jersey unit, following an inspection of the transportation of the regiment and its corral by Colonel Goodwyn. Both were in excellent shape, said the general in extending commendation to Colonel Fred G. Stritzinger, commander of the regiment, and Captain Walter H. Leedon, supply officer.

Three Jerseymen have been detailed for special duty at division headquarters: Privates John C. Sheritt, Company F, 112th Infantry; Private William Hunsrid, Company K, 113th, and Private William J. Miller, headquarters company, 104th Engineers.

Percy F. Wright, of Ridgewood, a member of the division headquarters detachment, formerly of the Fifth New Jersey Infantry, has been promted from private to sergeant. His promotion is one of a number recently effected in the detachment.

Gideons of New Jersey Will Begin Annual Convention Tomorrow

J. Harry Humphreys, of Huntington, W. Va., national president, will attend the second annual convention of the Gideons of New Jersey at the local Y. M. C. A. tomorrow and Sunday. The sessions will begin tomorrow afternoon, when officers will be elected, and J. C. Bennett, national representative, will make an address.

There will be a banquet at 6:30 o'clock, Philip S. Suffern, president of the Plainfield Camp, will be the toastmaster. Mayor Leighton Calkins will make an address of welcome, and there also will be speeches by Rev. Howard E. Clarke, of the Congregational church; James W. De Graff, of this city, and the national president, with a response by G. R. Pohl, the State president.

Sunday morning at 9 o'clock there will be a prayer and praise service, to be followed with meetings of interest to the Gideons in the local churches at which many will speak. There will be a Gideon conference at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and at 3:45 o'clock a public meeting to be addressed by Gideons will be held at the association hall.

Public Service Now Giving Full Power

"Back to normal" was the encouraging report of the Public Service Electric Company, Tuesday, as power service was resumed on a 100 per cent. basis. The officials of the company are optimistic that this standard may be maintained, with the help of the Fuel Administration, now that more moderate weather is due, and the company starts with a reserve supply which should last some little time.

About 40,000 men and women in New Jersey went back to work Tuesday, after nearly a week's involuntary vacation. Several hundreds in Plainfield have been affected. The big plants in Plainfield, warned by past failure of the company and the Fuel Administration, were able to worry along with emergency power services.

While no very large consignments of coal have been received by the Public Service, there has been a steady influx of coal since the shutdown order went into effect. Very concrete promises as to the number of cars to be placed at the company's disposal indicate that only a reoccurrence of extremely cold weather or a run of unusually hard luck will cause the concern to curtail service again this year.

Why Plainfield Boys "Over There" Have Long Wait For Mail From Home

The fact that mail is subordinated in transport to men and army supplies, slowness of distribution in many cases after the mail actually reaches the army, scarcity of ships and irregularity of sailings are given by Otto Praeger, Second Assistant Postmaster General, as the reasons for the slowness of delivery of mail to soldiers in France. Few complaints have reached the department of delay in letters sent to the United States by the soldiers. There is abundance of cargo space on the homebound transports and the mail arriving in this country is quickly distributed by the regular postoffice clerks.

The fact that outgoing mail is aboard a ship does not mean that it has started across the ocean. The boat may wait days at the docks to complete its loading. Then it may go outside the harbor and remain for additional days, waiting for a convoy or seeking to confuse the submarines in its path.

When it gets under way the ship may go by the Southern route, which requires twenty-one days for the average transport. One boat carrying mail recently required twenty-eight days to negotiate the journey to France.

Finally the craft carrying the mail arrives at a French port. For illustration let us say Bordeaux. If the load of mail does not exceed 2,000 pouches the French railways may carry the mail on to the training camp the same day. If the load of mail exceeds 2,000 pouches it requires two or three days to work it out. At this point the irregularity of the transports makes the trouble. For instance, there may be no American soldier mail arrive for a week and then one day there will come a half-dozen transports, carrying perhaps 12,000 pouches of mail. It will require the French railways six days or more to work off this accumulation, and if more mail boats arrive in the mean time the jam accumulates and continues for many days.

The mail pouch in which is located a letter for a Plainfield boy, for example, passes out of the hands of the American Postoffice Department at Bordeaux, where it is dispatched to the camp where the record says he is located. When it arrives in camp it passes into the hands of the army mail distribution system.

Soldiers detailed for the duty sort the pouches each to the company or other unit to which they are addressed. For each company a non-commissioned officer is delegated as postmaster. When the mail pouch arrives he blows a bugle and assembles the troop. They line up to receive their letters and the game on each is called out.

That is what occurs if the soldier happens to be still attached to the unit with which he was serving when the letter was written. But suppose he has been detached for special duty in another locality. His letter remains in the hands of the company postmaster and he may forward it promptly or keep it a week, dependent on his individual enterprise and efficiency.

Postoffice officials declare that most complaints have come from units recently arrived in France. With the regular army contingents first went over there was a continual stream of complaints, but gradually as this contingent got settled in camps in France the complaints dwindled. The army mail system had settled down also and was working more efficiently. As each new unit has gone over this experience has been repeated. The recent storm of New England Congressman against the mail delivery in France came just after certain New England troops had arrived.

Under these conditions, Mr. Praeger declared, thirty days should be allowed for delivery of a letter from Plainfield, say to the hands of a soldier in France, and the time is likely to be longer if he has been shifted from the unit to which the letter is addressed or if there is an error in the company designation in the address.

The army transports carry soldiers' mail, but only such as they can handle without interfering with the flow of men and supplies to France.

A great pile of pouches of food, aeroplane parts or troops may appear at the dock and the mail is put aside to wait for another boat. Mail is always second to men and supplies. Each delay of this character not only adds to the mail jam at home, but it insures additional days lost in distribution through the faulty and inadequate army postoffice system in France.

The condition is indicated by the report of mail vessel sailings for the past three months. In November mail was dispatched on ten ships, sailing on November 3, 8, 10, 11, 15, 16, 17, 21, 29, 30. The longest delay between ships in that month was seven days, from November 22 to 29, during which not a single soldier mail pouch left the United States.

In December only five ships, sailing on December 7, 12, 16, 18 and 28, carried mail. In this month there was a ten-day period, December 18 to 28, when no mail was dispatched.

In January there were nine mail carrying ships, less than in November, but the sailings were more regular, falling on 2, 8, 10, 14, 17, 20, 21, 23 and 25. In this month the longest periods without dispatch of mail were six days, from January 2 to 8 and from January 25 to the end of the month.

Because a ship has sailed on a given day it does not follow that all the waiting mail has been dispatched, however. A ship may indicate that it can carry 1,000 pouches when 6,000 pouches are on hand. The remaining 5,000 pouches must wait.

The only means of improving the mail conditions materially, it appears ,would be for the government to place mail at least on a plane with men and supplies in priority of shipment. There are many officials who believe this can be done. These men argue that, as more Americans arrive in France and the mail increases in exact ratio with the demand for food and supplies, even greater delay in mail deliveries is inevitable.

Early Morning Blazes Cause Loss of $6,000

A careful estimate made by Chief A. D. Jennings places the combined loss resulting from the three fires which kept the city department busy the greater part of Saturday night and early Sunday morning, at about $6,000. Of this amount $4,500 is charged against the blaze in the Schwed building at Front and Somerset streets, $1,000 against the "electrical fire" in the Public Service power plant on Madison avenue and $500 on the Public Service office building on West Second street. The loss in each instance is covered by insurance.

The Schwed fire started shortly before midnight in the rooms of the Plainfield Outfitting Company on the second floor and was confined to that point, although the blaze had gained great headway before being discovered, by a citizen. The Outfitting Company suffered a loss on stock to the amount of $2,000 and a further loss of $1,000 was brought about by water descending to the furniture store of L. B. VanCamp on the first floor and the stationery store of S. Block in the basement. The building was damaged to the extent of $1,500.

The alarm for the Public Service fires was sent in by Anthony Deady, switchboard operator of the private telephone system maintained in the Second street building. They were caused by a short circuit in the power house which reached water and gas pipes leading to the office structure. The electric heat burned off a gas connection under the main floor of the office and afterward ignited the flow of gas thus released. Deady displayed great heroism in remaining at his post and sending out telephone messages while flames forced their way through the flooring and threatened to cut off his escape.

When the department apparatus arrived, Paul Newmann, who was on duty at the power house, warned the firemen of the danger that might result if streams of water were thrown on the short circuit flames leaping twenty feet in the air. The electric current could have traveled down the water and reaching the hose nozzle might possibly have inflicted a fatal shock on the firemen holding the line. The men in consequence used chemicals until the current could be shut off from the Perth Amboy power house. The blaze was a most unusual one and might have resulted in a big conflagration but for the work of Chief Jennings and his men.

As a result of the blaze, trolley traffic in the city was tied up until 7:30 in the morning as the Madison avenue station relays current for the local system.

Actual Warfare As Officers' Training Camp

That the theatre of war in Europe will be the third training camp to provide officers for the United States army is the conviction of prominent military authorities today. When the present series of camps is concluded, it is hoped that the number of men commissioned will be sufficient for the time being.

If it is decided to materially increase the numerical strength of American forces beyond the present draft, high ranking officers are strongly in favor of promoting enlisted men of General Pershing's forces that have made good under actual war conditions.

"We have learned that the battle-front is the greatest school of the soldier," remarked a high ranking officer at the War Department recently, "and we are becoming convinced that it is better for our army to commission deserving and experienced soldiers that have been through the ordeal of fire than to conduct another series of camps which will not only deprive us of the services of the applicants for commissions, but also the number of officers both of our own and of our allies' armies necessary to make the camps a success."

J. Sayre Slauson, of East Ninth street, who has been with the U. S. Marines at Paris Island, S. C., since December 1, left there Sunday for San Domingo, where he will be stationed at the Marine barracks.

Good "Timber" Mentioned For Council Vacancy

Speculation is rife throughout the city as to whom is in line for the Common Council to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John S. Dahl, appointed by the City Hall committee to supervise the remainder of the construction work on the municipal building.

Under the terms of the law, the new man must be picked within thirty days after the resignation. As Mr. Dahl was elected from the Second ward, his successor must be from that part of the city and the councilmen are already in receipt of several names. In no instance has the suggestion come personally from any of those mentioned, the source remaining with citizens who appreciate the sort of official needed.

Among those who have been mentioned prominently are A. C. Wilmerding, of Belvidere avenue, president of the Netherwood Residents' Association. Mr. Wilmerding is a most progressive and able business man and his appointment is being urged by Netherwood people who are desirous of having one of their number in the councilmanic body. The splendid work accomplished by Mr. Wilmerding in occupying the executive chair of the Netherwood association is pointed out as one evidence of his fitness for the place.

Other names that have been mentioned are those of Charles W. Eoff, Vincent W. Nash and Joseph Harrigan. The first two are retired business men who possess every qualification for the office and have ample time to give to its duties. Mr. Harrigan is engaged in the coal and grain business and makes his home in the Netherwood section. It is quite likely that the new councilman will be named at the first regular meeting in March, thus permitting the appointee to take his seat at the next session.

The selection of Mr. Dahl to take charge of the City Hall work and the subsequent proceedings in the Common Council leading up to his resignation are explained in detail by the following communications:

To the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

The City Hall Building Committee was requested by your Honorable body, at its meeting on February 4, to recommend a competent man of practical experience to act as superintendent of construction. After investigation and careful consideration of the matter, it is the opinion of the Committee that it will be in the interest of the city to select a local contractor and that there is no one better qualified for the position than Councilman John S. Dahl, one of our own associates. The Committee has with reluctance asked Mr. Dahl whether he would be willing to undertake the work as it will require his retirement from the Common Council where he is also needed; but believing that he frankly put it up to him as an opportunity to be of great service to the city, and after consideration of the matter Mr. Dahl advised the Committee that if it is also the wish of all his associates in the Council, he will undertake this work which we have put up to him more or less as a public duty. We think Mr. Dahl's letter announcing his decision to abide by the wishes of his associates in this matter should be made a part of the record, and therefore incorporate it in this report:

February 16, 1918.

City Hall Building Committee,
Hon. Leighton Calkins, Chairman.

Dear Sir:

In reply to your suggestion, would say I did not know you were considering me as superintendent of construction. I did not have any idea I would be wanted. In the short time I have been a member of the Common Council I have found the association pleasant and would prefer to serve out the term of office. But if the Common Council think I can be of more use as superintendent of construction at the new city building I will resign from the Council and do my best to help finish the job.

Yours truly
JOHN S. DAHL

The Committee therefore unanimously recommend that Mr. Dahl be appointed superintendent of construction, to enter upon his duties as such immediately after the acceptance by the Common Council of his resignation as councilman, if your honorable body acts favorably on this report, his employment as superintendent of construction to be at a salary of $200 per month, to be paid monthly, the city retaining the right to terminate the contract at any time on one month's written notice; said superintendent of construction to give all his time during the usual hours of business to the work, acting under the general direction of the architects.

Dated February 18, 1918.

CITY HALL BUILDING COMMITTEE.
By Leighton Calkins.

Check Industry To Clear Ports

A gradual slowing down of industry throughout the eastern United States is under way. It will continue under high Government ojcials until the American shipbuilding program, now lagging, catches up.

Without governmental edict, without shortage of supplies, without crippling shortages of fuel or labor, industry, lacking sufficient ships to import new raw materials and to export the finished product, faces an enforced and widespread curtailment.

"Even the trades directly manufacturing war supplies and munitions plants faces a limitation of their output," W. Blackman, shipping board labor expert, said yesterday.

"Not only are the ports and docks jammed with supplies for overseas but there are in seacoast terminals alone more than 30,000 freight cars loaded with supplies for Europe, literally mountains of materials for which there is insufficient shipping tonnage.

"No greater surplus of supplies can possibly be permitted to accumulate in these ports.

"There is but one thing ahead—a forced slow down in American factories until the ships are built," Blackman said.

The War Trade Board, armed now with limitless power to curtail imports and exports, plans to move with a firm hand to restrict imports.

Imports of non-essential raw materials are scheduled to feel the next blow. Thousands of tons of needed shipping are expected to be released for the war trade by this alone. Exports of the finished product non-essentials are being cut down. These two measures will force widespread suspension of non-essential production for foreign shipment as well as domestic consumption.

NOTE IN SWEATER BRINGS REPLY TO AGED KNITTER

Among the sweaters sent recently by Lonaconing, Md., women to the Red Cross for shipment to the expeditionary army was one knitted by "Grandma" Bradley, ninety-two, in which she inserted a note in one of the sleeves asking the soldier who received it to write her a letter. She has just received a reply from France. The sweater was received by a Lonaconing boy, a lad whom she had known when he was a child.

Boys of Company A, 311th, Want Wicker Furniture

The Plainfield boys in Company A, 311th Infantry, stationed at Camp Dix, have sent an appeal to this city for donations of wicker furniture. Their new recreation hall is now in full swing but they are sadly in need of furnishings of this kind and would gladly receive any contribution. Style or color makes no difference as the boys can be comfortable in most any design and if they find the particular hue does not "match" with the surroundings they can apply the proper stain.

Look around your house, Mr. or Mrs. Plainfield, er and see what you can spare for the boys of Company A. The donations can be sent direct to Captain L. R. Breen, who will see that they reach their proper destination.

NOTES FROM THE PARK AVE. BAPTIST.

Features of the coming Sunday's services are: Bible school 9:45 a. m., lesson, "Jesus Teaching by Parables—The Growth of the Kingdom." Morning worship, sermon, by pastor, "Divine Light on Human Problems." Young People's Association, led by the pastor, topic, "The Social Teachings of Jesus" (first of the social study course.) Evening song and sermon, subject, "Twelve Legions of Angels," first in the Lenten course which Pastor Swalfield has started for each Sunday evening.

The ordinance of baptism will be administered at the evening service Sunday evening.

The church will be well represented at the "Federation of Women's Prayer Meeting" in Trinity Reformed chapel Wednesday afternoon next.

The Volunteer Class peanut shelling will be held all Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John Groendyke, 816 Carlton avenue. A full attendance is urged.

The Robert Lowry Bible Class for men, recently formed to replace the Agoga Class, disbanded, is in splendid growing shape under the excellent leadership of Teacher Charles F. Dayton, with Dr. Swalfield as substitute. The men are enthusiastic and are taking up the work in earnest. They expect to soon reach a high mark of membership and usefulness.

ILL WITH PNEUMONIA

Edward Connolly, of West Fourth street, is confined to his home by a serious illness with pneumonia. He is the father of John Connolly, who recently landed in France as a member of the First Provisional Recruit Battalion.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Voorhees and daughter, Miss Ruth Voorhees, Madison avenue, who have recently been stopping at the Anniston Inn, Anniston, Ala., left this week for Florida.

Sergeant Armstrong Is Made Grenadier

Howard J. Armstrong, of Washington avenue, who went down to Camp Dix last September and was assigned to Company A, 113th Infantry, is now a full-fledged grenadier. The honor came to him the past week, after he had completed the full course in the Infantry School of Arms, where he took a special course in grenade work. At his "graduation" he was given a diploma as an instructor in the grenade section, covering the construction, handling and throwing of both hand and rifle grenades, including American and foreign type. From now on much of his time will be devoted to instructing the new men coming into the camp and designated for grenade work.

Sergeant Elmer Terry, also of Plainfield, was picked to attend the same infantry school and qualified as an instructor in Gas Defense Work, thus keeping the Plainfield boys in the "limelight" at the big Jersey cantonment. Both sergeants went to camp Dix as privates and their promotion came for general meritorious service. They have been cited for the coming officers' training division, which means that they may shortly be the lucky holders of a commission. Sergeant Armstrong occupied a responsible position with the Vacuum Oil Company, of New York, previous to entering the service and last summer married Miss Hazel Hammael, of East Seventh street.

The quarantine at Dix, which prevailed for nearly a month, was removed last week and many of the Plainfield boys were given leave of absence for the first time since the holidays. All took advantage of the "furlough" by visiting the home folks. Company A, which is still in charge of Captain L. R. Breen, is preparing for the arrival of the newest selectives next Monday, as it is believed practically all the Plainfield men will be assigned to this particular unit. The company storehouse is filled to overflowing with all kinds of edibles and the seasoned warriors are drilled and canned for a royal time when the rookies put in an appearance.

Last Sad Rites For Mrs. Susan C. Smith

The home of State Bank Commissioner Frank H. Smith on West Eighth street was filled with relatives and friends Wednesday afternoon, when the funeral of his mother, Mrs. Susan C. Smith, was held. Rev. James L. Skaggs, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, of which the deceased had been a most devoted member, was in charge of the service.

Three solos, all favorites of Mrs. Smith's, were sung by J. T. Truxall, of New York. They were "Crossing the Bar," "Abide With Me" and "Asleep in Jesus." At the close of the service the body was taken to the receiving vault at Hillside cemetery and burial will take place later. The casket was borne by six friends of the family, Charles H. Dunham, William C. Hubbard, William B. Mosher, Dr. P. B. Cregar, Herbert Nuttall and Asa Randolph.

Mrs. Smith's death occurred last Sunday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. M. Burdick, of Central Islip, L. I., where she had been visiting since Christmas. She had been somewhat ill during the holidays but seemingly had fully recovered. She retired Saturday night without any noticeable difference in her state of health but when the customary call was given for breakfast in the morning it was found that she had passed away several hours before.

Mrs. Smith was a native of Ashaway, R. I., where she was born in 1845. Her seventy-third birthday was on Tuesday, the day her body was brought back to Plainfield. Her father and mother were of old New England families that had been prominent in the Seventh Day Baptist church denomination from the time of its begining in this country. Her father was Royal Cannon and her mother Desiah Burdick. Mrs. Smith lived in Rhode Island some years after her marriage but she and her husband removed to Plainfield in 1880. The latter, who was Thaddeus C. Smith, died five years ago.

The deceased was widely acquainted and as a member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church was active in all its departments. Her only near surviving relatives are her son, Frank H. Smith, and her daughter, Mrs. Ernestine Burdick, who was Miss Smith.

Firemen Praised For Splendid Work at Front Street Blaze

The work of the city fire department in holding down the bad blaze in the Miron & Lifson furniture store on East Front street, Wednesday noon, has elicited unstinted praise on the part of persons who watched the proceedings.

Before the alarm had been turned in from box 12 by Patrolman William Russ, Captain George Feiring, who was off on his dinner hour, saw the smoke and hurried to the Roth building for an investigation. He reached the display room of the furniture company before the place became obscured in blinding smoke, thus discovering the exact location of the blaze. When the apparatus arrived he was able to direct the men to the place where water was most needed and it had much to do with preventing the flames from destroying the entire structure.

The fire was first noticed about 12:45 while only William Lanes, a salesman, and an office boy were on the first floor. How it originated is not definite but it is believed a customer who was on the second floor early in the morning may have dropped a cigar butt or lighted her ashes from his "weed" into a bale of rugs. The blaze was confined to the rugs and carpets when Captain Feiring first saw it. None of the fire reached the lower floor of the furniture establishment but it suffered badly from water. The basement of Roth & Company, located beneath the upper display room, suffered slight damage by water.

The loss to Miron & Lifson, which is covered by insurance, will exceed $10,000, and an additional loss of $5,000 is placed on the building which is owned by Roth & Company.

ATTENDED RECEPTION

Harry Mowrey, of No. 3 Troop Co. attended a big reception given by the Perth Amboy Fireman, last night as a farewell to three of their men leaving for Camp Dix.

Supervisor Dahl Denies "Open Shop" at City Hall

Former Councilman John S. Dahl yesterday denied to a Record reporter that the City Hall building committee had determined to finish the municipal building under the "open shop" plan, that is, allowing non-union workmen do be engaged. A rumor to this effect had gone forth following a committee conference Monday night and had caused considerable adverse comment.

"There is absolutely no truth in any such assertion," said Mr. Dahl, "and furthermore I can say now that the City Hall will be finished by union labor alone. The committee made no such suggestion to me and if it did I would not stand for it."

Mr. Dahl was appointed by the Common Council to supervise the completion of the building and is now at work on a plan to bring about the long desired construction. A conference is to be held between Mr. Dahl and the officers of the Building Trades Council at an open meeting of the organization tonight. Mr. Dahl states that he has offered suggestions by which the labor difficulties may be overcome and seems to feel that they will be favorably received by the union organizations.

An invitation has been extended Mayor Calkins, City Clerk John J. Carroll, Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed and other city officials to meet with the Trades Council for a discussion of the City Hall tangle from a viewpoint of organized labor. So far the Trades Council has received no acceptance. It was declared by one of the Trades Council's officials yesterday that Business Agent had not been instructed to enter the City Hall building, following his barring by official order some time ago, and neither would he until Mayor Calkins complied with the request as contained in the Trades Council's open letter of two weeks ago.

Selectives Fitting Into Camp Routine

Four days have elapsed since Plainfield's big complement of sixty-eight selected men reached Camp Dix and although many of them have not yet received their uniforms they are already beginning to feel like "regular" soldiers. All admit that it was rather unusual to have the lights turned out at 9:30 and receive instructions to get to bed, in fact, compulsion had to be used in several instances of what were once "night hawkers" and members of various "owl clubs." Nobody slept much the first night but the routine of the days since then have made everyone of them ready for their "humble flea bag" long before taps were sounded. The same idea applies to the other six men, who did not leave Plainfield until Tuesday.

The local men were included in the Union County delegation which reached the camp about 250 strong. They were met at the railroad station within the grounds by the officers and non-coms and after being taken before the medical examiners were conducted to the 317th Regimental Barracks, which had been vacated for their use and which will be their home for the next two weeks, while the usual examinations are being held. At the end of this time they will be outfitted and assigned to some company as a member of Uncle Sam's Army.

In order that a suitable nickname for the division may be selected the men will be asked to vote on a number of suggestions and the most popular one selected. Among the titles proposed are: "Wilson Division," "Jersey Blues" and "Victory Division."

Hereafter the different units of the division will hold review in turn so that nearly every day there will be some regiment on the parade grounds. Brigadier-General J. T. Dean, of the 156th Brigade, has ordered that the 311th Regiment be reviewed on Mondays, the 312th on Tuesdays and the 309th Machine Gun Battalion on Thursdays. Every Friday there is to be a brigade review.

While many of the boys are reluctant to admit the fact, nevertheless they felt keenly disappointed at receiving no formal send-off on the day of their departure. There was a big crowd at the North avenue station by the time their train arrived but it was composed only of mothers, sisters, sweethearts, wives and friends who had gathered to say good-bye. There was no music or planned demonstration of any kind, either on the day of going or the night before. This was in decided contrast to what was done in behalf of the North Plainfield boys and also those of Dunellen, Westfield and other nearby places. Many of them feel that they should have received the same recognition as was given the selectives of last September, but as one of them expressed it: "What's the difference, we'll be just as good soldiers for Uncle Sam whether we had a parade and banquet or not?

LOCAL ELKS INITIATE NINE NEW MEMBERS.

At the regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge of Elks, Wednesday night, nine new members were initiated and several applications were received.

The annual election of the lodge takes place next Wednesday night. Contests have developed over several stations, one of them being that of exalted ruler to succeed Francis J. Blatz and a large attendance is expected.

Judge Newcorn Fifty Years Old On Monday Next

The many friends of former District Court Judge William Newcorn will have the opportunity of extending congratulations on next Monday, March 4, as on that date the genial councillor will reach the fiftieth milestone in life. There are those who say that "he doesn't look it" and accordingly his well-wishers will have an excellent opportunity of expressing the hope that he has "many, many returns of the day." The natal event will, of course, be fittingly observed by the judge within his own circle at the family residence on West Front street.

Mr. Newcorn was born in Cracow, Austria, March 4, 1868. In 1870 his family located in New York city, where he attended the grammar schools, and from which he was graduated. He then accepted a position with the Knickerbocker Ice Company, which he held for four years, and next engaged in the wholesale and retail tobacco business for himself. In 1889 he located in Plainfield and engaged exclusively in the sporting goods He continued in that business until January 1, 1897. While engaged in commercial pursuits he devoted his leisure moments to reading law. He was admitted to the bar in 1897. In 1893 he was a Justice of the Peace and resigned that office in 1897.

For more than twenty-five years Judge Newcorn has been active in local and county politics as a member of the Republican party. He served many terms on the city and county committees and was elected to succeed Frank H. Smith as chairman of the latter, completing his term after the campaign of last fall. In 1902, Mr. Newcorn was elected to the New Jersey Assembly from Union county and in that time secured the enactment of many laws of importance. He was appointed judge by Governor J. Franklin Fort, holding this office until 1912, when a change in the political administration caused his retirement in favor of the late Walter L. Retfield. Mr. Newcorn was a candidate for the appointment of Judge of the Union County Court of Common Pleas to succeed James J. Connolly at his retirement next month, but the honor went to his opponent, former Senator Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford.

Mr. Newcorn is a member of Mianotomo Tribe, No. 18, Improved Order of Red Men; on February 23, 1900, he was elected great sachem of the Great Reservation of New Jersey, and was at one time elected the representatives to the Great Council of the United States. He is a member of Iona Council, No. 14, D. of P., is past master workman and financier of Central Lodge, No. 48, Ancient Order of United Workmen, and besides he is a member of Progress Council, No. 507, Improved Order of Heptasophs, a member of Passaic Lodge, No. 387; Benevolent Protective Order of Elks; past commander of Robin Hood Camp, No. 7, W. O. W., and of Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P.

ELKS AND THEIR FRIENDS ENJOY INFORMAL DANCE

Members of Plainfield Lodge of Elks and their friends to the number of 200 in all enjoyed a delightful informal dance at the Watchung avenue clubhouse last night. Venable brothers' orchestra furnished music and the program included refreshments in the form of a supper. The lodge room, where the affair took place, was tastefully decorated for the occasion.

The committee which arranged and had charge of the dance was composed of Frank R. Emmons, Thomas A. Moore, Herman Kling, Hillaire Blatz and Herbert Hetfield. A similar affair is to be held the latter part of March.

Registrant Claims He Is A "Bleeder"

The Union County Medical Advisory oBard uncovered a new wrinkle in the way of registrants seeking to avoid being accepted, when it examined a man this city Wednesday who claimed to be a "bleeder." When asked as to what that meant he said that if he were cut in any way the flow of blood could not be stopped.

His name was withheld by Charles N. Runyon, chairman of the Exemption Board, but he said that they had refused the certificate of a New York doctor and that he would have to submit to a test. The man is now seeking means to prevent such a test as he says it would mean his death.

The Odvisory Board came to this city from Elizabet hand held its examinations at the Evergreen Avenue School, passing upon ninety men in all. Of this number fifteen were accepted for general military service, thirty-six were placed in the limited service class and thirty-one were rejected as unfit for any kind of service, five failed to appear, one was transferred to another board and two were held for further examination.

The men accepted were the following:

Michael J. Conroy, Phillip H. Moskovitz, Howard Stewart, Oswald R. Love, Julius Thorne, Harry A. Wade, William E. Briggs, Frank P. Cullen, Lester H. Dix, Sammy Valentine, Joseph Vitti, Edward Lee, Herman Kling, Walter J. Firstbrook and Samuel Levy.

The men who did not appear were: Alexander D. Doig, Walter Southard, Benjamin Wyatt, Johannes Jansen and Alfred C. Simpson.

Paul Collier and Arthur Briggs were the two who were held for further consideration and will undergo another examination in a short time.

Eighty More Men Before Local Board Tomorrow Afternoon

The local Exemption Board announced today that eighty more registrants would be examined at the Evergreen Avenue School tomorrow afternoon. All our men who were placed in Class 1-A but who for various reasons were not included in the original examinations. Some filed appeals with the Newark District Board which have been denied, others failed to get their questionnaires in on time, while still others had been held over from previous examinations.

The Exemption Board also announces that its offices will be moved tomorrow from the quarters it has been occupying in the offices of Coddington & Blatz and fro mthen on will be situated in the Babcock building, George L. Babcock, a member of the board, has donated the use of one big room where all data can be kept and where the business of the organization can be conveniently carried on.

A communication from the Adjutant-General today asks the Board to make an appeal for volunteer enlistment of photographers who are to be assigned to an aerial photography unit. Any young man of military age who has had either professional or advanced amateur experience in camera work can make application. Fifty of these special service men are to be recruited from New Jersey and they are to report at Rochester, N. Y., not later than March 10. Full particulars can be secured by applying to the Plainfield Board.

TWO MORE FIREMEN QUIT CITY DEPARTMENT.

Two more members of the City Fire Department, both of them stationed at headquarters, tendered their resignations today. The first to do was Frank Reynolds, of Watchung avenue, who left the service this morning. He was in the North Plainfield department for two years and was appointed a probationer on this side of the brook three months ago.

Edward Murphy, of Arlington avenue, is the other man resigning. He will quit the department next Tuesday and return to his old position as lineman for the Public Service Corporation. Murphy says the work is all right but the hours and pay "hasn't got 'em."

THE departure of Reynolds and Murphy brings the total number of men leaving the department since last November up to thirteen.

SAM ROTHBERG LEAVING NEXT SUNDAY

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rothberg, of Park avenue, will leave next Sunday morning for Atlanta, Ga., where they will make their home in the future and where the former will associate himself in business with his father-in-law.

M. & D. Rosenthal, the dry goods merchants, yesterday took title to Mr. Rothberg's building at 206 West Front street. The Rosenthals will occupy these premises after March 1.

Sixteen Local Men Going to Camp Greenleaf

Camp Greenleaf at Lytle, Ga., will be the temporary destination of sixteen Plainfield selected men who will leave this city next Tuesday morning, March 5. An order to this effect was received from Washington yesterday by Chairman Charles W. Runyon, of the Exemption Board, and he and his assistants have since been busy making arrangements for the departure. The forwarding of the sixteen men will make to total of 195 to be furnished by this district, twelve more than was called for by the net quota of 183. The Federal authorities have acknowledged the fact and will give credit for the extra twelve when the next call is made.

The selectives destined for Camp Greenleaf will eave the North avenue station Tuesday morning on a special train reaching here at 9:35. It will bring national army men from New York and intermediate points and will proceed over the following route after leaving this city:

Bound Brook to Philadelphia, thence to Washington, Lynchburg, Va.; Bristol, Tenn.; Chattanooga, Tenn., thence direct to Camp Greenleaf at Lytle. Pullman and dining cars will be provided for the trip.

It was originally intended that the remaining men to come from Plainfield would go to Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and following a Government order preparations were being made to have the men undergo final examinations at the various detachments brought about by transferrals to France.

In picking the men to go South, Chairman Runyon has given acceptance to the pleas of several who want to go at once instead of waiting for a later call. Several had left their positions in anticipation of going to Camp Dix last Monday and were greatly disappointed when priority order numbers held them back. Since then they have renewed their petitions for immediate service with the result that they will be included in the Camp Greenleaf contingent. All of the sixteen will be called for final instruction on Monday, at which time they will be presented with knitted outfits and comfort kits prepared by the local Red Cross chapter.

HOSPITAL PATIENT CARRIES OUT PLAN TO COMMIT SUICIDE

What was evidently a deliberately planned case of suicide took place at Muhlenberg Hospital, Monday morning, when Egbert Charles Everett, a pneumonia patient, whose home was at 130 West Second street, leaped from an open window on the third floor during the absence of nurses or attendants. His lifeless body was found on the ground below only a few moments after the fatal plunge occurred as a search for the victim was on as soon as discovered missing. A nurse who had been in his room, one of the semi-privates, had left him to get some medicine but was back in a very short time. It was while he was away that Everett made the leap.

The suicide theory is strengthened by the fact that the patient had made all arrangements for his funeral before entering the hospital, although at the time his condition was not critical. He had been under treatment at the institution for about a week and to all appearances was well on the road to recovery. He had originally been placed in the men's ward, but at his own request was transferred to the semi-private room Monday afternoon. He was in no delirium at any time during the day and consequently not in need of close attendance. It is believed he waited his opportunity for the nurse to leave the room and throw himself from the window before she returned.

Mr. Everett was fifty-nine years old and was a native of New York State. He came to Plainfield twenty-five years ago, since which time he had been working as machinist in the local shops. He was last employed at the Potter Press Works.

He was unmarried and his only near surviving relatives are three cousins, Mrs. T. B. Tilworth, of the Babcock building; Louis Liversgore, of Andover, N. Y., and William Crandall, N. Y.

In accordance with Mr. Everett's wishes, his body was sent yesterday to Andover, N. Y., and the funeral and burial are to take place there today. The service will be in charge of the Masonic fraternity, as he was a member of this organization, holding his card in a lodge at Westerly, R. I.

Garfield's Office Will Make An Investigation

Plainfield's Twelve Dollar Coal Is To Be Subjected To Searching Inquiry, Communication States. County Commissioner English Makes Statement as to "Permission Letter" Issued

The selling of coal in Plainfield at twelve dollars per ton, as told of in the previous issue of the Record, is to receive a thorough investigation from United States Fuel Commissioner Harry Garfield, according to a communication received by a Plainfield man yesterday. All details of the proceedings as they have been reported were laid before the Administrator and a prompt response by mail indicates that the Government officials believe there is need of immediate action. The full text of Dr. Garfield's letter is as follows: United States Fuel Administration, Washington, D. C., Feb. 26, 1918.

Dear Sir:

We have your letter of February 25th inclosing news and editorial articles in the last issue of the Plainfield Record, relating to coal sales made by Messrs. Benjamin Evans and Charles H. Frost.

We are making a diligent search through our files to find the possible correspondence or orders which would permit such transactions as you set forth. We cannot understand or allowing Mr. Frost to distribute the coal for the purpose of keeping the price of it up to $12.00 per ton. Knowing that every ton delivered by him would relieve the pressure on the office of Mr. Kenney, I chose the former plan and gave him authority personally to dispose of the coal in small lots without profit. On the following day, at Mr. Frost's request, I sent him a letter, of which, within is a copy, after conferring with our advisory committee which was then in session. I had authority to give the permission because items of cost other than additional cost of indebendent coal and charges for one or more reconsignments of coal and the expenditure for such additional cost and for extra freight charges by reason of reconsignments would be proper additions in any case.

I was convinced at that time and still am convinced that Mr. Frost did not intend to and did not make any profit whatsoever upon the coal in question but that he acted throughout influenced by altruistic motives. Whether or not any person who gave information to Mr. Frost as to the various items of cost deceived him I do not know. However, as this question has arisen, I am now writing to Mr. Frost and to Mr. Benjamin W. Evans, whom also your article mentions, asking for a detailed statement of the cost per ton of the coal.

I have endeavored to make this statement of the situation full and it has the approval of our advisory committee. Therefore, I trust that you will not quote from it but that, if you think best to use any of the information which it contains, you will print it in full, including my signature and title.

JOHN K. ENGLISH.
U. S. Fuel Administrator for Union County, N. J.

Mr. English's letter to Mr. Frost follows:

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 11, 1918.

C. H. Frost, Esq.,

Dear Sir:

The price of stove and nut coal, carried to consumer's bin, is $8.70 per ton. This price is based on $1.45 freight rate, and dealers are allowed to add to such charges any additional price paid over that figure. They are also allowed to add 75c per ton, when coal is purchased from so-called independent dealer, as on such cost, wholesale price is this much more. You have explained that the three cars of coal recently procured by you, because of the independent price, additional freight charge, and various other charges, cost you as much as $12.00 per ton. I know that you procured this coal to help the situation in Plainfield, and do not intend to make any profit upon it. I also know that your services have been of great benefit to Mr. Kenney, of our advisory committee. I do not think that under these circumstances there can be any objection to your disposing of the coal for an amount which will reimburse you for your various expenditures. The matter seems to be, not so much one of purchase and sale, as it does one of procurement of coal by a kind of partnership, and division of the expense thereof.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) JOHN K. ENGLISH,
U. S. Fuel Administrator for Union County, N. J.

In reference to Mr. English's statement as to the extra freightage and other added cost to the Frost coal, it might be said that Mayor William L. Smalley, of North Plainfield, received a car the same day as the other private ones came into town and although he had to pay additional charges, was able to sell at the Government fixed prices. The entire car of about fifty tons was turned over to the Fuel Commissioner for distribute and was sold through Wadley & Goodenough as it was placed on their trestle. There was no loss in the distribution at a maximum price of $9.12 for nut coal but the profit to dealers was cut down to a very small margin. Mayor Smalley voluntarily and out of his own pocket, paid Wadley & Goodenough twenty-five dollars as reimbursement for the trouble to which they were put. The Smalley coal went to North Plainfield institutions, among them the Children's Home with St. Joseph's Villa, the Overseer of the Poor and private homes.

While the communication of Mr. English is quite lengthy, it is noticeable, however, there there is no explanation of why a moving picture theatre should have been allowed to purchase ten tons of coal when the Government rules state emphatically that homes should be cared for first. On the day the Lyric Theatre was supplied with the ten tons, scores of people in this city were being turned away from Commissioner Kenney's office with the statement that there was no coal to be had.

This is the letter sent by State Commissioner Jenkinson after information of the coal selling in Plainfield had been given him.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 25, 1918.

Dear Sir:

Answering your letter of February 25th, inclosing news and editorial relative to certain coal sold in Plainfield, I beg to state that I am not in possession of the necessary facts to send you a copy of permit, if any such was issued.

I am taking the matter up with the Fuel Administrator at Elizabeth to find out what the situation is.

I wish to thank you for sending me this material.

Yours truly,
RICHARD P. JENKINSON,
U. S. Fuel Administrator for N. J.

J. SWEASY JONES IS MADE STATE MANAGER

J. Sweasy Jones, of 128 West Front street, removed on Wednesday from Philadelphia, Pa. He has just completed four years' service with the Equitable Life Insurance Company in the Plainfield district and for thirteen years was local agent for the Mutual Company.

Mr. Jones has been a resident of this city since 1884, coming here from Warren county. He has a very large circle of friends, all of whom items but believed that the cost would be nearly $12.00 per ton and that if purchases it should be less. Proper calculation would be made and no more collected than the cost to himself.

I know that Mr. Frost was a gentleman of considerable means and that the making of a few dollars improperly could not possibly be any temptation to him. Furthermore, I know his good reputation. Besides Mr. Kenney had repeatedly told me about the great amount of work which Mr. Frost had done without compensation, in assisting with the distribution in Plainfield, and, indeed, that Mr. Frost had repeatedly carted coal to poor families in his own automobile and actually had carried sacks of coal upon his own back to the bins of various consumers.

Of course, I regretted that a private person had been able to purchase shipments of coal directly to himself but a condition confronted us. I realized that we had the choice of allowing Mr. Frost to distribute the coal or of causing those to keep it for his own use. Knowing that every ton delivered by him would relieve the pressure on the office of Mr. Kenney, I chose the former plan and gave him authority personally to dispose of the coal in small lots without profit. On the following day, at Mr. Frost's request, I sent him a letter, of which, within is a copy, after conferring with our advisory committee which was then in session. I had authority to give the permission because items of cost other than additional cost of indebendent coal and charges for one or more reconsignments of coal and the expenditure for such additional cost and for extra freight charges by reason of reconsignments would be proper additions in any case.

I was convinced at that time and still am convinced that Mr. Frost did not intend to and did not make any profit whatsoever upon the coal in question but that he acted throughout influenced by altruistic motives. Whether or not any person who gave information to Mr. Frost as to the various items of cost deceived him I do not know. However, as this question has arisen, I am now writing to Mr. Frost and to Mr. Benjamin W. Evans, whom also your article mentions, asking for a detailed statement of the cost per ton of the coal.

I have endeavored to make this statement of the situation full and it has the approval of our advisory committee. Therefore, I trust that you will not quote from it but that, if you think best to use any of the information which it contains, you will print it in full, including my signature and title.

JOHN K. ENGLISH.
U. S. Fuel Administrator for Union County, N. J.

Mr. English's letter to Mr. Frost follows:

Elizabeth, N. J., Feb. 11, 1918.

C. H. Frost, Esq.,

Dear Sir:

The price of stove and nut coal, carried to consumer's bin, is $8.70 per ton. This price is based on $1.45 freight rate, and dealers are allowed to add to such charges any additional price paid over that figure. They are also allowed to add 75c per ton, when coal is purchased from so-call-

INSTALLED OFFICERS OF DAUGHTERS OF ISABELLA

Miss Caroline Wright, of Newark, State deputy of the Daughters of Isabella, with the assistance of Vice Regent Miss Mary O'Brien, of Elizabeth, and State Regent Miss Mary C. Duffy, of Newark, installed the following officers in Court Watchung, Daughters of Isabella, Monday night:

Grand regent, Mrs. Katherine Keenan; vice grand regent, Miss Helen Regan; prophetess, Miss Margaret Connolly; historian, Miss Eleanora McCarthy; financial secretary, Miss Muriel Hepner; treasurer, Miss Mary Wilson; monitor, Mrs. Rae Arnold; trustees, Mrs. Mary Kelly and Mrs. Bertha Wilson; sentinel, Miss Helen Deady; organist, Miss Mary McCormack, and lecturer, Miss Helen Casey.

The installation ceremonies took place at the Columbus Club and were followed by a social period which included the serving of refreshments.

TROLLEY CARS CRASH; MOTORMAN ESCAPES

Carl Grendale, a motorman on the Arlington avenue trolley line, narrowly escaped serious injury at midnight last night, when his car unexpectedly turned the corner of Front and Somerset streets and crashed head on into another Arlington car bound in from Somerset street.

The vestibule of Grendale's car was completely demolished but he managed to emerge from the wreckage with only a few cuts and bruises. There were no passengers on his conveyance and only two on the other. No one was injured although both cars, Numbers 149 and 141, were badly damaged. Carl Heister, of East Seventh street, was motorman of the in bound car.

Grendale had completed his stretch of duty and was taking his car to the barns when the accident occurred. Failure of the switch to work properly is given as the cause of the crash.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The sacred cantata, "Ruth, the Gleaner," presented at Trinity Reformed church on February 14 and 15, was repeated by the same cast and chorus at the Plainfield High School, Monday night. The presentation was under the auspices of the Boys' Division of the Y. M. C. A. and drew a large gathering. The Dutch Arms string orchestra furnished music during the evening.

The high wind of Tuesday, which at times reached a velocity of fifty miles an hour, caused considerable damage in the city and borough. Many trees were uprooted or had big limbs torn away and more than one home suffered the loss of chimneys or slates and shingles off the roofs. The street department was kept busy all day clearing away obstructions in the streets. Early in the morning a large show window at the Quaker store on East Front street was demolished by the gale and later in the day the front window of Syman Hirsch's building at Fourth street and Watchung avenue suffered similarly.

Miss Pauline Sandford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Sandford, of East Seventh street, was named among the twenty-on honor students in the senior class at Vassar College, which was announced immediately following a dinner at the college Monday night. Miss Sandford, who has maintained a high standing throughout her four years' course, will graduate from Vassar in June.

The officers of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Y. M. C. A. request a full attendance of members at the all-day meeting of the organization to be held in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on next Tuesday, March 5. The business to be transacted will include an executive board session at 9:30, to be followed by a regular session at 10 o'clock. A report is to be received from each member holding strips for "The Mile of Pennies."

William Coyle, who has been at Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va., as a member of the Medical Division of the Signal Corps, has been a patient at the camp hospital the past week, following an operation performed to relieve trouble with one of his knees. The difficulty is one of long standing and resulted from an accident to the limb while he was playing a football game as one of the star men on the Holy Cross team. It is probable that he will be laid up for several weeks more. Mr. Coyle is the son of John H. Coyle, superintendent of the Lever plant at West Dunellen, and holds the rank of corporal.

Miss Josie Murphy, of Central avenue, who has been engaged in the millinery business in Plainfield for many years, has taken a position in the millinery department at the A. & P. store. She entered upon her new duties on Monday of this week.

Dr. Edward G. Read, of Second place, who has been occupying the pulpit at Bethlehead-wood Reformed church since Rev. Edward S. Ralston left for Fort Sill, Oklahoma, to engage in religious work among the soldiers, has accepted an invitation from the consistory to be acting pastor for the next ten months. Dr. Read has been chaplain for the New Jersey Legislature for the past three years.

At the fortieth annual meeting of the Women's Auxiliary to the Muhlenberg Hospital Board of Governors last Friday afternoon, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Mayberry B. Mellor; vice presidents, Mrs. Charles E. Lipscomb and Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman; corresponding secretary, Miss Louise Booth; recording secretary, Mrs. J. J. O'Donohue; treasurer, Mrs. Charles A. Reed; auditors, Miss Juliet Weber and Mrs. C. B. Tyler.

Harry B. Dennis, of 115 Watchung avenue, the borough, was received at Muhlenberg Hospital Monday night, suffering from injuries about the head and face sustained in an accident on a New Jersey Central passenger train as it was pulling in to the North avenue station. In arising, before the train came to a stop he stumbled and fell against the corner of a seat ahead of him. He was first treated by Dr. Albert Pittis, who ordered his removal to Muhlenberg. Mr. Dennis left the institution Wednesday noon.

A colored man giving his name as "Doc" Reese, and hailing from Newark, was arraigned in the city court Tuesday morning, charged by Joseph Parsons, a taxi-cab driver, with drawing a knife and threatening to stab him. The incident grew out of an altercation between the two men on Liberty street, following an argument over the charge for a taxi ride. Reese paid a five dollar fine in preference to serving twenty days in jail. At the same session of court Hildred Vaughn and Charles Johnson, colored, were fined two dollars for indulging in a game of "shoots craps" on Cottage place Monday afternoon.

A party for the benefit of the Army and Navy League will be held in the parlor of the Masonic rooms, Babcock building, on Tuesday evening, March 12. Members of the Masonic fraternity and their friends are invited to attend.

Harry C. Van Emburgh, of this city, has been appointed engineer for the borough of South Bound Brook. The municipality is soon to install a sanitary sewage syste mand Mr. Van Emburgh will prepare the plans and have full supervision of the work.

Martin Welsh, of John street, who has been a member of the local police force for the past six years, tendered his resignation this week to accept a position with the Columbia Trust Company of New York, where he will be a member of the office guard.

Seventy-five members responded when their names were called at the seventeenth anniversary meeting of Freedom Castle, No. 42, Knights of the Golden Eagle, Tuesday night. The Castle has a total membership of 260 and has a large representation in the country's service. At Tuesday night's gathering addresses were made by the officers and "old time" members. A smoker was held in conclusion.

An alarm from box 18 called the fire department to the home of H. A. Weidner at 711 East Front street at 8:20 Tuesday night. Sparks from a chimney started a blaze on the roof. Only chemicals were used in putting it out and the damage did not exceed twenty-five dollars.

The recent cantata, "Cinderella," given by the children of the Irving and Jefferson Schools at the Irving building, netted a total of $200. This fact was reported at a meeting of the Irving - Jefferson Parent - Teachers' meeting Tuesday and the money will be placed to the credit of the Junior Red Cross. A donation of ten dollars was also made by the association to the fund being raised by the Mothers' Congress for a soldiers and sailors' building at Washington.

PHYSICIAN DECLARES JERSEY HAS 25,000 "SLAVES" TO DRUGS

Druggists from different sections of the State, including Charles W. Holzhauer and Adolph F. Marquier, of Newark, appeared before the Senate committee on health this week to protest against certain provisions of a bill introduced by Senator Pilgrim as a means of checking the drug evil. Dr. Charles A. Rosewater, of Newark, who had made an investigation into the traffic in Newark and elsewhere, and Colonel George T. Vickers, assistant prosecutor of Hudson county, were the chief proponents of the measure, while George M. Beringer, of Camden, member of the National Revision Committee of the Pharmacopea, led in the opposition to the bill.

The fear that the measure would in a way weaken the provisions of the law, which now conform closely to the Harrison act passed by Congress, was expressed by Mr. Beringer and the upshot of the hearing was a suggestion that the framers of the bill and the opponents get together. It was conceded by Dr. Rosewater that certain changes might be made to meet the criticisms that had been made. The druggists took the stand that they were not opposed to any legislation that would serve only to check the traffic in the drug known as heroin, but they reminded the Senators that under the Pilgrim bill they would be obliged to suspend the sale of paregoric, which at present is said to contain two grains of opium to every ounce.

Dr. Rosewater asserted that the measure would harm none but "crooked physicians." He said that there were at least 25,000 addicts in the State today and that they spent about $25,000 a day for the drug. In answer to a previous speaker, who had declared that the use of morphine had been reduced more than one-half in this country, Dr. Rosewater gave as an explanation that heroin had taken the place of the milder drug.

Editorial Briefs

Robust American.

(From the Newark News.)

The chief objection that will be urged against Baird will be as to his conservatism; it will be said that he is a reactionary in politics, and his instincts may be counted on to keep him so. Mr. Baird was of the school of Republican leaders who had the government of New Jersey pretty well in their own hands for a long period up to ten years ago, when their hold began to slip.

It would be difficult, however, to name any available Republican of Senatorial calibre in New Jersey to whom the same objection would not apply with more force . . .

David Baird is no radical, not even a progressive in the ordinary acceptance of the term. But he is of a multitudinous type whose existence in the Nation can hardly be ignored, and he is a robust American. And he is entitled to a fair deal in critical estimates of his virtues and defects.

David Baird.

(From the Jersey Journal.)

David Baird's selection for the United States Senate vacancy has been a foregone conclusion ever since it became apparent that Governor Edge, looking to the long-term United States Senatorship, had made up his mind to use the powers and patronage of the Governorship to pave his own road to Washington if possible.

Baird, having been the man who delivered up South Jersey to Edge when Edge was seeking the Gubernatorial nomination in 1916, what could be so fitting as the rewarding of Baird by naming him for the short-term vacancy? Then too, Baird seemed just to fit into the situation on account of his willingness to give a cast-iron promise that he would not be in Edge's way next September when the Governor will run for a full-term nomination against Colonel Colgate.

Up to the present time Governor Edge has been taking into consideration all the bosses, and ward leaders and the job-hunters in sight.

The people of New Jersey will get their inning next September.

Possesses Common Sense.

(From the New York Sun.)

Uncle David Baird, of New Jersey, has been appointed United States Senator by Governor Edge, to serve until his successor, to be elected in November, takes office. Uncle David is an unregenerate Republican politician of proved sagacity and wide experience he has attained years of discretion and knows how to get what he goes after. He will take an uncommon stock of common sense into the Senate chamber, and that unusual commodity will be valuable in Washington.

Handicap of Years.

(From the New York Tribune.)

Still, whatever the public's attitude may be toward a boss who has now grown more venerable and more genial, the handicap of years remains. Elihu Root contended with great vigor in 1904 that the Democratic party did a vicious example in nominating Henry G. Davis, an octogenarian, for Vice-President. That was in the doldrums of peace time. Governor Edge has certainly set a worse example in appointing a man nearly 78 years old to serve in the Senate in the thick of a world war, in a period of crisis when every effort ought to be made to get into Congress and into administrative offices men of exceptional energy vitality and equipment.

Will Stand By Wilson.

(From the Newark Call)

It is only necessary to read Mr. Baird's reply to the Governor's offer of appointment to understand why men of both parties who in former times have been Mr. Baird's political enemies joined in advocating his appointment. "During my brief occupancy of the distinguished office of Senator," he said, "every interest, party, personal or otherwise, will be subordinated unscrupulously and loyally to the patriotic duty of supporting the President and strengthening his arm. I am an apostle of the creed that a united Americanism will win the war. That creew knows no political divisions."

No man ever questioned David Baird's word. When he has pledged himself to do he will perform.

Friends Are Elated.

(From the Camden Post-Telegram.)

The friends of David Baird, who, in his absence, launched and conducted the movement to present his name to Governor Edge in connection with the United States Senatorship, are naturally elated over his appointment. That he, himself, Mr. Baird himself did not lift a finger to obtain the prize. He had striven honorably for it in the past, had at one time almost won it, had relinquished his ambition, and now by one of those metations which no politician can foresee found it tendered to him, under conditions which made its acceptance a patriotic duty.

Once a Poor Boy.

(From the Newark Ledger.)

We may hear some criticism from the new element in politics, but looking back at the career of Mr. Baird none can say that he did not play the game square as it was known in his days of activity as a political leader. His appointment as United States Senator will round out a career notable for business as well as political achievements, for David Baird came to this country a poor boy with only his own pluck and energy and honesty as his capital, and he has climbed to the height of business success.

New Divisional Formation Indicates Early Movement of Plainfielders from Anniston

As the shaping of Twenty-ninth Division Infantry units draws toward the "shipping" stage the Second Battalion of the 113th Regiment is taking on a decidedly Second New Jersey infantry aspect. Present indications are that the old Second will go "over there" as a distinctive unit designated as the Second Battalion instead of the Second Regiment. The latest touch of home State "someness" has come in the appointment of First Lieutenant A. I. Littell, of Plainfield, as battalion adjutant. Although the official designation has not as yet come through divisional channels he is now acting in that capacity, and it is probable that indorsement will be made within the next few days.

Lieutenant Littell served as adjutant of the Second Battalion of the Second Infantry, with headquarters in Elizabeth, from November 21, 1910, up to the time the National Guard was rebuilt to conform with new National Army specifications. Since then he has been a member of the commissioned staff of Company H, 113th Infantry, commanded by Captain Harry C. Warren, of Elizabeth. He is serving as battalion adjutant, in addition to his company duties, and inasmuch as it is customary for the battalion adjutanto to act as mess officer for the commissioned officers' mess of his battalion, he will also probably "fall into" this job.

Divisional orders this week created a board consisting of Major Hugh Riley, of Baltimore; First Lieutenant Albert I. Littell, of Plainfield, and Second Lieutenant George E. Jemison, of Asbury Park, to conduct a thorough inspection of the plumbing in the various buildings on the reservation. They have been instructed to investigate damages and file a detailed report on the estimate of damages and causes.

For the first time since the Second Infantry arrived at Camp McClellan it took part in a thorough regimental inspection Saturday afternoon. The full strength of the 113th Infantry was turned out with equipment before Colonel John W. Woodward. Men and equipment were subjected to examination, and although no official report is available on the status of Major John McCullough's battalion, the commissioned personnel was plainly elated at the showing of the enlisted men.

Divisional orders were received by Major McCullough this week instructing him to request the co-operation of the enlisted personnel in the task of routing out certain taxi operators doing business between Anniston and the camp who are determined to get rich quick at the expense of guardsmen. Major Hobart Brown, of Newark, and the men of the old New Jersey cavalry squadron now serving as military police have been endeavoring to single out these "robbers" for weeks past, and many taxi drivers have been deprived of their passes to enter camp. Major General Charles G. Morton is satisfied that 25 cents is a right price for transportation of citizens to or from Anniston, and the divisional order requests the men to report the license numbers of any drivers charging more than this figure.

Warm weather has caused hundreds of Southerners to invest in small cars and jitney buses, and the military police attempt to control the business by issuing passes permitting the operators to enter the camp from the main pike. Those who do not comply with regulations are deprived of those passes, and inasmuch as most of the units are located a considerable distance from the road, the soldiers naturally patronize the cars licensed to enter the reservation. The man without a pass finds little profit in his work.

Only a handful of New Jersey soldiers took part in divisional horse races held Washington's Birthday, most of the honors going to Baltimore horsemen. The only noteworthy performance by a Jerseyman was that staged by First Lieutenant Frederick Goddard, of Plainfield, an aide to Brigadier General William C. Rafferty's staff in the 54th Artillery Brigade headquarters. He was one of the four American representatives in the inter-ally mule race, the first place honors being captured by the British team.

Considerable excitement was created in the corral of the 111th Machine Gun Battalion Saturday afternoon when more than 100 mules participated in a stampede. The New Jersey machine gunners of the old Second Infantry, headed by Private Samuel Bowker, of Trenton, one of the best horsemen in the division, had an hour's fun rounding up the frenzied beasts. There were plenty of thrills while the mules ran at large and, mounted on fast horses, the machine gunners raced all over camp chasing the stray animals.

Jenkinson Plans Only Partial Deliveries for Normal Coal Needs Next Fall and Winter

Tentative distribution plans announced this week by State Fuel Administrator Jenkinson for next fall and winter call for three deliveries through the season to consumers of twenty-five per cent. each time of their year's requirements, based on figures for the year 1916-1917. The balance of their requirements will be allotted in such proportion as there is fuel available at that time. In this way it is figured all consumers would conserve throughout the season and would use every means at their disposal to eliminate waste, particularly as they would know that their total requirements could not be met.

Details have been forwarded to National Fuel Administrator Garfield for his approval and a reply is expected this week.

The total needs of the State for the forthcoming year, plus a certain amount of tonnage for a reserve supply, would be laid before Dr. Garfield.

The reserve tonnage provided would fill the needs of those who had no regular dealers in 1916-1917, who bought in small quantities or who had become residents of the State since that time. Where two or more dealers were called upon to fill a consumer's order, none of the dealers could deliver more than a proportionate share of the twenty-five per cent. called for on any particular delivery. By stringing the deliveries through the season in twenty-five per cent. quantities, Mr. Jenkinson figures that a more normal distribution system would be operating; one, moreover, which would not tend to crowd up orders and disorganize any community should the weather or transportation react the same as this winter.

Mr. Jenkinson does not desire to have Dan Fellows Platt, Bergen county fuel administrator, resign his office because of the trouble last week with the Public Service. He has suggested to Mr. Platt that he confer with Public Service officials and work out some plan which will be mutually agreeable relative to the burning of electric lights in Bergen county. On receipt of such a plan it should be formulated Mr. Jenkinson has signified his willingness to approve it in its details.

NEWEST SELECTIVES SEND HOME FOLKS EXPRESSION OF THANKS.

Hardly had the newest Plainfield recruits to Company G, 311th Infantry, reached Camp Dix on Monday before each and every one arrived at a full appreciation of kindness and good wishes extended by the home folks at their time of departure. They accordingly made it a point to express their thanks in writing and sent the following communication to the Record, signed by eight of the selection men:

Feb. 25, 1918.

Editor, The Record:

Dear Sir: May we, as representatives of the boys who left Plainfield, February 25, 1918, thank through your paper the good women of Plainfield Red Cross and the Navy League for the kindness shown us in the useful gifts which we are now finding to be indispensable?

Also the inhabitants of our fair city who took the trouble to give us such a royal send-off at the station.

Thanking you in advance for your courtesy, we are,

"JACK" DUCKWORTH LEAVES FOR LONG STAY IN OHIO

"Jack" Duckworth, former machine shop superintendent at the Vitaphone works in this city but for the past three years connected with the Pathe Phonograph Company at the Brooklyn plant, left yesterday for Elyria, Ohio, where the Pathe people have a large factory. He will spend several months there systematizing the work and speeding up production for several big orders. If conditions warrant it, Mr. Duckworth may eventually assume the superintendency of the Elyria plant, making his home in that city for an indefinite period.

"Jack," as everybody knows him, is a widely known young Plainfielder, having resided here practically all his life. He learned the trade of machinist at the Scott Press Works and has been connected in an official capacity with several big firms. He was given a farewell gathering by a number of friends Tuesday night at the home of his sister, Mrs. Walter Emmons, of Leland avenue, during which all took occasion to wish him success in his new field.

WILLIAM CLARKSON ENLISTS.

William Clarkson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Clarkson, of John street, enlisted in the Quartermasters' Department last Saturday and was assigned to Fort Slocum for the time being. Previous to his acceptance he was employed in the office of the Potter Printing Press Company on South Second street. He returned to Plainfield Wednesday for a few days' visit previous to leaving for a southern camp.

AMERICANS PRODUCE 700,000 ARMY RIFLES IN PAST TEN MONTHS

Seven hundred thousand army rifles have been produced in the United States since this country entered the war, according to a statement made public this week by the Ordnance Bureau of the War Department. During the week ending February 2 the daily production was 7,805 Enfields and 2,442 Springfields, or a total of 9,247 service rifles added to the stock over day. In addition, the government received 13,115 Russian army rifles during the week, making a total weekly rifle output of 73,152 weapons of this class.

Figures on the American weapons fell off slightly the week ending February 10, while the output of Russian rifles increased, the total output for the week of all types being 71,192.

This production, the statement says, is the greatest ever achieved by any country in a similar period of ten months. It is four times greater than the British output after ten months of war and twice as large as the British output after two and a half years of war.

"We have today," declares the half years of war, statement, "a total of 1,200,000 service rifles. Only about fifty per cent of the troops carry rifles. We have, in addition, 150,000 Kragg, 100,000 Russian rifles and some 20,000 moss rifles, or a total of about 280,000 training rifles."

Rifle cartridge production is on a similar scale, the statement showing that a total of 7,300,000 was the daily average output in January.

Summarizing the work on rifles, it is shown that $400,000,000 is being spent for that arm alone and that 200 army officers, 80,000 men and 10,000 women are employed on the manufacture of rifles and cartridges. There are two government and three private plants making rifles and one government and nine private plants making cartridges.

It is pointed out that the modified Enfield rifle has been fully tested and "more than justifies the claims that have been made for it." As to its accuracy of fire, it is noted that a regiment of colored troops made forty-four out of a possible fifty score with this weapon at short range, although many of the men had never fired a military rifle before.

THE NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

It is not an imitation nor yet an interpretation. It is a Re-Creation; so complete and satisfying that no human ear can detect a shade of difference between artist and instrument.

The famous tone tests in which 30 great artists have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison have established the truth of this assertion. Over 1,500 of these tests have been held; over 2,000,000 people have attended them. And invariably the New Edison met the ordeal successfully. Not one person could distinguish between the voice of the artist and that of the instrument.

Come into our store and witness a demonstration of this marvelous instrument.

ALPHONSE ZELAYA AT PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Alphonse Zelaya, son of the former president of Nicaragua, South America, and for several years a student at the Cedarcroft Scholo, which was conducted on Park avenue, renewed acquaintances in Plainfield yesterday through the medium of the vaudeville stage. He came back to the old town of his boyhood as the feature attraction at the Plainfield Theatre for the remainder of this week, coming here under the title of "Zelaya, the eminent Spanish pianist." The young man took a full course at the Boston conservatory of music and for the past six years has been touring the country as a concert artist. Those who heard his performing at the Plainfield yesterday and last night were loud in their praises of his artistic work and han who had known him in other days took occasion to greet him after his work on the stage. Mr. Zelaya will be on the program at all performances up to the concluding show tomorrow night.

Another feature on the new program seen yesterday for the first is Edward McGregor and Company in what is described as a "Pullman Fantasy." It is entitled "Uppers and Lowers" and gives a humorous picture of sleeping berths in a Pullman car. Mr. McGregor is also a moving picture actor and the forepart of this week was seen on the Plainfield Theatre screen as one of the principals in a "Daughter of Destiny."

The big show for today and tomorrow is rounded out by the following acts in addition to the Pathe News and other pictures: Horton and Murphy, comedy singers and dancers; Dorothy Southard, a charming singer of popular songs; Kershey's myraphone, described as "Vaudeville's massive production," and Coleman and Company in the comedy playlet, "The Mysterious Will."

For the forepart of next week, which includes all performances Monday and Wednesday, the combination of vaudeville and a feature photoplay will be continued. The screen offering will be William Fox's five-reel production of "The Heart of a Lion," based on Ralph Conner's story of love and adventure in the Canadian Northwest under the title of "The Doctor." The role of "Barney" Boyle is taken by William Parnum.

Will J. Kennedy, With "Sightseers," at the Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday, Matinee and Night, March 5.

"THE SIGHTSEERS" COMING NEXT WEEK

"The Sightseers," James E. Cooper's 1917-18 bid for burlesque supremacy, will on Tuesday next appear at the Plainfield Theatre. This producer has long since taken a position of command among burlesque producers and many persons who have followed his shows for years, have been heard to say that this show this season is the most pretentious of all his productions. There is a dignity about the show which lifts it to a musical comedy level and in scenic and costume equipment it runs a close second to the larger and better of the big musical comedy successes. The cast is, in every respect, a competent one, headed by those two versatile and well known comedians, Will J. Kennedy and Jack Miller. They have included in their supporting talent such well known burlesquers and vaudevillians as Harry P. Kelly, Arthur Delmore, The Carnival Four, Shirley Lawrence, Ida Clare, Kitty Forsythe, Flo Davis. The chorus is more than an incidental to the show for the girls have been recruited right from Broadway. They bring with them the dash and class, the beauty and distinction, of the most famous theatrical district in the world. They are, in short, the pick of the chorus girl mart. A musical program has been incorporated in the show given these girls every conceivable opportunity to display their charms and exploit their talents. The book for "The Sightseers" was written by Billy K. Wells, the comedian, and it contains unusually good comedy lines and situations which find it fit expression in the handling given them by the comedians. Mr. Cooper gave his personal direction to the staging of the production which accounts for some of the unique effects achieved. The dances and ensembles were arranged by Raymond B. Perez, who is a master in that line and who has concocted some especially novel numbers for this show. The music is all catchy, the vehicle is coherent and consistent and the specialties are all high class. The production is a beautiful one, money having been lavishly spent wherever a detail, no matter how minute, could be more effective. That verdict is but one proof of a show and that is the public's verdict. That verdict may be contrary to the critic's verdict but the public overrules the critic every time. That "The Sightseers" is an exceptional burlesque show in every respect is the verdict the public has been passing upon it ever since the season opened and the house business in most of the theatres played tells the story in dollars and cents.

DECLARES AMERICAN SOLDIERS ARE THE BEST

That the American soldiers who passed through Nova Scotia on their way to Europe were the best he had ever seen, was the opinion expressed in New York today by Rev. Clarendon Lamb Worrell, archbishop of Halifax.

"I never saw more splendid looking fellows than those that came from your country and passed through Nova Scotia on their way to European fighting fronts," said the archbishop.

FACTS ABOUT NEW JERSEY IN LEGISLATURE MANUAL

Among the annual reference books relating to New Jersey none excels in interest and usefulness "The Manual of the Legislature of New Jersey." This handy little volume is published by the authority of the Legislature by Thomas F. Fitzgerald, of Trenton. Every newspaper office and library knows the legislative manual. They would, in fact, be lost without it.

This year the manual contains a continuation of the outline history of New Jersey from the close of the Civil War to the present. It gives, as in other years, population statistics, election returns, the Governor's message, taxation statistics, war notes and the roster of the new State militia.

And besides, the work contains the Constitutions of the United States and the State of New Jersey, the Declaration of Independence, biographies of the Governor, State Judiciary, Congressmen, Senators and Assemblymen, members of State boards and departments, State officers, and a vast amount of other valuable information.

The book consists of 650 pages, and the price is only $1.50.

MISS GREGORY WORKS TO CARE FOR "DEPENDANTS"

Miss Janet Gregory, daughter of the Attorney-General, applied at the Food Administration this week for an $80 a month job, giving as references Colonel E. M. House, and the Attorney-General himself.

In response to a perfunctory question by the employment clerk, Miss Gregory said she had three dependents.

"Three dependents?" gasped the clerk incredulously.

"Oh, yes," she replied; "I've adopted and am supporting three Belgian children."

Miss Gregory got the job.

PETITION IN BANKRUPTCY.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed in the United States District Court at Trenton against the New Jersey Motor Car Company, of West Front street, this city, by George W. La Compte Company, of New York; I. H. Faw, Inc., of New York, and the Essex Storage Battery and Supply Company, of Newark.

Fears Further Coal Shortage If Chaos Continues

America will be confronted by a coal shortage of the most disastrous character in the near future unless the chaos now existing in the coal business disappears, Senator Reed, of Missouri, chairman of the Senate Manufactures Committee, which investigated the fuel situation, predicted Tuesday in a report summing up the committee's findings.

Senator Reed attacked the fuel administration and the government's interference generally in the coal business. He laid the blame for the interference with coal production, consumption and prices to these causes:

1. The fixation of prices by the Lane committee and the subsequent repudiation of the authority of that committee.

2. The lapse of nearly sixty days between the repudiation of the prices of the Lane committee and the promulgation of new prices by the Federal Trade Commission.

3. The constant assurance given to the public of an abundant supply of coal, together with advice not to purchase at current prices.

The uncertainty produced by these acts, he charged, led consumers to postpone laying in their supplies and created an unprecedented demand late in the season.

"We pause at this point to remark," he continued, "that the coal sent to the Northwestern States and to Canada in excess of their consumption for 1916 was 6,877,500 tons, or 1,964,655 tons more than enough to have bunkered all of the ships leaving New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and Hampton Roads for foreign ports during the year 1917.

"If one-tenth of the energy expended in getting a surplus of coal to the northwest and to Canada had been expended in delivering bunker coal, no ship would have been oblized to remain in port for a single hour because of the lack of fuel."

Answering Dr. Garfield's assertion that the factory closing order had greatly reduced the number of ships held in American harbors through lack of coal, Senator Reed declared the shipping board's records showed that on January 29 there were only fifty-six fewer vessels held in port than on January 17. This covered the period referred to by Dr. Garfield, he said.

"Of course, vessels were coming and going all the time, as they have come and gone for years," he said, "but any pretense that all vessels cleared are to be credited to the closing order is a mere absurdity. The terrible burden imposed upon the country because of the failure to furnish bunker coal, calculated by the cost of the remedy applied, is appalling. Of course, it is not intended to claim the sole reason advanced for closing down the factories of the country was in order to secure bunker coal, but it has been put forth as one of the chief reasons, the other reason assigned being that it was necessary to shut down the factories in order to let transportation catch up with production."

Jersey Central May Be Linked With Terminal

The possibility of New Jersey Central trains running into the old Pennsylvania Railroad terminal in Jersey City, thus linking the former road with the tube line under the Hudson River to Manhattan, is indicated in a letter which Director General of Railroads McAdoo has just sent to Governor Edge of New Jersey. This, if found feasible, would avoid the building of a tunnel between the Jersey Central terminal and the tubes in Jersey City.

Mr. McAdoo's letter is in reply to Governor Edge's recent suggestion to him of the desirability of making a tunnel connection to afford quick transportation under the Hudson for the Central's suburban traffic. A study of this, Mr. McAdoo explains to Governor Edge, has been under way to determine the length of the three major obstacles—the cost, the engineering difficulties and the capacity of the old Pennsylvania Railroad station.

COUNTY MAY BE RID OF UNSIGHTLY SIGNS

Action toward the elimination of unsightly signs along the highways of Union county, as well as the rest of New Jersey, is expected to follow the posting of the official road signs throughout the State, for which preparations are now under way. In Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts the highway commissioners have cleared the State roadways of signs that mar the beauty of the landscape. In Maryland a campaign was on last year under the direction of the State Forestry Department, assisted by Boy Scouts and women's clubs.

Some towns of New Jersey have taken up the work of sign elimination, but it has never gone into the country. Summit is the veteran of the State in this, and Hackensack was cleared up not long ago. Campaigns are now in the making at Long Branch and Atlantic City.

McADOO PLACES BAN ON BIG RAILROAD SALARIES

No more high-salaried railroad offices will be created so long as the National retains control of the railroads.

Director General McAdoo's first big step toward the curtailment of operating expenses came this week, when he put the ban on future extravagance in the form of big salaries.

As the forerunner of a sweeping cut in salary checks, the director general has forbidden the filing of vacancies in offices of a grade higher than general manager without his approval.

CITIZEN ACTS WHILE OFFICIALS "RIP VAN WINKLE."

So far as official Plainfield is concerned, no action has followed the Record's exploitation of twelve-dollar coal, but news comes from Washington that the entire proceedings are to be given a thorough investigation by Federal agents. This is all the public wants but it remained for a private citizen to bring about the procedure that is so much desired. The apparent indifference of the city's representatives and the side-stepping of the local commissioner has not headed off public clamour and it seems certain that the whole proceeding will be brought into full view.

Since the story was given to the public last week, there have been scores of comments on the matter pro and con. Many people contend that the men who took part in the transaction suffered a financial loss and brought the coal into town for the sole purpose of "relieving the situation." We fail to see where there could be any loss when the coal was sold for nearly thirty-three and a third per cent. more than the Government fixed price. Furthermore the situation was not helped out to any appreciable extent when coal was disposed of in five and ten-ton lots to one person, while scores of others were turned away from the commissioner's office without getting so much as 500 pounds, all that was desired. If there had been a genuine desire to bring about relief until shipments became more regular it seems to us the best thing to have done would have been to let the fuel office dole out the 200 tons to where it would do the most good. Homes are much more important than moving picture theatres, at least so the Government decreed when it issued its original rules to cover the stringency.

Statements have also been made that permission was given to bring the four private cars into town and sell to anyone putting in an order. This may be true but even if it is it does not alter the proposition in the least. If any one person in authority can make new rules or prices whenever it pleases him to do so, why should the commission at Washington spend so much time compiling figures and issuing national restrictions? The people were led to believe that coal was not to cost them more than nine dollars and thirteen cents under any circumstance and were frequently informed through the medium of newspapers that families were to be taken care of before anything else. They still have a right to think so and will hold to that opinion until Commissioner Garfield tells them differently.

The tone of the message sent to this city from Washington indicates that the twelve-dollar a ton transaction will be closely scrutinized and if anyone has been done an injustice, ample justification will be accorded. However, there is no apparent difference in the situation today than what existed last week. There has been no formal denial of the Record's statements, made after a personal investigation, and the people will continue to maintain their opinion until shown that they are wrong. The truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth is what is wanted.

PLAINFIELD FAILS TO HONOR ITS SONS.

Of the seven thousand New Jersey selectives who went to Camp Dix this week, it is not at all improbable that those from Plainfield were the only ones who were not accorded some sort of civil farewell. In every city, town and hamlet in the State, outside of our own particular municipality, there were banquets, mass-meetings and parades to mark the farewell of the boys destined for Uncle Sam's army. Dunellen citizens even got up at 5:30 in the morning in order to be on hand when their contingent started for New Brunswick and North Plainfield provided a special car to carry its allotment to Somerville, sending along the Home Defense League as an escort. In Elizabeth there was a banquet and a big parade on the eve of departure and Westfield simply went mad with enthusiasm.

How different it all was here in Plainfield. The sixty-eight young men, the largest group that has yet gone out of the city, were gathered at a vantage point and given a talk by Mayor Calkins. That was all the recognition they received beyond that accorded by their own relatives and friends, who assembled at the North avenue station as they would assemble in peace times to wave farewell as the train carrying loved one started down the track on an outward journey. There was not even a fife and drum corps to quicken the pulses of those who were left behind and create the enthusiasm that is so much needed. It was a most hopeless failure as a civic demonstration and no one could blame the sixty-eight boys if they resented the indifference of their own officials and home organizations.

When the first big allotment of Plainfield men were designated for Camp Dix last September, they were guests of honor at a banquet and placed at the head of the procession which passed through many of the principal streets. They were assembled at the High School and made to feel that they were the real saviours of the nation, that nothing was too good for them and that when they went down to Camp Dix they were carrying the best wishes of every man, woman and child remaining at home. The boys still talk about it as well they should but from now on they will make sure that none of last Monday's contingent is within listening distance when they speak of their send-off. You see, it might make the other lads feel bad and they wouldn't hurt them in that manner for all the world.

The fact remains that somebody in this town "fell down" miserably in not arranging a demonstartion. It is up to no particular individual but if some one in authority had started the ball on its way every Plainfield man and woman would have fallen in line. It is too late now to talk about what should have been done but there are other selectives destined to go out later and those who really feel ashamed for their neglect can make amends by giving the ones to come the biggest banquet, parade and mass-meeting that has been held since the war began. Don't make the same mistake twice.

A "SPRING DRIVE" NEEDED AT HOME.

Plainfield people are patient as a rule but the manner in which Watchung avenue, in the vicinity of Fourth street and Park avenue, from Fourth street to Fifth street, continues to be left is getting beyond endurance. All winter these thoroughfares have been in a deplorable condition, resembling in many respects the pictures of European trenches. Park avenue has been made passable but the Watchung avenue and Fourth street "sector" is blocked to vehicular traffic, causing no little annoyance to automobile and wagon drivers. Pedestrians, too, have their troubles in this particular vicinity as the manner in which paving bricks are piled up on the sidewalks does not permit free passage.

The tardines of the paving contractors came in for severe condemnation last fall and it seems to have been well deserved. It was predicted as far back as last October that the new street work would not be finished before winter set in and should it prove to be true, conditions would be absolutely deplorable. How near this came to being true can be seen by looking over Watchung avenue and Fourth street at the present time. Because of the trolley car transfer at this point this particular corner is one of the most important in the city yet it continues to remain an eyesore and a detriment.

It is now high time that the street committee or whose ever business it is to see that something is done, should get on the job. On Park avenue the remaining work to be done is part of the Newark Paving Company's contract and on Watchung avenue the same concern and the Public Service Corporation are jointly responsible for finishing up. The weather is surely mild enough and general conditions favorable, so why let the nuisance continue any longer. The streets should be open to the public at the earliest possible date.

PASSING UP THE JERSEY MEN.

The State Highway Commission was apparently not impressed by the sentiment in favor of looking for a Jerseyman to fill the position of State Highway engineer, but has prompted General Goethals' assistant to the place. Nevertheless there are several experienced county engineers who could have filled the job with satisfaction to the State and credit to themselves.

By numerous acts the Legislature has provided that certain work shall be done by and certain positions filled by Jerseymen, which may be regarded as a selfish policy—by non-residents. But it's a poor family that will not look after its own members, if they possess the necessary qualifications, have had experience and are of good people.

A STARTLINGLY ASTOUNDING EDITORIAL.

The following salient paragraphs are from a startlingly astounding editorial article entitled, "The Empty Coal Bin," in yesterday's issue of the Courier-News:

"Yesterday I heard a man say: 'What shall I do? What shall I do? My house is cold, my children freezing. What shall I do?' * * *

"But coal is the least part of it. Consciousness is more than coal; conscience more than either.

"* * * Thank God for the empty coal-bin!

"* * * What an eye opener it is!" * * *

To the question so feelingly propounded in the first paragraph the Courier-News could have suggested a remedy if the cold one could pay $12 per ton. But to continue, we note that the Courier-News is solid on the theoretical portion of the proposition that conscience is more than coal. Some of us were beginning to doubt it. We are glad to be set straight. We must, however, enter a definite protest against the Thanksgiving proclamation later in the article. We cannot thank God for the empty coal bin. Of course, others may have reasons best known to themselves for their paeans of praise in this connection which may be acceptable to a lenient public. But by what dullness of comprehension did the scribe think it necessary to tip off the public in regard to the eye-opener? Most people already thought that $12 per to be a very wide eye-opener indeed.

* * * * *

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When they danced the minuet?

When Plainfield thought enough of its departing soldier boys to at least have a fife and drum corps lead them to the railroad station and a canon roar out a salute as the engine started to pull away?

When John Tier, helping out at his father's restaurant in the North avenue station, opened 100 oysters for a hungry cab man and refused to hand over any more of the bivalves because he thought the customer was gorging himself into sure death?

When the people in town had no vaudeville or "movies" on their theatrical bill of fare but music hall offered such memorable dramas as "Lights o' London," and "Jim, the Penman" in its earlier days and later on, says about the '90's, presented Lincoln Carter's productions of the "Tornado," the "Heart of Chicago" and the "White Squadron;" Sandford's, "My Jack," "The Flag of Truce" and "The Power of Gold" and Joseph Arthur's "Blue-jeans" and "Lost River?"

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

If some of the men who we look up to were "looked up," do you think we would still look up to them?

The eternal question is not "How old is Ann?" or "When will the war end?" but: "Is there any pay in Baron Kenney's job?"

The Common Council appointed one of its members to take charge of the proceedings but we notice that the City Hall situation still remains in statu quo.

Those Plainfielders who are complaining that this is an awfully long winter have no one to blame but themselves. If they wanted a short one they should have given a three months' note last December.

Since Mayor Smalley's black snake whip is gathering dust as it hangs on the walls of the borough court room, why not bring it over to Plainfield and put is to good use? We have no wife beaters but there are other opportunities for swinging it that should not be allowed to pass by.

The North avenue branch of the War Office issued the following official communique this morning: "Along the Watchung avenue front there have been no activities although numerous enemy patrols were noticed lurking in the distance. Adjutant-General Dahl is now making a selection of picked troops for the purpose of precipitating a spring drive that will carry operations well into the summer. In the Greenbrook sector our forces have been greatly hampered by a series of gas attacks that have taxed the resources of the ordnance department. Lieutenant-Colonel Fuller is now equipping his "tanks" with a highly recommended screen, which, it is believed, will place our brave lads in a position to meet the threatened advance of Field Marshal von Coddington, who, our air-men report, is massing his Landstrums in the Chancery Court woods."

SECOND BIG DRAFT CALL SET FOR JUNE

The second big draft will be made in June, according to present plans, it was learned from authoritative sources at the Provost General's office this week.

The number to be included in the call and mobilization planned is to be determined by the War Council of the War Department, it was stated.

Unless some great emergency arises no Nation-wide calls of men will be made under the second draft. The present plan provides for a continuous stream of men moving from civilian life to army camps and from the camps to France. Comparatively small numbers of men will be ordered from certain districts to camps just as rapidly as men now there start across the sea.

The formal calls authorizing some definite number will be made merely for the purpose of allocating the district quotas.

Many more special and industrial calls, such as the recent ones for bricklayers with Pershing's forces, and accountants, will be made under the second draft, it is believed. For this purpose an elaborate card index system showing the occupations of all registered men is being compiled.

MARTIN FLATLEY ENTERS NAVAL BRANCH OF SERVICE

Included in the latest young Plainfielders to enter the naval branch of Uncle Sam's service is Martin Flatley, of West Fifth street. He left Monday morning to begin his duties in the Naval Reserve station at Brooklyn, having been accepted after passing physical examinations a few days previous. He is to be assigned to special duty in the metropolitan section some time next week.

Mr. Flatley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Flatley, of West Fifth street, and for the past two years has been chief of the Guaranty Trust Company's staff of houe detectives at the main offices on Broadway, New York. Previous to securing this position he was a member of the local police force. He is a splendid type of American manhood, standing six feet in height and physically perfect in proportion. Because of the wide experience he has had in detective work it is probable that he will eventually become a member of the Naval Secret Service squad now being completed and designed to prevent spy activities about naval bases.

"JACK" HALL ACCEPTS POSITION IN JERSEY CITY.

"Jack" Hall, of Jackson avenue, the borough, who has been employed in the clerical department of the Richmond street freight station for the past eight years, left his position Wednesday to accept a much better one with the Standard Motors Corporation of Jersey City. He began his new duties yesterday.

"Jack" started at the freight house as checker and rose to the responsibilities of chief lading clerk. His departure was received with keen regret by Agent Koehler and the other employes at the Richmond street yards. The offer from the Standard oMtor Corporation, however, offered such inducements for betterment that he could not refuse to accept. All his many friends wish him success in his new field.

MRS. CHARLES B. MAC MURRAY.

The funeral of Mrs. Charles B. MacMurray, who died at her home on Stone street, the borough, yesterday, will be held at the family residence tomorrow afternoon and will be strictly private. Interment will be at Westfield. Mrs. MacMurray, whose maiden name was Susan E. Brown, was forty-six years old and leaves three sisters and two brothers. Another sister died in Maine ten days ago.

SYNOPSIS OF MEETING OF THE BOARD OF CHOSEN FREEHOLDERS.

An adjourned meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County was held on Thursday, February 21st, 1918, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed 16 members present, 6 absent.

A communication from W. G. Thompson, Acting State Highway Commissioner, regarding schedules for work in 1918 was received and filed. Also one from the same department, regarding Westfield avenue, north side, saying it would be impossible for the State to do any work this year.

A copy of the order from the Supreme Court denying the application of the Mosquito Commission was received and filed.

The following resolutions were read and adopted.

Authorizing the Board to borrow in anticipation of taxes, transfer of money from Surplus Revenue to Reserve Surplus Account, instructing the Road Committee to inspect North Broad street, Hillside, awarding contract for auditing books of County officers to Weschler & Mills, increasing salaries of Rahway bridge tenders, authorizing the Director to sign contract for telephone at County Farm.

Board adjourned to meet Thursday, March 7th, 1918, at 2:30 p. m.

BENJ. KING, Clerk.

TAKES DOWN ITS SIGN AND WINDS UP TONIGHT

It has been a successful campaign—a real fighting campaign to keep prices down.

No "Camouflage" about it. We said we were going to put out $20,000 worth of Shoes on the market at greatly reduced prices, and WE HAVE DONE SO!

Now, we are going to do what we can, as in the past, to keep prices as low as possible during the new Spring season, which starts tomorrow.

ARE YOU ON?

IF YOU ARE NOT ON THE JOB, THIS COMMUNICATION WILL HAVE VERY LITTLE INTEREST FOR YOU.

HAVE YOU EVER NOTICED THE RESEMBLANCE BETWEEN BUSINESS AND A WHEELBARROW? THE THING THAT MAKES BOTH INTERESTING IS THE POSSIBILITY OF "GO" AND THEY BOTH GO BY MAN-POWER. IT TAKES TWO EYES, TWO HANDS, TWO LEGS AND A LOT OF PUSH TO DO ANYTHING WORTH WHILE WITH EITHER. NEITHER HAS A SELF-STARTER—WHEN THE MAN STOPS, BOTH WILL STOP.

YOU CANNOT THINK OF BUSINESS APART FROM PEOPLE—AND LIVE ONES AT THAT—SO INSTEAD OF ASKING "HOW'S BUSINESS?" IT IS MORE TO THE POINT TO INQUIRE "HOW ARE YOU?" WE PUT THE QUESTION TO YOU—HOW ARE YOU?

NOW WE ARE AT THE NIB OF THINGS, MR. BUSINESS-MAN-ON-THE-JOB. HOW ARE YOU? HOW ARE YOUR SPIRITS—THE WHOLE ASSORTMENT OF THEM? HOW IS YOUR SPIRIT OF HOPE, OF PATIENCE, OF GOOD CHEER, OF CONFIDENCE, OF ENERGY, OF GRIT? IF YOUR RESPONSE IS FAVORABLE WE WILL VOUCH FOR YOUR BUSINESS.

WHATEVER YOUR CONDITION, PLEASE ACCEPT A FRIENDLY HAIL FROM US. OUR WHEELBARROW IS ON THE MOVE. IT HASN'T LOST A TURN. LET'S KEEP RIGHT ON KEEPING ON, DOING OUR LEVEL BEST OR OUR UPHILL BEST IF THE GRADE REQUIRES IT. OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

MRS. JOHANNA C. GIEBELHOUSE.

The funeral of Mrs. Johanna C. Giebhouse, widow of George Giebelhouse, who died Monday, after a long illness, was held last night at the family home at 625 West Front street. Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton, of Watchung, who was a close friend of the deceased, conducted the services. The attendance of relatives and friends included many from New York, Brooklyn and other places. Burial was made this morning in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Giebelhouse was born in Hanover, Germany, in 1843, but came to this country when she was twenty hours old. For the next twenty years she continued to reside in New York but maintained a summer home at Watchung, being one of the first New Yorkers to appreciate the beauty of Washington Valley, and the natural advantages as a country seat. In 1882 Mrs. Giebelhouse decided to make Watchung her permanent home, remaining there until about ten years ago, at which time she purchased the L. W. Serrell homestead on West Front street.

Mrs. Giebelhouse was a woman of retiring disposition but nevertheless had hosts of acquaintances in both Watchung and Plainfield. Being possessed of considerable means, she was in a position to perform many charitable acts and she accomplished them in a quiet way that only those within her immediate confidences knew anything about them. She was twice married, her first husband, Mrs. Blume, passing away many years ago. Her second husband, who was George Giebelhouse, of Washington, died suddenly within a comparatively short time after the matrimonial ceremony.

The only near surviving relatives are two daughters and five sons. They are: Mrs. Hermine Goetting, of Bridgewood, and Miss Clara Blume, living at home; August Blume, of Bay Shore, L. I.; Christian Blume, of Round Brook; Ferdinand, George and Louis Blume, of New York.

MRS. ELIZABETH BARLOW.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dukes Barlow, widow of Thomas A. Barlow, died Monday night at the home of her son, DeWitt D. Barlow, of 930 Park avenue. A preliminary funeral service was held at the residence this morning in charge of Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, former pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. Later the body was forwarded for a further service at the home of the deceased's son-in-law, Mr. Adelaide Dukes, of 4808 Florence avenue, West Philadelphia, this afternoon. Burial will be in Westminster cemetery, Philadelphia.

Mrs. Barlow was born in Philadelphia seventy-eight years ago and lived in that city until 1907, when she removed to Plainfield. She was a member of the Crescent Avenue church, where she attended service regularly as long as her health permitted. Her son, DeWitt Barlow, is the only near surviving relative.

GEORGE E. WALLACE.

George E. Wallace, a well-known resident of the West End, died at his home at 916 West Third street, Tuesday morning, following a long illness with asthma and other troubles. The funeral was held at the family residence yesterday afternoon in charge of Rev. D. W. Skeen, pastor of Hope chapel, and was largely attended. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Wallace was fifty-seven years old and a native of Scotland. He came to Plainfield in 1892 to take a position with the Plainfield Street Railway Company as a motorman when the local line was first established. He left the company about fifteen years ago to return to his trade of machinist and was last employed at the Pond Tool Works. When he first came to Plainfield, Mr. Wallace affiliated with Hope chapel, where he was a faithful attendant until his last illness began. He is survived by his wife.

CHARLES J. NASH.

Charles Johnson Nash, a retired contractor, died Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. F. J. C. Moore, of Belleview avenue. He had been living in this city for the past two years and had been ill the greater part of that time. The funeral was held at Mrs. Moore's residence Tuesday afternoon and was in charge of Rev. J. Tucker Lansdale, pastor of the Merrownie Reformed church. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Nash was born at Northfield, Mass. seventy years ago but had lived most of his life in Vermont. After retiring from active business, he came to Plainfield but because of his illness, did not have an opportunity to become widely acquainted. Besides Mrs. Moore he leaves two other daughters and two sons. These are: Mrs. Reed McVey, of Ohio, and Miss Dorothy Nash, of this city; Harry Nash, of Newark, and Ralph Nash, of Hubbard, O.

WILLIAM J. BROMLEY.

William J. Bromley, the nine months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bromley, of West Third street, died Saturday. The funeral was held at the parents' home Tuesday afternoon and burial was in Hillside cemetery.

MRS. CHRISTINA NEARY.

Mrs. Christina Neary, widow of Hiram W. Neary, and a former resident of Plainfield, died Saturday night at the home of her nephew, George W. Saums, who occupies an apartment in the Babcock building. She had recently been living at Rocky Hill and came to Plainfield the forepart of last week for a visit with Mr. Saums. She was stricken with an apoplectic trouble soon after reaching here and despite every medical attention failed to rally. The funeral and interment took place at Rocky Hill.

While a resident of this city, Mrs. Neary lived for a long time on West Front street, near Washington avenue. At various times she had also lived at Point Pleasant and Newark. She was the daughter of John Saums, of Neshanic.

DAVE RANDOLPH.

Dave Randolph, a native of Plainfield but for many years a resident of New York, died at noon Tuesday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Isabella R. Pope, of 173 North avenue. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2:30 at the mortuary chapel of J. J. & C. A. Hetherington, on West Fourth street, and will be in charge of Rev. J. L. Skaggs. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Randolph was sixty-five years old and a descendant of the original Randolphs who located in this section in Revolutionary days. When only a young man he went to New York as an employe of the first fire and burglar alarm company organized in the metropolis. He retired from active work a short time ago. The deceased is survived by his widow and four children.

Elizabeth Times Dissertates On Congress Fight

The political editor of the Elizabeth Evening Times has followed up the rumor that Congressman John H. Capstick, of Boonton, is not to be a candidate for re-election this fall because of impaired health and expresses his opinion of the situation as follows:

John H. Capstick is definitely out of the race for re-election as Congressman from the Fifth Congressional district, according to the politicians, and the only question now is which of the three men who will probably run will get the support of the present incumbent.

It has been taken for granted that the influence of the Boonton statesman had been put at the service of Ernest R. Ackerman, the Plainfield former Senator. This deal, it is openly stated, would have one provision imposed by Mr. Capstick, making it necessary of Mr. Ackerman to take care of John E. Nicol, the present incumbent's secretary, either in a secretaryship or some other post of easy and remunerative service.

But now comes Surrogate Charles N. Codding, not always a "regular," and a strong Colzate man, to the aid of Hamilton F. Kean, of Elizabeth, an organization Republican, who is very much in the race. And what this portends, whether Surrogate Codding's personal feelings or a landslide to the cause of the Elizabeth regulari deponent sayeth not.

"You can't always sometimes tell," the wisest of the pols are saying as they meet and discuss ways and means of perpetuating the Grand Old Party in the Fifth Congressional district.

The third man whose helmet is expected to make its appearance in the ring well before next fall is William Newsom, of Plainfield.

This member of the faithful is reported to be more than disgruntled with the way Governor Edge forgot his merits in the appointment of a judge of the Court of Common Pleas, and passed the dainty morsel to Carlton R. Pierce, of Cranford. It is freely stated that Mr. Newsom has presented an ultimatum to his brothers in the faith that a cosy corner must be provided for him, or he will take out his little hatchet and his bib to the war path. There is no way in which he could make war medicine which would be more painful to the Kean and same and conservative elements in the party than by running for Congress. This, it is said, he will do, as it is believed he will not get an appointment.

The Elizabeth's man's chances are said to be excellent in the field of three, particularly if the men who were for Colzate, of Jersey City, and against Edge show Surrogate Codding's kindly disposition to forget bygones.

Mr. Capstick has been in poor health for a long time, and it had been rumored that he would foreego further honors at the hands of the party, but it is now stated with authority by his friends.

Legislative Activities of the Week

The committees substitute for the Runyon-Close election officers' bill, which changed the measure so that school teachers may volunteer for election officers if they so desire, but not making this duty obligatory upon them and also allowing the governor to appoint election officials if the appointments of such officers by the Supreme Court and Circuit Court judges are not satisfactory, was passed Monday night by the House by a vote of 55 to 2 after a heated debate in which an attack was made upon the governor and his alleged United States Senatorial aspirations.

The complete vote was: Yeas—Abbott, Allinson, Amerman, Applegate, Badgeley, Blair, Bostock, Burroughs, Champion, Close, Cochran, Dugan, Eaton, Edgar, Fooder, Foxhall, Gaede, Gallagher, Gill, Glover, Hagaman, Hanley, Hershfield, Hirschberg, Hobart, Hurley, Kelham, Lake, Lewis, Litchfield, Lord, Marzulli, McAteer, McGovern, Morgan, Nolan, Pierson, Pruden, Read, Reeves, Roberts, Rogers, Schneider, Smith, Snow, Stewart, Tattersall, Vreeland, Warner, Whitney, Wilson, Winne, Wolverton, Young, Yarrow. Nays—Robinson, Simpson, Stout. Not voting—Agans. Absent—Herrick.

Both Simpson and Stout in debate in opposition to Majority Leader Pierson's efforts to pass the bill said that it would not be a good thing to place the power of appointment in the hands of the governor.

Great applause greeted the bringing up of the boxing bill by Mr. Hurley, of Hudson. It was passed by a vote of 44-14. Mr. Lewis, of Monmouth, who espoused the national prohibition amendment, said he was for the boxing bill but did not think the measure should be passed. He referred to the New York boxing law being dead and of the inability of the supporters to revive the boxing commission in that State.

Mr. Hurley spoke for the bill, saying it permitted eight-ounced boxing gloves under the supervision of a State boxing commission. He said it was a measure in the interest of clean athletics and he hoped it would be passed.

"No member of the Legislature can afford to oppose the boxing bill," declared Assemblyman Smith, a lawyer-member of Passaic county. "No one should oppose it at this time when 'Young America' is sacrificing all for the love of country and for true Democracy. If you will look at the true intent of this measure, which means the physical development of our young manhood along proper lines and not prize fighting, as is generally intimated, you will grasp the true situation and should heartily indorse the bill."

The complete vote was:

Yeas—Abbott, Allinson, Applegate, Badgeley, Blair, Bostock, Champion, Cochran, Dugan, Eaton, Edgar, Fooder, Foxhall, Gaede, Gallagher, Gill, Hagaman, Hanley, Hershfield, Hirschberg, Hobart, Hurley, Kelham, Lake, Litchfield, Lord, Marzulli, McAteer, McGovern, Nolan, Pierson, Read, Robinson, Rogers, Schneider, Simpson, Smith, Snow, Stewart, Stout, Tattersall, Vreeland, Warner, Yarrow, Young.

Nays—Agans, Amerman, Burroughs, Close, Glover, Lewis, Pruden, Roberts, Warner, Whitney, Wilson, Winne.

Not voting—Herrick, Morgan, Reeves, and Wolverton.

The senate passed the bill by Mr. Richards, of Atlantic, authorizing the State Highway Commission to enter upon lands for which condemnation proceedings have been instituted in advance of making compensation therefor, and the House Committee Substitute for Senate Bill 184 by the same member, which creates a State council of defense to consist of the mayor of each municipality to meet on March 1, 1918.

Other bills passed were:

Richards, amending the Walsh commission government act by providing that the accountants' report of examination of the books of a municipality shall be published within thirty days of their receipt by the municipality.

Pierson, Union, regulating the issuance of bonds and notes by municipalities.

Edgar, Middlesex, providing that all moneys of the State shall be turned into the State treasury.

Fooder, Passaic, a supplement to the commission government act of 1911 by giving the commissioners in each municipality power to license and regulate the sale of intoxicating liquor, the measure being known as the Passaic excise bill.

Warner, Union, creates juvenile courts in second class counties.

Bills introduced in the House:

Simpson, Hudson, giving a pension of $75 per month to widow and children of the late General George F. Bronsinger, of Jersey City.

Kellam, Camden, a supplement to the bridge and tunnel law, the purpose being to abolish the law created by the act of 1914 and further providing that the money and property now in the hands or the custody of the commission shall be turned over to the New Jersey Interstate Bridge and Tunnel Commission and expended for the purpose for which such money was raised.

Senate bill, No. 252, the annual appropriation measure, was introduced by Mr. Wells, of Burlington. It appropriates $9,454,905.85 for the expenses of the State government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919. Some of the appropriations are:

Public Utility Commission, $153,250; Commissioner of Education, $104,700; elimination of toll bridges, $101,000; county lunatic asylums, $232,028; Department of Agriculture $134,010; Charities and Corrections, 169,000; Department of Labor, $148,000; Legislature, $105,983; National Guard, $255,039; State Emergency Fund, $250,000; State Highway Commission, $555,600; State House Commission, $206,400.

Mr. Richards, of Atlantic, introduced a bill permitting corporations to contribute to the American Red Cross.

Bills passed by the Senate were:

Fithian, Cumberland, permitting commissioners to pass on damages on surrounding woodland by fire at State prison farm.

Richards, repealing sundry acts with reference to toll roads.

Richards, amending the title of the act regarding the raising of money for public parks, roads, etc., in counties.

Hammond, securing tenure of office and employment of officers and employes of municipalities entering the military or naval service of the United States.

Wilson, Sussex, giving the secretary of agriculture additional power in the regulating of milk dealers by the issuing of licenses.

Wilson, amending tax act by exempting historical organizations from taxation.

Yarrow, Essex, providing the governing bodies of municipalities must publish at least once in newspapers ordinances, financial statements, etc.

Abbott, permitting the payment of allowances to children of widows who die.

Pruden, Essex, permitting municipalities to render aid and encouragement to home defense units by loaning equipment necessary or convenient not to exceed $20,000 annually.

Richards, permitting boards of freeholders to have full control of salaries of employes without regard to State regulation.

Richards, provides for the establishment and maintenance of a county police system.

Bills introduced in the Senate were:

Richards, permitting the attorney general to name a second assistant attorney general from counsellors-at-law outside of his department.

The bill by Mr. Badgeley, of Essex, introduced for the purpose of cutting down the high cost of living by the State selling fish from markets in the various cities at low prices, was passed by the Senate by a vote of 12 to 1. It provides for the creating of a State bureau of fisheries of five members to work without compensation and with a director at a salary of $5,000 annually. The commission would purchase catches of fish from pound fishermen beginning on January 1, 1919.

Mr. Richards, of Atlantic, said he was sorry the State could not start the undertaking at once in order to reduce the living cost of the people, but owing to low finances, it could not be done. Mr. Ackerson, of Monmouth, stated that the bill provided for a tremendous undertaking and that an enormous amount of money would be tied up. He declared that it would be just as well for the State to engage in the agriculture or stock raising business.

BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATION THANKS EDGE

Governor Edge was thanked by the Elizabethport Building and Loan Association Thursday night for vetoing a Morgan building and loan bill, introduced by Assemblyman Morgan, of Elizabeth.

The bill, if passed, would have interfered with the practical working of the association, according to the ideas of those present at the forty-third annual convention. The fiscal statement for the year ending December 31, 1917, showed it to be a year of unusual success.

These officers were re-elected: President, L. H. Wanamaker; vice president, J. J. Higgins; secretary, Martin Hoellinn; treasurer, Thomas Flynn; directors for three years, T. A. Simmons, E. J. Mittasch, T. B. Clark and J. J. Flannery; auditor, William A. Walsh.

The bonds and mortgage, $500,880; bills receivable, $18,145; insurance premium, $293.79; safe and fixtures, $200; purchase money mortgages, $6,150; real estate sold on contract, $4,000; interest and fines in arrears, $4,698.30; accrued interest on notes, $661.50; Liberty Loan bonds and accrued interest, $12,935.82; real estate, $6,150; cash in hand, $1,785.84; total, $555,102.25.

Liabilities—Paid on all shares, $355,022; profits apportioned, $181,412.78; matured shares, $65,021; money borrowed from banks, $15,000; installment due shares, loan, $4,000; unearned premium, $10,420.50; delinquent shares, special account, $115.93; surplus and undivided profits, $3,111.94; total, $555,102.25.

MILLION TONS OF COAL A MONTH TO FACTORIES

Chairman Hurley, of the shipping board of Director General of Railways McAdoo yesterday worked out plans to ship one million tons of coal a month to factory districts in New England that are threatened with a shutdown for lack of fuel. The shipping board will provide ships to transport 400,000 tons a month from tidewater at Hampton Roads, while Director General McAdoo will arrange for the shipment of 600,000 tons per month. Fuel Administrator Garfield has promised the coal will be available.

Edge Defends Baird In Reply To Criticisms

Answering the attack made on his appointment of David Baird, which appeared in the New York Evening Post Monday night, that it was a return of "bosses" and reactionary politics in New Jersey, Governor Edge, Tuesday, in a statement, declared that New Jersey at this time thinks it would not be a bad idea to introduce "a little old-fashioned hard-headed common sense and business judgment, developed through years of successful experience," into the proceedings of the United States Senate. The Executive took a crack also at Congressman Doremus, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, who had stated in the Post that the Democrats would make an issue in New Jersey of the Baird appointment. The Governor answered that the would welcome such an issue.

Speaking of the criticisms against the Baird appointment, he said that attention should be drawn to those Democratic Senators who have been blocking the plans of the National Administration.

"The Post correspondent is talking in a past age," declared the Executive. "The article referring so pathetically to Hudson election troubles made it appear as an answer by proxy to my recent letter to Mr. Tumulty on this subject. If unswerving support of the President is to be the basis for criticism of this appointment, then I wonder if punishment is to be meted out to those Democratic Senators who are so persistently attempting to block the President's efforts to successfully prosecute the war?

"If Mr. Baird does not demonstrate more loyal support of the President and Commander-in-Chief than some of his Democratic colleagues-to-be," continued Governor Edge, "then I will have reason to regret my judgment, but I am ready to assume this responsibility, secure in the integrity of my appointee, who places loyalty above partisanship."

Regarding the Doremus comment, the New Jersey Executive said:

"If the Democratic party is prepared to make an issue of the appointment of a man who over his own signature has pledged himself to loyal unswerving support of the President, they must be prepared themselves to fight the President. Perhaps for further diversion Congressman Doremus will carry his campaign into the States now represented by Democratic Senators who are doing all they can to embarrass the President."

CORRESPONDENT SAYS U. S. IS IN NEED OF "DRIVE" AT HOME

With the American Army in France, Feb. 28.—America needs a spring drive at home to aid her army in putting over the punch she must deliver against Germany.

A portion of her forces has now completed a month in the trenches of the American sector. Her officers and men are now a veteran force to cope with the German. They are learning all the tricks of the war game. But from the front America seems closer to the trenches than the trenches seem to the Americans at home.

It is evident here that the war must mean just as much to a village in America as a village in France. The only difference is that the former is spared the danger of raids and demolition. The holding up of a freight car in a country village of America today may be reflected at the front line trenches tomorrow, where the son or brother of some one in that village may be standing on the fire step.

There is an endless chain running from the trenches to every American home. It runs through the office of General Pershing on long communication lines across the Atlantic to the seaboard.

Pershing received the United Press correspondent in his office at headquarters following his return from an inspection at the front. Clear-eyed, earnest and firm, except for his uniform, the general might have appeared to be the head of some great corporation directing peaceful pursuits as well as the commander-in-chief of America's greatest army.

He has gained in weight in excellent physical trim—the typical American leader. He was dictating a mass of orders and correspondence with swift precision. The sunshine poured in through the windows, through which drifted sounds of the activities outside.

A flat-topped desk, placed in the center of the room, is the worktable from which the American army is being directed. From this office in all directions run roads, railroads, telegraph and telephone lines. These knit together the American army, from the base to the front.

Americans are noticeable everywhere. And these, instead of asking about the exnected German drive, inquire how things are going at home. Then comes the inevitable tale of the endless supplying of the army. The freight congestion at home means supplies going toward the seaboard are being delayed. This, plus the coal shortage, is delaying the sailing of ships and reducing the tonnage on the seas. It means further delays.

The stories of drunkenness in the American army here are without foundation. This fact is evidenced by reports from the various commanders, as well as an observation of the general conduct of the men. They are well fed and in excellent health.

Getting into actual war in the trenches has heightened the morale of the entire army. The men now in cantonments and training camps in the United States will have finished American officers and soldiers to train them when they reach France.

There is but one army here in France. The boy from the corner grocery who became a member of the National Army will find in France the boy from the same grocery who enlisted, a finished soldier. The former soon will be the same. He will not be known as a member of the National Army or otherwise. He will be known as a member of a closely knit fighting unit.

The warring to date, popular belief has it, has been without number of battles. It has been the cause of the army's troubles. The work that's been done, however, isn't an iota of what has to be done yet. The work here so far is merely pioneering.

WALTER WILSON IN AN AVIATION CORPS

Walter Wilson, son of former Councilman and Mrs. W. W. Wilson, of West Third street, is soon to be numbered among Uncle Sam's aviators although he originally enlisted in the Naval Reserves. He is now under instruction at Taliaferro Field, No. 1, Fort Worth, Texas, as a member of the Naval Aviation Detachment, having been transferred from the receiving ship, "Granite State," on which he was located since early last summer.

Mr. Wilson has had a wide experience in motors and machinery and following several advancements in the Naval Reserve was given an opportunity to take examinations for a lieutenancy in the Naval Aviation Corps, passing these successfully, he was first sent to Detroit, Mich., for practical instruction at a big aeroplane manufacturing plant. He remained there several weeks and was then sent to the flying field at Fort Worth.

In a letter received by a friend today, Mr. Wilson states that he has made two ascents since reaching the training camp. In one he rose to a height of 2,000 feet and in the other 5,000 feet. The first was as an observer with an instructor handling the machine but in the second the Plainfield man did the piloting. From now on he is to make ascensions every day until he has fully qualified as an "airman." From indications he will leave Taliaferro Field about March 15 and proceed to Philadelphia, from which point he may be able to visit Plainfield for a few days before going overseas.

In his letter, Mr. Wilson asserts it is a great sensation to be up in the clouds and gaze down at the landscape below. His flights have been directly over Fort Worth which, when seen at an altitude of 5,000 feet, seems to be a mere speck while the busy inhabitants move about like so many ants.

PERSONAL.

Howard M. Case, of Thornton avenue, who has been devoting all his time to his work as organist at the First Baptist church and teacher of music, has secured a position with a large firm in New York. He will continue as organist at the First Baptist church as before.

George Leland, a member of the fire department, stationed at headquarters, has been confined to his home on West Fifth street for the past week by a severe attack of grip and complications.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob J. Schwartz, of West Front street, are the parents of a son who came to their home Sunday morning.

Leon Harris, formerly of this city but now a resident of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., left yesterday after a week's visit at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leander Harris, of West Front street. Mr. Harris is employed as salesman by the Mirror Candy Company and has all New Jersey for his territory.

Lorene E. Gildes, of Grove street, the borough, who has been stationed at the Brooklyn Navy Yard since his enlistment several weeks ago, has been sent to the Curtis Aeroplane factory at Buffalo, N. Y., to do duty as yeoman.

Edward O'Loughlin, of New street, returned to Plainfield the past week, following his discharge as a member of the heavy field artillery stationed at Camp McClellan. He was a member of Troop B and went out with that organization last summer. Mr. O'Loughlin has had trouble from an old injury to his back, caused by a fall a long time ago, and the army physicians decided that it was best for him not to continue in the service. After a few days' rest he intends to return to his old position at the Spicer plant in South Plainfield.

Mrs. Marie Chanseau, of Liberty street, has been ill for the past ten days with a severe attack of neuritis which may possibly last two or three weeks longer. She is under the care of Dr. N. W. Currie.

Former City Clerk James T. MacMurray, who became superintendent of the Meade-Morrison Company's plant in East Orange last year, has been seriously ill for the past two weeks with grip and threatened pneumonia. He is confined to his apartment in the Winthrop Arms Hotel at Winthrop Beach, a suburb of Bostop, where he makes his home.

Miss Mary Skiff, of Mount Vernon, N. Y., spent the past week-end as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCue, of West Fourth street.

Announcement has been made by Mr. and Mrs. Willard V. Sutton, of Netherwood, N. J., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Violet Frances Sutton, to Richard Wells Abel, Jr., of Somerville. The wedding will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Saturday, April 27.

Peter Galbraith, a member of the naval hospital corps now undergoing training at the rifle range at Peekskill, N. Y., spent the past week-end at the home of his brother, Daniel Galbraith, of Spooner avenue.

Mrs. C. E. Boswell and daughter, Miss Emma Boswell, of Madison avenue, have returned home after a trip to Aiken, S. C., and other parts of the South.

Mrs. Charles L. Ryder, of Grant avenue, has been spending the past week with relatives in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Arthur E. Force, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Force, of West Front street, who has been stationed at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, since entering the Aviation Corps, was transferred the past week to Mineola, L. I. He was given a few days' furlough on reaching the latter camp and spent the time with his parents in this city.

Mrs. John Galbraith and daughter, Miss Anna Galbraith, of Newark, returned home Monday, after a visit at the home of Mrs. Margaret Mottley, of West Fourth street.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Birney Pittiger, of Brooklyn, has been brightened by the arrival of a baby daughter. Mrs. Pittigrew was formerly Miss Frances Zelie, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Sheridan Zelie, who recently removed to New York, after Dr. Zelie resigned his pastorate at the Crescent Avenue church.

Edward Connolly, of West Sixth street, who has been seriously ill with pneumonia, has greatly improved during the past week and his recovery now seems assured. Mrs. Connolly has also been ill but is now fully recovered.

Rev. Father Bryant Harmon, who is stationed in the diocese of Los Angeles, Cal., is spending a two weeks' vacation at the home of his father, John F. Harmon, of West Eighth street. Father Harmon celebrated the 8:30 mass in St. Mary's church Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl M. Curtis, of South Second street, left Wednesday for Adelphia, N. J., because of the serious illness of a relative.

Fred R. Haynes, of the First National Bank's staff, is confined to his home in Dunellen by a severe attack of pleurisy.

Kenneth Runyon, who recently met with a severe accident at Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I., has been honorably discharged from the army and is now at his home on West Eighth street. One limb was partially severed by a severe fall which he sustained while undergoing manoeuvers as a member of the officers' training corps. It will be some time before he fully recovers from the injury.

News has reached Plainfield of the safe arrival in France of Sergeant H. Kinney, of Pearl street, the borough. He went abroad as a member of the First Regiment, Motor Mechanics Signal Corps.

Philip Jahn, of Scotch Plains, was able to be at his office in this city Wednesday for the first time after a ten days' illness with grip and laryngitis.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey, who is now in France doing Y. M. C. A. secretarial work, recently was under treatment in Paris for a severe attack of bronchitis, according to a letter received by Mrs. McKelvey this week he has fully recovered and is back at his post.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael, of West Third street, were called to Newark Sunday by the serious illness of Mrs. Regan's cousin, Thomas Moran, of that city.

Gresham Sharp, a Plainfield young man and after whom Gresham road was named, has arrived safely in France as a member of the Ambulance Corps. Information to this effect was cabled this week to his mother, Mrs. W. T. Sharp, of Crescent Court.

Mrs. Marks Strader, formerly of this city, but more recently of Minneapolis, Minn., is ill at the home of her sister, Miss Charlotte Davie, of New York. Mrs. Strader, who was Miss Gene Davie daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Davie, of Manning avenue, the borough, returned from Minneapolis early in January to undergo an operation for appendicitis at the Polyclinic Hospital, New York. Complications developed afterwards which have since kept her confined to her bed.

Mrs. S. O. Rush, formerly of Leland avenue, this city, is seriously ill at her home on Rhode Island avenue, Washington, D. C.

SEVERAL ASPIRANTS FOR BAUER'S PLACE AS COUNTY REGISTER

Now that there is a touch of spring in the air, the political birdies are again whispering the doings of those who would like the political lightning to strike them.

The latest well laid plan discloses that County Register Edward Bauer, who was named by Governor Walter E. Edge to that post when Frank H. Smith, of Plainfield, became State Banking and Insurance Commissioner, is to have considerable opposition on his hands for the nomination at the September primaries.

Ex-Sheriff George C. Otto, whose present duties consist in outfitting selectives who are sent to Camp Dix, at Wrightstown, and who has been a very active chairman of the Union County Board No. 1, has a feeling that a try for the berth wouldn't be amiss, in view of the fact that he came within thirteen votes of defeating Charles N. Codding for the prize designation for Surrogate of the county.

True it is that Otto had a recount, but he threw up the sponge when he discovered it wasn't going to come out his way and resumed the even tenor of his ways and attend to the draft board duties with precision and tact. Now it is said the former sheriff would not be averse to sitting in the office across the hall at the courthouse, the county register's abode, and that lines are being set throughout the county to see what the catch will bring forth.

Along with Otto's ambition comes word from Rahway that Clifford B. Gehring, the present freeholder from that city, also has his eye glued on the post. Gehring sidestepped the post of deputy county register when it was touring throughout the building and hung on to the job of freeholder instead. His work is also being done up county and the plea is that Rahway has been neglected in the distribution of plums, countywise, or statewise.

Meanwhile Edward Bauer, whose wor kin the County Register's office, first as deputy and then as register, is known throughout the county for its efficiency, is simply "sawing wood." It's a long way to September, when lines will be drawn up and the formation then may present an entirely different aspect than a February glimpse discloses.

PIERSON BILL WOULD ENSURE LEGAL JURIES

A bill introduced in the House of Assembly by Majority Leader Pierson, of Union, becomes a law, it is thought, and halts in the future as to the legality of Grand Juries and other juries drawn for legal matters in counties. It provides for the appointment of a jury commissioner to take the place of such an official who may be unable to serve by reason of illness or death.

There is now pending in the Supreme Court an attack by the officials of the Trenton and Mercer County Traction Corporation upon the legality of indictments found against them recently by the Mercer county grand jury, on the ground that at the time the jury was drawn, the commissioner, Daniel H. Bechtel, was ill at his home, and that, therefore, he not having participated in the drawing of the selection of the jurors according to the provisions of the Jury Reform Act of 1913.

Mr. Pierson has also introduced a bill to amend an act established by the State Department of Agriculture, by providing that if a vacancy arises on the State Board of Agriculture when the convention is not in session, it may be temporarily filled by the president of the board.

Assemblyman Underwood Cochran, of Atlantic City, has presented a measure which gives the Board of Shell Fisheries the right of close grounds that shellfish may be removed to non-polluted waters.

"Close Ups" On Plainfielders Entering Service With Latest Selected Men Sent to Camp Dix

Many of the young men included in the seventy-three sent to Camp Dix from the Plainfield district during the past week have a wide acquaintance but frequently because of similarity in names, due to the perfunctory way in which they are listed by the recruiting board their complete identity does not become revealed. For this reason the Record has secured further information about some of the best known and presents it in concise form for the benefit of readers who would otherwise not realize their intimacy with the future soldiers.

A case in particular occurred last September when the first big contingent left Plainfield for the cantonment. One o fthat especial detachment was designated as "Joseph E. McLoughlin." While it was the young man's correct name he had never been known outside of his family other than as "Gene" and he almost went to Dix without anyone except his closest acquaintances knowing that he had been chosen. Similar occurrences have taken place since then and the following "biographies" may bring the latest local selectives closer to those reading newspaper accounts:

Harry Gunzelman—Is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Gunzelman, of 220 Monroe avenue, and is twenty-eight years old. He was born in Plainfield and is especially known in the West End, where he has always resided. Previous to entering the National Army, he was employed by a local grocer as clerk. He is the second son in the family to go to Camp Dix, the first one being his brother Edward, who left with the Plainfield contingent last September and is now in readiness to go to France.

Arthur S. Robinson—Is twenty-nine years old and the son of Samuel J. Robinson, of 744 West Third street. He was born in the West End and always made his home in that section of the city. After completing his education he learned the mason trade under B. F. Tallamy & Brother, but after completing his time gave up this work to take a position in the clerical department at the Plainfield postoffice. A year ago he secured employment with the Pullman Company as conductor and has just been given a "steady run" between Jersey City and St. Louis, over the Pennsylvania Railroad when an excellent place was offered him by the head office of the A. & P. Tea Company. This he accepted and had been at work in the application department of the Jersey City headquarters on Bay street when he was named as one of the local contingents for Camp Dix. He is a member of Plainfield Lodge of Elks and has one of the largest acquaintances of any young man in the city. While George Hall, of North Plainfield selective, he was given a farewell party last Saturday night at the home of John F. Payne, 956 Kenyon avenue. It was arranged by Mr. Payne, Thomas F. Burke, Lester Hamilton, G. Archibald Haile yand Howard Haag. During the evening, Mr. Robinson and Mr. Hall were presented with silver cigarette cases suitably engraved and also a set of engrossed resolutions expressing regret at their departure.

Frank I. Donnelly—Is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Donnelly, of 660 West Fourth street, and has lived with his parents at that address since he was, born twenty-five years ago. He is a die ginker by trade and was last employed at the Spicer plant in South Plainfield. To has been active in the work of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society for the past seven years and was one of the organizers of the T. A. B. Fife and Drum Corps. He first acted as drummer in this organization but later was made drum major, an office which he held until taking his departure for Camp Dix. Twenty of the older members of the "Tabs" gave him a farewell dinner at the home of President Joseph T. McCue on West Fourth street. The society had previously presented him with an illuminated wrist watch. Mr. Donnelly is also a member of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, and has held positions on its bowling teams for several years. He has one sister, Miss Mary Donnelly, soprano soloist in the choir of St. Mary's church, and one brother John Donnelly, Jr., a fireman in the passenger service of the New Jersey Central.

James P. Casey—Is the son of John F. Casey, head of the undertaking firm of Casey & Son. He is twenty-five years old and has been associated with his father in the undertaking business since the departure of his older brother, John F. Casey, Jr., for Camp Dix last September. The latter was afterward transferred to Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Ga., where he is now stationed as a member of the Field Artillery. Previous to associating himself with his father, James had been employed at the Standard Aero plant on North avenue, leaving a position at the Saurer Motor Works to help in building aeroplanes for Uncle Sam's flyers. He is a member of Division No. 4, A. O. H., and Court Plainfield I. C. O. F. He was one of the organizers of the Quilters, a local social organization which has headquarters on North avenue and which accorded him a reception last Saturday night. Mr. Casey is a grandson of the late Patrick Casey, one of Plainfield's pioneer embalmers, and is a nephew of Mrs. Daniel Shay, of West Fourth street; Mrs. John Gallagher and the Misses Margaret, Nellie and Elizabeth Casey, all of West Third street.

Frank A. Lee—Is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lee, of Scotch Plains, and has lived in that village practically all his life. After completing his education in the Scotch Plains school he learned the trade of carpenter and has been working for various local contractors. He is extremely popular not only in Scotch Plains but also in Plainfield, where he has a wide acquaintance. He is a bachelor. Miss Gladys Lee is one of the principals in the Plainfield Elks amateur operas of the past two years. His father, William Lee, was one of the organizers of the old famous Potter Press Works baseball team of thirty years ago and at one time was a professional baseball player.

Philip Phillips—Is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy F. Phillips, of 921 Madison avenue, and is the third boy in the family to enter the ranks. The other two are his brothers, Corporal Jack Phillips, formerly of Troop D, but now of the Heavy Field Artillery stationed at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala., and Corporal Kenneth Phillips, of Company A, 502nd Engineers, now in active service in France. Philip's first name was twisted into Peter by common consent of the family after a little incident at home had made it appropriate and he is better known to his hundreds of friends by that cognomen. He had only just turned twenty-one when the registration of last June was ordered by the Government and his selection for the National Army came after two unsuccessful attempts to become a soldier through enlistment. He is somewhat short of stature and the critical army doctors rejected him on this account. He is a graduate of the Plainfield High School and for the past two years has held a responsible position with the Linde Air Company, of New York. Beside the two brothers mentioned, he is also a brother to Roy T. Phillips, of Arlington avenue, and Harold Phillips, of Oak Park, Ill., a suburb of Chicago. One of his sisters, Miss Mabelle C. Phillips, general secretary to the Charity Organization Society, has enlisted in the Wellesley College reconstruction unit which is to sail for France the first of April, thus making four members of the family to be "doing their bit" for Uncle Sam. "Peter," who, by the way, is the youngest of the family, has two other sisters, Miss Elizabeth Phillips, assistant librarian at the Plainfield Public Library, and Mrs. James Maurer, of 705 West Seventh street.

Joseph Bebout—Is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldridge J. Bebout, of 423 West Fifth street, and has always lived in Plainfield. He was born in this city when his parents lived on Plainfield avenue, where the father was for a long time engaged in the selling of building sand from his own pits. Joseph learned the mason trade and was in the employ of local contractors for a number of years. Recently he gave up masonry to take a position at A. C. Thompson's garage, where he was working at the time of his selection for the National Army. He is twenty-five years old and a brother to Thomas Bebout, a patrolman in the Plainfield police force.

William J. Witterman—Is twenty-four years old and the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Witterman, of 511 Plainfield avenue. He is the second in a family of seven children, five boys and two girls. He was employed for a long time by former Councilman Fred Endress, when the latter conducted what is now the Queen City Market, and learned the trade of meat-cutter. His last place of employment was with Alfred Keenan, whose market is at East Fifth and Richmond streets.

John G. Varley—Is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Varley, of West Front street, and was employed by his father at the latter's ladies' furnishing store. He was graduated from the Plainfield High School and while a student there was prominent in the B. A. A., the representative athletic organization. He is a member of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, and was active in the work. He is twenty-two years old and has no brothers or sisters.

Carl M. Sanoracker—Is a native Plainfielder and is the son of Charles Saueracker, of 705 East Front street. The young man has been an apprentice in the machine department at the Pond Tool Works and has been making his home with his aunt, Mrs. Sullivan, of Spooner avenue. He is only just past twenty-one years of age. His father was for many years in the employ of the Potter Press Works as driver but more recently has been employed by Contractor John Keeley.

F. Otto Link—Is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Linke, of West Second street, and is the fourth of the family to enter the service, three brothers having previously donned the U. S. uniform in various branches of the army and navy. George ,the second oldest son, went out last summer as a member of Troop D and is now at a camp in the vicinity of Augusta in artillery unit. Julian P., the third son, is studying medicine in the medical branch of the Government Hospital Corps in preparation for army hospital work, and Gerald, the youngest son, is a naval cadet at Annapolis and is soon to be graduated. Otto Linke is thirty years old and a lawyer by profession. He first entered Stevens Institute at Hoboken after leaving the Plainfield High School but completed his law studies at Georgetown University. For a time he practiced in Newark, but more recently has been in the office of Counsellor William A. Codington at 220 Park avenue. He has been an "energetic worker in Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, and has taken an active interest in local political affairs as a member of the Democratic party. He was nominated for Council and for the city judgeship at different times and was defeated at the general election.

Arthur Kienzle—Is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kienzle, of 278 Netherwood avenue, and is twenty-four years old. He was inducted into "tickled" when he was accepted for the National Army as on three previous occasions he had tried to enlist. Each time he was "turned down" on the advice of the examining physicians who found a slight ailment. His last place of employment was at the Standard Aero plant but previous to that he had acted as clerk in a West Front street haberdashery. He possesses a fine singing voice and frequently appeared at local entertainments, especially at the gatherings in the Emerson School. He was a member of the Netherwood Reformed church, where he was active in the young men's departments for several years. Beside his parents, he has two brothers, both living in this city.

Thomas Heron—Was born in Plainfield and always lived in the West End with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Heron, now residing at 824 West Sixth street. He is twenty-five years old. After completing his education in the Irving and Whittier Schools, he entered the Daily Press office to learn the trade of compositor. For the last two years that the paper was in existence he acted as assistant foreman of the composing room, a post which came to him because of recognized ability. Recently he had been employed in the composing room of another local newspaper. Mr. Heron, or "Tommie," as he is always called, has been a member of Hope chapel since he was able to toddle to Sunday-school and has been a most valuable help in the promotion of the young men's activities. He has an unusually quiet way of doing things but once he makes up his mind to go ahead there is no stopping until success has been attained. He is the eldest of the children in his family and did not enlist because his next youngest brother, John, wanted to do so. The latter is equally as well known as "Tommie," but because of being in Connecticut at the outbreak of the war was not mentioned to any extent in the local newspapers. He held a splendid position as accountant in the office of Landis, Fary & Clark, manufacturers of the well-known brand of "universal cutlery" at New Britain. He went "over there" last fall as a member of Co. B, 101st Machine Gun Battalion, recruited almost entirely from Connecticut. Two finer boys than Thomas and John Heron could not be found in a day's walk and their hundreds of friends wish them all kinds of success during their service for Uncle Sam, fully confident that each one will return with an officers' chevrons on his uniform when peace has been declared.

G. Fred Hall—Has been a resident of Plainfield for the past eight years, coming here from Neshanic to take a position in the commercial department of the Public Service Corporation under William R. Causbrook. He advanced by various stages to chief clerk, holding this title at the time he was called for National Army service. He is twenty-eight years old and the son of Mrs. Minnie Hall, of Neshanic. His father died last December. Mr. Hall is a member of Plainfield Lodge of Elks and when Edgar Starker, secretary of that organization, enlisted in Troop B last summer, he was elected to fill the vacancy. He resigned some time ago in favor of E. P. Dorman when he realized he also would be leaving for camp with the Plainfield selectives. Mr. Hall is a fine type of American citizenry and can be counted upon to make a good record while in the army. He was held in the highest esteem by Superintendent Causbrook and all his associates in the Public Service office. Beside his mother, he has one brother and a sister living at Neshanic.

Perry W. Doty—Is twenty-three years old and lived with his parents on Wiley avenue. When he was selected for the National Army he was a "bachelor," but he went to Camp Dix as a benedict as on Friday of last week he married a Westfield young woman. He was employed for the past six months as bookkeeper in the commercial department of the Public Service Corporation at the Park avenue office. Previous to that time he was employed at one of the local banking institutions in the same capacity. He has lived in Plainfield a long time and has a wide acquaintance, especially in the East End.

GOVERNMENT GETTING RID OF "COST PLUS"

Another piece of evidence that the various departments of the government are attaining to greater and more uniform efficiency in handling the wart time problems of supplies is afforded by the fact that the evils of the cost-plus system are being eliminated. Now that the initial overwhelming demand for materials has been met, and now that war machinery can function, more normally, there is opportunity for checking up, for readjustments and for the adoption of more effective safeguards in the spending of the public's billions.

All cost-plus contracts that are being let, whether for ships, shells or what, contain restrictive clauses that were missing in the earlier contract —missing because then the supreme necessity was action and one could not be over nice as to precisely how it was gotten. The price was a secondary consideration to the procurement of the necessary implements of war. These restrictions are based upon the experiences of the government with the earlier and more lax form of cost-plus.

The common aim is to prevent an unconscionable running up of costs, so as to increase profits and to produce stability in the labor and material markets. Practically all contracts now specify a limit on the contractor's profit, regardless of the ultimate cost and this limitation is based upon an approximation of what should be a fair margin of profit.

There is a movement in Congress at the present—a movement created by a knowledge of the abuses of the first form of cost-plus contracts—to outlaw the entire system. A proposal has been made that the lawmakers, in passing pending bills for housing facilities, prohibit the expenditure of any of the money so voted on the cost-plus basis. But the practicability of these suggestions is questioned. Prices for labor and material have been so high and fluctuating that contractors maintain the government must protect them as to their costs; otherwise they cannot operate with any incentive and that means a loss to the government in the volume and efficiency of production.

"VICTORY BREAD" OR NONE FROM NOW ON

You'll buy Victory bread—or none —in the United States from now on.

Telegrams sent out by the Food Administration last Saturday to all State administrators ordered rigid enforcement of the 20 per cent. wheat flour substitute formula in all bread turned out by public bakeries after February 24.

You'll like it, though. Hundreds of bakers have wired Hoover they already have placed Victory bread on the market and that it has been enthusiastically received.

Failure of compliance with the new regulation, the Food Administration warned today, would mean a serious demoralization of the Government's entire grain program.

It Costs Less--At First

To bury in a wooden box, a slate or brick cistern or even a cement vault with an unsealed lid costs less than the Norwalk. A heavy top lowered and sealed by hand is naturally more expensive. But once you have seen with your own eyes the workman cement the top and bottom of the Norwalk Vault together into one solid piece of masonry you are satisfied; and that comfort is worth any price you could pay. That's why every modern undertaker is glad to use the Norwalk—he can guarantee his work. Your undertaker can give you the necessary information.

Independent Candidate In Congressional Race

Richard Boardman of This City May Enter the Contest Now Waging between Former Senator Ackerman and Hamilton Kean

The bitter contest between Governor Walter E. Edge and ex-State Senator Austen Colgate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate is reflected in the contest for the Republican nomination for the House of Representatives in the Fifth Congressional district, where John A. Capstick, the present incumbent, has indicated his intention not to seek renomination.

Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, formerly State Senator, is the Edge candidate for the Congressional nomination, and Hamilton F. Kean, of Elizabeth, State committee member for Union county, is supported by Republicans, tied up with Colgate's political ambitions. In addition there is a report that a third candidate will enter the field, Richard Boardman, of this city, a progressive Republican, who holds party regularity so tightly that he is planning to be an independent candidate at the general election. Mr. Boardman, it is said, believes that the Republican enrollment being carefully controlled by the organization leaders that there is little chance for an independent candidate in the primaries. Besides, he advocates an independence of party leadership, and he expects that his independent candidacy for representative next fall will tend to break down one of the most hidebound Republican county and district organizations in the State of New Jersey.

Surrogate Charles N. Codding, of Westfield, is actively urging Mr. Kean's nomination. The latter belongs to one of the oldest and richest New Jersey families, and in the turmoil within the Republican party that was started by Theodore Roosevelt the Keans stood for conservatism. Mr. Kean is in business on the New York Stock Exchange and maintains a home in the Murray Hill section of Manhattan. He is a stockholder in New Jersey gas and water-supply companies. Mr. Kean is so prominent in New Jersey Republican councils that he has been mentioned as a compromise candidate in case the Edge-Colgate rivalry for the United States Senate becomes so bitter as to threaten general party success at the polls next November.

Mr. Ackerman also belongs to the conservative wing of the Republican party. His candidacy for the Republican nomination for representative is based on his record in the State Senate, where he was identified with the investigation that brought about the enactment of an Employers' Liability law.

The Fifth Congressional District includes the counties of Union and Morris. In 1916 Representative Capstick was re-elected, receiving 20,951 votes to 17,176 cast for his Democratic opponent. A margin of 3,700 votes may be wiped out if an independent Republican candidate is in the running next November. Morris county has had a candidate for the Republican nomination for representative in the person of Thomas J. Hillery, of Boonton, for some time Public Utilities Commissioner. Morris county, has about half the Republican enrollment that the Union county has.

Thousands View Aurora Borealis

Thousands of Plainfield persons for the first time in their lives witnessed a vivid display of the Aurora Borealis or "Northern Lights," last night. The illumination of the sky began shortly after 7 o'clock and continued with varying degrees of intensity until nearly midnight. The sight was beyond description and those who had never experienced it before were loath to give up watching. In the business district crowds stood at vantage points until after midnight and through the residential sections interested spectators kept the telephones busy calling up friends who might otherwise miss the view.

Last night's display is the most brilliant that has appeared in Plainfield in about twenty-five years. In Northern climes, particularly in parts of Canada, the Aurora Borealis is to be seen many times each year.

James Hart Elected Head of Local Elks

James Hart, of Graham road, was selected by Plainfield Lodge of Elks as exalted ruler at the annual election Wednesday night, to succeed Francis J. Blatz, who has held the office for the past year. The session at which the election took place was attended by one of the largest gatherings that has assembled in the Watchung avenue home for several years and was followed by a reunion among members who had not been out in a long time.

Other officers chosen Wednesday night were as follows: Esteemed leading knight, William B. Mulvey; esteemed loyal knight, Charles P. Beckett; returning knight, Frank R. Emmons; secretary, E. F. Dorman; treasurer, Fred R. Haynes; trustee, for three years, Walter S. Marder; representative to Grand Lodge, Francis J. Blatz; alternate, Walter S. Marder; representatives to State association, Lewis A. Bellis, J. P. Wesner and George O. Stevens; alternates, James Coleman, Chauncey F. Stout and Frank McInerney. The installation ceremies will take place on Wednesday night, April 3.

James Hart, the new exalted ruler, has been a resident of Plainfield only for the past four years, but during that time has been active in the local lodge. He was originally a member of Brooklyn Lodge, No. 21, where he held offices for six years. Mr. Hart is director and secretary of the Lacey Manufacturing Corporation, one of the largest exporters of oil well supplies in the United States. His business experience, coupled with his executive ability, will be of splendid service to Plainfield Lodge during the next twelve months, as the organization contemplates much important work.

Philip Suffern Is Dahl's Successor

Philip S. Suffern, of Kensington avenue, was designated by the Common Council, Monday night, to fill the vacancy in that body caused by the resignation of John R. Dahl, recommendation to this effect was made by Councilman Ackerman, himself a recent appointee, and the subsequent motion was passed by unanimous vote. Remarks were made by Councilman Fort, also of the Second ward, who said that he knew Mr. Suffern personally and that he was sure he would make an excellent representative in the city legislative body.

Mr. Suffern has been in Plainfield practically all his life and is a graduate of the Plainfield High School. He is an expert accountant with offices in New York. With his father, E. L. Suffern, he has audited the Plainfield city accounts on several occasions, and is thoroughly familiar with its financial questions. Mr. Sufforn will take his seat at the next regular meeting of the Council on Monday night, March 18.

JAMES McWADE DIES IN ELIZABETH HOSPITAL

James McWade, whose home was on Craig place, North Plainfield, died yesterday afternoon in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Elizabeth, where he had been undergoing medical treatment for two months. He was sixty-nine years old and had lived here since 1908, coming from New York city. He was engaged for a long time in the architectual steel business.

Mr. McWade's wife died at the North Plainfield home in January last. His near surviving relatives are one daughter, Mrs. Henry Schenker, of East Second street, and two sons, J. Harry McWade, of Watchung, and Frank J. McWade, of Pittsburgh. There are also two sisters, Mrs. Mary Doud, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. George Vanderhoff, of Astoria, L. I.

The funeral will be held at Mrs. Schenker's home on East Second street tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and at St. Joseph's church, the borough, at 9:30. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Big Addition Planned For Saurer Plant

Receiving assurances from city officials that the two water mains on West Front street and South Second street would furnish an adequate supply in case of fire, the International Motor Company has taken immediate steps to erect a large addition to the Saurer plant at Front street and Clinton avenue.

Workmen yesterday began staking out for an extension at the west end of the present factory buildings that will cover the large plot of ground extending as far as DeKalb avenue. The new structure is to be of concrete and steel construction, in conformity with several of the other buildings and will be erected by an outside contracting concern. In dimensions the building will be about 400 feet long by eighty feet in width.

With the addition of the structure as proposed, the Saurer plant will be able to greatly increase its output. Much of its production of motor trucks has been for Government use and the private trade has been greatly handicapped. The concern's first move will be to get the old Safe Works at South Second street and Clinton avenue, which it rents for emergency purposes, and connect the two places by overhead bridge or tunnel under the Jersey Central tracks. When this was afterward found to be an impossibility, the determination to build was held up by the discovery that the Front street water main near the shops were too small for an adequate supply of water in the event of fire. The concern figured it would be better to move the plant from this city entirely instead of enlarging it under the circumstances but on receiving a report from City Engineer Gavett that the South Second street main was near enough for use the plan was changed.

The Saurer plant is one of the largest in the city, employing several hundred skilled mechanics and having a weekly pay roll of many thousands of dollars. With the addition of the new building, the capacity of the shop will be nearly doubled, thus calling for a much larger force than is now employed.

Moose to Honor Members in Service

Plainfield Lodge, No. 316, Loyal Order of Moose, will have a patriotic gathering in connection with the regular meeting next Monday night as on that occasion a service flag bearing fifteen stars will be unfurled. The lodge has this number of members in various branches of military or naval service, and they will be lauded in song and speech. The beautiful big flag is to be displayed in the lodge room for a short time but later is to be flung to the breeze from the flag pole on top of the Abrams building. Beside the stars it will display the name and number of the organization.

The members in whose honor the flag has been prepared are as follows: Sergeant Elmer Terry, now in France; John Joseph Keiderling, Joseph Gordon and Frank Martin, at Camp McClellan; Sylvester Austin, Aviation Corps, Texas; Jocelyn Mead, Camp Lee, Va.; Adolph Doyle and Amelio Cerzetti, 112th Field Artillery, Camp McClellan; E. A. Vail and John J. Goff, naval reserve; Harry Goff, aviation corps, Pensacola, Fla.; Morris Daley and F. Otto Lluke, Camp Dix.

Dictator M. J. Whelan will be in charge during the flag raising ceremon yand the entire gathering will unite in singing patriotic songs. There will also be speeches by officers and relatives of the boys who are wearing the uniform. The program will conclude with a smoker and refreshments in charge of a committee composed of Charles Pagliucca, James Cassidy and Andrew Boldzack.

In the regular business session of the lodge, officers for the coming year will be nominated and a number of applications acted upon.

Public Service Flag Gets Three More Stars

Three more stars have been added to the service dag of the Public Service Corporation's local commercial department, making a total of eight credited to this organization. The last three to don Uncle Sam's uniform are G. Fred Hall, Perry W. Doty and W. E. VanFleet, who left for Camp Dix last week. Hall and Doty are both Plainfield residents, but CanFleet, though working here, has been making his home in Somerville.

The other five Public Service commercial men who were already in the service are Edgar Starker and Alexander Campbell, now stationed at Camp McClellan, and W. E. Boone, Mellville Roseberry and Leo F. Poling, all in the Quartermaster's Corps.

New Prosecutor Begins His Term On Monday Next

Members of the Plainfield Bar Association and other friends of Counsellor Walter L. Hetfield will be in attendance at the Elizabeth courthouse next Monday morning, when the popular local lawyer will be sworn in as prosecutor of the pleas in Union county. The ceremony will be of a simple nature, consisting only of the administration of the oath by Deputy County Clerk Norman but it will mark a complete change in this branch of local judicial service. Mr. Hetfield succeeds Alfred A. Stein, of Elizabeth, who has held the office for the past five years and with the latter's departure his assistant, Martin O'Connor, of Roselle, will also step out. Mr. O'Connor's place is to be filled by Donald McLean, of Elizabeth, selected by the incoming prosecutor for the assistant post and he will be sworn at the same time on Monday.

WALTER L. HETFIELD
Junior Member of the Firm of Reed & Hetfield, Who Will Be Sworn In As Prosecutor of the Pleas In Union County Next Monday Morning.

Mr. Hetfield is not olny the first Plainfielder to be selected for the prosecutorship in Union county but also the youngest to receive this appointment at the hands of a State executiv. He is now but thirty-eight years old yet has had a brilliant career since first beginning the practice of law in Plainfield in 1902. He was assistant prosecutor from 1908 until 1912, an experience which enables him to enter his new position with a full knowledge of the duties incumbent upon him and permitting him to handle all cases with a full measure of justice. For the past fiv years, he has been acting as assistant corporation counsel, although this is but an honorary title. He will continue to serve in this capacity as well as to care for his private practice as a member of the firm of Reed & Hetfield.

With the advent of Mr. Hetfield as prosecutor, the beginning of a notable change will take place in local law offices. The firm of Reed & Hetfield is not to be dissolved, as was

Nation's Chief Approves Choice of W. S. Tyler

President Wilson today ratified the appointment of former Councilman William S. Tyler, of this city, as State Food Administrator to succeed former Governor James F. Fielder. Mr. Tyler's selection was made by National Administrator Herbert C. Hoover, after he had studied the situation in New Jersey and reached the conclusion that a man of experience and ability was absolutely necessary. The name was submitted to the nation's executive after the appointee had signified his intention of acceptance.

Mr. Tyler undertook the job after the Food Administration had tolled for over two weeks to get a citizen of the State interested in the food production, food conservation program, to take over Mr. Fielder's work. The authorities at Washington state there is a vast amount of organization and educational work to be done within the State. As matters now stand it is declared New Jersey is one of the most backward States in perfecting its local organizations for food control.

Mr. Tyler is one of Plainfield's representative men and is counted upon to be of great assistance to the Government in the food problem. For the past few years he has supervised the Woodbrook Farms Dairy, one of the largest of the kind in this section, thereby deriving a practical knowledge of one part of food production. As a lawyer, his business interests have been in New York but he has always taken an active part in Plainfield's civic life. He made an excellent record as a councilman and as a member of the Board of Education gave invaluable aid in building up the city school system.

Coal Sales Investigation Is Going On

State Fuel Commissioner R. C. Jenkinson sent word from his Newark office yesterday that the twelve-dollar a con coal sales in Plainfield were undergoing a full investigation and that a public report might be out within a week. The matter is also undergoing consideration at the hands of the National Administrator, Dr. Garfield, whose assistants are searching the files of Pennsylvania mine owners for the prices paid by the private dealers in Plainfield and why their cars were sent out ahead of those intended for the regular train.

Although the proceedings relative to the twelve-dollar coal have been a matter of public talk for the past two weeks, none of Plainfield's officials have taken any action to learn the facts in the matter in the hands of the proper authorities. It was generally believed that Councilman Ackerman, chairman of the public welfare committee, would bring the matter before the Common Council at Monday night's meeting, but the matter did not come about. The only coal subject advanced was that relating to a plan for securing a uniform price in the city, thus doing away with the seventy-five cents' difference between "Old Line" and "Independent" coal.

All the information that has been given Dr. Garfield and Commissioner Jenkinson has come from private parties who believe that something should be done in the face of the evidence in hand.

Association Will Widen Approach to Belvidere Avenue

Plans for the widening of Belvidere avenue at the intersection with South avenue in order to make an artistic approach to the exclusive Netherwood section are now in process of completion by the Netherwood Residents' Association. The necessary ground for the purpose has been donated by Charles H. Hand and J. F. Horan, who own the two properties on the corners, and all that remains to be done is the actual work after the city's consent has been secured.

Belvidere avenue is fifty feet wide at the point of entrance to South avenue. By the association's plan, a diagonal strip is to be taken off each corner, thus making a width of seventy feet at the beginning and running back forty feet to the original width. Mr. Hand and Mr. Horan give their respective strips gratuitously, realizing what a benefit the improvement would bring about for the entire district.

The Netherwood Association proposes to erect two ornamental bronze electric light columns, each holding a cluster of incandescents for illumination at night. The property owners have agreed to install rose bushes and other floral ornamentations in uniform arrangement, thus giving the corner the appearance of a park approach. It will be easily seen from the Netherwood station and a lasting impression may be made on many a desirable business man seeking a suburban home.

Belvidere avenue is admittedly one of the most attractive thoroughfares in the city. With the disappearance of the old Netherwood Hotel building now almost rare, the tendency to erect even more pretentious residence than what grace either side now would be greatly stimulated and the widening as mentioned will aid the development.

Memorial Service For Rev. Dr. Lowery

The Park Avenue Baptist church will celebrate "Lowry Day" next Sunday, the birthday anniversary of Dr. Lowry, the founder and builder of the church, occurring next week. Special hymns and the regular music of the service will all be taken from the compositions, both words and music, of this gifted man of God.

Dr. Lowry's two sons, Wheaton S. and Robert H., and their families are still actively interested in the Park avenue church.

The music of all services of the day will probably be selected from Dr. Lowry's writings. Some of these are "Shall We Gather at the River?" "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" "Something For Thee," "All the Way My Saviour Leads Me," "One More Day's Work For Jesus" and "Marching to Zion."

Dr. Lowry died in 1899 at his home in this city.

Scott Company Loses Contract

Two Million Dollar Order For Naval Gun Mounts, For Which New Building Was Erected, Goes to New York Concern

Evidence that the Walter Scott Press Works Company had lost a naval contract amounting to $2,000,000 was contained this week in the dismantling of the new building, erected especially for the purpose of turning out three-inch anti-aircraft gun mounts. All the machinery which was installed during the winter has been taken out and much of it is already on the cars awiting shipment to the R. H. Hoe Company, in New York, to whom, it is said, the work that was to have been done in this city has been given. Lieutenant-Commander Chester, who has been in charge recently, will probably leave Plainfield the latter part of next week, taking with him the entire staff of inspectors and yeomen aiding in the Government supervision of the contract.

The navy contract, it has been state, was for two hundred and fifty of the anti-aircraft gun mounts and followed a similar big one for two hundred and fifty 4.7 gun carriages given the Scott Company by the army department. According to the terms, so the story goes, the naval department was to erect an addition to the Scott shop at its own expense and the work was to have been done on a "cost plus" basis. In addition, it is declared, that Mrs. Scott was to have received a salary of $15,000 per year for her part of the supervision as head of the concern and a further salary of $10,000 each year, to be paid on a yearly basis to Walter Scott, David J. Scott and Alexander Scott, all of whom are connected with the concern.

The necessary machinery to turn out the mounts has been in place for some time but no actual work on the contract has been done. It is understood that three of the mounts were to have been ready for shipment by the first of March, but as they were not forthcoming the Naval Department took action. It seemed because of existing conditions that the ordnance would not be gotten out anywhere near on time and as war emergency demand supplies absolutely on time, if not ahead of time, it seemed advisable to adopt precautionary measures. In consequence, so it is said, the entire naval contract was turned over to the R. H. Hoe Company, which has one of the largest machine shops in the metropolitan district.

What is to be done with the new building addition to the Scott shop has not been made known at this time. It is probable that it may be bought in by the concern in order to facilitate the work of turning out the 4.7 gun carriages which are also behind in schedule.

The only explanation advanced for the slow progress made in getting the gun mounts out was the failure of materials to arrive because of existing railroad conditions and the scarcity of the skilled labor absolutely necessary in ordnance work.

Plainfield Boys Now "At Home" Camp Greenleaf

Almost in the shadow of Lookout Mountain and Missionary Ridge, made famous by battles on their crests between Federals and Rebels in Civil War days, twenty Plainfield men are now ensconced as a portion of the selected troops stationed at Camp Greenleaf, Lytle, Ga. They arrived at that picturesque point in Pigeon Mountains, Wednesday night, after a thirty-six hour ride on a special train of Pullman cars leaving Newark at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning. All were tired by the tedious trip and were delighted when they reached their billets, where, after the usual preliminaries, they were assigned for the night. Since then they have been going through the quarantine stage and as soon as this is over they will become a part of the division now being formed.

Sixteen of the contingent mentioned were from Plainfield, three from North Plainfield and one from North Plainfield township. The special train carried in all about 200 men, forty of them coming from Essex county, fourteen from Elizabeth, and the remainder from various points along the New Jersey Central as far as Trenton and including a large delegation from the Somerville district.

The special reached Plainfield about 9:50, pulling into the North avenue station in front of a crowd of over 1,000 persons. As the Plainfield boys climbed aboard they were given three rousing cheers under the direction of Chief of Police Wm. Kiely, otherwise there was no demonstration. The sixteen walked to the station in charge of J. Robert Sherwin, of East Seventh street, who had been appointed sound leader. On assembling at exemption headquarters for the usual final words of instruction, they were addressed by Mayor Leichton Calkins and the Red Cross distributed knitted goods and comfort kits.

The North Plainfield boys assembled Monday night in the borough Council rooms and were addressed by Mayor Wilbur Emery. They also received donations of needed articles of clothing and comfort kits from the North Plainfield chapter of the Red Cross.

The list of Plainfielders selected to go to Camp Greenleaf was changed several times until almost the last moment of departure. Martin J. Fidley and George L. Shanley, who had been cited to leave with the sixteen, were taken out at the last moment. Flatley was accepted by the navy department for secret work a few days previous and Shanley was held back by Dr. Lotburrow because of illness. These are the Plainfield district men who are at Greenleaf, located about twenty-three miles from Chattanooga, Tenn.:

Fred G. Boening
George J. Curtis
John R. Sherwin
Edwin C. Reiseschmidt
William J. Broen
Walter M. Bell
Percy M. Schenkel
Charles Francis Foster
John Fitzpatrick
Rudolph Buck
Herbert J. Williams
J. W. LoPoidevin
Albert Williams
Michael J. Conroy
Filippo DiNizo
Edward A. Walter

Those who went from North Plainfield were: Harry Weiss, P. W. Kellam and W. J. McCarthy. The North Plainfield township men who accompanied the borough lads to Somerville where they were inspected before leaving for Bound Brook as a point of departure, was J. W. Pavillard of Mount Horeb.

Lincoln Mask Excites Much Local Comment

William M. Walsh, Jr., the druggist, North and Watchung avenues, has in his window a mask of Abraham Lincoln of unusual interest, as no death mask is known.

Clark Mills made a life mask and this is pictured in the life of A. L. by Nicolay and Hay. There is little similarity—the one shown by Mr. Walsh simulates death and is really beautiful in its expression and execution.

The original from which it was made is said to have been found by the celebrated artist of Plainfield, the late Julian Scott, in an antique stor here. William A. Schorb, the auctioneer, found it among the effects of the late H. P. Reynolds, of this city, and bought it in at his sale of the personal property of Mr. Reynolds, deceased. It would be of great interest to know if any one had access to the death chamber and really did make a death mask of which this is a replica.

FRANK T. McINERNEY GOES WITH N. Y. CONCERN.

Frank T. McInerney, of Park avenue, the well-known contractor, has given up his business in town to accept a position as superintendent of construction for the Albert Meyer Company, of New York, which has several big government contracts for heat treating furnaces.

One of the first of the furnaces to be built is for a plant near Detroit and Mr. McInerney will leave for that city today. Later he will go to Norfolk, Va., where one of the largest furnaces and equipment in the country is to be installed for naval use. The Meyer Company is an old established concern and has main offices in the Singer building.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

Fred Douglass, of Stone street, the borough, who has been an active member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, for the past ten years, has been appointed deputy for Pythian district No. 20, which includes Plainfield, Bound Brook, Somerville and Neshanic. He succeeds Peter V. Hall, of Neshanic, incumbent of the office for the past year.

William Taylor, of Fairview, avenue, the borough, who has been in the Aviation Corps for several months and is now stationed in Texas, was recently promoted to the position of flight commander.

John Hope, of this city, who recently pleaded guilty to a charge of misappropriating $121.81 belonging to the Plainfield Cab Company, by which he was employed, will be sentenced by Judge Carlton P. Pierce at Elizabeth today.

Oliver Drew, whose home is on Spooner avenue, suffered the loss of two fingers beside receiving a badly smashed hand through an accident at the Spicer plant at South Plainfield a few days ago. He was operating a punching press which descended before he fully appreciated its high rate of speed. He was treated by Dr. Albert Pittis, and later attended to at Muhlenberg Hospital.

David T. Kenney, general chairman of Watchung Council's committee in charge of the local end of the Knights of Columbus War Camp Fund drive, has issued a letter of thanks to the people of Plainfield and vicinity for their generous contributions amounting in all to $14,600. The largest donation to the Plainfield fund was made by Charles W. McCutchen, of North Plainfield, who gave his check for $1,000.

Frank M. Wagner, who has conducted a newspaper and stationery business at 251 West Front street, has disposed of the place to Abraham Pagin, of Newark. The latter has removed the business to the Drier building at Madison avenue and Front street. Mr. Wagner, who first came to Plainfield twelve years ago as proprietor of the Union News stand at the North avenue station, has not announced his plans for the future.

At the meeting of the Common Council, Monday night, the salary of Stephen Staats, clerk at fire headquarters, was increased from $60 a month to $75. The salary of William Schroeder, clerk at police headquarters, was increased from $40 to $50 per month.

Lydia Chapter, No. 41, Order of the Eastern Star, held a successful card party and dance in the banquet room in the Babcock building, Wednesday night. The affair was attended by a large number of members and their friends. Mrs. Guy Peck was chairman of the committee in charge.

Thomas J. Maher, who has conducted a blacksmith and horse shoeing business at 320 Park avenue for several years, has sold out to John J. Kliner. The latter will combine the two businesses at the large blacksmith shop which he erected at 430-432 West Second street, three years ago.

The Chapman Bible class of the First Baptist church has elected the following officers for the coming year: President, Mrs. L. M. Case; secretary, Miss Althea Vail; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Catherine Cubberley; treasurer, Miss H. W. Claire.

The young men of the Park Avenue Baptist church have organized a Bible study class to be known as the "Robert Lowry" Bible Class. The first meeting was held last Sunday with forty-eight members enrolled and the following officers were elected: President, Francis R. Mortimer; vice president, Ira Van Arsdale; treasurer, Percy Terry; secretary, E. F. Dorman; assistant secretary, George R. Crateley. This committee is now at work upon a suitable constitution and by-laws: T. S. Casner, R. H. Lowry, Dr. Walter J. Swafield.

The headquarters of the Plainfield Red Cross Chapter is in need of additional workers, and an appeal has been sent out for volunteers. The work of this organization has become urgent in this time of national distress, and it is suggested that those who can give any of their time, however short, report at headquarters as soon as possible.

Smelling smoke in the hallway, an employe at Tuxell Inn made an investigation Sunday afternoon and discovered flames in a guest room occupied by Frederick Tunison. A telephone call brought apparatus from fire headquarters and the blaze was put out with chemicals. The damage will amount to about $100. Mr. Tunison had left the room only a few moments before the discovery was made and is at a loss to understand how the flames originated. A desk and private papers belonging to Mr. Tunison were among the articles destroyed.

James Paul Streeter, one of Plainfield's oldest and best known residents, is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital, following a fainting spell which came upon him on West Front street a few days ago. Mr. Streeter is in his eighty-fourth year and has been the possessor of excellent health up to the present time. He will be kept at the institution pending a full diagnosis of his case.

The North Plainfield annual district school meeting will be held in the Somerset School, Tuesday night, March 19. At this time the budget of $37,690 will be voted upon and three trustees will be elected to succeed Charles L. Holstein, Morris McGrath and C. William Krause. The budget has been apportioned as follows: For building and repairs to schoolhouses, $1,000; current expenses, $35,040, and manual training, $1,000.

At a meeting held at the home of Mrs. J. W. A. Bauerschs, of Grandview avenue, the Ladies' Aid Society of Grace M. E. Church elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Joseph S. Darby; secretary, Mrs. A. G. Nelson, and treasurer, Miss Carrie Barnes. This will make the ninth consecutive year that Mrs. Darby has held the presidential chair. The society will hold a social at the home of Mrs. W. J. Conroy on Fairview avenue on Friday, March 22.

At its meeting and annual session, Tuesday night, the Dutch Arms Band elected the following officers for the coming year: President, Arthur B. Cole; vice president, Elmer P. Wheeler; secretary, L. B. Dodine; treasurer, G. E. Volk; director, Edmund D. Young, and assistant director, Calvin Koch. The financial report showed that the past twelve months had been unusually successful and engagements already booked indicate that the band will be busy during 1918.

Miss Elsie Goddard will give a song recital in the Hartridge Auditorium on Saturday, April 20, under the auspices of the local chapter of the Red Cross. The proceeds from this recital are to be given by Miss Goddard to the Belgian committee for the tractor, which has been ordered by the committee for the district of Moselle, where Mrs. Duryea is doing such wonderful work in rehabilitating the devastated country.

Class 6, of Trinity Reformed church, held a business meeting, Tuesday night, at the home of the teacher, Mrs. A. B. Cole, on Fairview avenue, and elected officers as follows: President, Alice Voorhees; vice president, Edith Kirchner; secretary, Alma Allegar; treasurer, Laura Schleif.

Elisha Albert Russell, proprietor of an alleged gambling resort for colored men at 542 West Third street, was fined $50 when arraigned before Judge DeMeza in the city court Tuesday morning. In company with several frequenters of the place, he was caught in a raid conducted by Captain John Flynn and Patrolman Walsh. Fines of $10 each were imposed upon Arthur Dillard, Arthur Lucas and Elias Minton, while sentence was suspended upon Eugene Britton and James Ross. In court the same morning, Paul Novak, twenty-three years old, was fined $50 after admitting stealing copper from the International Motor plant, where he was employed. He paid the fine in preference to going to jail for sixty days.

Owing to the severe illness of Miss Edith Mellick, the recital which she was to have given on Wednesday night for the benefit of the local Red Cross chapter, was of a necessity postponed. Miss Mellick has since recovered and the affair will take place in the Hartridge Auditorium tonight.

Division No. 4, A. O. H., has completed all plans for its forty-third annual St. Patrick's Day ball, to be held in Columbus Hall next Friday night, March 15. Music will be furnished by Professor Brogan's Tango Band, of Elizabeth, for those who prefer the modern steps, while Irish jigs will provide accompaniment for jigs and reels, the latter holding forth on the lower floor of the building.

A communication received at the meeting of the Common Council, Monday night, stated that the State Board of Health had approved of the plans for improvements at the Greenbrook sewage disposal plant. The Joint Sewage Commission will meet tonight to prepare the necessary specifications in order to proceed with the work at once. The cost is estimated at $35,000.

GOETHALS SAYS SOLDIERS ARE GIVEN GOOD FOOD.

American soldiers are fed wholesome, nutritious food, Quartermaster-General Goethals declared today, answering a suggestion of Mayor Mosher, of Walnut, Iowa, that a dark war bread be substituted for bread made of flour which he contended was "bled white" by the millers. Goethals pointed out that army experience in the past shows that undiluted whole wheat caused stomach trouble, but he added that certain substitutes were being tried in many camps, wherever possible, so as to save high patent flour for shipment abroad.

New Thoroughfare Will Be Accepted As "Emma Street"

Considerable amusement was caused at Monday night's Council meeting, by an attempt of Councilman Hylan to have a newly opened thoroughfare in the West End accepted by the city under the name of "Myrtle" place instead of "Emma" street, as originally planned. Vigorous opposition to the name of "Myrtle" place was made by Councilman Graves, who later received assistance from Councilman Fort. Mr. Graves' contention was that "Myrtle" place sounded too much like Myrtle avenue and the uninitiated were apt to be confused. He pointed out numerous instances of which streets in Plainfield bearing practically the same name had proved of great annoyance.

"It seems to me," the opposing Councilman said, "it would be far better to do away with some of the similar names was already have instead of adding more."

The new thoroughfare, however, was almost on the verge of being accepted under the name of "Myrtle" place when it was discovered that maps already filed with City Engineer Gavett designated it as Emma street. There was nothing else for Councilman Hylan to do but forego his choice of appellation and the ordinance of acceptance went through on first and second reading with no mention of "Myrtle" place.

The street in question runs from West Front street to Myrtle avenue, midway between Mariners place and Clinton avenue. It was originally laid out about forty-five years ago by Edward P. Thorne, but was not developed as planned. The Standard Investment Real Estate Company, of Dunellen, which includes Fred H. Firstbrook, F. R. Haynes and Nicholas Nicolsen as members, purchased the tract a few years ago and put the street through in order to secure suitable building lots. The thoroughfare has been macadamized, curbed and sidewalked and several fine houses have been built on either side.

The Standard Company discovered that Mr. Thorne had named the street "Emma" after his wife, a title which they held during the early stages of development. Just who conceived the idea of changing the title to "Myrtle" place was not known by Mr. Hylan when introducing the resolution.

In the routine business transacted by the Council at Monday night's meeting, Joshua D. Loizeaux and others sent a communication asking that a storm sewer be installed in Arlington avenue at the corner of Randolph road, where the petitioners state the street is impassable at times, because of surface water lodging on the sidewalks. The matter was referred to the street committee.

A contract entered into with the city by John S. Dahl, to superintend the construction of the new City Hall was read and filed.

The Overseer of the Poor reported expenditures for last month amounting to $944.36. The commissioner of deeds reported seven permits granted last month and $7 collected. The City Clerk reported receipts of $497.50.

On recommendation of the City Hall Building Committee the payment of $183.28 to the Storm Waterproofing Company; $230.15 to Miller & Brady and $194.23 to Den J. Galbraith was approved.

A resolution offered by the Finance Committee directed the Collector of Taxes to refund $1 to the Jersey Central Railroad. The sum was collected as an assessments for East Fourth street improvements.

The Mayor and City Clerk were authorized to borrow $1,100 on notes to meet current expenses for which no appropriation was made. This money will be raised by assessments and the sale of bonds.

The request of Floyd T. Woodhull and others to have Stelle avenue macadamamized between Kenyon avenue and Arlington place, was returned by the Street Committee for filing. Chief Brian stated that the improvement could not be made this year.

The Gayle Hardware Company was the lowest bidder for furnishing picks, shovels, lanterns and other supplies to the Street Department; the Allen B. Laing Company was lowest on automobile supplies; Barber Asphalt Company, on asphalt; Barrett Company, on tar, and National Slag Company on slag.

On March 18 the Council will receive bids for a ten-ton steam-roller.

The City Clerk was authorized to advertise for bids for furnishing a tractor for No. 1 hose wagon. Proposals will be opened on April 1. Junkmen licenses were granted to fifteen applicants.

LEGALIZED BOXING BECOMES REALITY IN NEW JERSEY.

Legalized boxing became a reality in the State of New Jersey Tuesday afternoon when Governor Edge signed the Hurley boxing bill.

The bill which passed both Houses of the recent Legislature, legalizes eight-round bouts with eight-ounce gloves. Boxing bouts will be held under the supervision of a State Boxing Commission, to be appointed by the Governor and to serve without compensation.

It also provides that bouts must not be held any place where liquid is sold.

The Governor also signed the bill establishing a negro welfare bureau.

John J. Casey Goes To Portsmouth, Va.

John J. Casey, of 450 West Third street, who enlisted in the army sanitary corps last fall, was on Tuesday night notified by the Washington authorities to proceed immediately to Portsmouth, Va., where he is to be chief sanitary inspector for the Fifth Military District. His work will consist mostly of caring for the civil population in regard to hygienic surroundings.

Mr. Casey has been connected with the Plainfield Board of Health for the past four years, first as assistant health officer and later as inspector. He received his State certificate as sanitary inspector in December, 1914, since which time he has had charge of much important work. He is the son of Mrs. Catherine Casey, of West Third street.

Collis Case, another inspector in the Plainfield Board of Health service, was called by the Government early last month to take charge of the sanitary work in the military district at Houston, Texas. His enlistment in the army was as a member of a medical corps for overseas work but because of his experience in sanitation and hygiene he was designated for the sanitary department at home.

New Jersey Gunners All in One Brigade

Members of the old Second Infantry Machine Gun Battalion now assigned with those of the Third Infantry to Company B, of the Divisional Machine Gun Battalion, have been moved into the Fifty-seventh (New Jersey) Brigade to become a part of the 111th Machine Battalion commanded by Captain Charles Silvester, of Princeton. The 110th, or Divisional Machine Gun Battalion, has been located since organization at a point on the reservation three miles closer to Anniston than the brigade of Jerseymen and the machine gunners have been almost entirely cut off from divisional activities. This sake-up in companies has been occasioned by the decision of divisional authorities to cut the 110th Battalion down to three units and to add an extra company to the 111th Battalion.

Ordnance Sergeant William H. Meyer, of Roselle, has been transferred to the 104th Engineer Regiment from the ordnance depot, and the following New Jersey artillerymen were this week sent to the Rock Island arsenal at Rock Island, Ill., to take a twenty-eight day course in field artillery repairing: Mechanics Anthony Gargula, of Pleasantville; Anthony J. Kendis, of Leonardo; E. R. Schaafs, of Newark, and John Sautter, of Montclair, and Chief Mechanic George Hoffman, of Newark, and George C. Hendrickson, of Wenonah. The following artillerymen will go to Peoria, Ill., for a short course in tractor repairs: Corporal Louis Arnheim, of Atlantic City, and Privates William Muratta, of Bloomfield, and William A. McGovern, of Newark.

Saturday promises to be a big day in the lives of the Jersey engineers. Enlisted men and officers from the old New Jersey Engineer Battalion, Company G, of the Second Infantry, Company L of the Third, and a number from other Infantry regiments go to make up the regiment commanded by Colonel Ralph Ward. Part of Saturday morning's inspection period will be taken up with a review of the instruction given the engineers up to this time. The program will include bridge building, grenade throwing, trench digging and various other military events in which men of this service branch specialize. Competition among units is keen and rehearsals are being held daily.

Plainfield's Mayor In State Organization

Under the provisions of an act just passed by the legislature and approved by the Governor, the New Jersey State Council of Defense, comprising the mayors of each municipality in the State, has formally organized with the selection of Governor Edge as honorary chairman, and Thomas L. Raymond, of Newark, as active chairman. The council has been in existence without legal sanction practically since the war was started, and grew out of the activities of the Governor in this direction, assisted by the New Jersey State League of Municipalities.

Leighton Calkins, of this city, and Clarence E. F. Hetrick, of Asbury Park, and Mayor Champion, of Ocean City, were chosen vice chairmen. Claude H. Anderson, of Princeton, was made secretary. He has been acting in this capacity for more than ten months, he having taken the position at the outbreak of the war.

WIZARD EDISON'S SON EXEMPTED FROM DRAFT.

Charles Edison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Edison, of Llewellyn Park, West Oranse, has been sustained in his request for deferred classification in the draft, as managing director of an industrial enterprise. Mr. Edisdn, who is chairman of the board of directors of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., has been placed in Class 5.

Since the declaration of war his father, an honorary president of the Naval Consulting Board, has been devoting much of his time to Government interests.

ELKS' COMMITTEE PLANS A "CAMOUFLAGE" DANCE.

"Camouflage," the latest French word injected into general use by the American War correspondents, has been employed by the Plainfield Elks' Dance Committee, to designate its next formal reception on March 21. The affair is to take place at the Watchung avenue home and ordinarily would be described as a "Masquerade." As the term is new and novel the committee trusts that those planning to attend fall in line with the idea and come in some sort of distinctly different costume. The wearing of soldiers' or sailors' uniform is to be strictly frowned upon, the idea existing among the promoters that honor should not be detracted from those who have the right to wear them.

The dance committee, of which Frank R. Emmons is chairman, is arranging for many unique features, principal among them the decorations. As this is the last affair to be held under the auspices of the 1917-1918 committee organization, special emphasis is to be laid on the "wind-up." Venable Brothers' orchestra will furnish the music.

News of the Theatre

New Howe Pictures Coming Next Week

Hunting the kodiak bear and the capture of a wild mountain lion are two very exciting films offered in Lyman H. Howe's Travel Festival, which will appear at the Plainfield Theatre, on Wednesday and Thursday, next week.

The lion roping pictures were taken at the risk of the lives of the hunters—a hardy mountaineer of the great northwest and his brave wife—and of the photographer who followed the dangerous animal and finally recorded its capture in the films. Another hunting film of great interest concerns the Kodiak bear, which is the largest of the bear species and one of the most feared animals in the world. These beasts, weighing in the neighborhood of a ton, roam the forests of Alaska, and hunting them forms one of the daring sports of that far-off land.

In addition to the "thrills" and exciting part of the program Mr. Howe has not overlooked the educational features which are less hair-raising, but none the less interesting. A journey through China is one of those and the series treats comprehensively with every phase of life in the Celestial Empire. It is at once geographical, historical and scenic, hence very instructive. In the course of this Oriental tour Howe "travelers" will see Dragon-boat racing, a Chinese wedding, sacred tombs of the Emperors, the walled city of Pekin, the Forbidden Palace, and many unusual scenes that have never been photographed before.

The wonders of Alaska, showing avalanches of ice and snow falling from huge glaciers, remarkable views of leaping salmon, weird totem poles, dredging for gold, and various other incidents which are typical of our northernmost territory, constitutes a feature of great educational and entertainment value.

The program also includes spectacular scenes of Holt caterpillar war tractors in action in Uncle Sam's army, a day and night at Coney Island, and a liberal quota of fun-creating animated caricatures and film novelties, as well as many other entirely new and widely diversified subjects.

"Hello America" Coming Attraction

"Hello, America," with Lewis and Dody, which comes to the Plainfield Theatre next Tuesday afternoon and night, is without question of doubt the most beautiful production ever seen in burlesque. It is high class and very much out of the ordinary. The curtain goes up on the first act to a dark stage, showing the Goddess of Liberty and a big steamer coming in port, beautifully illuminated and calls for big applause. As the lights come up, a pier on the North River is shown and the chorus come ashore from the steamer and the action is started. On this steamship, which has come from Europe, is the balance of the company and during the voyage a beautiful diamond garter has been stolen from the American Girl, around which centers the plot. The second scene is the stage door entrance to the Republic Theatre and the third scene is the stage back of the scenes, showing a company in rehearsal and stage life as it really is, which is a laugh from start to finish. The fourth scene shows the dressing rooms and the fifth, which closes the first part, is the most beautiful setting ever seen in any production—a patriotic scene in France with transformations showing heroes of our present World's War, with a marvelous gun drill by the chorus, which simply brings the audience to their feet.

The second part also opens to a dark stage, showing the Capitol at Washington, beautifully illuminated. In this act some wonderful novelties are introduced and also a minstrel first part with 50 people in the circle, which is a scream. The music is all specially written and of the kind you hum and whistle for months after. The wardrobe is all new and beautiful. Everything is new. The chorus of 30 girls can sing and dance. Lewis and Dody, the two principal comedians, will make you laugh in spite of yourself, and Primrose Semon, the American girl, certainly can dance. She is a wonder. And with Kitty Glascoe, Ina Hayward, Frank Wakefield, Arthur Conrad and Jean Turner form a company and show that stands at the top in burlesque.

Manning Sisters On New Vaudeville Bill

The new program which was presented at the Plainfield Theatre yesterday for the first time and will be continued until tomorrow night, mark the return of the Manning Sisters, three singers and comediennes who are great favorites with local vaudeville lovers. They were seen here several weeks ago, making such a decided impression that Manager Shannon decided to engage them a second time. The wisdom of his action was apparent when the sisters came before the curtain with a medley of new songs and even "closer" harmony than that produced at their previous engagement. They were encored repeatedly, responding each time with something further until their repertoire was practically exhausted.

The new bill also presented a novelty in the appearance of Drawee, Frisko and Hambo, presenting a pleasing juggling conception entitled "The Hottentott Hotel." Drawee is an old timer on the vaudeville stage and is responsible for all the originality in the act. Hambo is a colored assistant and "Frisko" is a sagacious dog who deserves the honor of having his name on the bill.

The program of six numbers is rounded out by Gracie Emmit and Company, in a comedy playlet, "Just One Moment." The Two Emersons, comedians; Allen and Green, singing and dancing, and Shanley and Guran, in a comedy skit. There are also new moving pictures and the latest Pathe weekly.

For next Monday night's attraction, Manager Shannon has secured the feature photo-play, "Alimony," from the pen of Hayden Talbot, the well-known young playwright who has to his credit a number of American and European successes of the speaking stages. It is a smashing big drama, dealing, as the title indicates, with the subject of divorce, and containing an eloquent plea for the elimination of those acts of legislature that permit unscrupulous lawyers to win "easy money" divorce decrees, through the medium of the referee system.

Lewis & Dody, with "Hello, America," at Plainfield Theatre, Tuesday Matinee and Night, March 12.

As Others See Us

Under the caption of "Purity Plainfield," recent events in this city are discussed by Town Talk, Newark's leading weekly periodical, in the following manner in its last issue:

PURITY PLAINFIELD.

This Holier-Than-Thou Burg Has Mighty Queer Ways of Doing Things.

Plainfield is a queer old gingity gink community, according to its own newspapers. Its commuter population abhors drinking at home, but hit it up good and strong on their own account in Newark or New York, where the neighbors can't see.

Then they get the holier-than-thou notion of public business by tipping off their friends to a competitor's figures for work, so that the friends can meet, or come under the figures. Nice and honorable tactics, to be sure. The general law, or idea, of fair competition does not apply to Plainfield, presumably.

Why not?

Now it is charged that a newspaper editor and an employe of the Board of Education took an undue advantage of the strenuous coal situation to speculate for their own profit, and sold coal at prices and in quantities contrary to the Fuel Administrator's regulations. This is going some for a sanctimonious burg.

WESLEY A. O'LEARY GETS STATE SCHOOL APPOINTMENT.

State Commissioner of Education Calvin N. Kendall at the last meeting of the State Board of Education announced the resignation of Assistant State Commissioner Lewis H. Carris, who has been in charge of industrial education, including agriculture, in this State. Wesley A. O'Leary, director of the County Vocational School of Essex, was appointed to succeed Carris, which was confirmed by the State Board. The position pays $4,500 a year.

MR. MINGLE HONORS ELIZABETH HOME GUARD.

Harry B. Mingle, president of the Standard Aircraft Corporation, gave a dinner to the members of the Elizabeth Home Guard a few nights ago in the big dining room connected with the plant at Bayway. He arranged the gathering as a mark of appreciation to the organization for so quickly responding to the call for protection, when trouble seemed imminent a month ago.

First Plainfielder Wounded Begs Permission To Remain "Over There" For the "Big Finish"

Sergeant William E. Maguire, the first man enlisting from Plainfield to be wounded in action on the French front as told of in the issue of the Record, December 7 last, has again written the members of the "supper club" at Ahern's restaurant. He was a member of this social "organization" before resigning his position as foreman for the P. F. Kenny Company on the City Hall job in order to enlist in the First New York Engineers early last June. According to his last letter, he is still under treatment in a hospital but because of military restrictions is unable to make any definite statement about his condition. Inferences, however, indicate that he has been made unfit for further service and may possibly be invalided home.

Sergeant Maguire is a typical American lad, made of the "right stuff" and hates to be shipped back to America without giving a better account of himself. For that reason he has asked to be allowed to remain under treatment in France in order to be on hand when the Kaiser is finally put down and out.

In his letter, Sergeant Maguire mentions having met a young man from Plainfield in France named Brandegee. He evidently refers to William Brandegee, who formerly lived with his parents on West Seventh street and who enlisted in the ambulance service last summer. The sergeant also refers to Dr. Chalmers L. Crist of the Medical Corps. It was through the enthusiasm displayed by Maguire that Dr. Crist realized that the war was not intended for a few but meant every one and proffered his services to Uncle Sam. Here is Sergeant Maguire's newsy and cheery letter:

February 13, 1918.

No. 8 American Base Hospital.

Ladies, Gentlemen and Friends:

Once more I had the extreme pleasure while opening my mail to note that I had received one from that favorite place called Plainfield and can assure you that it received my full consideration at once. I gleaned from the same information on such matters that always occupy my dull brain even in this country, called "Sunny France."

I am very sorry to hear that the "Knights of the Long Table" are slowly disappearing but as it is for a good cause we will put up with it but I can safely say and feel that such representatives as we have there now will uphold the dignity and honors of rules and regulations of the same.

Very glad to be informed of Dr. Crist's address and will proceed to write him my congratulations and thanks which, even so belated, have the same old feeling of high esteem.

I was afraid that the work of reading and trying to read my last message had been too much and had put the firm out of business, but by the tone of your letter I see you still have survived, for which I will thank the Lord in my usual evening prayer.

Have been transferred to another American hospital and it is an excellent place with a fine corps of doctors and nurses, with all five to one near that grand old City of New York.

Have met a young chap here from Plainfield named Brandagee and he is a fine chap. He is connected with the unit here.

Sorry to hear about the City Hall, but I have a letter from Julian Graves, Kenny's superintendent, and he thinks every thing will soon be fixed up. I feel sorry for him because he has worked so hard to give you people a building which will be a credit to your city, and I know that he will do all he can to get things moving, because he is a man that likes to earn what he gets and does not like to be kept idling around.

Just a few lines now about life over here. We have a Y. M. C. A. here with movie shows and concerts and while I could not compare them to the last show we view together at the Plainfield, nevertheless, they are fine. The place is situated in a little French village, which has excellent surroundings with especially fine scenery, but landscape and otherwise, and with enough "Yanks" around to give it a good U. S. flavor.

We were visited by Mrs. B. Harriman a few nights ago and she gave a very interesting talk of things in England, France and from home, which I surely enjoyed.

With the preparations that are going on here in France it will be God help Kaiser Bill when the U. S. boys get started, as they have the old pep and spirit that cannot be denied.

Kindly give my best wishes and regards to all my friends who attend that document, as it certainly makes me feel good to hear from friends at home.

I was to be sent home for treatment and rest but have requested a transfer to a lighter position so as to be allowed to stay in France until everything is over. I have every reason to believe that I will get a favorable answer, so when writing me again kindly send to following address without any title attached as I will be automatically reduced by transfer but will accept most anything if they will let me be in at the finish, even if not with the same old company and regiment that I learned to be a soldier with at Fort Totten, namely, Company F, Eleventh Engineers, which has been an honor to belong to.

Well, I will have to close, hoping that you all will try and wear out that typewriter in sending me another desirable message like the one I just received.

With an everlasting friendship, I remain, as ever,

WILLIAM E. MAGUIRE.

WILL NOT APPEAL CASE.

Syman Hirsch, the local merchant who was fined $50 by Judge James C. Connolly, after his conviction on a charge of misrepresenting goods, has paid the amount and, it is understood, will make no appeal of the case. The charge against Hirsch was pressed by the Plainfield Business Men's Association, which had received numerous complaints of a similar character.

THE NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

It is not an imitation nor yet an interpretation. It is a Re-Creation; so complete and satisfying that no human ear can detect a shade of difference between artist and instrument.

The famous tone tests in which 30 great artists have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison have established the truth of this assertion. Over 1,500 of these tests have been held; over 2,000,000 people have attended them. And invariably the New Edison met the ordeal successfully. Not one person could distinguish between the voice of the artist and that of the instrument.

Plainfield, New Jersey, Friday, March 8, 1918.

WHAT ARE THEY GOING TO DO?

The Common Council has the full approval of the citizens in its plan to secure a uniform charge for "Old Line" and "Independent" coal. The matter was broached at the regular meeting Monday night and it was stated at the time that a committee would be sent to Washington, if necessary, in order to obtain a satisfactory adjustment. We trust it will not be necessary to go to this extreme but if it should come about, every householder will gladly bear his share of the mission's cost.

The difference between the two supplies of household fuel was fixed by the Government and has been told of in the Record several times, but the people either cannot comprehend or refuse to understand the situation. Because of mining coal in great quantities, the "Line "companies can keep down the cost of production, thus enabling them to give a better rate to the wholesale dealers. The "Independent" companies are usually very small concerns, having limited fields and limited facilities, thereby making their expenses much higher than those of their rivals. In order to keep the "Independents" in business, the Federal Commission, after a long investigation, decided to allow them seventy-five cents more per ton than the limit fixed for the older companies.

It is this seventy-five cents extra which is making a lot of trouble in Plainfield and will prove even a more irritable thorn in the side of the local dealers as the present tense situation becomes relieved. Naturally, a man will object to paying a certain price for a ton of coal when his neighbor gets practically the same thing for seventy-five cents less. The "kicks" have been made repeatedly but it is a condition over which the yards have no control and those getting "Independent" coal had to stand the higher price or go without. When the scarcity of the commodity began earlier in the winter, the Plainfield dealers were getting about eight per cent. of their shipments from the "Independents." Now it is fully sixty per cent. and increasing daily, hence it is plain to be seen that pretty much all of the coal to be delivered in Plainfield soon will be of the "Independent" price. When a man wants fuel at almost any cost, the seventy-five cents does not seem so big but later on, with warm sunshine and no need for furnace heat, it will be an entirely different story.

It is this situation which the Council has recognized and which it plans to carry to Washington if necessary, in order to have a standard price fixed for coal. The people want it and in justice to them and the dealers they should have it. But why did the Council not go further in delving into coal prices? Surely it does not need to be told any more facts about the twelve dollar proceedings of several weeks ago? The whole story has been on the tip of every one's tongue since the Record first made it public and one of the Council's committees even threatened to take some action. The little spurt, however, died in its infancy and the disgruntled public has waited in vain for some form of official action.

By all means, Mr. Councilman, do something about the "Old Line" and "Independent" prices. It is your duty to do so and the thanks of your constituents will be your reward. You have shown that you are keeping in touch with the situation and that's why your laxity in a matter of vital importance is all the more apparent. You certainly have acquainted yourselves with the government fixed prices. You certainly have heard of how in the midst of a critical period the established rate was exceeded by nearly three dollars and you cannot help but know that the people are asking for an investigation. If you have convinced yourself that there is no need of getting a full explanation or fear the opposition that might develop from certain influential quarters, why don't you at least be men enough to make a public statement? It is due the people and they want it.

The Public Affairs Committee has been entrusted with the task of getting information on the uniform price proposition. This is composed of Marion S. Ackerman, chairman; Charles S. Sminck, Leslie R. Fort, Philip Suffern and Chauncey L. Hight. It is the duty of these gentlemen to start the investigation that the people of the city are demanding and to each one of them direct we ask the question point blank: "What are you going to do about it?"

PROTECTING THE SHOPPING PUBLIC.

The imposition of a fifty-dollar fine on Syman Hirsch, the Plainfield merchant convicted of misrepresenting goods sold in his store, will, it is believed, have a far-reaching effect in Plainfield. There was no intention on the part of the Business Men's Association which brought the matter to the attention of the courts, to maliciously prosecute the defendant merchant in behalf of a competitor as has been charged. Complaints have been received that such unscrupulous methods were being used in dealing with the shopping public and as a representative organization it sought to end the evil.

The Association did not make its charge until several women had told of transactions that did not seem to be bona fide. It was determined to obtain the absolute facts and to this effect several hundred dollars were expended for expert advice and detective work. The Association believes that those who do business open and above-board and by only honest methods should be protected in fair competition and when they learned that at least one dealer was not keeping in full accord with the law, their prosecution followed. The trial given Hirsch was fair and impartial and in fact no technicalities were considered in presenting evidence. Judge Connolly, himself, realized fully what a conviction would mean to the defendant as far as his future business career was concerned and advised the jury to weigh the facts carefully before reaching a decision. The jurymen deliberated for several hours and on deciding that Hirsch was guilty as charged, recommended mercy on presenting their report.

The Business Men's Association had no desire of a heavy fine of prison sentence, although the law provides both for such an infraction. All it wanted was to show that it had been right in its conclusions and put a stop to a practice which not only kills fair competition but seems to have been quite prevalent in Plainfield. There has already been a noticeable change in the methods of other merchants and it is quite probable that patrons will hereafter receive a square deal. The thanks of the community are due the men who brought about the change.

CONFUSION IN SIMILARITY OF NAMES.

We congratulate Councilman Graves on the stand he took in opposing a plan to burden Plainfield with another street name similar to one already on the maps. There has been altogether too much of this sort of thing in the past and the councilmanic body would do far better to get rid of a portion of the nuisance instead of making it greater. Other cities have adopted the plan of prohibiting new streets from being accepted under a designation sounding like other familiar for years and the plan is proving of great benefit to strangers ignorant of local sentiment or custom.

The proceeding which caused the Fourth ward representative to voice his objection followed Councilman Hylan's introduction of an ordinance to accept a new thoroughfare in the West End. Originally, it was laid out as "Emma street" nearly half a century ago, but was never developed, although it was placed on the city maps. Recently an investment company carried out the intention of the original speculator and the street is now a fact instead of a fancy. The good, old fashioned name of Emma is distinctly different than that held by any other thoroughfare in the city but when the ordinance was present, Mr. Hylan wanted the name to be "Myrtle place." His reason for this, he explained, was because the new street ran from West Front street to Myrtle avenue and the suggested appelation seemed mor appropriate. It was at this point that Councilman Graves frowned upon the suggestion, voicing his remonstrance in words that showed he meant business. He received support from Councilman Fort because the latter has been subjected to the annoyance of two Cedarbrook roads, but it looked very much as though it would be "Myrtle place" when City Engineer Gavett came to the rescue. He told how the maps already bore the name of "Emma street," therefore it could not be accepted as something else.

That ended the discussion for the time being but it is likely to rise again at any time. It is well to realize how much truth there is in the statement that Councilman Graves made when he told of Park acenue, Park lane and Park place as evidence of how confusion can come about. He might also have given such examples as these: Third street and Third place, Sycamore avenue and Sycamore street, Washington avenue and Washington street, Arlington avenue and Arlington place, Central avenue and Central street, and numerous others which correspond with North Plainfield names. Only those who come into the town with no idea of its geographical conditions or locations can appreciate what it means to mistake "street" for "place" and go a mile or so out of the way. Surely, there are plenty new names to be passed out, so why make the lot of the stranger any more irksome?

• • • • • •

THE MAN IN THE STREET WOULD LIKE TO KNOW.

Public Laws 917, page 319, Chapter 152 (Home Rule Act), Article xxxvii, Section 23, paragraph 461, says:

"No member of any governing body of any municipality shall, during the term for which he shall have been elected or appointed such member, be eligible for election or appointment to any office required to be filled by any such governing body of which he is such member; provided, that this restriction shall not apply to any office required by law to be filled by a member of such governing body."

Is it possible that the appointment of Councilman Dahl to be supervisor of construction at the City Hall might conflict with this ruling? To the man in the street, unfamiliar with the fine points of the law, it seems as though it does.

WHAT'S BECOME OF THE GOOD OLD DAYS—

When the boys played "prisoner's base?"

When the "hoop skirt" was considered the proper caper?

When Mayor Buckle used for the first time his copyrighted expression: "Human nature is the same the world over?"

When boardwalks helped to keep Plainfielders from getting into the mud but tripped many an unwary pedestrian when they got out of position?

When the kids were lined up early in the spring and given generous doses of sulphur and molasses as a preventative of blood troubles?

When "Jack" Benner kept the road house on South avenue and George Thatcher ran the "Maples" a stone's throw away?

When the dramatic education of local young people began with their witnessing the productions of "East Lynne," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and "Ten Nights in a Bar Room!"

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

Well, it's here all right. Yesterday we chased a robin off our window sill.

Keep your eye on that plan of the Council to buy a new ten-ton steam roller. Those foxy old boys have something big up their sleeve and you might just as well be prepared.

Plainfield is surely getting down to date. Its daily newspaper has reached twenty-five years ago and the city fathers have an argument over the acceptance of "Whoa Emma" street.

A Pennsylvania doctor pauses in the mad rush of war to warn us there is danger in the home medicine chest. You bet your sweet life there is; especially when the head of the household accidentally puts the mercury tablets where the liver pills ought to be.

In a preliminary statement concerning the third liberty bond issue, Secretary McAdoo says, among other things, that "The beginning of the sale should be marked by public mass-meetings, parades, the ringing of bells, the lighting of bon-fires and other forms of patriotic demonstration." If Mr. McAdoo wants anything like that to take place in Plainfield he will have to appoint himself a committee of one and come here to start things going. When the dear old burg let sixty-eight selectives start on their long journey toward the trenches without so much as scaring up a second-hand fife and drum corps, how could it be expected to wax enthusiastic over a mere matter of dollars and cents?

Monday night's issue of the Courier-News contained the following article on the editorial page:

"The Government has done well to act promptly in pursuing men charged with stealing $5,000,000 worth of army cloth. Whether or not these particular men are found guilty of this charge there are plenty of vultures looking for chances to plunder. They need an instructive object lesson. Great calamities bring out the noblest and the meanest in human nature. A great national emergency leads the majority of people to heights of sacrifice. They rise above their former petty selves. But some look at it merely as a chace to steal and rob. At great fires and railroad disasters there are always a few ghouls who will loot houses and pick pockets. It is pitiful that human nature will sink so low. War brings the same temptation to low minds. They think that when everyone is busy and pre-occupied they can play their little game."

Wonder if any of this could be applied locally?

Board's Report of Last Examinations

The Plainfield District Exemption Board made the following disposition of local registrants who were examined at the Evergreen Avenue School last Saturday:

Those accepted for general military service were:

Fred G. Boening, George J. Curtis, John Robert Sherwin, Edwin C. Reinschmidt, Percy Schenkel, William P. Breen, Walter S. Bell, Harold LeRoy Williard, Charles F. Foster, John Fitzpatrick, Randolph Buck, J. W. LaPoidevin, W. W. Bruce, Nicholas DiDonato, Claude Bill, Peter F. Shannon, William Hand, Raymond S. Morrell, Vincent Bociaro, John Dean, Massino Coletta, Theodore Deloe, Irving H. Mann, John J. Coffee, Raymond VanNest, Domenick Capperelli, Frederick E. Wenzel, Isaac Elliott, Jr., Carl F. Bock, John J. Conesky, Collins Washington, Harvey I. Rothberg, Adolph Schlachter.

The following were accepted after examinations on transfer from other boards:

These men were referred to the Union County Medical Advisory Board for another examination:

Swen Gilberg, Gustave Kramer, Ell Bussell, Charles Eliason and Richard W. Barry.

Andrew Palmer was put in a special limited class, and Elmer H. Morris was the one registrant rejected because of physical defects.

Salt Production Denies Rumors of a Shortage

The rumor that there is a general shortage of salt in the United States has no foundation, as is shown by the following statement made by the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior. Estimates of the production in 1917, compiled by R. W. Stone, show a total of more than 6,946,000 short tons, an increase of 583,000 tons, or nine per cent., over the production in 1916. As the largest domestic consumption on record, that of 1916 was less than 6,500,000 tons, and as the imports in 1916 were less than two per cent. of the total consumption, it is evident that the country is in no way dependent on a foreign supply for its salt for the domestic production is ample. Any local or temporary shortage that may have occurred in the last few weeks of 1917 was due mainly to congestion of freight.

The increase in production was induced by higher prices and brisk demand, and was made in spite of unfavorable conditions at some plants. Shortage of labor, difficulty in obtaining fuel, and an inadequate supply of freight cars are given as reasons why some plants did not make an even larger increase.

Estimates of the production of salt in 1917 by States, in short tons, are as follows:

California	178,000
Kansas	726,000
Michigan	2,294,000
New York	2,175,000
Ohio	954,000
Texas	86,700
Utah	65,000
West Virginia	20,000
Nevada, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Porto Rico and Hawaii, Idaho, Louisiana, Virginia	447,300

Car Shortage Threatens Big Loss in Foodstuffs

Warning that great quantities of foodstuffs are spoiling in the United States because of lack of transportation facilities was sounded in the Senate this week. Western Senators declared that their constituents are sending them great numbers of messages that warehouses are packed because there are no cars to move the food to market.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, declared that he had taken the matter up with the food administration and with the director-general of transportation and had been promised that everything possible would be done. Senator Poindexter, of Washington, said he hoped Director-General McAdoo would "make good" on his public statement that he would send cars to any place where there were foodstuffs to be moved. Senator Poindexter declared that if this was not done producers would be greatly discouraged, causing a serious falling off in the next year's production.

Senators Kellogg, of Minnesota, and Smith, of Michigan, also said conditions in their States were critical for food producers.

Government in Need of "Massage Girls"

"Massage girls" are wanted by the Army Medical Corps for army "reconstruction hospitals."

They must pass rigid army tests and come up to these specifications:

"Not less than sixty, nor more than seventy inches in height; not less than 100 nor more than 195 pounds in weight; must be experts in massaging and must bear good moral characters."

The following courses will be given at the American School of Physical Education, Boston; New Haven Normal School, New Haven; Normal School of Physical Education, Battle Creek, Mich., and Reed College, Portland, Ore.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

ROBERT STUART.

The body of Robert Stuart, a former well-known resident of North Plainfield, who died at his home in New York last Friday, was brought to this city Sunday, noon and burial took place in the family plot in the North Plainfield cemetery. A short service was held at the graveside for the benefit of local relatives and friends who could not attend the formal service in New York. Relatives acted as pall-bearers.

Mr. Stuart, who was seventy-four years old, had been ill only a few days with pneumonia and complications. He was a native of this vicinity but had lived in New York a long time. His last local residence was on Manning avenue. He had been retired from active work for several years.

Mr. Stuart is survived by two daughters, and two sons. They are: Mrs. Harry Webster and Robert Stuart, of New York; Mrs. Charles Hart, of Trenton, and William A. Stuart, of Elizabeth. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. Margaret Cornell, of Brooklyn. Mr. Stuart's wife was the late Harriet E. Allen, of North Plainfield, a sister to Mrs. Warren Squier, of Pearl street, the borough.

MRS. JENNIE V. PANGBORN.

The funeral of Mrs. Jennie V. Pangborn, widow of Isaac N. Pangborn, whose death occurred Saturday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Lyman, of 76 Washington avenue, the borough, was held at the residence Tuesday afternoon. The service was in charge of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, of which the deceased had been a life-long member and was attended by a large assemblage of relatives and friends. Burial was in the family plot in Evergreen cemetery.

The pallbearers were two sons-in-law, Charles H. Lyman and W. H. Western, and two grandsons, Charles P. Lyman and George Ray Lyman.

Mrs. Pangborn was born in Plainfield eighty-one years ago, her maiden name being Miss Jennie V. Chandler. Her husband, who died in 1897, was one of the city's best known contractors and built many of the largest buildings standing in the business and residential districts today. As a member of the First M. E. Church, she was active in all its branches and long ill health permitted, which was up until a comparatively short time ago.

Beside Mrs. Lyman she is survived by one other daughter, Mrs. W. Hull Western, of Madison avenue; also three grandchildren, Charles P. Lyman, of Cheshire, Conn.; George Ray Lyman, of Waterbury, Conn., and Helen Western, of this city. There are also one sister and two brothers surviving. They are Mrs. D. J. Hulick, Forrester, Chandler and William Chandler, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

MRS. WILLIAM C. CLAASSEN.

Mrs. Marie C. Claassen, wife of William Claassen, died Monday morning at her home on Liberty street, after an illness of only ten days with neuritis. She had been about as usual up to the forepart of last week and though her ailment was one that she had suffered from before, it was not believed that she was in any danger until just previous to the end. Her demise came as a great shock to the wide circle of friends she had in the city and borough.

The funeral was held at the late home yesterday afternoon and was in charge of Rev. John Y. Brook, pastor of Trinity Reformed church. The large gathering in attendance included a delegation from Iona Council, D. of P., of this city, and the Eastern Star, of Elizabeth, to both of which the deceased belonged. Included in the great mass of floral tributes were set pieces from the members of the Plainfield fire department, of which Mrs. Claassen's only son, Jens P. Claassen, has been a member for many years and from the fraternal organizations mentioned. Burial was in the family plot in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Claassen was the daughter of the late Jens D. and Anna C. Hansen. She was born at Hadersleben, Germany, on May 20, 1857, but had lived in Plainfield since she was twenty years old. Her home practically all this time had been in the West end. She was one of the original members of Iona Council an organization in which she had been very active for a long time. She was a woman who readily made and kept friends and one who was always ready to offer her services for the benefit of others.

Mrs. Claassen's death is the second to occur within her immediate family in five weeks. A brother, Martin Hansen, died at his home on East Seventh street on January 31 last, after one week's illness with pneumonia. Beside her son, Jens, she is survived by three sisters and two brothers. They are Mrs. C. C. Scofie, *of Boston, Mass.; Mrs. Sophie Ren*son, of Dunellen; Mrs. Peter Markey, James C. Hansen and Barthold P. Hansen, of this city; also one grandchild, Dorothy Marie Claassen.

CHARLES D. CLARK.

The funeral of Charles D. Clark, whose death occurred at his home at 406 East Sixth street, Wednesday morning, will be held at the late residence tonight at 8 o'clock. Rev. John Y. Brook, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, will be in charge. A further service will be held under the auspices of Plainfield Lodge of Elks, to which Mr. Clark belonged, and the members of which will attend in a body. Exalted Ruler Francis J. Blatz will conduct the ceremonies, Past Exalted Ruler George O. Stevens will deliver the eulogy and the Elks' quartet will sing. Burial will be made tomorrow morning in the family plot in Hillside cemetery. The pall-bearers will be: B. Frank Coriell, George O. Stevens, James F. Buckle, Harry Liefke, L. B. Woolston and Garret A. Dunham.

Mr. Clark was born in New York forty-four years ago, his parents being Mr. and Mrs. James B. Clark, descendants of old New Jersey families. Ten years ago he removed to Plainfield and from the first day of his local residence fitted himself into the social and civic life of the community. He was in every respect a "man's man," already jovial and democratic and at all times ready to "lend a hand" to a friend in sickness or distress. For the comparatively short time that he lived here, he formed a remarkable number of friends and acquaintances, to each of whom news of his death came with deep regret. The illness which resulted in his demise first became apparent about six months ago. Although not confined to the house, his condition gradually became worse and several weeks ago it was realized the end was near.

From the time that he completed his education, Mr. Clark had held responsible positions in New York city. His last employment was as manager of the J. B. Bloomingdale estate, an office which called for the successful handling of many hundreds of thousands of dollars. He resigned about three years ago, since which he had practically been retired.

The deceased leaves his wife, who was Miss Elizabeth Palmer; one daughter, Miss Mildred Clark; a son, Charles Clark, and a brother, James H. Clark, of East Fifth street.

HERBERT A. DRAKE.

Herbert A. Drake, the infant son of Frederick and Louisa Drake, died yesterday morning. The funeral will be held at the parents' home on Mountain avenue this afternoon, and will be in charge of Rev. C. W. F. Attlee. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

HARRY V. REILLY.

Harry V. Reilly, aged twenty-six years, died Wednesday morning at the home of his mother, Mrs. Mary E. Reilly, of Jackson avenue, the borough. He had been ill but a short time with pneumonia and complications. The funeral will be held in St. Joseph's church tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock, this early hour being appointed in order to place the body on the 8:22 train for Ashland, Pa., where burial will be made.

Mr. Reilly was born in Ashland, but had lived in Plainfield since 1907. He was a steamfitter by trade, his last place of employment being with a New York concern. Beside his mother, he is survived by two sisters and two brothers, the Misses Mary and Elizabeth Reilly, Edward and Frank Reilly, all living in the borough.

DE WITT G. DE FOREEST.

DeWitt G. DeForeest, for forty-four years connected with a New York custom house, died Wednesday morning at his winter home on Park avenue. He had been ill but a short time. The funeral will be held this afternoon at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. Harold S. Beebe, of Willow avenue, the borough, and will be in charge of Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presby*terian church. Burial will be in* Hazelwood cemetery, Rahway.

Mr. DeForeest was born in New York in 1844, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. DeForeest. He was appointed to a position in the custom house when a young man and remained there until the beginning of his last illness. He was widely known in this section as he maintained a summer home at Potter's Crossing and spent many of his winters in Plainfield.

Beside Mrs. Beebe, he leaves one other daughter, Mrs. W. H. Emmons, of Brooklyn, and two sons, John DeForeest, of Randolph road, this city, and P. Edward DeForeest of Newark. There are also surviving two sisters and a brother, the Misses Lizzie and Ella DeForeest, and Lawrence V. DeForeest, of New York.

MRS. JOSEPH MORSE.

The funeral of Mrs. Jennie M. Morse, wife of Joseph E. Morse, whose death occurred at her home on East Seventh street late Monday night, was held at the residence yesterday afternoon. The service was private and was in charge of Rev. Howard E. Clarke, pastor of the Congregational church, of which Mrs. Morse had been a devoted member during her thirty years' residence in Plainfield. The floral offerings included numerous set pieces from the church societies, officials of the Tidewater Oil Company at Bayonne, where Mr. Morse, the bereaved husband, is consulting engineer, and from friends of the family. Burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Morse was born at Oriskany Falls, N. Y., seventy-four years ago. She was the daughter of Honorable David Miner, who, in his day, was one of the most influential and best known residents in Central New York State. Mr. and Mrs. Morse came to this city in 1883, making their home on Franklin place and residing there until a few years ago, at which time they took an apartment on East Seventh street. The illness which proved fatal to Mrs. Morse began with heart trouble four months ago, and although a great sufferer at times she bore her affliction uncomplainingly. Early last week pneumonia came as a complication which, in her weakened state brought about the end. Mrs. Morse was a woman of strong Christian character and one whom every one considered it a pleasure to know. Her demise has been deeply felt by her hosts of acquaintances.

Beside her husband, Mrs. Morse is survived by one daughter, Miss Minnie G. Morse, of East Seventh street, and one son, Charles Burdette Morse, of Watchung avenue. The latter was at one time editor of the Daily Press and is now manager of a New York concern. There are also surviving Mrs. Morse, two brothers, Willard G. Miner, of East Seventh street, and E. B. Miner, of Oriskany Falls.

Plainfield Lads Meet By Chance In French Camp

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fay, of North avenue, are in receipt of two letters from their grandson, Daniel Sandford Pugh, who has been in France for several months as a member of the Aviation Signal Corps 78th Aero Squadron. The young man is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pugh, of Harrison, formerly of Plainfield, Mrs. Pugh having been Miss Annie Fay previous to her marriage.

In one of the letters, the soldier lad writes of meeting John Muir, of Plainfield, in the same camp at which he is stationed. Mr. Muir is also a member of the 78th Aero Squadron and has been in France since last fall. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Muir, of West Sixth street, who also have another son, Joseph Muir, doing service in France.

The letters of Mr. Pugh are of interest to his many friends in Plainfield and, deleted of the personalities, are given as follows:

Somewhere in France,
January 7th, 1918.

My dear Grandma and Grandpa:

I suppose you have been wondering what has become of me. I am in the best of health and working hard every day. I cannot say very much and that is one reason why I don't write as often as I would like to.

Well, we are in a wonderful country and it sure is beautiful, but none of these countries in the Eastern hemisphere can compare with the dear old U. S. A. They are too old fashioned and no speed whatever. Why I guess there would be a panic over here if a regular train pulled through.

Here is a coincidence for you. When I went back to New York, why I met John Muir, of Plainfield, and then I was three weeks over here when he came to the same camp. I was talking to him yesterday and he was sure glad to meet me. I cannot find any trace of Jack but believe me I am watching for him at all times. Sometime I hope to get the chance to go and see where Dan Daly is buried. I would certainly be glad to find out all about him.

Well, folks I haven't much more to say outside of sending you my best love and hoping you all are in the best of health. I remain,

Your loving grandson,
SANDFORD.

France, Feb. 15, 1918.

Dear Grandma and Grandpa:

Well, folks I cannot say much, so this is only a few lines to let you know that I am in the best of health and working hard every day.

Where we are now it is quite cold and believe me, we feel it. After being in so many different climates since enlisting I think I could live in any country in the world.

There is so much to say and I am allowed so little to write about that it is hard trying to compose a letter.

It looks to me as if this blamed old war is drawing to a close and the world will be safe for Democracy.

It is quite surprising how big I have gotten since being in the army. I am about six foot one and weigh about one hundred and forty-eight pounds and as hard and as tough as a man could get.

Your loving grandson,
SANDFORD.

PERSONAL

Sergeant Max Hansen, who has been at Camp McClellan since last summer as a member of the Field Artillery, has been at his home on East Seventh street the past week on a ten days' furlough. His father, Martin Hansen, died on January 31 last, but he was unable to return to Plainfield at that time. Since beginning his furlough, his aunt, Mrs. Marie Claassen, of Liberty street, also passed away.

Mr and Mrs. Henry E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue, have been entertaining their daughter, Mrs. Ethel Bowen White, of Boston, during the past week.

Lewis Harding, of Laramie road, was home for a few days this week from Picatinny Arsenal at Dover, where he is stationed as a naval reserve, doing yeoman duty.

Mrs. Thomas J. Land-Brown, of Englewood, formerly of this city, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Winifred Land-Brown, to Colin Esterbrook Carter, son of Dr. Colin C. Carter and Mrs. Carter, of New York city. Mr. Carter is a nephew of Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court Charles E. Hughes and Mrs. Hughes. He is now in the officers' training camp at Pelham Bay naval base.

A commission as first lieutenant in the aviation corps has been secured by Monroe H. Long, son of Mrs. Monroe H. Long, of Park avenue. He recently completed his preliminary course and after passing all examinations was sent to the aviation field at Lake Charles, Louisiana.

Harold Leadbitter, of 828 West Fifth street, has returned from Poughkeepsie, N. Y., to which place he was called Monday by the death of his mother, Mrs. George Leadbitter, of that city. Mr. Leadbitter is the son-in-law of Jeremiah Van Winkle, also of West Fifth street.

Lieutenant George C. Ruby, stationed at the Scott Press Works for inspection duty as a member of the Ordnance Reserve Corps, was married on Saturday of last week. His bride was Miss Ruby Wheat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen C. Wiest, of York, Pa. The ceremony took place in the Bethany church, York, and was witnessed by many relatives and friends. Lieutenant Ruby's home is also in York but he has been stationed in Plainfield for several months. The young couple are temporarily residing at Pruch Court.

Otto Moor, superintendent of the Wood Printing Machinery plant on South Second street, continues to be seriously ill at his home on West Front street. A New York physician was called in consultation recently and reached the conclusion that his ailment is a kidney trouble.

Fred B. Abel, of Watchung avenue, the borough, who recently enlisted in the aviation corps, is now stationed at the training field in Pensacola, Fla.

Mrs. Margaret Luf and family will move from Bound Brook to Plainfield on March 25.

Edward P. T. Smith, of the borough, is seriously ill in a New York hospital with pleural-pneumonia. He is the son of Captain and Mrs. William C. Smith, of Grandview avenue.

Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Walter J. Swaffield, of East Ninth street, are entertaining their daughter, Miss Millicent L. Swaffield, of Boston, also their grandniece and grandnephew, Esther and Hartwell Swaffield, children of Rev. W. Douglass Swaffield, of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes Fawcett, of Rockview avenue, the borough, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Lillian Fawcett, to Lieutenant Chalmers Wolfe Tone Overton, son of T. Chalmers Overton, of North Plainfield. Lieutenant Overton is attached to the 117th Infantry, U. S. A., and at present is stationed at Fort Sevier, S. C.

Mrs. Edward J. Harding, Jr., and children, who have been stopping with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Harding, of Laramie road, left yesterday morning for Washington, where they will again make their home.

Theodore P. Vail, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Vail, of Orange place, has enlisted in the Twenty-third Engineers Corps, and is stationed at Camp Laurel, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. "Bud" McGinley, of East Sixth street, are the parents of a daughter born to them a few days ago. Mrs. McGinley was formerly Miss Rose Kreger, of EastFourth street.

Charles W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue, the borough, has been spending the past two weeks at Hot Springs, Va.

Stryker Hoagland, of Manning avenue, the borough, spent the past week-end with friends at Dover.

Andrew H. Wilson, of Craig place, the borough, left for Anniston, Ala., the forepart of the week for the expressed purpose of visiting his nephew, Douglas Demler, of Watchung, who has been stationed at Camp McClellan as an enlisted man.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sefton, of West Third street, left Tuesday for Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where Mr. Sefton has secured an excellent position with a large manufacturing plant. They will make their home in that city in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. David W. Allen, of West Third street, are the parents of a son, born to them recently at Muhlenberg Hospital.

Mrs. Walter Droll, of Park avenue, has been confined to her apartment in the Sterling building by a severe illness of two weeks' duration.

Mrs. J. William Wagner, of West Fifth street, is recovering rapidly after an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital. She was discharged from the institution last week.

Governor Edge and President Besler Confer On Hudson Tunnel for New Jersey Central

Governor Edge said Wednesday, following a conference in New York on Saturday with William G. Besler, of this city, president of the New Jersey Central, regarding improvement of travel facilities between New Jersey and New York on the Central, Baltimore and Ohio and Reading Railroads, that he was disposed to believe that the construction of a new tunnel from Communipaw might be preferable to attempting to connect the Central with the Hudson and Manhattan tubes. The conference was a preliminary step in the campaign to get government aid.

The Governor pointed out that a new tunnel from Communipaw could be so constructed as to tap every important lateral in New York, of which there are five between Ninth and Third avenues. It was his view that because of the large number of commuters carried by the Central lines, it is even more important that they should be connected directly with New York than is the case with the Pennsylvania.

Among the questions specifically discussed at the Saturday conference were the physical and engineering difficulties to be surmounted either in connecting the Central lines with the Hudson and Manhattan terminals by means of a loop from the Communipaw station or of tunneling the Hudson at that point so as to give direct access to New York.

Mr. Besler assured the Governor there were no serious engineering difficulties to be overcome and said that the proposed projects, which had been given careful consideration before the railroads came under government control, had been abandoned because of the expense involved. The estimate of cost made by the railroads' engineers ranged from $18,000,000 to $20,000,000. He promised to send the Governor an engineering report, showing how the details had been worked out.

Symphony Concert Worthy of Support

The concert by the New York Symphony Orchestra, under Dr. Walter Damrosch, to be given in the High School Auditorium on Thursday night, March 14, should receive the support of every lover of the best music in this vicinity.

The Dutch Arms Band, under whose auspices this concert is given, deserves hearty support, as they are not offering something which is not worth while, but that which is the best in music in the world today. They also deserve support because of the unselfish services rendered during the present crisis. They have always been ready and willing to render their services without charge, whenever music of a martial or patriotic nature was required, and still stand ready to do so upon call.

After the concert given last year Mr. Damrosch expressed himself as greatly pleased with the reception accorded him and his organization, saying, "I have never played before a more appreciative audience nor in a better auditorium. I was very much surprised to find such a fine and well adapted place for music in a city of this size."

Those who attended last year will not want to miss the concert this year.

Although tickets are selling rapidly there are still plenty of excellent seats to be had. Buy them now at Vogel & Briggs' studio, 310 West Front street.

More Money For Aircraft Means Much For Standard

The War Department has asked Congress for an additional appropriation of $450,000,000 for aircraft purposes.

Of this sum $250,000,000 is to extend the aircraft program and $200,000,000 to pay deficiencies created by purchase of aircraft for which the money had not been appropriated.

In a letter transmitting the department's request no details were given as to the classes of aircraft to be purchased. The Military Committee will at once dra ws bill providing for the necessary appropriation.

Should the bill go through, it is believed that a large portion of the new orders will come to the Standard Aircraft Corporation, of this city, which has been held back from working on later models because of the Government's withholding of financial aid. There is also a belief that the appropriation would permit the Standard people to turn out the Caproni warplane models, the rights of which have been purchased from the Italian authorities. The new Bayway plant of the Standard is fully equipped for the construction of these huge aerial machines.

Takes Exception to Editor's Statement

In a recent editorial article, the New York Herald said among other things that "Governor Wilson foisted upon the States James Edgar Martine as Senator from New Jersey." His assertion, which every right-minded Plainfielder knows, is not true, was taken exception to by Henry E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue, an admirer of "Farmer Jim" and for many years one of the foremost figures in the metropolitan newspaper world. He now retired after twenty-five years of service alone on the New York Herald staff, but this did not deter him from calling the newspaper's attention to its mistake as pointed out in the following letter to the editor, printed this week:

To the Editor of the Herald:

It is hardly fair for the Herald to charge that Governor Wilson foisted upon the States James Edgar Martine as Senator of New Jersey. Governor Wilson was the father of the "open primary" law. Mr. Martine was the choice at the first open primary under the new law of the Democratic party by a very large majority, much more, I believe, than all those named by the Republican party against him combined.

Personally Governor Wilson may have regretted that he was placed in the position of favoring Mr. Martine, but to be true to himself as the father of the bill he could not have done otherwise than he did when he threw his earnest support to "Farmer Jim."

If Governor Wilson had wavered in the least he would have lost the support of the thousands of independent voters in New Jersey who were opposed to continuing in power the "bosses" who for years had ruled the State, and he would not have been seated in the Presidential chair for two terms if he had opposed the people's choice for Senator.

If Governor Wilson had been really the personal friend of Mr. Martine, would he not have favored his election for a second term. This he did not do. President Wilson, I believe, was only interested in keeping faith with the great majority of the voters favoring the "open primary." * * *

Regarding Governor Edge's appointment of David Baird for Senator pro tem, at the next election, you probably will see the great independent vote in our State condemning Mr. Edge by not voting for him as the successor of David Baird.

Completes Twelfth Year As County Detective

County Detective John A. Galatian, of Elizabeth, this week completed his twelfth year as police officer in Union county. The event was fittingly observed at the Elizabeth court house, where one of the men extending congratuiations was former Prosecutor N. C. J. English, who appointed the detective to his present position in 1906.

During the years he has directed the rounding up of criminals all over the county he has seen three prosecutors come and go, and within the next two weeks Mr. Galatian will witness the induction of Walter L. Hetfield, the fourth man, into office. After Mr. English, C. Addison Swift was appointed and then Alfred A. Stein.

Chief Galatian started out to be a lawyer and even spent several years studying in a law school at Elmira, N. Y., his home town. He finally decided that would be too tame an existence for him and he entered police work, becoming eventually captain of detectives for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad on the New York side.

In 1903 he took up his residence in Elizabeth and three years later accepted the appointment as county detective. During the intervening time he made many important arrests.

At present Chief Galatian is assisted by two men, a third having been called into active war service. John Walsh and Joseph Buckley are assisting him now. Both were appointed in 1913. Francis V. Lowden, who was appointed in 1912, left on a leave of absence last May and is now a second lieutenant at Anniston, Ala.

Hadassah Appeals To Jewish Women

The following appeal has been sent out to the various chapters of Hadassah, the Jewish women's organization, as well as to Jewish women not yet identified with it.

"Jewish women are wanted—Jewish women with Jewish hearts—to give a little of their time to help rush clothes to the suffering women and children in Palestine. They are needed by Hadassah to help make garments, baby's clothes and women's, so that they can be rushed quickly for early shipment to Palestine. Any day now Hadassah expects to receive word that the moment has arrived when it can put aboard the ship the thousands and thousands of garments that it has been assembling from all over the country, and it would be a thousand pities if even a single garment had to remain behind in the country when willing hands to help get them ready for packing.

"Thirty-five cases have already been packed and are in storage awaiting shipment, but there are still thousands of garments to be made up and packed and Hadassah appeals to the Jewish women to come to the aid of the Jewish babies and women of Palestine and volunteer their services."

Women who are prepared to help in this work are asked to communicate with the chairlady of the sewing circle connected with the local charter of Hadassah, Mrs. Benjamin J. Kline, 823 West Front street, telephone 1657-J, Plainfield.

Boys of Company A Honor Major Parker

Major Ralph Parker, who has been in command of the Second Battalion of the 311th Regiment since its organization, has been relieved of his duties at Camp Dix in order that he may preturn to a cavalry command. He has done excellent work while at Dix, and in order to show their appreciation the men of the various companies in his command tendered him farewell entertainments. Major Joel F. Spingarn, who has just returned after a two months' leave of absence, will again take over the command of the Third Battalion, and Major Marshall Stearns, who has been the acting commander during his absence, will likely be given command of the Second Battalion, as he has just been assigned to the regiment.

The theatrical troupe of Company A, 311th Regiment, will present $100 Reward" at Mount Holly Opera House on March 20. The members of the company are also rehearsing another play entitled "The Fox Trot," which will be given early in April.

Miss Margaret Wilson returned to New York, Tuesday evening, after a visit to Dix that will be long remembered by the soldiers, especially the sick in the hospitals, where she sang Tuesday afternoon. In the early evening she repeated her programs in two Y. M. huts.

Rt. Rev. P. J. Hayes, auxiliary bishop of New York, who was recently placed in charge of the army and navy chaplains, visited Camp Dix Tuesday and received very favorable reports concerning the religious work and the co-operation afforded by the Y. M. C. A. workers. After the conference he visited division headquarters, where he met Major-General Hugh L. Scott, and afterward he was taken on a trip around the cantonment.

Third Liberty Loan Starts on April 6

Congress will determine the billions the Government intends to borrow in the third Liberty Loan.

The date has been formally set by Secretary McAdoo as April 6—anniversary of America's debut into the world conflict. The standing authorization for Government bonds stood this week at $3,600,000,000. As the big loan is to run much past this figure, McAdoo said recently, he will ask Congress for new authorization.

Besides the added sums to be borrowed under the comigg loan this authorization it appeared likely will make provision for the other big loans to be floated before many more months pass to pay the Nation's ever mounting war bills.

That Congress will do McAdoo's bidding was not seriously questioned. That divers proposals will be offered, designed principally to restore the stability of the "Liberty Loan market" was, however, regarded certain from recent Congressional talk.

The third loan will step before the National footlights on April 6, with a packed audience of eager Americans. Never in history will a National loan have entered with such elaborate preparations to give it a whirlwind send-off and keep it moving. Millions of graphic posters, thousands of speakers and the personal efforts of millions of workers—already at work—will sarry the Liberty gospel into the country's every corner.

"The campaign," said Secretary McAdoo, "should begin with great demonstrations of patriotism in every city, town and hamlet in the country. On this date—April 6—every American should pledge anew to his Government the full measure of his resources and resolve to make every required sacrifice in the same fervent spirit that impels our gallant sons in the trenches of France and on the waters of the Atlantic to shed their blood in America's sacred cause."

Serious Question Presented by Sales of Liberty Bonds

With Liberty Bonds selling at 96 on the stock market, stabilizing the "liberty market" and keeping bonds near par constitute serious financial questions, Secretary McAdoo said this week in a communication to the House Ways and Means Committee.

McAdoo estimates that about $180,000,000 worth of the bonds have been resold, of which about half have been New York Stock Exchange sales.

Increasing interest rates is not the remedy, the Secretary states. "It is the veriest circle to have to face increased rates on successive issues," McAdoo said. "The British have tried the system of setting aside one per cent, of each issue to buy the bonds offered in the open market, but that has proven ineffective."

Several bills to this effect are now pending in Congress.

"If the Government should offer to buy all bonds offered," McAdoo continued, "it makes the loan nothing more than a demand obligation. I have not felt that the Government could afford to take any position like that. If we set aside $100,000,000 to buy back the bonds at par it would be an invitation for all holders to sell and the fund would soon be exhausted."

McAdoo mentioned a great educational campaign so that the people would keep the bonds and not sell them unless absolutely necessary. The decline of the bonds, he said, was due to a multiplicity of causes.

"I think there are a few disloyal people who sell the bonds at a discount in an effort to hurt the Government's credit, but this is a small percentage of the sales. In the campaign many persons were told they could resell at any time. Others, particularly the small bondholders, have found it necessary to sell because they needed the money. Many merchants exchanged bonds for merchandise with the expectation of cashing them in."

McAdoo said his proposed war finance corporation, with its power to buy and resell Government bonds in emergencies, would do much toward stabilizing the Liberty Bond market.

"Joe" Merrable Made Barbers' Instructor

"Joe" Mirrable, a widely known Plainfield barber, who was employed by William Fehring at the time he enlisted in Company K last June, has received a signal honor at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala., where he is now stationed as a member of the 113th Infantry. The commanding officer recently designed him to act as instructor for the Barbers' School established in the 29th Division and he now has a big class of rookies learning how to properly care for soldiers' head and facial adornment. There is a chance also that "Joe," now only listed as a private, may be elevated from the ranks as a result of his splendid showing as a teacher. Military oath would permit him receiving a sergeant's decoration.

"Joe" is about twenty-five years old and of Italian birth. He came to Plainfield about five years ago and so quickly became fully Americanized that when war broke out he determined to fight for the Stars and Stripes. He was one of the first local men to volunteer after the declaration on April 6, declaring to the recruiting officers of Company K that he was willing to enter any branch of the service just so long as he could be of assistance to Uncle Sam. The physical examination showed him to be in fit condition and he was gladly accepted as a member of the Plainfield National Guard organization, since merged with the 29th Division in camp at Alabama. "Joe" went to Sea Girt with the militiamen and from the day of his first roll call has been one of the most popular volunteers in the outfit.

Information about the Plainfielder's selection as chief instructor for the unit's barber school came yesterday to Charles Pasliucca, secretary of the local Journeymen Barbers' Union. The news was primarily meant for members of the local but as "Joe" has hosts of friends in this city it is published for their special benefit.

NORTH DAKOTA YOUTH "TOO BIG" TO FIGHT.

John Aasen, 22 years old, of New Rockford, North Dakota, stands seven feet one-half inch in his stocking feet, weighs 340 pounds, and sincerely wants to go over there and get a German helmet for a trophy.

But the Government won't take him, even in the face of his argument that his huge dimensions would be a great asset to the Government in conservation of ammunition. He claims he could just walk out in No Man's Land, and the size of him would put the fear of God in the Huns' hearts.

Physicians who rejected him for military service claimed he is afflicted with "growing disease." Persons who have seen him agree with the physicians.

first believed when the young counsellor was named for the county position but will instead be made larger. J. Henry Crane, judge of the District Court, now junior partner of the firm of DeMeza & Crane, is to cast his lot with Messrs. Reed & Hetfield. Hereafter the three lawyers will maintain their local offices at 203 Park avenue, under the firm name of Reed, Hetfield and Crane. This is the first time that Plainfield has had a legal partnership of more than two counsellors but brief consideration will convey the wisdom of such an alliance. Two heads are always better than one and the addition of a third is certain to prove of great advantage. Mr. Reed is one of the oldest practitioners in the city.

Mr. Hetfield represents the successful counsellors of the younger school, and Mr. Crane enters the new firm with sixteen years of practice to his credit, one of which has been as District Court judge.

Mr. Crane studied law with City Judge DeMeza, with whom he has been in partnership for several years. He was admitted to the bar as attorney in 1902 and received his counsellor degree four years later. He was appointed judge of the District Court in 1917 for a term of five years.

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed, who has been sojourning at Ormond Beach, Fla., since early in January, will return to Plainfield the latter part of March but the new partnership of Reed, Hetfield & Crane is not to be come effective until MAY 1.

When Mr. Hetfield takes up his duties next Monday as prosecutor of the pleas it will mark another of several peculiar circumstances that have placed him in a position rarely faced by an official. To him will fall the duty of representing the State when the eight men indicted for alleged conspiracy in connection with the tie-up at the City Hall, after he was partly responsible for the matter being taken up by the grand jury, come to trial.

Through the six months that the tangle has existed Mr. Hetfield has taken an active part in attempting to straighten it, and when it was finally taken before the October term of the grand jury he was one of those called while the investigation was going on.

The eight who were finally indicted for alleged conspiracy, including a Newark city official and labor men of prominence, were arraigned early in January and pleaded not guilty to the crime with which they are charged, but their trial has been held up because their counsel, Edward Nugent, secured writs of certiorari for the review of the true bills.

That is not the only "legacy" to which the new prosecutor is to fall heir to. There are a number of indictments found by the January grand jury that it will be impossible to reach this week, as well as a few laid over from other terms of court. Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein and Assistant Prosecutor Martin P. Connor, following out the custom of their predecessors, will render all the aid possible.

Mr. Hetfield and Donald H. McLean, whom he has selected as his assistant, will not take the oath of office until Monday, the day on which they assume their titles.

FINED $10.

Charles Milford, colored, was fined $10 in the city court this morning on a charge of fighting and quarreling with his wife on West Third street, Wednesday night. The Milfords had an argument in their home and the wife ran in the street after she had been kicked by her husband. Outside, Eugene Britton, who was related to the woman, mixed in and was pounding Milford when Patrolman Martin arrived on the scene. Sentence was suspended on Britton.

Application For Rate Increase Not Unexpected

No surprise was occasioned in Plainfield when the Public Service Railway Corporation applied to the Public Utilities Board Tuesday for permission to raise its trolley fares from five cents to seven cents, together with an additional two cents for a transfer issued on a cash fare and one cent for a transfer issued on a transfer. Such a move as this has long been expected as the corporation's activities directing from the executive office made it plainly discernible.

Should the Public Utilities Commission grant the increase, after the public hearing set for March 14, it will mean a large majority of the trolley-using public in Plainfield will have to pay nine cents to ride on a car hereafter. This applies especially to many of the men employed in the local shops as they transfer from one part of town to the other to get to work. In Plainfield there are no transfers issued on transfers as is done in Newark, Jersey City, Paterson and other large cities. Residents of the West End using either the Front street or Fourth street lines and wishing to go out Arlington avenue or Somerset street will be especially hard hit as a transfer has to be secured. Men in the West End working at the Scott or Standard Aero plants and using the Fourth street line will have to pay nine cents carfare and the men of the East End employed at Pond's or the Saurer shop will have their carfare increased to a like amount. Somerset street people intending to go out Arlington avenue or Arlington avenue people going to Somerset street will escape the extra two cents on a transfer, as will also people going east or west on the Union.

Opposition has already developed against the proposed increase which gives rise to the belief that the full amount asked for will not be granted. Persons in a position to understand the situation believe that the corporation has asked for the two cents on carfare and transfers as a "high water" mark realizing that a discussion may follow which might end in a compromise of perhaps one cent in each instance.

The company states that an increased revenue of $3,700,000 is an absolute necessity and in preparing its proposed fare schedule it based its calculation to assure this return on the transportation business done in 1917.

In a statement issued following the filing of the application the company declares that the cost of labor and materials was much higher in 1917 than in 1916 and that these costs had still further increased this year and are going higher. As to the effect of these higher prices it is claimed that the excess cost of maintenance of way and structures in 1917 and 1916 prices was $405,516; that the excess cost of maintenance and renewals of equipment in 1917 over 1916 prices was $183,457; that the cost of power largely due to the increased cost of coal had jumped $658,339 during the year; that the cost of conducting transportation had increased $235,231, and that taxes levied had increased over the previous year by $279,142.

The statement continues: "Showing that the 1918 figures for labor and materials are already greatly in excess of what the company paid in 1917, and taking the present actual unit costs and applying them to the work done last year for the purpose of indicating what this year's increases over 1917 may reasonably be expected to be, the company shows an added burden of more than $1,500,000. Of this amount over $500,000 is taken up in the maintenance of way and structures, more than $400,000 in maintenance and renewals of equipment, and upward of $600,000 in the cost of conducting transportation, which includes the wages of motormen and conductors."

"Line" and "Independent" Prices Will Be Averaged

Chairman Marion S. Ackerman of coal. We fear that this will continue during the summer months, when we hope to see a larger stocking of bins than ever before in the history of the city, unless an average price for all classes of coal is fixed by you.

"It is natural that with two prices our people will seek to buy the less expensive line coal. In that case our dealers, who have shown a willingness to co-operate in every way will hesitate to buy premium coal, thus forcing the receipts well below the normal supply, under the allotment which will be given the city by the Fuel Administration. We understand this will be an amount equal to the coal sent to Plainfield between April 1, 1916 and April 1, 1917.

"Plainfield coal dealers state that they have received an average of about 30% of premium and 70% line coal in the time mentioned. We therefore urge that you fix a price based on this average. It is our belief, as the result of a recent visit of Mr. Hight and Mr. Fort of this committee to Washington, that such a program will have the complete approval of the National Fuel Administration. This would, in all probability, make the average rate, while the summer reduction of thirty cents a ton is in force, less than the line (or low) price that our people have been paying during the past months of great scarcity.

"If such action is taken, our committee will recommend to the Council, and through it to the residents of the city, that no more fair and equitable adjustment for the benefit of the whole city can be reached. We believe such a plan will solve the fuel problem for the winter of 1918-1919."

In his reply Mr. Jenkinson said:

"I am in receipt I your letter of the eleventh, and I am going to figure this job out, after having talked to Mr. Fort and Mr. English, and see if we cannot at least stop any additional trouble of this kind. We will do all we can to do so."

Upon receipt of this letter Messrs. Fort and Hight were assured that a price pooling plan would be approved by the Fuel Administration at Washington, it is their belief that before the stocking of bins begins next month, there will be a uniform price fixed for coal at all yards and all times.

Following a resolution by the Common Council the Public Affairs Committee appointed Councilmen Chauncey L. Hight and Leslie R. Fort a sub-committee to visit Washington and see if they could secure the co-operation of the Fuel Administration to do away with the two prices for coal which have been charged here all winter. These prices are due to the fact that independent producers are now allowed to charge seventy-five cents a ton more for their coal than are the line producers, who are directly connected with the railroads. This amount is locally added only when independent coal is sold and as a result people buying coal on two occasions, a week apart for example, are frequently compelled to pay two prices for the same dealer, according to the kind of coal he has in stock.

Messrs. Hight and Fort spent last Friday in Washington, and had what both declared this morning to be "a most satisfactory conference with officials of the Fuel Administration," seeing everyone in authority who had anything to do with the anthracite situation, except Dr. Garfield. On Saturday, Mr. Fort saw R. C. Jenkinson, Fuel Administrator for New Jersey, at his office in Newark, and then the case was put in writing at Mr. Jenkinson's request. This letter was signed by Messrs. Ackerman, Hight, Fort and Charles S. Smirck, the members of the committee, and read as follows:

"As members of the Public Affairs Committee of the Plainfield Common Council, acting under a resolution passed Monday, March 4, 1918, the undersigned respectfully call your attention to a condition which has arisen in Plainfield, with the hope that you can satisfactorily correct it.

"There has been much confusion in the minds of the public in Plainfield because of the legal difference in price between line and premium

Roth Building May Be Raised To Four Stories

Roth & Company, owners of the building at 132-34 East Front street occupied by themselves and the Miron & Lifson furniture company, have prepared tentative plans for greatly enlarging the structure. Bids are now being received from local contractors and should the proposition be carried out it will result in an expenditure of about $20,000.

The Roth building as it stands at the present time is two stories in height. It was built about five years ago, by Contractor William C. Smith and was so constructed that additional stories could be added with comparative ease. In the plans as outlined by the owners, it is proposed to add two more stories and also erect a two story addition in the rear measuring fifty by fifty feet. The work could be carried on with very little interruption to the business of the two firms now occupying the lower floors.

A few weeks ago, the Roth building was damaged to the extent of about $5,000 through a fire which originated in the salesroom on the second floor of the Miron & Lifson place. The repairs made necessary by the blaze are now practically completed and have no part in the proposed enlargement. Miron & Lifson suffered a personal loss to stock and fixtures of about $10,000.

Fire Department Will Test Tractor

One of the latest designed tractors known as the "Union Motor-Haul" and made by the Union Truck Manufacturing Company, of New York, will be brought to this city Monday for a demonstration on No. 1 chemical and hose wagon stationed at No. 1 fire house on West Second street. It is the purpose of the Fire Board of the Common Council to do away with the horses used for the apparatus and substitute a tractor. The one which will be brought here for the demonstration seems to meet all requirements and may possibly be purchased after a thorough try-out.

The "Motor-Haul" sells for a figure just below $1,000, this amount being the limit set by the Fire Board to motorize the apparatus. By the terms of agreement with the Union Company, the tractor can be kept here for several days at a charge of one dollars per day. If it is accepted after that time the "rental" price will be included in the original figure.

The Fire Board also contemplates equipping the No. 2 steamer with a tractor similar to the one mentioned. The steamer is now quartered at No. 1 house and is built for the apparatus now regular horses but under the present plan if it is found that the apparatus is needed the necessary team could be quickly supplied. The Council believes, however, that the department would be greatly benefited by having a tractor installed, thus permitting the steam to be ready at a moment's notice. The decision in this matter will be reached at an early date.

The Fire Board held a meeting Monday night, at which various matters pertaining to the department were discussed. It was reported that the International Motor Company could give no definite date for the delivery of the service hook and ladder which is now under construction by that concern and which was to have been delivered in Plainfield by March 1. Owing to the difficulty of securing materials and a priority of government orders, all contracts for municipal apparatuses have been held up. There is a possibility now that the truck might not be delivered until some time during the coming summer.

NOTES FROM THE PARK AVE. BAPTIST CHURCH

Pastor, W. J. Swaffield; Sunday, March 17th, Bible school, 9:45 a. m., lesson, "Jesus Sending Forth the Twelve," Mark 6:1-31; morning worship, 11 a.m., sermon, "God's Challenge to His Church;" Young People's Association, 7 p. m., topic, "How to Help Others;" leader, H. W. Tease; evening song and sermon, "The Danial of by Peter," fifth in the Lenten course by the pastor.

The pastor will meet in the Bible school rooms Sunday afternoon, 4-4:30, any who wish to unite with the church on Easter Sunday.

The Robert Lowry Memorial service last Sunday morning was most helpful and inspiring, the two best features being the sermon by Dr. Swaffield and the newly formed Lowry Bible class for men which occupied the front of the church to the number of more than fifty. This class is enoying a steady healthy growth.

The Volunteer Class had a record attendance last Monday night at its monthly business meeting at the home of Mrs. D. M. Runyon, 1048 Arlington avenue. Thirty-eight were present.

Asks $10,000 Damages For Husband's Death

$10,000 damages for the death of her husband, Charles Malanga, who was killed in an automobile accident in this city on April 22 last, have been asked by Mrs. Anna Malanga, from the Reo Auto Company, a demonstration fire truck belonging to this concern, figuring in the fatal mishap.

The action was to have been heard in the circuit court at Newark on Tuesday but because of a lengthy calendar was adjourned for one week. The plaintiff is represented by Andrew Van Blarcom, one of Newark's leading attorneys, while Collins & Corbin of Jersey City are handling the case for the defendents.

The fatal accident occured at Grant avenue and West Front street on a Sunday afternoon as Charles Malanga, the victim, his brother Frank Malanga, of 941 West Third street and a cousin Andrew Polsella, of New York, attempted to cross West Front street going south. They were in an R. C. H. automobile belonging to Charles Malanga and were proceeding at a rate of speed said to be about thirty miles an hour. A Reo fire truck, returning from Dunellen after a demonstration and in charge of William Dwyer, of New York, was going east on West Front street. A residence on the corner obstructed the view of the two drivers and a crash occured. Charles Malanga received a fractured skull dying in Muhlenberg hospital a few hours later. Frank Malanga was slightly injured and was also removed to the hospital but recovered within a few days. The cousin, Polsella, and Dwyer, the driver of the Reo apparatus escaped injury. The Malanga car is completely wrecked and the other machine was badly damaged.

Mrs. Malanga had been married only a few months when the death of her husband occured. She resided on West Third street at the time of the accident but has since been living with her parents in New York.

Coal Dealers Want Change In Methods

At a meeting of the Plainfield Coal Dealers' Credit Association, Tuesday night, it was decided by unanimous vote to make application direct to Fuel Administrator Garfield at Washington, for a change in the handling of the coal situation in this city. It was the general opinion among the members that the Plainfield people were not getting a "square deal" in the shipments of fuel but if the matter was taken in hand properly the trouble could be settled.

Previous to the meeting, the coal dealers consulted the Public Affairs Committee of the Common Council and the latter agreed to accept the appointment of superintendency should the Washington authorities decide to the advisability of the coal men. Word to this effect was sent to both Dr. Garfield and Richard C. Jenkinson, State fuel administrator. Should a favorable reply be received the plan will be put into effect at once.

The idea as outlined at the Credit Association gathering was not to dispense with the local fuel commissioner, John J. Kenney, or those who have been assisting him. It is proposed to let Mr. Kenney continue to distribute the coal after it is received, the main objective of the Public Affairs Committee being to have a sufficient supply arrive at the local yards. Chauncey L. Hight, a member of the committee, went to Washington a few weeks ago and was informed that Plainfield would be taken care of in daily consignments. It was stated that ten cars of coal would be sent to the city each day. This has only occurred twice since the promise was given.

The average consumption of coal in Plainfield during cold weather is about ten carloads. For more than two months the average number received has only been three cars. Other towns nearby are cared for in a much better manner and the coal dealers believe that with the Public Affairs Committee exercising the proper management, the difficulty can be overcome.

VISITED CAMP DIX.

Mrs. Percy F. Phillips, of Madison avenue; her daughter, Mrs. James Mauger, of West Seventh street; Mrs. Rowland Smith, and Miss Eunice Smith, motored in an automobile party which visited Mr. Phillips' son, Philip Phillips, at Camp Dix, Wednesday. Although the roads were quite heavy and on one occasion the machine became mired, the trip was made in good time and proved very enjoyable. The Plainfield boys are having last at Camp Dix are now out of quarantine and are to be assigned to companies in the 311th Infantry today.

Evans and Frost Spring Surprise on Coal Buyers

Assuming Role of Santa Claus, Originators of Twelve Dollar Fuel, Declare Dividend of $1.63 a Ton Before Dissolving Partnership By Mutual Consent.

Jolly old "St. Nicholas," that portly little gentleman who spreads joy at Christmas time, will have to look to his laurels if he wishes to continue being the King Bee patron of good cheer in this community. Charles Hamilton Frost and Benjamin W. Evans, who gave up their own time and that of the Board of Education to "relieve the situation" during the fuel stringency in early February, have copied his style of unexpected present-making, only instead of reaching the hearts of the people by way of the housetop they used a more direct route with the aid of Uncle Sam's mail carriers. Twelve-dollar coal, you may probably know, creates an unusually heavy soot in the burning process and the two gift-makers, should they get caught in a narrow flue, might absorb some of the smudge that sticks closer than a rich man's poor relations.

It was Mr. Frost and Mr. Evans who bobbed up serenely during the zero weather of last month with the welcome news that they had quantities and quantities of coal, although the men who rely on the sale of this commodity td make their living were without so much as a single lump. Where Mr. Frost and Mr. Evans got the precious diamonds from was nobody's business. They had it and the only introduction you needed to get some of it was the production of the necessary "iron men," twelve to the ton. Up at the fuel commissioner's office at this particular time they were turning away working men's wives by the score because there was "absolutely no coal at hand," although Administrator English, who holds forth at Elizabeth, said that railroad trains would be stopped, if necessary, to make sure that homes were supplied.

Messrs. Evans and Frost were not a bit stingy with their supply of fuel. You could have one ton, two tons, five tons, ten tons and even fifty tons if you wanted it. One man who lives on the outskirts of the city and has a few hothouses filled with citrus and growing vegetables" was told he could have a carload if he so desired. It is probable that the out of season Santa Clauses were afraid they could not get all over town so decided to place their generosity in a few big lumps rather than scattering it where it would not be noticed so much.

The people who bought the coal were made to understand that they were getting it for just what it cost to the philanthropists, that is, twelve dollars a ton. As it was sorely needed while the thermometer was flirting with zero they considered themselves lucky to be among the chosen few so asked no questions about the gift. The transaction was just beginning to dawn on them fully when la-and-behold Postmaster Hoagland's gray-coated messengers came around last Monday with a most welcome letter. It was a neat little essay which ravored of kindliness, philanthropy, beneficence and "you're a good kid and I like you" stuff. It was signed by Mr. Frost. But that was not all. Inside the envelope was a check made out by Benjamin W. Evans, clerk to the Board of Education, refunding $1.63 per ton on the nut and stove coal passed out by the "firm" and $1.84 for the pea grade. Truly in these days of keen competition and high cost of living it was a happy day for the recipients and from now on the children will be taucht to sing carols about "Kris" Evans and "Santa" Frost instead of the North Pole fellow who drives a string of reindeers.

In order that you might realise what happiness was brought to the twelve-dollar coal customers, we give Mr. Frost's letter in full. After you read it once, read it two or three times more to make sure you appreciate the fact that he has a heart as big as a wash tub. The original letter was in multigraph form and bore no introduction. Here is the cheery message:

"All items of cost and expense for the coal procured and distributed in February by me are now at hand. Having no knowledge of the cost of handling coal, myself, I asked a local dealer to put a maximum price on this coal from which a rebate would be made in case the actual expense was less than the rate fixed. It is no pleasure, therefore, to enclose check for the difference due you. The expenses cover actual disbursements only, no charge whatever being made on my own account nor for the time and services of B. W. Evans, who cheerfully undertook the work of supervision and distribution.

"It is recognized among all who obtained a part of this shipment that it was never my intention to dispose of this coal at a profit to myself, but merely to be of service to my fellow-citizens in the serious condition which confronted the city during the period of severe cold weather and coal shortage.

"C. H. FROST."

Community Christmas Activities Detailed in Committee's Report

The report of the work of the Community Christmas for 1917 has just been made public by Leslie R. Fort, chairman of the committee. It shows that while the response to requests for funds was not so good last December as it was in 1916, the committee was able to bring joy and happiness to many Plainfield homes.

Ever since the Community Christmas was started in Plainfield its committee has depended upon voluntary contributions made as a result of calling attention to the cause through the columns of the local press. The amount sent to Treasurer DeWitt Hubbell, at the Plainfield Trust Company for 1917 work was $704.23, to which was added $264.06 remaining from the year before. For carrying it on $525.93 was spent at the holiday time, leaving $439.41 to be used by the committee in urgent cases thus "making Christmas last all the year." This plan has been followed ever since the fund was started and some of the balance has been spent in 1918 to relieve the want of suffering families in the city.

Christmas cheer, such as: toys, stockings, books candy, coal and fruit was delivered to 190 families, with 731 children. The coal was sent to 34 families, a half ton being supplied to each family. This was done with the help of Miss M. C. Phillips of the Charity Organization Society. Besides this $20 was contributed toward the expense of the entertainment at Bonnie Burn Sanitarium, which was largely in the hands of Elizabeth people, after having been provided principally by Plainfielders for many years preceding.

The expenditures were as follows: stockings, $100; toys, $129.68; Bonnie Burn, $20; books, $38.35; candy, $49; fruit, $22.75; coal, $148.18; shipping, printing and bags, $19.97.

The Community Christmas Committee wishes to express thanks to those who contributed, acknowledgment of money having already been made through the newspapers; to the Record for space given to the fund; to the Y. M. C. A. for the use of its auditorium, and to the automobile owners, Boy Scouts and others who assisted in distributing the gifts, as well as to all others who helped to make the movement a success.

Business Building Will Be Remodeled

Schwed Brothers, owners of the building at Front and Somerset streets, now occupied by L. B. Van Camp, will shortly commence extensive alterations to the structure that will make it an up-to-date business house. When these are completed, the ground floors will be occupied by J. J. Varley, the ladies' furnishings dealer at present located at 144 West Front street. The removal is to be made the latter part of June in order that Mr. Varley may have a formal opening in his new stand on July 1.

Plans for the alteration of the building, which was one of the first brick structures erected in the business section, called for the lowering of the main floor to the level of Front street and a frontage that will include the present upstairs entrance between the store proper and the Schwed clothing emporium to the east. The Somerset street side will also be greatly changed so as to permit an upstairs entrance to be made at the north end. The second and third floors will undergo a radical change that will completely alter the architectural plan, making the premises conform with those of a more modern type. The building was originally erected in 1852 by the late William Ayers and was known for many years as the Dunlap building.

On removing to his new quarters, Mr. Varley will greatly enlarge his business, adding silk and other dress goods to his stock of ready-to-wear garments. Mr. Varley opened his present store in 1912, previous to that time having been connected with the A. E. Force Company as head of one of the departments. His trade has been growing rapidly and in his new location he will have a better opportunity of caring for the steady increase.

MISSION AT ST. MARY'S.

The Apostolate Fathers, of New York, will begin a two weeks' Mission at St. Mary's church commencing at the 9:30 mass next Sunday morning. The first week will be for women and the second week for men. Rev. Father Wicham will be in charge.

Public Service Hearing Delayed Until March 26

Failing in application to have the hearing before the Public Utility Board on the application of the Public Service Railway Company to increase fares from five cents to seven, with two cents for each single and one cent for each double transfer, postponed for three months, John Milton, temperary counsel for the New Jersey State League of Municipalities, backed by counsel of many municipalities present at Trenton, yesterday, succeeded in having the utility board defer the matter until Tuesday morning, March 26, to give the municipalities time to prepare to fight.

In the meantime the company will be required to file an amended petition, stating whether the proposed increases are temporary or permanent.

Milton, in arguing for the three months' postponement, said it would take visually all that time to inquire into the costs, etc., of the company and its justification for the increase.

President Donges, of the Utility Board, thought the company should be allowed to submit proofs at this time, but this was opposed by the municipalities. Thomas H. McCarter, president of the company, opposed a three months' postponement, saying the company was ready to proceed with the case immediately. Postponement until March 26 was generally acceptable.

RICHARD BIDDLE DIES AT MUHLENBERG HOSPITAL.

Richard Biddle, aged forty-six years, died early this morning in Muhlenberg Hospital after an illness of two months from leakage of the heart. His home was at 326 Liberty street and for the past twelve years he had been employed as butcher at J. C. Storm's market on Liberty street. The deceased was a native of Flemington, coming from that place to Plainfield about twenty years ago. Mr. Biddle is survived by his widow and three children. One of the latter, a son, is a member of the National Army. No arrangements for the funeral service have been made.

Fraternal Organization Plans to Insure Civic Send-Off for All Departing Selectives

Plainfield selectives who leave for camp in the future will not depart without a suitable demonstration, according to a resolution passed by Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus. The members of this organization, many of whom had relatives in the big delegation which left town three weeks ago with only the "good-byes" of friends to mark their beginning of the journey to Camp Dix, regret the lack of a civic recognition for embryonic soldiers.

The matter was broached at the last meeting of Watchung Council by John J. Varley, whose son is one of the newest members of the National Army. In a discussion which followed, it was the general opinion that none of the boys, no matter how small the number of them going away at once, should board the train without a proper send-off. It was eventually decided to begin a campaign for the purpose of securing the necessary funds for getting a band or drum corps to escort the boys to the North avenue station and also if possible give the selectives an entertainment the night before their leaving. Included in this entertainment, it was pointed out, there could be addresses by the city officials and various other numbers on the program that would "send the lads away with a smile." The entertainments could be opened to relatives, thus permitting parents, wives, sisters and brothers to see the real evidences of civic pride on the part of Plainfield's sons as they are preparing to fight for liberty and safety.

Mr. Varley was made chairman of a committee to begin a campaign for the necessary funds. For his assistants he will have Francis J. Hintz, David T. Kenny, Theodore Martin, Peter McDonough and Garret A. Keating. They will hold an organization meeting next week, after which details of the plan will be made public.

It is the general impression that other organizations in the city will follow in the K. of C. movement as soon as it is brought to their attention. Practically every local resident possessed of patriotic principles was deeply disappointed at the apparent indifference of the community when sixty-eight young men left for Camp Dix on Monday, February 25. They received kind Cross outfits the Saturday previous and were addressed by Mayor Calkins, otherwise there was no formal observance of the sacrifice they were to make. On the contrary, all the surrounding towns, including North Plainfield, Westfield and Dunellen had elaborate farewell parties and other forms of demonstration. On March 5 another delegation of sixteen Plainfield boys boarded a train at the North Avenue station for Camp Greenleaf, Ga., and again the lack of a civic farewell was decidedly noticeable. It is the hope of those that Mr. Varley brought the matter before the Knights of Columbus in the hope that mistakes of this kind could be avoided in the future.

It is quite appropriate that Watchung Council should take up the demonstration matter as the organization's honor roll contains the names of forty-five members who are serving their country in either the army or navy. Included in the recent contingent sent to Camp Dix were five of the brothers and fully twenty more are to go at the next call, so far as can be learned Albert Brynjarski, of Duer street, the borough, is the only one who has reached the firing line. He has been in France since the first of the year as a member of the 165th Ambulance Corps. Patrick Powers, William Meade and George Howe, who are in the navy, have been across a few times and have been in France and England.

Big Flock of Sea Gulls Seen at Holly's Pond

A party of Spicer company employes returning from the South Plainfield plant a few nights ago witnessed the unusual spectacle of a flock of sea gulls hovering about Holly's pond at Holly Park. There were fully thirty of the birds, all of the type seen along the seashore, but rarely found as far inland as Plainfield.

The gulls were busily engaged in searching for food in Holly Pond and one of them was seen to catch an eel. They paid no attention to the men who stood for some time watching their movements. One of the group of workmen who has had considerable experience in ocean travel, asserted that the presence of sea gulls far back from the coast is accepted by mariners as indicating the approach of a bad storm at sea.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The young women of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will hold a St. Patrick's Day social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis, 817 Hillside avenue, tomorrow night. An appropriate program has been prepared and a cordial invitation is extended to all interested.

State Banking Commissioner Frank H. Smith, of this city, and Governor Walter E. Edge are to be the honor guests at the annual dinner of the Essex County League of Building and Loan Associations to be held in Newark on April 4.

Thomas Maher, who recently sold his horse-shoeing and blacksmithing establishment on Park avenue to J. J. Kilner, of West Second street, has purchased the pool supply store on Watchung avenue, formerly conducted by Albert Brooks.

The Joint Sewarch Commission will meet in the Council Chambers this city on Monday night, March 25th for the purpose of opening bids for the new work to be done at the Greenbrook Sewarage plant. These improvements are to cost approximately $35,000 and will include the placing of new screens.

The Court of Errors and Appeals has sustained a verdict of the lower courts awarding Patrick J. Purcell $9.23 a week for 400 weeks as that compensation for injuries received at the Saurer Motor works. Mr. Purcell was employed at the plant in October 1915 when the sudden starting of a motor threw him to the floor and hurt him severly about the head. Complications ensued which later impaired his eyesight. The plaintiff was represented by Francis J. Blatz, who first took the case to the Union County court, from which it was appealed by the defendent concerned.

A dance in honor of selected men from the borough will be given in Debele's auditorium tomorrow night under the auspices of the North Plain field Home Defense League.

The famous Ben Greet players will appear at the Plainfield High school auditorium tomorrow night for the benefit of the Junior Red Cross. The advance sale of seats is quite large, but there are still plenty of choice reservations. On this occasion the players will offer the "Merchant of Venice."

A large number of relatives and friends of the students at Mount St. Mary's college attended a harp and piano recital given at the institution Sunday afternoon in honor of Mother Mary John. It was arranged by Miss Viola Abrams assisted by the members of the school of music. An address was made by Rev. Father B. M. Bogan, pastor of St. Mary's church; recitations were given by Walter Sherwin, of this city and the following students of the college took part in the musical program: The Misses Viola Abrams, Emma Lott, Veronica Scott, Eleanor Brown, Marian Ledos, Elizabeth Gray, Eleanor Moehler, Louise Keefe, Clara Maguire, Agnes Down, Mildred Barry, Eleanor Treacy and Yolando Medveizky.

Young men of the North Plainfield High School have organized a social club which will hold forth in the vacant store at Duer street and Lincoln place. The following officers were elected at the organization meeting: president, Roy Stewart, vice president, Stanley Burner; treasurer, Clifford Fetting and secretary, Ralph Gray. Meetings will be held twice each week.

Arrangements have been made for a dance to be held at Woodbrook Farm on Friday night, March 22 for the benefit of the Red Cross. Miss Emma Laury is in charge of the plan. Those attending from Plainfield will be conveyed to the premises by the Woodbrook Farm trucks which will leave North and Park avenues at 8 o'clock. An assesment will be levied though the resident while the young women are requested to bring refreshments.

Wardner Carpenter, of Watchung avenue, this city, who went to Camp McClellan as a member of Troop D and more, recently has been a member of the Military Police at that reservation, has been transferred to the Ordnance Corps at Washington, D. C.

Camp No. 1, P. O. of A., observed its seventeenth anniversary Saturday night during which the following officers were installed: past president Mrs. Emma Brown; assistant past president, Mrs. Mary Clauson; president, Mrs. Delia McDowell; assistant president, Mrs. Elizabeth Layton; vice-president, Mrs. Jeanette Van Pelt; assistant vice-president, Mrs. Sadie Newmiller; guard, Mrs. Lewis Mattox; sentinal, Mrs. Casenove; treasurer, Mrs. Mary Cable; recording secretary, Mrs. Helen Freeman; trustee, Mrs. Emma Brown. The president afterward made these appointments: Mrs. Ora Eckert as chaplain; Mrs. Anna Case, orator and Mrs. John Lant as assistant secretary.

Mrs. and Mrs. A. E. LaPorte, of Jackson avenue, the borough, have received word that their son, first Lieut. Edmund J. LaPorte, arrived safely in France. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred D. Thorn, of Stone street, the borough, also received word of the arrival of their son, Alfred P. Thorn.

A number of local men interested in hunting and fishing have formed an organization to be known as the Arrowhead Rod and Gun Club. Dr. P. J. Zeglio has been made president and work is now under way on the building of traps on the Watchung Spring Water grounds on Mountain avenue.

Retiring Prosecutor Secures Total of 1,128 Indictments During Term

Alfred A. Stein, president of the Rotary Club, who went out of office Monday as prosecutor of the pleas of Union county, made an address at a dinner of the organization in the Elks' clubhouse at Elizabeth, Wednesday. In it he gave an outline of the work he handled during the last five years in office, touching only upon the more important cases.

One outstanding feature brought out by Mr. Stein was that he succeeded in getting grand juries to bring in a total of 1,128 indictments during the five years and secured 560 allegations. Of the cases that went to trial only fifty-two were acquittals and four disagreements. Of the allegations only twenty were acquittals. Out of the total of indictments 950 were disposed of and of the 178 remaining the principals in fifty are fugitives. The other 128 were duplicate indictments found against someone already found guilty of a similar offence.

Practically every conceivable kind of crime came to the attention of the prosecutor during his term. Cases of assault and battery were the most numerous, although the total of fourteen murders is proportionately high. Some of the cases created sensations at the time they were tried, and Mr. Stein went briefly into the details of a number of them.

One of them was the well remembered poison pen case, in which Anna J. Pollard, after writing anonymous letters to scores of people in Elizabeth, was indicted and tried. The first trial resulted in an acquittal, but later Mr. Stein uncovered new evidence that resulted in her conviction.

Another was the MacRorie case from Plainfield, in which Rev. Willis S. MacRorie was found guilty of improper conduct with a young woman employed as a servant in his household. He was sentenced to three months in the county jail but won an appeal on a flaw in the charge to the jury.

The trial of "Ice Wagon" Connors created another sensation. He was caught in Chicago after a long chase, following the theft of $17,000 worth of jewelry from the home of former State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman in this city on Christmas Eve, 1916. He was sent to State prison, but was pardoned just before this last Christmas and is now at liberty.

Only one man, Raffaelo Longo, went to the electric chair. After a quarrel he shot and killed a fellow countryman and was convicted after a short trial. Gaetano Di Stefano was found guilty of murder last summer, but was sentenced to prison for life, and Thomas Crevioli, of Linden, had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment after he had been first sentenced to the chair.

The "Pooter" Kiely case was one of the more recent. He pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree after he had beaten his aged father to death and is serving thirty years in State prison.

The only libel case was that in which Harwood Fish, former mayor of Roselle Park, was found guilty in the county courts. It was affirmed by the Supreme Court and then set aside by the Court of Errors and Appeals.

Syman Hirsch, of Plainfield, was the only one found guilty of "misrepresentation of goods." He was fined $50 at the present term of court.

PLAINFIELD WILLS FILED IN SURROGATE'S OFFICE

Letters of administration have been granted State Banking Commissioner Frank H. Smith, of West Eighth street, for the settling of the estate of his mother, Mrs. Susan C. Smith, who died on February 17 last. The estate is valued at $15,000 and is bequeathed to Mr. Smith and his sister, Mrs. C. M. Burdick, of Central Islip, L. I. The death of Mrs. Smith occurred suddenly at the latter's home.

William T. Banks, of Netherwood, has applied for letters for administration for the estate of his deceased son-in-law, Howard C. Drake, who died on February 17, after a brief illness with pneumonia. The estate is valued at $1,000 and Mr. Drake's widow, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Drake, and sister are named as beneficiaries.

Charles J. Fisk Shows Value of Keeping Poultry

As vice president of the American Poultry Association, former Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who now makes his home in New York, is one of the patriotic Americans who is exerting himself to aid the Government in securing a greater food supply. The slogan that "food will win the war," is coming to a full realization and the sooner the people appreciate the fact, just so much sooner will an adequate supply be secured for consumption at home and abroad. Mr. Fisk has had a wide experience as a poultry raiser, this being one of his "hobbies" when away from his banking-house duties in New York, and he has written a series of articles on the important of every family maintaining a hennery. The newspapers throughout the country are giving them prominence because of their value in the food plan of Commissioner Hoover. One of the articles entitled "The Home Flock," was published in the New York Sun last Sunday and is to appear in the New York World and the Philadelphia North American. It will be of especial interest to Plainfield people not only because of Mr. Fisk's wide acquaintance here, but because of the helpful information it contains. It is given in full as follows:

AN AVERAGE FLOCK OF TEN BIRDS FOR EVERY FAMILY IN THE UNITED STATES would make 200,000,000 hens, which could be largely fed and maintained from the kitchen and garden waste and should produce 1,500,000,000 dozen (18,000,000,000) eggs a year.

The keeping of a small home flock of laying hens by every family living in a suburban town or village or having a small back-yard in connection with a city-home will do more to help provide food necessary to maintain our men in the army and feed the people at home than can be accomplished by any other means. At the same time it is a practical way of reducing home expenses and regulating the cost of living.

The size of the flock should be regulated by the number of persons in the family to be fed, and the amount of table scraps, kitchen and garden waste (that otherwise would be thrown away) which can be used for feed. From two to three hens for each person in the household should keep a family supplied with all the fresh eggs they require.

The Space Required is Very Small.

A house with a floor space 8 feet by 8 feet in connection with a yard 20 feet x 25 feet will be about what is required for a flock of 20 hens. In other words—about three square feet floor house space and 25 square feet yard space for each hen. In cases where yard space is not available, small flocks have been very successfully taken care of in a house allowing 10 square feet of floor space to each hen—say a house 8 x 16 or 10 x 12 could be used for a flock of 10 to 12 hens—where they are to be kept confined at all times to the house. A number of manufacturers now make portable houses especially adapted for the above purpose at very reasonable prices, which can be put together very easily without the need of a mechanic.

Houses can also be very simply and economically constructed at home. Descriptions, plans and directions, can be obtained free by writing the Bureau of Animal Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, at Washington for Farmers Bulletin No. 889, "BACK-YARD POULTRY KEEPING."

A home flock of hens is a small number kept by each householder practically to produce eggs for home consumption. The time to start keeping such a flock is in the later summer or early fall. The birds should be strong, vigorous, well-grown matured pullets from chicks that were hatched early in the spring. For the best results they should be one of the standard bred varieties, from a good heavy laying strain that have been raised on an open range and kept constantly growing from the start. The best way to procure such birds is to order now from responsible breeders and have them raised especially for you.

Under a person has had some previous experience in breeding and raising chicks it is not advisable for the amateur to start by trying to raise the baby-chicks. Chicks should be raised in the country on farms—where they have plenty of place to range and grow in the natural way—not in a confined space. The variety or breed best adapted for the "home flock" depends very much on conditions and location, for many reasons what are known as American and English general purpose birds are preferable, such as the Plymouth Rocks, Rhode Island Reds, Wyandottes, Sussex, Orpingtons, etc., these are best easily confined and kept within bounds. They lay a large rich brown shelled egg. If white shelled eggs are more desired, the Mediterranean breeds—Lechorns, Anconas, Camolnas, etc., these however, will require yards or runways to be covered otherwise they will fly out and become troublesome.

WHAT IS THE REASON AT THIS TIME FOR RECOMMENDING AND URGING THE KEEPING OF A "HOME FLOCK OF HENS?

This is a most natural question and most easily answered.

The United States is now involved in the greatest war for freedom and liberty the world has ever known. The war will and must be won. There is no compromise and no going back. The future peace and prosperity of all nations on the globe depend on the outcome—the final VICTORY. Hundreds of thousands, yes, millions of our growing and best young men and also women will be called upon to go to the front, giving up their families, their business, their very life for this great cause. Some are already on the fighting line, others in camps both here and on the other side—preparing. Not only this great army but the armies of our Allies must be fed. The United States must furnish the greater amount of food required. Every pound of beef, mutton, pork, wheat, and many other commodities must be reserved for this purpose. Those of us at home that cannot go—for reason of health, age, or any other just cause—must not only do our bit, but our all, to win. The United States Food Administration ask us to substitute POULTRY and POULTRY PRODUCTS to as large extent as possible—to take the place of the other food that is so much needed. In order to do this the amount of poultry raised must be increased—not only doubled but TREBLED or QUADRUPLED, the larger the amount, the better.

Chicken can be matured in five to six months—cattle, hogs, sheep, etc., take much longer. EVERYONE that has 20 feet square of yard space can keep chickens to advantage. EVERY-ONE SHOULD.

It Is a Patriotic Duty.

EVERY farmer and POULTRY breeder should HATCH and RAISE EVERY CHICKEN POSSIBLE.

Write the United States Department of Agriculture or your State Agricultural College for instructions and methods of BACK-YARD POULTRY KEEPING.

BE A PATRIOT—Order your flock at once and make your preparations to care for them.

POULTRY CAN and WILL help win the War.

"P" stands for.. (POULTRY / PATRIOTISM / PLEASURE / PROFIT

FARMERS' PATRIOTIC DUTY

Raise Poultry

The United States Food Administration needs the help of every farmer to raise the poultry required to furnish both meat and eggs to take the place of animal red meats and fats that must be used to feed the fighting forces of the United States and associates, the Allies.

VOLUNTEER—Show your patriotism!

ENLIST AT ONCE—Don't wait to be DRAFTED!

The farmers throughout the United States are the principal producers of food—which is as much a part of the fighting forces as others actively engaged in the Army and Navy—WITHOUT FOOD THE WAR CANNOT BE WON.

President Authorizes Medals For Bravery

Four decorations for bravery, service, or for wounds were authorized yesterday by President Wilson.

A War Department order designated them as "distinguished service cross;" "distinguished service medal;" "war service chevrons," and "wounds chevrons."

The "distinguished service cross" will be an appropriate design in bronze, and a ribbon to be worn in lie uthereof, to be awarded for "extraordinary heroism," under circumstances which do not justify awarding the Congressional medal of honor.

"The distinguished service medal" will be on bronze, or a ribbon to be worn in lieu thereof, for "exceptionally meritorious service to the Government in a duty of great responsibility in time of war or in connection with military operations."

"The war service chevrons" will be of gold, to be worn on the lower left sleeve, and will be awarded to officers and enlisted men for each six months in the war zone.

"The wounds chevrons" will be the same as the war service chevrons, except that it will be worn on the right sleeve, and will be awarded to men gassed or wounded so badly as to need a medical officer's attention.

STATE ROAD INSPECTORS RECEIVING INSTRUCTIONS.

With a view to increasing efficiency of road inspectors in connection with the proposed State highway system which will be started next month, and to insure a return to the State of dollar for dollar in money spent on the State roads, classes have been formed at Trento for the education and advancement of the present corps of State road inspectors. This information, received today from the State Highway Commission, marks but one of the many innovations introduced into the management and conduct of that department since its reorganization last April.

Several sessions of the class have been held to date. Under the tutelage of R. B. Gage, the State chemist, between twenty-five and thirty inspectors are being educated along scientific and practical lines in determining the various ingredients which constitute types of pavements, manner of ascertaining whether road materials contain the proper and required percentage of mixtures and whether the pavements conform to the plans and specifications. Sand and gravel pavements, together with every form of concrete bituminous substances, will be studied by the inspectors.

Miss Edith Pearson, of West Second street, has recovered after a severe illness.

New Policy Outlined For Maintenance of Union County Roads

In submitting a report of the annual convention of the American Road Builders' Association held in St. Louis last month, which he attended, County Engineer Jacob L. Bauer at a meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholds outlined the policy of the road committee in regard to the future upkeep of the roads maintained by the county.

In order to aid the government in every possible way, not only during the present war, but in years to come, it was the consensus of opinion at the convention, Mr. Bauer stated in his report, that the roads be divided into three branches according to their degrees of importance. Those in the first class would be of prime military value in time of war, those in the second are not necessary in such time, and those constituting the third class could be used for military traffic or not, as the occasion demands.

Mr. Bauer urged that when work is planned from now on, those three classes be kept in mind. When new construction work is undertaken hereafter, roads in the first class will be improved first and the others afterward, although the latter will not be allowed to deteriorate.

The committee on the county engineer's office report reported that it had purchased two automobiles for the use of Mr. Bauer and his staff, one at a cost of $630 and the other at $739. While they were essential to the department one of them will not be in use at all times. For that reason the committee recommended that on such occasions as it was needed by various committees they be empowered to use it.

A resolution passed by the commissioners of the city of Rahway was presented to the Board asking that Hart street, from Carteret road to Hazelwood avenue, and Hazelwood avenue, from Hart to Main streets, be taken over as a part of the county road system. It was referred to the proper committee without recommendation.

John K. English, attorney for the town of Springfield, wrote a communication to the Board asking what action had been taken on the matter of the Shunpike road in that place. He appeared before the Board last July and said he was waiting to hear from that body, as he is contemplating starting ejectment proceedings against certain interests in that neighborhood. It was referred with power to act.

In a letter through its president, the Musicians' Mutual Benefit Association declared that it was planning to give its annual entertainment at the Bonnie Burn sanatorium, but that it would like to have the means of transportation furnished by the county. The communication was referred to the board of managers of the institution.

It was recommended by the committee on county roads that a bridge be erected on the Stony Hill road near the new county farm in order that means of travel to and from the institution may be fifty feet. The expenditure thought fifty feet across and have a span of eight feet. The expenditure thought necessary is $1,206.

A committee consisting of Freeholders Doll, Honeyman and Darby was appointed by Director George G. Teller to confer with a committee from the Morris County Board of Freeholders to determine what repairs are necessary to the bridge spanning the Passaic River at New Providence.

It was voted to increase the salary of Miss Hazel Sauceer, clerk in the office of the county superintendent of schools, from $59 to $70 a month.

The civil service commission reported that those eligible for appointment as rodmen and transitmen in the office of the county engineer.

Those who took the examination for the former position are: Bernard Miller, Plainfield; Harry Pfaff, Scotch Plains; and Francis T. Sheahan, of Elizabeth. Those for the position of transitmen yere: Richard Pope, Elizabeth; Edward Packer, Cranford, and Theodore Vail, Plainfield.

LOCAL SOCIETY PLANS A "MILITARY DANCE."

St. Mary's T. A. B. Society is completing plans for a "Military Dance" in honor of T. A. B. members who are in the service. The affair will take place in the society's hall on West Fourth street on Easter Monday night and will have many features of a military nature.

Twelve of the T. A. B. members are now in various branches of the service, while several more are on call as selectives. A number of the active men, stationed at Camp Dix have signified their intention of getting leaves of absence that will permit them to attend the dance, while those in the city who expect to don the uniform later will also be on hand.

BUYS HERMANCE PROPERTY.

Ralph Poucher, who has been occupying the residence at South and Belvidere avenues belonging to Charles H. Hand, has purchased the Hermance property at Woodland avenue and East Seventh street. He will take possession May 1.

MR. HARDING'S NEW POSITION.

William Harding, of John street, who has been employed as foreman by Arthur E. Smith, has been appointed yard master at the Pond Tool Works to succeed John Sloyan. Mr. Harding entered upon his new duties Monday.

"Intolerance" Booked For Appearance at Plainfield Theatre

Did you ever think you would live to see a spectacle in a theatre in which over 125,000 people took part along with 7,000 horses and 1,500 chariots?

Well this is what is revealed in D. W. Griffith's colossal work "Intolerance" which comes to the Plainfield Threatre soon.

This mighty work is not only big in numbers and in scenes but it is as big in theme. It portrays the hopes and struggles of love through all ages and how the human aspiration has always been hampered by the intolerance of those who put themselves in high places. In Griffith's great epic you find this whip of intolerance cracking over the heads of the ancient Babylonians nearly 3,000 years ago and you follow it down through Palestine when The Man of Men came with his great tolerance and message of hope and again you see in religious warfare as it was carried on in medieval France in the 16th Century and now you see it again in factory and shop and the streets of this land. And though the scenes change and the magnitude of the shifting views appal you there is ever that great note of human appeal calling to you from across the Ages. It is as if you had taken a trip around the world and covered a period of three thousand years in the flickering speed of contemplative thought. Mr. Grimth has made a daring innovation and has succeeded. This is why "Intilerance" is the sensation that it is everywhere.

D. W. GRIFFITHS
Who Produces "Intolerance."

"The 13th Chair" Coming Next Week

No event on the local theatrical calendar of the present season is invested with greater interest or more anticipation of genuine enjoyment than the engagement of "The 13th Chair". This melodrama of mystery, the latest work of Bayard Veiller who also wrote "Within the Law", was unquestionably the most emphatic hit of last season in New York. It ran for a solid year playing to audiences which crowded the 48th Street theatre to capacity. And it can boast of that peculiar and quiet undefinable quality in a play which causes those who have seen it to remain unsatisfied until all of their friends and neighbors have seen it too.

The central and most important character of "The 13th Chair" is Rosalie La Grange an aged spiritualistic trance medium. Summoned to a home whose occupants are strangers to her she finds that one member of the dinner party plans to make use of her extraordinary powers to assist him in solving the mystery surrounding the murder of his friends. The seance proceeds in the dark and when the lights are thrown on the inquisitive gentleman himself is found to have been murdered in exactly the same manner that his friend was done to death. Every door and window of the room has been locked and it is absolutely certain that no one has either entered or departed from the room since the beginning of the seance. It is the working out of this second crime mysterywhich provides the story of the play and furnishes thrills too numerous to be counted.

"The 13th Chair" will be performed here next Tuesday night only by skillfully selected and carefully trained company led by Blanche Hall at the Plainfield Theatre. The role of police inspector Donohue, next in importance to that of Rosalie La Grange, is in the hands of Joseph Garry.

A WOMAN'S RIGHT TO HER WEDDING RING.

The following communication has been received from a "Reader of the Record:"

"Is there a law in New Jersey which permits anyone to deprive a woman's wedding ring from her?"

(Our legal adviser informs us that the New Jersey statutes contain no law which permits anyone to deprive a woman of her wedding ring. It is hers by every right and title and can be withheld from the person who gave it or any one else. In some States it is exempt from execution proceedings.—Ed.)

Begins Improvement of Apartment Block

Workmen in the employ of Charles H. Hand yesterday began the erection of an addition to the latter's building at Watchung avenue and East Second street, which will mark the beginning of a big change in the appearance of that structure. The present extension is in front of the corner store occupied by Winn & Higgins and will also form a porch for the tenants on the second floor. As soon as the leases of other tenants expire Mr. Hand will have extensions placed in front of each ground floor apartment in order to turn them into stores, making five in all. The separate apartments on the second and third floors are to be made into single apartments and the top of the store additions will serve as a porch for each one. Mr. Hand will occupy one of the apartments himself, this having been recently vacated by Miss Lamarah Adams.

The extension in the present and future instances will be of iron and concrete. They will all measure four feet in depth and have a frontage of nineteen feet, six inches. This will make the Hand structure flush where the front of the Elks' building now projects out four feet from the old line.

The City Council is now at work on plans to widen Watchung avenue a total distance of ten feet. It was the original intention to make this improvement between Front and Second streets only but on application of property owners there is a possibility that the widening may extend all the way from the bridge over Green brook to the New Jersey Central viaduct. This, however, is a matter which will have to be passed upon by the Council after a public hearing.

Thomas Fahy Saves Three Persons from Smoke Suffocation

Presence of mind on the part of Thomas Fahy probably prevented the serious, if not fatal, injury to Mrs. M. Gumppe and her two small children when their apartment on the second floor of the Van Sickle building was damaged by fire Sunday night. A bad blaze originated in the basement through hot ashes being placed near a dumb-waiter and flames shooting upward through the shaft spread to the upper floors.

*Mr. Fahy occupies the top apart*ment and on discovering the seriousness of the blaze, made haste to get Mrs. Fahy to a point of safety. After assisting her to the street it occurred to him that he had seen nothing of the Gumppe family and hastening back to their apartment found the mother and children practically overcome by smoke. The suddenness with which the flames had burst into their kitchen confused them for the time being and they were in a fair way to succumb to rapidly filling lungs when Mr. Fahy appeared. He got all three persons down to the street, from which point they were taken to the office of the Plainfield Cab Company for "first aid." They afterward recovered fully.

An alarm from box 13 brought the fire department to the scene in a very short time but the men found a hard fight ahead of them. A terrific gale was blowing at the time and it seemed as though the flames would be fanned to great fury. Fortunately the blaze was all in the back of the building and as the wind was coming from the north, its effect did not reach the limit. Several lines of hose were sent in from the front and rear entrances and the flames were quelled after an hour's work. The damage is estimated at about $5,000, most of it being on the building which is owned by J. W. Van Sickle, of East Third street. The Fahy and Gumppe apartments suffered from water as well as from the fire but the loss in each instance is covered by insurance.

HADASSAH CHAPTER HODS WHIST AND DANCE

The Plainfield Chapter of Hadassah, the women's Zionist organization, held its first annual whist and dance on Wednesday night, at the Y. M. H. A. building, 453 West Front street. Those in charge of the arrangements were Mrs. Morris Fiedler, Mrs. Harry Perlman, Mrs. Samuel Rosenbaum, Mrs. Leo Zeisel and Mrs. Isadov Cashdin, and the following acted on the receiving committee: Mrs. S. H. Schwartz, Mrs. Benjamin J. Kline, Mrs. Augusta Levin, Mrs. Ellis Campus, Mrs. Samuel Schwartz, Mrs. Charles Kurtzman, Mrs. Arthur J. Richards and Mrs. Henry Rosenbaum.

Prizes were awarded. Music for dancing was furnished by Eddie Marks' jass band.

The sewing circle of the chapter held its first meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Benjamin J. Kline, 922 West Front street. Garments for the poverty-stricken of Palestine are being made.

WORKLESS DAYS TO AID IN FARM MOVEMENT.

"Statewide workless days," during the harvest season were advocated Wednesday afternoon by Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Ousley.

Appearing before the Senate committee on agriculture Ousley stated that it would be necessary to close down non-essential industries for a period of fifteen days during the harvest season, in order that workers might be sent tot he farms.

"No act of legislation can send the men back to the farms," he declared. "I believe the business men will have to close their places for days, and even for weeks and go into the fields and help harvest the crop."

COAL PARTNERS FAILED IN TEAM WORK.

In an effort to apply a double coat of white-wash to himself and Benjamin W. Evans, Charles Hamilton Frost, proprietor of the Courier-News, yesterday printed a carefully prepared "explanation" of the twelve-dollar a ton coal sales promoted during the fuel stringency in early February. The two-column article was so full of weak spots that it cannot be given any credence even by those not at all familiar with the facts. Mr. Frost could have saved himself a lot of trouble if instead of seeking support from County Administrator English for his action, he had taken the precaution to apply a gag to his associate, Mr. Evans. To use a popular expression, the latter "spilled the beans" while the newspaper man was seeking a way of setting himself right before an indignant public.

The fact of the matter remains that Messrs. Evans and Frost sold coal in Plainfield at nearly three dollars more than the Government fixed price. They also sold it to a theatre when the Federal regulations say families must be supplied first. They did not "relieve the situation" as they continue to shout from the housetops, as they were disposing of their wares in five, ton, and even fifty-ton lots to individuals, while hundreds of homes in the city were absolutely without a pail full of the precious commodity. Mr. Frost took care in his enforced explanation to avoid giving an itemized bill of expense for the coal purchase. He failed to tell why Mayor William L. Smalley could get a carload in the same manner as he secured his shipment and yet be able to sell it for the established price of about nine dollars, nor did he commit himself by informing his readers that the regular Plainfield dealers were not allowed under any circumstance to retail their stock at more than the Government fixed price.

What Mr. Frost has to say about the transaction is all nice and fine but there are people ready to testify that they were given no assurance of a rebate when they bought. They were simply told that they could have coal if they were willing to pay twelve dollars and because of the discomfort of freezing weather they were ready to hand up their last penny to get a sufficient supply for their homes. All the talk about refunding the excess money arose after the little deal had been uncovered.

This leads up to the failure of Mr. Frost and Mr. Evans to practice what the baseball players call "team work." Mr. Evans, who is paid by the Board of Education to look after its affairs from possibly 8:30 in the morning to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, is afflicted with a physical drawback called a "loose tongue." In the early stages of the coal partnership, he not only asked twelve dollars a ton from prospective customers but frequently quoted a figure of twelve dollars and a half. After the coin began rolling in, he dropped all caution and confided to a number of curious inquisitors that he had "cleaned up a nice little pile." A little later he flung all caution to the wind and pinned himself down to the definite statement that he and his friend, Mr. Frost, had pocketed about two dollars and a half a ton as a result of their little flyer. As the four cars contained approximately 200 tons of anthracite, it is quite apparent that Mr. Evans' first remark about "cleaning up a nice little pile" was correct. There were other occasions when Mr. Evans' tongue wagged freely and at a very inopportune time, as it now developes, but that is all a matter which may come out later when Dr. Garfield's board of inquiry turns its attention directly to Plainfield itself.

The receiving of checks by those who had willingly paid nearly three dollars more for coal than the Government fixed price was the first intimation that the erstwhile company had discovered its mistake. The accompanying letter was a pitiful plea for forgiveness and a weak attempt to ward off adverse public opinion. It makes no difference what Mr. English had to say about the price that should have been charged for the coal. Neither does it make any difference whether or not a Plainfield dealer fixed twelve dollars as a tentative charge for the "premium" coal. Neither Mr. English nor the Plainfield dealer have authority to regulate prices. That is a matter which concerns Dr. Garfield and the Federal commission. The maximum price was put at about nine dollars and that is all that should have been paid no matter what Mr. English says and no matter if the coal that "relieved the situation" came over ten railroads or only one. Neither does the government take into consideration the cost of special delivery or the trouble of getting frozen consignments out of the gondolas. If Mr. Frost and Mr. Evans bumped against these difficulties, they were only "up against" the same obstacles met by the regular dealers.

Just to show how much it costs to get a special car of "premium" coal to Plainfield here are the figures covering Mayor William L. Smalley's one consignment of approximately fifty tons which he distributed under the Plainfield Coal Commission's direction:

Cost of coal at the mine, $5.45 per ton. First freight charge, $1.53 a ton; second freight charge, $0.72 per ton; three per cent. war tax on freight, $0.05 per ton; total, $7.75. To this add the cost of yardage and delivery and there is still a margin before any loss occurs at the government rate to the consumer. If Mr. Frost had given his figures, the lengthy article in yesterday's Courier-News might have contained something interesting.

Mr. English is quoted in the Elizabeth Evening Times as saying that the return of one dollar and sixty-three cents a ton to the customers of Messrs. Frost and Evans for nut and stove coal bought is sufficient to show that the two men acted in good faith and "the affair" may now be considered closed." The affair is not closed. There has been an evident violation of the law and explanations from either Mr. English or Mr. Frost will not circumvent the investigation that has been demanded by indignant citizens. Assurances come from both Dr. Garfield and State Administrator Jenkinson that the coal proceedings will be given careful government inquiry and where the violations are substantiated proper action will be taken.

Before the Washington probe gets as far as Mr. English's own particular door, it might be well for him to get acquainted with coal prices in this vicinity.

In a letter published in the Record two weeks ago, the County Administrator said, "I was convinced at that time and still am convinced that Mr. Frost did not intend to, and did not, make any profit whatever on the coal."

This was before the $1.63 a ton rebate checks were placed in the mail and Mr. English had $12 a ton in mind when he made the assertion. A difference of $1.63 is unpardonable leeway in the calculations of a man supposed to be so well posted on fuel matters that he can act as dictator for all of Union county. It was plainly apparent in this same letter that Mr. English knew nothing of any proposed refund as he made no mention of it and was obviously satisfied with the $12 per ton price. In conclusion his communication reads: "However, as this question has arisen, I am now writing to Mr. Frost and to Mr. Benjamin W. Evans, asking for a detailed statement of the cost per ton of the coal."

After allowing Mr. English ample time to get the figures from Messrs. Evans and Frost an interested Plainfield man wrote the County Administrator if he could have a copy of the same. That was ten days ago, and though Elizabeth is only twelve miles away a reply has not been forthcoming.

When Mr. English does write again, if he feels like committing himself a second time, he might explain to the public how it is that regular dealers can pay all overhead expense in addition to cost price and yet be able to make a fair profit at the government rate? Those in Plainfield live good, maintain their respective homes and even support an automobile without exceeding the established rate for their commodity. Surely their profit and operating charges would equal the extra cost of the Frost-Evans "premium" coal, thereby enabling the over-night partners to keep within bounds.

Mr. Frost can continue to amuse himself by writing double-column dissertations on twelve-dollar coal but he can never set himself right while his confrere, Mr. Evans, of the Board of Education, continues to exercise his right of free speech. He should be bound and gagged and given hourly instruction on the serious consequences of speaking out of his turn.

TAKE AWAY THE "DESK-FIGHTERS" UNIFORMS.

Adjutant General Gilkyson has explained that young men of draft age who obtain commissions in the National Guard, State Militia or State Militia Reserve are not thereby exempted from military duty under the conscription law. Thus is corrected an impression that is generally held, that the commissions are secured for the purpose of evading service, and not to display "the interest and part which the State and its military forces are taking in the war and also to assist in the observance of law and order in the State."

That his impression is not confined to New Jersey is indicated by a correspondent of the New York Sun, who suggests that the "desk fighters" wear long trousers. "Every day," he says, "it may be noticed that in all public places uniformed men (majors, captains, etc.,) are floating around, 'all dolled up and nowhere to go,' where they will not be seen. They represent all branches of the army, but very largely the Ordnance Department." And the correspondent thus continues:

"There are many of us who are getting sick and tired of seeing the uniformed strutters who are known in Washington as 'slickers' because they thought it would be slick to get a commission and hang around the capital city or their own home town or city in soldiers' garb for the feasting of admiring eyes."

It will be satisfying to the mothers and fathers who have sent their sons into the army to learn from General Gilkyson that the "slickers" will not escape conscription.

It is not surprising to learn that the wearing of uniforms by "slickers" is "practically nation-wide" for the desire of men to appear to be something more than they really are is confined to no section. If Governor Edge will withdraw his order requiring the wearing of uniforms at all times excepting when the "slickers" are engaged in private business, New Jersey would set an example which other States may be quick to follow. But if the order is not withdrawn, let long trousers be adopted as a distinguishing mark for the imitation soldiers. —Elizabeth Evening Times.

PERTINENT PARAGRAPHS.

Say! How much did you get back?

If you jump at chances, you are apt to land on a scrap heap.

If we all got exactly what we deserved how would the rest of us take care of the most of us?

Don't accuse the man in the auto of "feeling his importance." He may be out delivering a yeast cake.

More power to the West End Civic Association. Every time action is needed, whether it be against a proposed increased in trolley fares or any other municipal subject, this wide-awake organization seems to be the first on the job.

Now comes the truth about why the Russian soldiers quit fighting. It was not because they get only four cents a day but because the officers insisted they should not spend it all in one place.

The anti-loafing law is now in effect. A large red apple will be awarded the first person reporting its enforcement on some of our "idle rich."

Now comes a merry gentleman with a proposition to lay off work one day each week so the able-bodied men of the cities can help the farmers with their crops. Should it be carried into effect just imagine some of Plainfield's "biled-shirt" gentry climbing over corn hills or swinging the scythe through a field of rye. Bet four dollars to a red hen the unfortunate farmer who had them wished on him would have to sharpen all the stumps on his place so they wouldn't sit down and go to sleep.

By the way, did you notice that "erroneous statement" about the naval contract at Scott's as published in last Saturday's Spurious Noose? To the uniformed it might look like something real but as a matter of fact, it is only an old newspaper trick to get on the band wagon twenty-four hours late.

Go back to the simple life, be contented with simple food, simple pleasures, simple clothes. Work hard, pray hard, play hard. Work, eat, recreate and sleep. Do it all courageously. We have a victory to win.—Hoover.

If a man really wants popularity and nothing else, he must keep out of any public job that has to do with the speeding of the war preparations.

Big battle near, asserts Baker. General March, chief of staff, says the boys are ready. Which is comforting and no doubt authentic. We're all of us willing to have the ridiculous censorship nipped off any time now, General March.

When the tumult and the shouting sound no longer and an overwrought nation settles down into meditative mood, the men who have profited like hogs and thieves out of the desperation, travail and agony of war are going to hear a few things from old Vox Pop that will not be to their liking.

Apparently, too, men are divided into two classes on another proposition: Those who raise the devil because they have to pay an income tax and those who raise the devil because they do not have to pay an income tax.

Record's Entrance To Senate Contest

George L. Record, of Jersey City, this week announced his candidacy for the United States senatorial nomination of the republican party in New Jersey. That assured a three-cornered contest at the primaries in September with the candidacies of Governor Edge and Colonel Austen Colgate already promised. Mr. Record will be a candidate for the progressive and home rule factions.

In his announcement issued at Jersey City, Mr. Record promises to stand for a programme by which "the expenses of the war can be met out of the surplus wealth of the country and the cost of living greatly and permanently reduced". He said he would give out detail of his scheme in a few days. He said he stood for government ownership of railroads and the "payment of the war bills by the wealthy." After saying he would uphold the policies of the President regardless of politics he outlined his political stand as follows:—

"I take the position directly opposed to the leadership in our party of the stand-patters like Penrose, of Pennsylvania, and David Baird, of this state. They represent the corporate monopolies and trusts. The seek to impose the burden of the war upon the poor, and to tax the wealthy as lightly as possible. I would make the wealthy pay for the war, and would destroy the power of monopoly While we fight to make the world safe for political democracy we must also fight to establish and extend industrial democracy and equality of opportunity in this country."

In connection with the announcement of Mr. Record, the following communication has been received from H. E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue, one of Plainfield's best known residents, who has been carefully watching the political activities of recent date;

Editor the Record:—

"In a recent letter to the New York Herald, which you kindly copied in your last issue, I wrote stating that "regarding Governor Edge's appointment of David Baird for Senator pro tem. at the next election you will probably see the great independent vote in the state condeming Mr. Edge by not voting for him as the successor of David Baird."

Since my letter a little over a week ago you have printed the exclusive news that Richard Boardman, of this city, would run independently for Congress this fall against Earnest Ackerman, Governor Edge's candidate.

In addition now comes the announcement of George L. Record, of Jersey City, that he will stand for the nomination for United States Senator of the Republican party in New Jersey. This assures a three cornered contest at the primaries in September with Governor Edge and Colonel Austen Colgate in the field.

It is now up to the voters of the state to comdemn Governor Edge by electing Richard Boardman for Congress and George L. Record for Senator.

LOE MOORE BACK EAST FROM TEXAS TRAINING CAMP.

Leo Moore, of West Fourth street, who enlisted in the aerial corps last fall, spent a few days the forepart of the week as the guest of his sister, Miss Amy L. Moore, of Park avenue. He has been undergoing training at the aerial fields in San Antonio and Waco, Texas, as a member of the ground division of the 835th Aero Squadron. Last week he was transferred from Waco to Garden City, L. I., from which point he will probably go abroad in the near future.

Mr. Moore is the son of "Jerry" Moore, formerly of Plainfield, but now holding a responsible position in the horticultural department of Bronx Park and living in upper New York. The young man was employed at the Lake, Thompson and other local garages and entered the service as a motor expert. He declares the draining given all of Uncle Sam's boys is severe at first but when undertaken with a right spirit becomes a pleasant task. All the men of his division with but few exceptions are from California and are classed among the best soldiers that Uncle Sam is sending against the foe.

Mr. Boardman Gives Views on Situation

The issue of the Record of March 8th contained an announcement of the rumor that Richard Boardman of this city might enter the Republican primaries this fall as a candidate for the nomination as Representative of this District in Congress, or might run independently at the general election.

Mr. Boardman, when seen by a reporter of the Record, yesterday, said:

"Nothing in this world is impossible. But I can hardly imagine any situation that might arise that would induce me to enter a contest as an independent candidate at the general election against Senator Ackerman or Mr. Hamilton Kean, or, in fact, against any of those whose names have been mentioned in connection with this nomination.

"I am a Republican and would not be disposed to injure the chances of Republican success. Besides that, the only names I have seen mentioned, have been the names of men whom I hold in high personal esteem.

"As a matter of fact, however, neither Senator Ackerman nor Mr. Kean has announced himself as a candidate. It seems doubtful whether either of them will enter the contest. It is much more uncertain that both of them will do so. Both are in line for high political preferment with the certainty of Republican success in the campaign of 1920. Either of them might well hesitate to enter a campaign at a time of a contest as bitter as that between Governor Edge and Mr. Colgate threatens to be. And the fact that Mr. Record has entered the field will make the contest none the less difficult.

"Two years ago, I entered the primary with well defined views as to the policy that should be followed by the Republican party. The experience of the party during the intervening two years has only strengthened those views. The party has seemed to lack a definite program. The so-called 'constructive criticism' now being indulged in by Congress is, in fact, not constructive at all. The selection of Judge Hughes was a purely negative measure. He was chosen because of his known character and past accomplishments. His views on current public questions were unknown. In that fact lay his strength and weakness.

"If the Republican party is to retain its position of leadership in national affairs, it must reassert with vigor the traditional policies that made it great. It was born of a great generous impulse to do away with human slavery. It must again champion the cause of the burdened and unprotected.

"It has always stood for a strong central government at Washington. During the last few years, public opinion has made great strides in this direction and the present administration, properly enough, has exercised powers never before supposed to reside in the Federal government even in war times. The Republican party should take advantage of, and make permanent, this gain. It should at the same time demand a vastly more efficient co-ordination of the departments of government. These things, the Democratic party have left undone and with their traditional of decentralization and of states' rights, can never be expected of trusted to do.

"The Republican party must push a campaign of aggressive Republicanism if it expects to regain its position of leadership. We must cut out the pussyfoot. For my own part, I am willing to follow a real, vigorous, progressive Republican leader."

MRS. GILES' FUNERAL.

The funeral of Mrs. Anna Alice Giles, wife of Enoch Giles, of East Sixth street, will be held at the late home this afternoon and will be private. Mrs. Giles died Wednesday afternoon after a long illness. Beside her husband, she leaves one sister, Mrs. Edward Dora, of Bound Brook, and a brother, Daniel Ailer, of Somerville. Her only son, Elias Giles, was killed in the Jersey Central wreck at Westfield fifteen years ago.

War Tax Creates A Dearth of Pennies

To meet the greatest demand for pennies, the United States Mint produced 284,025,755 pieces of the bronze coins last year.

Last year was the largest coinage in the history of the mint service, according to a report of the Director of the Mint Baker, a feature of the year being the coinage of smaller denominations.

The number of coins minted for domestic circulation last year was 59,725,628, valued at $25,538,903.-15. The highest previous record was in 1907, when 218,505,563 pieces were struck.

The increased circulation of pennies is attributed to the operation of the revenue law provision for the payment of penny taxes with theatre admissions, telephones taxes and revenue stamps.

In certain cities trolley car rides have increased to six cents, thus demanding a large circulation of pennies.

A shortage of pennies in one Western city caused one organization to issue paper penny certificates, redeemable for paper money when sufficient accumulate.

Over 17,000,000 coins for foreign countries were minted last year, Director Baker reports.

The striking of 35,840,050 pieces of metallic money for Central America and the Philippine Islands, and the preparation of 560,000 gold and 101,278 silver planchets for a South American republic, Director Baker says, contributed to the making of a very active year.

Record Crowd Expected at A. O. H. Ball Tonight

Division No. 4, A. O. H., is preparing to entertain a record breaking attendance at its forty-third annual St. Patrick's ball, which takes place in Columbus Hall tonight. The advance sale of tickets is already very large and with the customary door sales and delegations that will come from out of town it is believed the attendance will tax the capacity of the auditorium.

Professor Bowman's tango orchestra, of Elizabeth, will furnish music for the popular fox trots, one-steps and waltzes, the style of dancing enjoyed by the younger folks. This program will be given on the main floor but below stairs, Tom Lundy, of Irvington, the Irish piper, will hold forth for the benefit of the real lads and colleens from Erin who can execute the dancing peculiar to the Emerald Isle. This latter feature is one that is always appreciated by the A. O. H. supporters and not only furnish amusement for the Irish dancers but also entertains those who never saw the "real article."

The committee which has arranged the ball and which will be in charge tonight is composed of John Shea, chairman; John J. Gallagher, treasurer; John Driscoll, James Caserly, Daniel Nugent, Timothy Cullinan and John Hurley.

WILL LEAVE HOSPITAL.

Miss Sarah Carney, of Central avenue, who was badly injured in an automobile accident, and who has been at Muhlenberg Hospital since last September, will probably leave the institution within the next few days.

GERMANS CONFOUNDED BY "SAMMIES'" 'PHONE CODE

"I'll be in Oregan at 3. At 4 o'clock I'll be fixing up that ration question with Hindenburg in London. And if you want me after that I'll be over in Talahassee. Just ask for the Kaiser."

Not a quotation from the ravings of a mad-man—not the dream of a super-pacifist in a space-annihilating aeroplane.

The foregoing conversation is just one end of a typical phone-talk on the French front where everything is code and nobody's name is what it is.

The young divisional supply officer was about to leave on a round of the fighting points on the front. He was giving one of his subordinates instructions over the 'phone on how to reach him in case of need during the remainder of the afternoon.

"Oregon" is an artillery post a few kilometers from headquarters—not the Western State where the apples come from. Hindenburg is a battalion commander whose right name may be Smith, and London is a dugout in the support line "up front." After that he was going to a brigade headquarters. On the 'phone he answers to the name of "The Kaiser."

It's simple if you have the key, but a crazy confusion of far-flung places and irreconcilable names if you don't know what they're talking about.

Code is a safeguard against enemy "listening-in" sets. Telephonic invention has produced a machine which picks up distant 'phone conversations from the ground. If a Boche listening-in post picked up that message the observer scanned his maps of the sector in vain for "London" and "Tallahassee." And "Hindenburg"—there's only one Hindenburg and he isn't visiting London these days to consult on rationing problems. Every loyal Boche knows that. The Idiotic Yankees must be mad.

SECOND RED CROSS DRIVE BEGINS MAY 20.

Chairman G. M. Dahl, chairman of the Atlantic Division of the Red Cross, has announced that the next War Fund campaign for $100,000,000 will commence on May 20. It will continue for one week and include every State in the Union.

The big Red Cross campaign was originally set for May sixth to fifteenth, but on account of possible interference with the Liberty Loan drive it was decided that the later date would more effectively serve the interest of the Red Cross and the Liberty Loan committee.

"DEATH GRAB" AND "OVER THE TOP" LATEST DANCES

The "Death Grab" and "Over the Top" are here.

And they had their origination at the Springfield, Ill., high school. But are they going to stay? It all depends on the weight of protests from Springfield's Moral Squad in the form of a ministerial delegation and doting mothers launched at the school board.

The students declare the dances are "physical culture" exercises, while the parsons view them with suspicious eyes of concern, which they say, if permitted to continue, will submarine the perfect morals of the youths.

Charge Railroads With Conspiring Against Government

Federal officials have sent to Director General McAdoo at Washington evidence which they say indicated a widespread conspiracy on the part of the railroads to discredit government control of ownership of the roads according to a statement made by an official at Providence, R. I.

Mr. McAdoo's agents are now, it is said, investigating these charges which are along three lines:

1—That the railroads are attempting to create sentiment against government operation by delaying trains.

2—That they are trying to make operation under government supervision extravagant.

3—That they are endeavoring to make employes dissatisfied with the government's operations.

Affidavits have been submitted with the results of the investigations of the Federal officials in their report to Washington, it is said. Trains have been held up and delayed, the report charges, to an extent never seen before. Mail trains in particular have suffered from these delays.

Evidence has also gone with the report, the Federal officials say, to the effect that train crews when called for service have been from eight to eleven hours without being sent out on trains. These men are paid for their time, thus adding to the expense of operation without any benefit to the public.

Extra fare trains on which a rebate is paid to passengers for delays have been later this winter than ever before, the report charges, and considerable expense has been incurred in these rebates.

The report substantiates practically in every detail the charges made by Garretson and Lee, heads of the Trainmen's unions, at Washington recently, where they declaimed that a nation-wide conspiracy exists to discredit government operation.

SENATE COMMITTEE FAVORS ALIEN DRAFT

The Senate Committee on Military Affairs this week reported favorably Senator Fletcher's resolution providing that the President may draft certain aliens into the military service of the United States.

The bill provides that the President may draft those aliens whose Governments have concluded or may hereafter conclude treaties with the United States providing for such a stringency.

Under the provisions of the bill such aliens may have the option of enlisting in the services of their own countries.

The committee also reported favorably the resolution introduced by Fletcher, providing that soldiers and officers who lost their uniforms and equipment with the sinking of the Tuscania on February 5 be reimbursed for their value.

EXEMPTION BOARD GETS A TELEPHONE

After holding up the connection for the past two weeks because, as it was stated, no individual could be secured to stand responsible, the New York Telephone Company yesterday installed a telephone in the new office of the Plainfield Exemption Board in the Babcock building.

Addresses May Be Dropped from Casualty Lists

Names of the next of kin and emergency address of soldiers whose names appear on the casualty lists of the American forces in France will be withheld in the future as the result of a War Department order published this week.

The announcement explained that the step had been urgently recommended by General Pershing, and the purpose of the order was to keep valuable information from the enemy.

Department officials said that lists of the dead and wounded without addresses will be sent to the Committee on Public Information for distribution as usual. The committee, under Chairman Creel, announced that it would discontinue issuing the lists, taking the position that names of men killed or wounded would be worthless to newspapers unless the addresses were given.

The committee also issued a notice to the press that hereafter all information regarding casualties must be obtained from the War Department.

While the disagreement between the committee and the War Department probably will be straightened out, the fact that the "expurgated" lists may be made available to all who desire them, the purpose of the department to withhold the addresses apparently is unalterable. Acting Secretary Crowell said the order would be permanent. Both Mr. Crowell and Major General March, acting chief of staff, disclaimed any intention of seeking to conceal heavy casualty reports from General Pershing.

"You may say for me," said General March, "that the War Department has and will not hold up a single name for an instant longer than it takes to get it out."

The nearest relative of every soldier who may be killed or wounded will be notified by the War Department as heretofore. Lists, containing simply the names of the soldiers under the heading "killed in action" or "died of disease" will be sent each day to the Committee on Public Information. To give out the lists in this shape, according to the committee, would bring each day a flood of requests by telephone, telegraph and mail, for specific identification of each man named in the list of the previous day.

Unofficially it was said at the War Department that General Pershing held that the publication of addresses with the casualty lists tends to disclose the identity of units in the trenches, information which the enemy is so desirous of obtaining that many lives are risked in sending raiding parties to bring out a prisoner or two to be examined and questioned.

Pleasure Cars to Be Limited Because of War Emergencies

Conservation of joy rides is imminent. Gradual reduction in the output of pleasure cars to make way for war work has been decided upon.

Bernard M. Baruch, now virtually industrial dictator under the organization which made him chairman of the War Industries Board, has brought about agreement with auto factories to gradually cut their production of pleasure cars from twenty-five to thirty-five per cent.

Conferences are being held between automobile manufacturers and experts representing Baruch, at which problems which curtailment entails are being threshed out, both from the side of war conservation and that of the automobile industry, perhaps the biggest in the United States. Drastic changes or sudden curtailment of production would so dislocate not only the whole industry, but the other dependent industries, that more harm than good would result, according to the official view at Washington.

But necessity for reduction in non-essential industry demands some action. Shortage of chrome leather, steel and labor make it necessary that the number of pleasure cars manufactured be reduced to the minimum. Need of vast numbers of motor trucks will simplify matters, however, as factories can easily convert from pleasure car making to truck building—the chassis construction being practically the same for both classes of cars. Many concerns today are devoting a big percentage of their skilled labor also to liberty motor manufacture for the Aidcraft Production Board.

WAGES RAISED, BUT NOT UP TO LIVING PRICES

Wages are showing a marked upward trend, though not so marked as the rising levels in the costs of general commodities, according to a report issued this week by the Washington Bureau of Labor Statistics. A survey of wage increases in six departments of the iron and steel industry covering an approximate period of three years shows a jump of fifty-two per cent. since May, 1915, in the wages paid to blast furnace workers, and fifty-eight per cent. to those who work in the Bessemer converters. The largest increase was found in the sheet metal mills where a rise of ninety-five per cent. has been made.

Commissioner Dill Explains New Law On Licensing Cars

Motor Vehicle Agent James J. McCann, of this city, is in receipt of a circular letter from Commissioner William L. Dill, of the State Motor Vehicle Department, in regard to the licensing of all motor vehicles according to the schedule of tire weights and fees made by Assembly bills Nos. 157 and 158, and which were recently enacted into laws by the signature of Governor Edge, after it had been passed by the Legislature. This calls for all such vehicles to be properly licensed.

Following is a part of Commissioner Dill's letter:

"Instead of computing the registration fee upon the size of tire, you will determine the registration fee from the gross weight, which is to be arrived at by adding the weight of the vehicle with the maximum capacity for which the vehicle is built to carry. Hereafter you will not allow ten per cent. for loading. An example as to how the fee shall hereafter be determined is shown below: Weight of vehicle, 6,000 pounds; allowable load, 8,000 pounds; gross weight, 12,000 pounds; fee, $31.

"Before issuing the registration you will ascertain from the size of tires whether the gross weight requested by the applicant is met by the weight which the size of tires allows. If so, the application will be correct in form. If the weight allowed by the size of tires does not permit the registration to be issued in accordance with the figures furnished by the applicant, then you will reduce the allowable load so as to bring it within the tire schedule.

"If application is made for the registration of a vehicle known as a 'tractor' you will issue therefor a 'commercial' registration and determine of registration fee upon the weight of the tractor, inasmuch as a tractor is a vehicle without body and, therefore, does not carry a load.

"Farm motor machines, trailers and semi-trailers will be registered from the Trenton office as at present.

"All future registrations for commercial motor vehicles will indicate the allowable maximum speed as set forth in the bulletin of instructions."

KIND-HEARTED VICAR PAYS FINE OF $100.00

If you care to spend about $960 in fines and rest three months in an English jail, all you have to do is to violate some of Great Britain's stringent food laws.

Should you want to be as kind-hearted as the English vicar, one Rev. R. A. Wilson, in adding the churches information which the enemy is so desirous of obtaining that many lives are risked in sending raiding parties to bring out a prisoner or two to be examined and questioned.

WAGES RAISED, BUT NOT UP TO LIVING PRICES

Wages are showing a marked upward trend, though not so marked as the rising levels in the costs of general commodities, according to a report issued this week by the Washington Bureau of Labor Statistics. A survey of wage increases in six departments of the iron and steel industry covering an approximate period of three years shows a jump of fifty-two per cent. since May, 1915, in the wages paid to blast furnace workers, and fifty-eight per cent. to those who work in the Bessemer converters. The largest increase was found in the sheet metal mills where a rise of ninety-five per cent. has been made.

EXERCISE CARE IN WRITING TO SOLDIERS

Relatives writing to American soldiers were this week requested by the army officials at Washington to be careful in directing mail to soldiers. They are asked to write in ink, to use the rank of the soldier instead of "Mr." to make their writing particularly clear and legible and to write names in full instead of using initials. A warning also was made that envelopes should bear return addresses.

Hospital Test Proves Truth of 'Bleeder' Story

Corroboration of the statement made by Dr. A. H. Dundon, personal physician to Arthur W. Briggs, of Albert street, that the latter was what is known to the medical profession as a "bleeder," was furnished at a test conducted in Muhlenberg Hospital the past week. Mr. Briggs, as a registrant in the Plainfield draft district, has accordingly been placed in a limited service class of selectives destined for military duty.

When the young man was first called before the local examining board, he submitted the diagnosis of Dr. Dundon, which showed that should he receive a very slight cut, there was a possibility of his bleeding to death. With an ordinary person the coagulation process would take place in two minutes, but with Mr. Briggs it would require nearly six times that period. The Board physicians, however, had nothing in their formulas covering a case of this kind and finding the young man physically fit in other particulars, recommended him for general military service.

On the advice of relatives and friends, Mr. Briggs appealed the decision to the medical advisory board. This body of physicians subjected the applicant to a test which verified the assertion of Dr. Dundon that the young man was a "bleeder." In consequence, he was rejected as a selective. The local board afterward asked for a second test and this took place at Muhlenberg Hospital a few days ago.

In the presence of Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, of the Medical Advisory Bord; Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, of the Plainfield District Board; Dr. Gerkie, pathologist at Muhlenberg, Dr. Dundon and Dr. W. H. Murray, the test of blood took place. Under the microscope it showed the coagulation to be 11 minutes and 45 seconds. It gave full substantiation of Dr. Dundon's original diagnosis and Mr. Briggs accordingly established himself as a "bleeder."

It can be easily seen that should the young man receive a severe wound, serious, if not fatal, consequences would result. Because of Government restrictions, however, it is impossible to reject him entirely as a selective and accordingly he was placed in the limited class. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Noble C. Briggs, of Albert street, and brother to William Briggs, recently accepted by the local board for general military duty.

WIDOWS' PENSIONS GRANTED.

Among the widows' pensions granted by Judge James C. Connolly, on Wednesday, were the following from Plainfield: Sadie Nestor, twenty dollars monthly for herself and four children; Helen G. Scott, fourteen dollars monthly for herself and three children. The applications of Bertha A. O'Neill and Alice A. MacGillivray, both of Plainfield, were dismissed on a motion made by County Attorney Francis J. Blatz.

Baker Had Escort of 10,000 Soldiers

Newton D. Baker, American Secretary of War, went to France on a cruiser convoying 10,000 troops of which a portion were aboard a former German liner, it was learned today.

The voyage was enlivened in mid-ocean by a submarine alarm, according to further information. There was considerable cannonading before it was discovered that the "periscope" was only a floating spar.

Before the cruiser entered port Sunday morning an alarm was wireless from the port that a submarine was lurking near by. The French sent out a considerable convoy of hydro planes and dirigibles. Baker was visibly impressed by the thoroughness of those precautions.

After landing the Secretary of War returned the call of French military and naval chiefs and walked about the town for forty minutes before boarding a train for Paris.

Arriving in Paris, Baker, accompanied by General Pershing, began a round of formal calls, concluding with Ambassador Sharp, who will present him formally to President Poincare.

Baker issued a statement in which he declared his intention of visiting all the communication lines of the army, after which he would confer thoroughly with Pershing in order to support more effectively the American and Allied armies.

New Providence Man May Get County Farm Job

Speculation over the appointee as superintendent of the county work farm at New Providence is now occupying the attention of those interested in the affairs of the county. It is understood that the Board of Freeholders at its April meeting will select the man for the job, after receiving a report from the work farm committee and Sheriff Warner.

The name of Charles Drake seems to be the only one so far connected with the job and it would not be surprising to see him become the first superintendent of the county's new venture.

He seems to be excellently suited for such a position from his past experience. About ten years ago he was assistant warden of the county jail under Charles Dodd. Robert J. Kirkland was sheriff at the time. Upon the death of the former he was replaced and retired to his farm at Berkeley Heights, which is near to the county farm. He has, however, kept in touch with county affairs and is known to have many friends. The position will likely pay about $1,500 a year.

Other preparations are under way for the farm work. The committees from the Board of Freeholders is completing plans under the chairmanship of Freeholder Thomas F. Haviland and will probably have an extensive report to make at the coming session.

The Service Flag

The crimson-bordered flag now hangs in the windows of many American homes. These affecting verses give words to that banner—tell simply, touchingly, what every mutely eloquent Service Flag is saying to the passers-by.

Dear little flag in the window there,
Hung with a tear and a woman's prayer;
Child of Old Glory, born with a star—
Oh, what a wonderful flag you are!

Blue is you star in its field of white,
Dipped in the red that was born of fight;
Born of the blood that our forbears shed
To raise your mother, The Flag, o'erhead.

And now you've come, in this frenzied day,
To speak from a window—to speak and say:
"I am the voice of a soldier-son
Gone to be gone till the victory's won.
"I am the flag of The Service, sir:
The flag of his mother—I speak for her
Who stands by my window and waits and fears,
But hides from the others her unwept tears.

"I a mthe flag of the wives who wait
For the safe return of a martial mate,
A mate gone forth where the war god thrives
To save from sacrifice other men's wives.

"I am the flag of the sweethearts true:
The often unthought of—the sisters—too.
I am the flag of a mother's son
And won't come down till the victory's won."

Dear little flag in the window there,
Hung with a tear and a woman's prayer.
Child of Old Glory, born with a star—
Oh, what a wonderful flag you are!

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

JAMES PAUL STREETER.

The funeral of James Paul Streeter, of 215 Church street, whose death occurred in Muhlenberg Hospital, Sunday night, after an illness of ten days, was held Tuesday afternoon at the undertaking parlors of Henry DeMott on Somerset street. The mortuary was filled with friends, the attendance including a large delegation from the North Plainfield Republican Club, of which the deceased had been a prominent member. Mr. Streeter was known as "Plainfield's 'young old man'" as, despite the fact that he was an octogenarian, he was as active as a man many years his junior. A great mass of flowers which came from admirers all over the city and borough was evidence of the feeling held for him by those with whom he came in contact. One of the pieces was from the North Plainfield Republican Club, another from the North Plainfield Domino Club, and another from the Kensington Hotel Checker Club. Rev. George Bowers, of Warrenville, an old time friend and admirer of the deceased, was in charge of the service and in the course of his remarks took occasion to relate personal memoirs of the departed.

Burial was in Hillside cemetery, the following members of the North Plainfield Republican Club acting as pall-bearers: Former Sheriff Charles P. Goring, John C. Cooper, Howard Woolston and James Lewis. Mr. Lewis, who is a veteran of the Civil War, is also unusually supple and as a close friend of Mr. Streeter, frequently engaged in friendly jousting and wrestling matches with him. On numerous occasions the two "veterans" outdistanced young men half their age in feats of strength and athletic diversions.

Mr. Streeter was born at South Vernon, Vt., on January 5, 1835, thus making him eighty-three years old. His father was a member of an old New England family and his farm at South Vernon was one of the "show places" of the day. James Paul Streeter left the parental home when sixteen years old to accept a position in a hotel at Springfield, Mass. Later on he went to Boston, where he entered the employ of Rich, Smith & Company, a large clothing concern. He showed such adaptability that he was quickly promoted to the position of traveling salesman, an honor accorded to only the most able clerks during that period of American commercial activity. From then on Mr. Streeter had a most successful career in the clothing and dry goods line. He changed positions frequently, working in close succession for Arnold, Constable & Company, H. B. Claflin & Company, C. F. Hathaway, Bliss & Wheelock and other well-known concerns. On several occasions he engaged for himself, the most successful undertaking being as a member of the firm of Partridge, Smith & Streeter, which had offices and salesrooms in Chicago. This concern was organized in 1865, but the Plainfielder retired four years later.

Leaving Chicago, Mr. Streeter became a high salaried "drummer" for New York and Boston houses, traveling most of the time through the Middle West. He frequently took "flyers" in establishing manufacturing plants, one of the most successful being the starting of the Lyons Silk and Tapestry Company at Paterson. This he afterward sold to W. G. Hitchcock & Company, of New York, who still have it in operation.

Mr. Streeter came to Plainfield in 1896 in order to organize the Plainfield Street Railway Company, composed practically of Plainfield people who saw the future of trolley transportation. He was made secretary of the company and as such successfully disposed of the necessary stock before the work of construction was commenced. After the first line from Monroe avenue to Seventh street, through Fourth street, Grant avenue and West Front street to a point opposite Exchange alley, was put in operation he remained in an official capacity until a change of directorate was brought about by the need of development. Outside capital was furnished by wealthy Newmen and the original secretary left the company entirely.

Despite his advancing years, Mr. Streeter continued to remain "youthful" and active. Even to the very last, he retained unusually good sight and hearing. Those who did not know him well were surprised when they learned his real age. Last summer and fall he took charge of several big land deals for Dr. Nixon, of Raritan. One of them required his presence at Detroit and another at Toronto, Can., while a third required him to make a tedious trip through the mountains of Virginia. He made four journeys each time with the same unconcern that would mark a Plainfield commuter going to his daily work in New York.

The old gentleman possessed a wonderful memory, not the slightest of the past or present days passing out of his mind. His principal amusement of late had been the playing of checkers and much of his spare time was passed in the enjoyment of this diversion. Hardly a day passed but what he would drop into the Hotel Kensington for a game and he was particularly delighted when he could induce the proprietor, John J. Sullivan, to participate. Mr. Streeter followed many a hard fought game that was frequently witnessed by a gallery of a dozen or more interested persons. On one occasion, the two engaged in a series for the "championship" of Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties and the venerable Streeter was greatly chagrined when he lost out by the narrow margin of one game. He probably would have won this but for the bantering assertion of one of the onlookers that he was taking advantage of the shadows cast by his cuffs to move without his opponent noticing him. While it was only in fun he became so greatly nettled by the remark that he failed to watch his plays and lost out. The members of this little delegation of checker players were among the devoted friends who made the aged man comfortable in his last days, especially during his stay at Muhlenberg Hospital.

Mr. Streeter was twice married. His first wife was Miss Susan Collins, daughter of Peter D. Collins, a New York banker and promoter. She died in this city many years ago from the effect of a fall. His second wife was a resident of Plainfield and connected with several influential families. Her health became impaired fourteen years ago, since which time she has been in a sanitarium. The only near surviving relative is a brother, who lives in Connecticut.

In the last few years, Mr. Streeter's only employment had been with D. F. Starck, the Watchung avenue antique dealer, where he acted as salesman. He also had the agency for a patent fire extinguisher and represented several automobile concerns in nearby territory.

OWEN McCARTHY.

The funeral of Owen McCarthy, whose death occurred Saturday morning at the home of his son, Charles McCarthy, Manson place, was held Monday morning in St. Mary's church. Rev. Father Holsters said the mass in the presence of many relatives and friends. Burial was made later in a cemetery at New London, Conn., where the deceased formerly resided.

Mr. McCarthy came to Plainfield in 1887 as an employe of the Flint Construction Company of Palmer, Mass., which erected the first buildings for the Pond Machine Tool Company on South Second street. Mr. McCarthy was in charge of the masons and in this capacity superintended the construction of the main smoke stack at the plant which at the time it was built was the tallest in this vicinity. After the Flint Company finished its contract, Mr. McCarthy remained in the employ of the Pond concern. He retired from active work a short time ago. His home for many years was on Monroe avenue, between what is now Fifth and Sixth streets, but which were not then cut through as they are at present. Since the death of his wife, some time ago, he had been living with his son.

Mr. McCarthy also leaves two daughters, both of whom formerly lived here, but who are now residing in New London.

WILLIAM E. McCLYMONT.

Word came to Plainfield by telegram this week of the death of William Harris McClymont, a former well known local resident who left this city about three years ago to take a traveling position on the Pacific coast. His home recently had been at Bellingham, Washington, but the demise occurred at San Francisco as follows a brief illness with pleuro-pneumonia. The Masonic fraternity of the California city took charge of arrangements and the funeral was held in San Francisco yesterday. The body was placed in a receiving vault pending later disposition.

Mr. McClymont was the son of Mr. and the late Mrs. J. C. McClymont, whose home for many years was on Washington avenue, the borough. He was born in New York city in 1872 but came to Plainfield with his parents when fifteen years old.

Mr. McClymont had natural talent as a musician which was developed by instruction from well-known professors. He became exceptionally proficient on the organ and officiated as organist for various local churches, among them the First Baptist, the First Presbyterian, Holy Cross and Grace church. He also gave piano instruction, at one time having one of the largest classes in this city. His knowledge of music was not confined alone to technique. He possessed considerable ability as a composer and was an expert on orchestration work. On two occasions he assumed full charge of Plainfield Lodge of Elks' annual minstrel show, writing original music, arranging solo and quartet numbers, and acting as orchestra leader during the performances.

Mr. McClymont resigned as organist at Grace church to preside in a similar capacity for Holy Trinity church in New York. He remained with the latter congregation only a short time as he received a flattering offer from the manufacturers of a concert pipe organ to install the instruments in theatres and instruct players in their manipulation. One of the first of the organs was placed in the Criterion Theatre, New York, where it attracted widespread attention. The Plainfield man remained as organist for several months, after which he went to Montreal, Can., to superintend the installation of a duplicate instrument in one of the city's leading playhouses. His work was so satisfactory that the manufacturers opened him a position on the Pacific coast, which caused him to remove to Bellingham. His home up to that time had been on Woodbine avenue, this city, but after he became located at Bellingham, Mrs. McClymont and one daughter, Miss Catherine McClymont, went West also. Another daughter, Miss Dorothy McClymont, continued to make her home in Plainfield.

Mrs. McClymont was formerly a Miss Vail, of Westfield, and her marriage to Mr. McClymont took place in 1893. She was in Bellingham at the time Mr. McClymont's illness began, but hurried to San Francisco in response to telegrams. The deceased was a member of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M., of this city, which conferred by wire with the San Francisco Masons in aiding Mrs. McClymont in making the funeral arrangements.

ROBERT COARD JOHNSON.

Robert Coard Johnson, the eight-year-old son of Harry F. and Alice D. Johnson, died yesterday morning at the parents' home at 1220 Watchung avenue. He had been ill but a short time. The funeral will be held at the parents' home today and will be strictly private. Burial will be in Hillside cemetery. Mrs. Johnson was formerly Miss Alice Coard.

Union County "Skeeter" Squad Begins "Drive"

The campaign of the Union County Mosquito Commission for the coming year has just gotten under way, with the setting to work of a gang of men in Greater Elizabeth doing drainage work.

One change that will, it is expected, relieve labor shortage problems, as well as produce more satisfactory results is the introduction of the "squad" system. This year all the resources of the commission will be directed toward cleaning up one section at a time instead of having a number of projects under way simultaneously. The use of machinery and other labor saving devices will also be depended upon to a large extent.

John M. Whiton, of Plainfield, the president of the commission, will announce within a few days the third member of the committee to take charge of three matters brought up by Chief Inspector Platz. The first is the dike at the plant of the Grasselli Chemical Works; the second, the pools of stagnant water back of the plant of the Cyanamid Company, and the third, the changes in Morse's Creek proposed by the Standard Oil Company. Jacob L. Bauer and Robert Savoye are members of the committee.

The members of the commission has decided upon William H. Randolph, of Rahway, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Frederick Sell, and his name will be recommended to Supreme Court Justice Bergen, who makes the appointment.

Zionists Celebrate Seventh Anniversary

The Jehuda-Halevi Camp, No. 57, Order Sons of Zion, held a banquet last evening at the Knights of Pythias Hall, West Front street, to celebrate the seventh anniversary of its organization.

Henry Rosenbaum, president of the camp, acted as toastmaster. The principal speaker of the evening was Dr. Isaac Bluestone, of New York city, who is widely known throughout the country for his Zionist and philanthropic cactivities. His remarks on the present status of events in reference to the British declaration favoring Palestine as a Jewish State were intensely interesting to those present, and he was applauded many times during his speech. Dr. Bluestone was present at the installation exercises of the camp when it was organized seven years ago, and he was, of course, happy to hear of the fine progress made in Plainfield during that time, and especially of the great success that crowned the efforts of the local committee of the Ptlestine Restoration Fund.

Other speakers during the evening were Harvey I. Rothberg, Louis Rosenthal, Herman Kraemer and Benjamin J. Kline. Several vocal solors were rendered by Miss Julia Fiedler. Those in charge of the arrangements were Jacob Kaiser, Mr. and Mrs. Elias Rosenberg and Harry Freinberg.

J. C. PIERSON SELLS PROPERTY.

J. C. Pierson, a former well-known local resident who now lives at Reverie, Cal., has sold his residence property at 1120 Myrtle avenue to Harold Coffin, of West Front street. The property has a frontage of ninety-five feet and a depth of 1,000 feet, extending from Myrtle avenue to Green brook. Mr. Coffin will remove to the property on April 1. The deal was made through the Edward C. Hardingham agency.

APPOINTED COMMISSIONERS.

Daniel F. Duzan and Miss Adelia Runyon, both of this city, have been notified of their appointment as commissioners of deeds and are to be sworn in at the County Clerk's office during the coming week.

Plainfield Women Tells How to Meet The Servant Problem

Those blessed, old-fashioned servants who stayed with one household their entire lives and when they died were buried in the family cemetery beside those whom they had served so faithfully are becoming as rare as the great auk. It is the very exceptional woman who can truthfully boast in this age that she has had no servant "problem."

The occupation of house servants has become more and more unpopular during the last few years, until the scarcity of domestic help is beginning to cause sincere anxiety among housewives everywhere. What is the cause of it? Who is to blame for this state of affairs and what is the remedy, or is the situation beyond hope? At this auspicious moment when everybody is voicing these questions there rises above the hopeless din a solution for this vexatious problem, one that she has tried thoroughly in her own home with most gratifying results. She is Mrs. Richard Boardman, of Plainfield, and she has established in the management of her household the same model working conditions that exist in other fields of labor. For more than a year now, the eight hour law has been in order in the Boardman home, and servants are paid the regular factory wage on a sliding scale, based on efficiency, with extra money for overtime.

"I feel that my own domestic problems are over forever. And my servants are as enthusiastic over the experiment as I am!" she exclaimed joyfully to the reporter, who was inquiring about the magic solution.

"The scarcity of domestic servants during the last few years," Mrs. oBardman went on, "and the difficulty of obtaining efficient help of any kind set me thinking. I began to wonder why it was that working women should be so much more willing to engage in any sort of industrial work than to enter domestic service. In the end I decided that the fault was largely with the housewife, and in order to make domestic service popular once again we housewives would have to put it upon the same basis as that of other fields of labor. It is natural to suppose that a girl who must support herself would prefer working eight or nine hours a day in a factory and having her independence the balance of the time to becoming a domestic with a day of indefinite length and very little time of her own, and yet it seems to me that under favorable circumstances work in private homes should prove desirable, particularly to women with small children, since the hours could without much difficulty be so arranged that they could be at home for part of the day.

"In my own home, I have a head assistant whom I call my major-domo, and three other assistants, whom I never call servants. My major-domo is a colored girl. She has covered herself with glory ever since I adopted her along with the eight hour system. The other three assistants are all young married women, white, and two of them have children. Two begin their work early in the morning, one at 7:30 and the other at 9, while the other two come at 11:30. The two the first two have an opportunity to go home and be with their children for a few hours at lunch time. Their hours are so arranged that they dovetail each other, and the schedule is worked out in such a manner that there are always two maids on hand.

"'Each of these young woman gives eight hours a day six days in the week. They eat and sleep in their own homes, so they get regular exercise in coming and going. This, I believe, is good for body, mind and spirit. And the principles embodied in the industrial standards all over the land are strictly observed in every particular in our household arrangements. I place my employes absolutely upon their own responsibility regarding the work to be done during their hours at the house, and I find that the eight-hour day serves as an impetus to intensive housework," Mrs. Boardman said emphatically, "their attention is more concentrated, and ambition is substituted for indifference.

"I do not encourage specialization," she stated. "They are there to do any and all work that needs to be done. Under the old order, their only safeguard lay in specialization. Their oft repeated and exasperating refrain, 'I was not hired to do that,' was really their one weapon of defence, which they used against great impositions upon their time and strength in the homes where they were employed. Generally speaking, I think they are justified in holding strictly to those duties for which they were engaged. In many homes this may not seem unreasonable, but in others it would be imperative. It is such homes as the latter that make specialization so general among servants. Under such conditions housewife is apt to forget the unreasonable one, who must be reckoned with, for she looms large and terrible on the servant horizon.

"So far as I have been able to discover, the eight hour day relieves all causes of dissatisfaction," Mrs. Boardman reclared, "supplies daily change of environment and protects the girl from any unfust call upon her time and strength. Such provisions for her welfare act in turn as an incentive to fairness and interest on her part. Under such a contract as that which the eight hour system provides, she gladly agrees to do anything she may be asked to do, and to give extra service whenever it is needed, for this means extra pay. It is the psychology of this system, which places responsibility where it belongs upon the assistants, that makes it so successful, I believe," she emphasized.

"I have been asked if I do not find this system more expensive than the old one of employing fewer servants for longer hours, but instead I have proved the economy of it to be another of its advantages. This is, of course, due to the fact that all assistants eat at their own homes.

"I hope that all of those who try it will be as happy over the results as I am," she added cheerfully, "for as far as I am concerned, I feel that the servant question is solved for me for all time."—New York Sun.

$12,000 Addition for Color Works Plant

The Crescent Color and Chemical Company, which occupies the former Lasher-Gray color plant on West Front street, west of Rock avenue, has filed plans with Building Inspector Doane for a $12,000 addition to the main structure. It will be of frame construction, two stories in height and measuring 70x70x80. N. C. Nicolayson, of Dunellen, has the contract.

The Crescent Company has recently received several large orders which will push the plant to its capacity for a long time to come. The addition which is now under way, it is understood, is the first of several that may be erected later. A short time ago, the concern purchased a portion of the old "Eight Row" property with the evident intention of spreading in that direction. The name of "Eight Row" was applied to eight houses of similar type that were built on West Front street, beginning at the Rock avenue corner, about forty years ago. The buildings have gradually been disappearing until now only two are left.

Should the color company follow out its present plans, it will mean the addition of another large industry to the plants already located in the West End and one which will furnish lucrative employment for a large force of hands.

"TOM" LYNCH QUITS NEWSPAPER PRESS WORK.

Thomas J. Lynch, of East Second street, has resigned his position as pressman for another local paper to accept a more lucrative one in the inspecting department at the Spicer Company's South Plainfield plant. He entered upon his new duties last Monday. Mr. Lynch was for more than twenty-eight years pressman for the Daily Press, starting with the paper when it was first published on May 10, 1887, and remaining until it suspended publication on October, 1915.

Mr. Lynch came to Plainfield from the Brooklyn Eagle, where he served his apprenticeship as pressman. He is considered an expert in his particular line, having handled in the past thirty-five years all kinds of pressed from the flat beds up to doubled-decked cylinders.

PERSONAL

Edward P. T. Smith, son of Captain and Mrs. William C. Smith, of the borough, who is in St. Vincent's Hospital, New York, suffering from pleuro-pneumonia, was reported yesterday as being considerably improved. His condition was critical for several days during the forepart of the week but his complete recovery is now expected. Mr. Smith was at work on a contract in New York when his illness began and at the advice of a physician went immediately to St. Vincent's instead of running the chances of further complications by the trip to Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. George Donovan, of Pearl street, the borough, are the parents of a son born to them Monday. Mrs. Donovan was formerly Miss Fanny Mundy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Mundy, of the borough.

Miss Ethel E. Mumphrey, of Park avenue, returned Wednesday after a few days' stay at Oneida, N. Y., to which place she was called by the death of her grandmother, Mrs. D. A. Carpenter, of that city.

Sergeant Dennis O'Keefe, of the city police force, has been confined to his home on Liberty street for the past week suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia. He was reported today as being out of danger and gradually improving.

William Thompson, of Central avenue, who recently underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital, was discharged from the institution Sunday, and is now recuperating at his home.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Marguerite Woolston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel D. Woolston, of Scotch Plains, to Joseph L. Cato, of College Point, L. I. The wedding will take place in the near future.

Elmore G. Kane, son of Mrs. O. Randle, of East Second street, who has been stationed at Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va., as a member of the 320th Infantry, was recently promoted to the rank of sergeant.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Lynch, who were married by Rev. Father Bogan in St. Mary's rectory, recently, have returned from their wedding trip and are residing at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Brown, of 231 Somerset street. Mrs. Lynch was formerly Miss Ethel Brown and was employed at the North avenue office of the Western Union. Mr. Lynch came to Plainfield recently from Bristol, Conn., to take a position at the Saurer Motor Works.

Mr. and Mrs. Delos A. Thomas, of 230 Grant avenue, are preparing to remove to Boston as a more convenient location for Mr. Thomas' work. The latter is traveling representative for the Kresge Company and was formerly manager of the local store.

Mrs. Lydia Vanderhoof is convalescing at her home on Duer street, following her discharge from Muhlenberg Hospital, where she was under treatment for several weeks.

Miss Marie Tobin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Tobin, of Grant avenue, has been confined to her home by illness during the past week.

Miss Elsie McCullough, of East Sixth street, who recently enlisted as a Red Cross nurse, left a few days ago for Camp Meade, near Annapolis, Maryland, to begin active duty. Her enlistment calls for service abroad and she may sail for France in the near future. Miss McCullough was graduated from Muhlenberg Hospital in 1916.

James P. Casey, of West Third street, and William Witterman, of Plainfield avenue, who went to Camp Dix with the last contingent of Plainfield selectives, have both been in the camp hospital during the past week. Mr. Casey's trouble came from an ingrowing toe nail while Mr. Witterman has been under medical treatment.

Miss Hazel Lyon, of Boonton, has returned home after a stay at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent W. Nash, Jr., of Mountain avenue.

Plans For Second Draft Set for March 29 Will Call 800,000 Registrants

Eight hundred thousand men, the so-called "second draft," will be the National quota to be inducted into service in small groups, from week to week, or month to month, as needed, according to official announcement Wednesday. This vast number will be divided into State quotas, and, with certain exceptions, it will be drawn from Class 1 to make replacements in existing units and to furnish the needed supporting regiments for the present army. Ten thousand young men—skilled artisans—some of whom may not be in Class 1, have been asked of the States already by Provost Marshal General Crowder, and 10,000 other young men will be summoned this summer to go to technical training schools for special fitting. Agriculturists will be given deferred rating.

The tentative date for the beginning of this draft has been set for March 29. The system precludes the fixing of a definite date, for the plan is to take in the new men as occasion requires. The situation depends on a number of elements. Emptying of a camp will allow of a call for a fraction of the 800,000 to that camp. Special need for replacements of troops of a certain division will demand a call for another cantonment. The groups thus taken in will be comparatively small, covering probably the entire year 1918.

The calls will be in part dependent on pending legislation in Congress. As now arranged the draft is considered by General Crowder as "selective" and as working the least possible disruption to industry and agriculture.

The War Department statement Wednesday says:

"The State of the preparedness of the army to assimilate recruits varies from day to day and from week to week and the most scientific manner of recruiting the forces will be to withdraw them from civil life as fast as they can be assimilated by the army and not faster. According to this plan men will be inducted into the service in very small groups apportioned among the various States from week to week or from month to month as they are needed. In order to distribute the burden equally over the various States, however, it is necessary to make arithmetical computations of the share of each State and it is not practicable to make these computations for such small numbers. For mere bookkeeping facility, therefore, it is necessary to assume a total of considerable size and to apportion it among the several States as their immediate burden. This total is called a National quota and the various shares are called State quotas. The announcement of the quota does not mean that any such great number will be called to military service at once, and, indeed, has no necessary relation to the date of call, for the reason that constantly changing situation causes changes in the number of men who are to be called to the colors.

"It is unwise to attempt to make a forecast of the number of men that will be called immediately for military service in advance of the development of the whole complex problem of supply and transportation.

"It is also unwise to make public announcements of specific figures which might serve the enemy as a precise basis for determining the plans for military participation of the Nation in this war. It is necessary, however, to compose the present unrest and uncertainty by some public announcement, and for this reason the following is authoritatively stated:

"The new National quota will be announced and apportioned among the several States as soon as pending legislation authorizing a change in the basis of computation is enacted by Congress. This legislation has been passed by the Senate and favorably reported by the House military committee. The number that will be assumed as a basis for computation will be 800,000, which is well within the authorization of clause 4, section 1, of the selective service act, of a second increment of 500,000 men, increased by the recruit training units authorized by clause 5, of section 1, and by the special and technical troops authorized by section 2 of the said act.

"It cannot now be announced what the total number to be called to the colors each month will be, but it may be stated that no more men will be called than can be properly accommodated and promptly assimilated.

"There are difficulties confronting the Nation in the supply of labor adjustment to agriculture. Class 1, from which new levies are to be withdrawn, will contain many more men than at present required for the army. It will be a most unscientific and fatuous step if the men in Class 1 were called indiscriminately without regard to the labor situation in agriculture. Therefore, the local boards will be directed to fill their quotas in the order of liability of the men in Class 1 as determined by the National drawing, except that where it is shown a registrant is completely and assiduously engaged in the planting, cultivation or reaping of a crop his call to the colors shall be deferred to the foot of the quota of his board as long as he continues to be so engaged.

"Whenever any registrant, whose call to the colors has been deferred by reason of his engagement in agriculture, is shown to have been idle on the farm on which he is engaged, or to have trifled with the deferment that has been accorded him, the boards will forthwith induct him into military service if his number has been reached in the meantime. The effect of this expedient is to grant furloughs from service prior to actual call to the colors to the men so greatly needed in the production of this year's crops.

"This is not, however, the only expedient that is to be adopted to conserve the supply of labor amour-tenant to agriculture and to mobilize all means for increasing the harvest for the agricultural season of 1918. There is now pending, before Congress a bill authorizing the Secretary of War to grant furloughs with or without pay to men in the army to enable them to engage in industrial and agricultural pursuits. The purpose of this bill is to relieve serious situations in particular instances in which men who are the mainstay of farms have been inducted into the service either through voluntary enlistment or selection, or whose services during the present emergency in agriculture are needed. These furloughs will be granted after consideration of the circumstances of the individual case in which they arise and when the military situation is such that they can be granted without too great disruption or disorganization of the army or of any particular organization of the army.

"As to further means to protect agriculture a new regulation has been promulgated authorizing agriculture students in their senior year in land-grant colleges to enlist in the Enlisted Reserve Corps of the Quartermaster Department, provided their class standing is such as to place them in the upper third of their class.

"By this means it will be possible to defer the draft call of such young men in order to enable them to perfect themselves as agriculturalists and thereafter to protect them in such service as it may seem that they should perform in the best interests of the Nation.

"The whole industrial and agricultural situation is being subjected to very comprehensive study in order to discover any means that may be taken to protect and augment the labor supply appurtenant to industry and agriculture without precluding the prompt and orderly progress of our military plants. It is confidently believed that great progress can be made along this line and that more effective measures than any yet devised can be put into operation to attain the desired end.

"It must be emphasized that this is a war of mechanics. The need of the several armed forces for men highly skilled in technical and mechanical pursuits is greater than in any former war. Yet this need for specially skilled men finds the Nation under the necessity for increasing its progress. Withdrawals of men from industry must be made and these withdrawals must take men who might otherwise be deferred on account of their special qualifications and skill. The necessary numbers of such skilled men will be obtained in one of three ways:

"First, men already in the military service who have such special skill will be taken from the line regiments and assigned to the staff organizations and departments where their skill is needed. Second, men classified by the selection boards, even though they may have been placed in a deferred classification, will be withdrawn with great care and particularly from the industries of the Nation, for special service in the staff corps and departments.

"Third, young men of draft age with certain educational qualifications will be inducted into the service and sent to universities, colleges and technical and secondary schools to be instructed in technical arts until they have acquired such proficiency as will justify their assignment to the special units that are being organized in considerable numbers.

"In accordance with this plan the provost marshal-general has already called upon the States for some 10,000 skilled artisans and will shortly call upon the States for 10,000 young men graduates of grammar schools, who will be sent before the first of April to various technical and other schools throughout the United States for a two months' course of training. Hereafter and after an increasing stream of selected men will be sent through the educational and other training institutions for this purpose.

"To sum up there will be no sudden withdrawal of great numbers of men from the ranks of industry and agriculture during the coming summer, but that men will be drawn in relatively small groups throughout the year in such a way as to create the least possible interference with industry and agriculture. Men in deferred classes as well as men in class one will be selected in small numbers either on account of their special technical qualifications or for the purpose of sending them to schools where they will be given an opportunity to acquire such qualifications."

K. of C.'s Pay $150,000 For War Stationery

Through the excellent showing made in the recent canvass for war funds the Knights of Columbus in Plainfield, in common with their brothers in many cities and towns, have brought new luster to their Nation-wide organization. James A. Flaherty, the supreme knight of the order, has an interesting article in the Ladies' Home Journal for March.

"Who are the Knights of Columbus?" is the question which Mr. Flaherty answers as follows:

"The Knights of Columbus is a fraternal insurance organization, founded in New Haven, Conn., in 1882 by a Catholic priest, Michael J. McGivney. Membership is open to Roman Catholics only, and the society was incorporated in the State of Connecticut March 29, 1882, with the following purpose: To render pecuniary aid to its members and beneficiaries of members; to promote social and intellectual intercourse among members; and to accumulate and maintain a reserve fund to further these ends.

"It is not a secret society in the general acceptance of that term. The rituals, passwords, initiations, etc., are of course secret, as in the case of all fraternal organizations. But the aims and purposes of the Knights are as I have stated them above, and nothing else.

"The membership of the society was comparatively small in the first years of its history, but in 1895 an associate membership was established, which spread very rapidly. The membership in the United States and Canada is now over 400,000. One of the noteworthy things accomplished by the Knights has been the raising of a fund of $57 000 to endow a chair of American History at the Catholic University of America and an endowment fund of $500,000 for the same institution. The society has now accumulated a mortuary reserve fund of $8,500,000 for the protection of its insurance members.

"The Knights of Columbus has been privileged in the past two years to perform a patriotic service which points toward a breaking down of the prejudices and misunderstandings that have too often hampered co-operation between men of different religious creeds.

"In the critical hour of National danger men of all beliefs have been drawn together in service, and often we have found that the existing differences, magnified by the prejudiced, really are very slight after all. In my mail this morning there was a very generous contribution to the Knights of Columbus War Fund from a Presbyterian minister, and this is only one of many every week. With all its sadness and horror, this war has also meant a great stride in a closer understanding and brotherhood among all ranks of our Nation.

"Before our own buildings were erected mass was celebrated in the Red Triangle buildings, and every possible courtesy was shown to our priests, who used the Y. M. C. A. buildings as headquarters. In the same way, the Knights of Columbus buildings are open to all. Each one bears the sign "Knight sof Columbus—Everybody Welcome." Men of all creeds are invited to our services, and it is part of our agreement with the Government that these buildings shall not be used for any secret meetings or for any gathering not open to every man in camp. The buildings are built on the same general plan as the Y. M. C. A. huts and provide similar opportunities for wholesome and manly recreation. They are, of course, also fitted with altar, confessional and quarters for the priest in charge.

"When you remember that thirty-five per cent. of the men in our army are Catholic—this is Secretary Newton D. Baker's official estimate—and perhaps fifty per cent. of the navy personnel is Catholic, you can see that this task of bringing the consolations of their faith to our men is no small factor in keeping up the morale of the fighting forces. On one of our battleships where the crew numbers 1,200 men, 900 are Catholics.

"Our feeling is that in these times of crisis no service is too great to be done for the men who are fighting our battles. We have thrown open our buildings in cities adjoining the camps to all men in uniform. The Y. M. C. A., the Young Men's Hebrew Association and the Knights of Columbus are all working together and aided by the Y. M. C. A., the Red Cross and the War Department Commission on Training Camp Activities, I think it is true that we have been able to accomplish a great work for promoting the welfare and military zeal of our forces.

"No one can doubt that this co-operation is going to mean a great deal in the way of religious tolerance. Bigotry and fanatical hostility cannot persist in the face of great National crises. In spite of a good deal of misunderstanding we have always tried to work toward this end. The Knights of Columbus Commission on Prejudice has been at work for four years to further sympathy and mutual good will among the different creeds.

"We have frankly tried to imitate the Y. M. C. A. in its splendid methods of helping the soldiers. We have not reached the enormous scale of their efforts, but our own campaign has not been small. Our first bill for war stationery, for instance, was $150,000 for 20,000,000 sheets of paper and 10,000,000 envelopes. At the moment of writing we have erected seventy-nine recreation buildings in the camps in the United States, and we are planning to erect a number in France.

"We are sending priests over on every ship to minister to Catholics among our troops in France. This is most urgent, because every Catholic needs the sacraments of his faith in moments of peril, when he is wounded or in his last earthly minutes. The fact that we are able to supply this need is not only a strength to the men 'over there,' but is an unspeakable consolation to the relatives at home.

"There are half a million Catholic soldiers and sailors in the service of Uncle Sam. There are 19,000 Catholic boys at the big draft cantonment at Ayer, Mass., alone. At these camps the Catholic chaplains are celebrating eight or ten masses every Sunday. We have erected three buildings in each of the cantonments, and one or two in each of the National Guard camps.

"There need never be any question of the loyalty of the American Catholics to their country's flag. Within the last day or so I received a contribution of $275 for our war fund from the congregation of a German Catholic church in Philadelphia, where the parish is almost entirely German in race and all services are conducted in German. The Knights of Columbus has so far raised over $1,500,000 to carry on this work with the army and navy; and we have raised our final quota to $7,000,000. As Cardinal Gibbons said recently to the men at Camp Meade, 'Columbia is the mother of all of you. When she called there was no race, no creed, no class.'"

THE NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

It is not an imitation nor yet an interpretation. It is a Re-Creation; so complete and satisfying that no human ear can detect a shade of difference between artist and instrument.

The famous tone tests in which 30 great artists have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison have established the truth of this assertion. Over 1,500 of these tests have been held; over 2,000,000 people have attended them. And invariably the New Edison met the ordeal successfully. Not one person could distinguish between the voice of the artist and that of the instrument.

Come into our store and witness a demonstration of this marvelous instrument.

Tyler Begins Control of State's Food

Former Councilman William S. Tyler, of West Seventh street, returned yesterday from Washington, after a conference with the food administrators of the United States and tomorrow will formally enter upon his new duties as food administrator for New Jersey. His offices and headquarters will be located on the second floor of the building at 601-603 Broad street, Newark, directly opposite Trinity Cathedral. It is the belief of Mr. Tyler and his associates that Newark is the logical center for the activities of the State food organization.

The work of removing all the records of the department from the former offices established at Jersey City by former Governor James F. Fielder has been going on during the past week. During Mr. Tyler's absence in Washington, he was represented in the administration duties by his executive secretary, Edwin Bebout, who has held the position for some time. R. T. Hughes has been named as assistant secretary.

It is conceited by all in a position to know that the food problem is soon to be a tremendous task, consequently the selection of Mr. Tyler has caused extreme satisfaction throughout New Jersey. He is widely known as a man of executive ability and has already set about his duties in a manner which indicates that he will have the administration work systematized in a very short time. Reports from Washington following the conference of this week, assert that drastic measures are to be taken for the conservation of food, that instead of requests to practice saving the Government will lay down specific laws and any sort of infraction will result in punishment. By next fall and winter the whole country will be undergoing a stringency similar to that which has been experienced in Europe but by avoiding the preliminary mistakes of the foreign countries it is hoped to save America from the critical situation existing overseas. All this was pointed out and discussed at the gathering in Washington which was arranged by National Administrator Hoover and attended by State Administrators, food producers and others from all parts of the country.

Mr. Tyler will be at the office in Newark tomorrow getting acquainted with numerous details of the work. One of his first official acts will be to summon all the twenty-one county administrators of the State and discuss the situation down to an absolute local point. Where it is found that the men holding the title of "county administrator" are not anxious to continue in the service because of the great amount of time that is to be devoted to it soon, new appointments will be made. New Jersey is to play an important part in the food supply for the future, thus making it imparative that the closest attention be paid to each district.

Mr. Tyler is a native of this city. His father was prominent in the Civil War and afterward as a New York lawyer. He obtained his early education in the local public schools and later was graduated from Amherst College, class '95. Afterward he was admitted to the New York bar and he is now a member of the law firm of Tyler & Tyler, his brother, Cornelius Boardman Tyler, being the partner.

About the year 1902 Mr. Tyler began to take a deep interest in local politics and that year was elected a member of the City Council on the Republican ticket. He served three terms of two years each, during which time he took an active part in civic matters and succeeded in having what has since been known as the "Tyler zone ordinance" adopted. This restricts the granting of liquor licenses to a zone established in the business section, thereby keeping them out of the residential part of the city. There has never been any attempt made to repeal this ordinance, so satisfactory have been the results.

Mr. Tyler was elected a member of the local Board of Education in 1908, serving until 1916, part of the time as president. For nearly fifteen years he was secretary of the Charity Organization Society, and many of the reforms instituted in caring for the poor of the city were the result of his suggestion.

Last summer Mr. Tyler was chairman of the local food commission. The commission acquired a tractor and hundreds of persons were helped and encouraged to engage in farm pursuits.

Saurer Plant Will Soon Be City's Second Largest

Two Hundred Thousand Dollar Addition To be Completed in Sixty Days Will Increase Working Force To More Than 1,000 Hands

Accommodations for at least 300 mechanics in addition to the present force of more than 700 will be added to the Saurer Motor plant by the erection of the big addition to the West Front street plant now under way. This statement was made yesterday to a Record reporter by Luther S. Ayer, general manager of the concern, who also added the information that the factory in general would undergo a readjustment in its equipment that would greatly increase the output of finished motor trucks. The move has been made necessary because of the steady increase of orders, many of them coming from the United States army department.

The new addition will make the Saurer plant the second largest in the city, first place being held by the Pond Tool Company. It will be five stories in height, having a length over all of 275 feet and an outside width of seventy-five feet. This will give an added floor space for working purposes of 85,000 square feet, making a total of 200,000 square feet for the entire plant. All the construction will be of fireproof materials so far as possible, steel and reinforced concrete forming the greater part.

A portion of the new addition will be devoted to storage purposes, but most of it will be given up to production and assembling. Absolutely "up to the minute" machinery for the rapid handling of parts will be introduced, thus permitting greater production with a minimum number of hands. While 300 have been designated as the increase in the mechanical force it is possible that the figure may be extended to 400 when everything is gotten under way. Beside this main addition mentioned, the heat treating building will be rebuilt to a length of 100 feet and there will be a rearrangement of the motor testing department. The improvements in all will cost about $200,000.

Frederick Ley & Company, of Springfield, Mass., one of the largest contracting firms in New England, is doing the work. This concern makes a specialty of rapid construction and plans to finish the main building within sixty days. The excavating has reached a point where the pouring of concrete could commence yesterday and by the time the main walls are up more than 1,000 men will be placed on the job. Most of these will be brought from out of town as the labor market in Plainfield has been found to be very scarce. Walter Barker, as works manager, will have general supervision of the construction for the Ley Company, and he will be assisted by P. J. McNaughton as works engineer. When plans for increasing the Saurer plant were first considered by the International Motor Company, the controlling organization, the question of adequate fire protection arose. The water mains in the vicinity of Clinton avenue and West Front street were not intended for any great reserve and in the event of a big blaze would prove insufficient. The Front street main is an eight inch pipe, while the one on South Second street, a block away is a six-inch. The two combined would give a fairly good water reserve but the connection of several lengths of hose would pull the pressure down at least twenty-five pounds. The company has taken the matter up with the Common Council and there is a possibility that still better facilities may be installed to fully protect the big factory.

Committees On Draft Farewells Confer Tonight

The citizens' committee appointed by Mayor Leighton Calkins to make sure that all departing selectives from Plainfield receive a civic demonstration has been called for a conference at the Columbus Club tonight. Chairman John J. Varley, who is also chairman of a similar committee from the Knights of Columbus, planned that the two bodies should get together at once and lose no time in arranging suitable programs. Just what course is to be adopted will be announced after tonight's discussion.

Mr. Varley is primarily responsible for the appointment of the committees to arrange farewell demonstrations. His son was a member of the contingent of sixty-eight men who went out of Plainfield several years ago with no public recognition, the only farewell being that extended by relatives and friends. In every other nearby community there were parades, banquets and a vivid display of flags and bunting along the route from exemption headquarters to the railroad station. The Plainfield boys had just cause for considering themselves slighted and it is to prevent a recurrence of this seeming neglect that the citizens' committee has been appointed.

Mr. Varley's plan is to at least have a band of music out on the day the selectives go away. This will be the greatest expense and the committee will make arrangements to secure the necessary funds. Mr. Varley also suggests some form of farewell entertainment, if possible, and a genuine show of enthusiasm on the part of business men and others who can decorate their places. Before securing the appointment of a committee by the Knights of Columbus, he enlisted the symjathy and support of the Business Men's Association and individual merchants who have promised to join in any movement for a demonstration that will send the boys away with light hearts and smiling faces. Anyone wishing to aid in the movement can communicate direct with Mr. Varley, who has generously offered his time to the cause.

The open letter which Mayor Calkins sent out in appointing the citizens' committee was as follows:

Dear Sir:—

I am appointing a Citizen's Committee, as below named, and would greatly appreciate your acceptance of membership thereon, the purpose being to arrange appropriate ceremonies on the days that young men from Plainfield who are selected for the National Army leave their homes to offer their services in defense of country and for the suppresion of internal lawlessness. We would wish them to know when they leave us that we hold their patriotism in honor and that we are assured that they will prove worthy of the cause in which they fight. While I have myself made a point of meeting the various groups of men who have already gone, to say good-bye and assure them that they will not be forgotten when far from home, nevertheless the lack of organization has resulted in a good deal of informality as the men have entrained at the station. Hundreds of citizens have been present to attest their interest; but I think with a permanent committee, it could be arranged for the men to march to the station with music, and certainly it would be appropriate if the shop-keepers would all display the national colors along the route from the Babcock building to the railroad station.

In any event, these matters will be left to the Committee herewith appointed, and I will ask Mr. John J. Varley to call the Committee together for organization.

I would be glad to be advised promptly of your willingness to accept appointment on this Committee.

Your truly,
Leighton Calkins
Mayor.

The following is the committee named to meet on the call of John J. Varley:

John J. Varley, Earnest R. Ackerman, J. Whitney Baker, Elliot T. Barrows, William H. Bayley, Rev. B. M. Bogan, Wm. R. Causebrook, Rev. Howard Clark, Charles H. Frost, Rev. Chas. E. Herring, Frank J. Hubbard, David C. Keaney, Herman Kidwell, William R. Townsend and Morris C. Van Aredale.

CHILD WALKS HOME AFTER AUTO RUNS OVER HER.

Linda Dal Pups, a four-year-old child living at 183 North avenue, attempted to cross East Front street, opposite the Woodhull-Martin building yesterday noon, was knocked down and run over by an automobile driven by Robert Meyers, of 124 Madison avenue. The girl afterwards sprang to her feet, much to the amazement of the onlookers, and later was able to walk home. Judge William G. DeMeza, who witnessed the accident, said Meyers was not at fault.

$10,000 Position At Detroit Offered Andrew McCardell

Andrew McCardell, who recently resigned his position as superintendent of the Pond Machine Tool Works' foundry department, has received a tempting offer for his services from the Dodge Manufacturing Company of Detroit, and is today completing negotiations with this concern. It is quite probable that he will accept, as the original conditions call for his becoming the head of the Dodge Company's big foundry at an annual salary of $10,000.

As soon as the manufacturing world learned of Mr. McCardell's withdrawal from the Pond executive staff, he received numerous offers from all parts of the country. It was realized that a man who had been superintendent of the foundry at one of the largest plants in the East was a man worth having, especially as he had been with the same concern thirty-one years. A rumor spread about that Mr. McCardell would go to the Meade-Morrison plant in East Boston, where James T. MacMurray, formerly superintendent of the Pond shop, is general manager, but there is no truth in this story. Mr. McCardell had no intention of casting his lot with the Meade-Morrison concern for the simple reason that it has no foundry department, all its castings coming from outside sources.

The Dodge Company has a rapidly developing plant at Detroit and has been more than anxious to add the former Pond man to its list of superintendents. The only thing that has really been holding Mr. McCardell back is the fact that he preferred to enjoy a short rest after his many years of steady employment and also that Mrs. McCardell prefers to remain in the East. Their home has been in Plainfield so long it does not seem an easy proposition to make their home over again. The residence of Mr. and Mrs. McCardell at the present time is on West Front street, opposite Elmwood place.

Mr. McCardell learned the moulding trade in a shop at Worcester, Mass., and when the Pond concern moved to Plainfield from that city in 1887, he was induced to be one of its employes. Previous to coming here he had been superintendent of the Worcester foundry. He brought with him to the Pond plant a full understanding of the moulding trade which, coupled with his executive ability, has resulted in making the high grade of finished product sent out from Plainfield's largest industrial plant. His especial efficiency came through a "system process," which he introduced gradualtly and which has had much to do with the foundry's thoroughness. Every branch of the work was put in a respective department under the direct supervision of a foreman, thus making certain that every detail would be cared for and any "slip-up" charged to the proper source. A number of the biggest "pourings" in the foundry's history were successfully made under Mr. McCardell's supervision, some of them marking the beginning of mammoth planers turned out for the United States Government.

Almost from the time that Mr. McCardell first took up his residence in Plainfield he interested himself in its political affairs. Although he assisted in placing many Republican candidates into office, he never sought a "berth" himself. His ability as a leader was recognized by the county organization of the G. O. P. and for nearly twenty-five years the Plainfielder was called into consultation on all State and national affairs of a political nature. With Mr. MacMurray, who as mentioned above is now in Boston, Mr. McCardell formed a "directorate" in Plainfield that brought many victories to the Republican forces. When the former left the city his departure caused keen regret and the removal of his old associate will be even more noticeable as it means the passing of one of the city's most popular leaders. Aside from his duties at Pond's, Mr. McCardell has been a member of the Union County Board of Elections for the past four years. This position he will resign when it becomes definite that he is to go to Detroit. On one occasion, he acted as State factory inspector for a short time, otherwise he has never had any political reward for his untiring efforts in behalf of the "Grand Old Party."

Robert Dorman, of Lee place, who was formerly superintendent of the foundry at the Walter Scott plant, has succeeded Mr. McCardell at Pond's. With the resignation of the latter, last week, another employe of many years also left the company's service. He is John Bowman, of West Front street, who was a foreman under Mr. McCardell for nearly twenty-five years. He expects to take a position with an out-of-town concern in a short time.

RETURNS TO POSITION.

Miss Caroline Schidecker, of New street, has returned to her position as assistant secretary in the executive department of Muhlenberg Hospital, following an operation for ap-

Citizens Named By Mayor Calkins For Liberty Loan Drive

Mayor Calkins announces his appointment of the third Liberty Loan Committee, which will have charge of the management of the great campaign beginning Saturday, April 6. The committee will also have in charge the arrangements for appropriate ceremonies for marking the anniversary of our entry in the war. E. W. Bulkeley, who served so ably as chairman of the first two committees, will not be able on account of ill health to direct the new drive; and the Mayor has asked A. Willis West, who was secretary of both of the earlier committees, to accept the chairmanship. The general committee contains the names of most of those who served before, with a few in addition, so that Mr. West will have the best kind of support.

The committee as appointed is as follows: A. Willis West, chairman; F. Seymour Barr, Francis K. Anderson, Leonard Eggelston, J. Whitney Baker, Francis J. Blatz, Lindsey Best, E. W. Bulkley, J. Herbert Case, George S. Clay, Mrs. Harold D. Corbusier, Henry T. Cutler, Henry J. Cochrsanfi A. E. Crone, James Dodd, E. F. Feickert, Charles H. Frost, Joseph W. Gavett, Alexander Gilbert, George M. Holstein, Frank J. Hubbard, De Witt C. Hubbell, David T. Kenney, Irving Kuntzman, John M. McLaughlin, William Newcorn, D. M. Runyon, William N. Runyon, Herman Schwed, A. V. Searing, Jr., Charles S. Sminck, Joseph M. Shellabarger, Arthur E. Smith, J. Augustus Smith, A. A. Tilney, Thomas C. Vail, H. S. Fullerton, Marion S. Ackerman. A. West will call the organization meeting.

Retiring Committee Gives "Camouflage" Dance At Elks' Club

Plainfield Lodge of Elks' dance committee, which has had charge of this form of diversion during the past year, conducted its final affair at the Watchung avenue clubhouse last night. It had been designated as a "camouflage" dance with previous instructions to invited guests to appear in costumes of their own conception. There were no restrictions, the only purpose being to hide the identity of the wearer from curious eyes.

The response was most gratifying as the big gathering in attendance last night displayed a most conglomerate collection of masquerade attire. There was every conceivable walk of life represented, all the way from "queens" to "milk maids" among the women, to "court attaches" and "village cut-ups" among the men. The heterogeneous crowd whirled about to the lively strains of Venable Brothers' orchestra, forming a delightful and ever-changing picture to those who thronged the balcony. The decorations were also in keeping with the occasion and appropriate favors helped to make the last dance of the 1917-1918 committee a complete success. There will be other dances before the season closes but they will be in charge of the new committee to be appointed at the lodge's first regular meeting in April.

Th retiring committee which arranged and conducted last night's affair was composed of Frank R. Emmons, chairman; Hillaire Blatz, Herman King, Thomas A. Moore and Herbert L. Hetfield.

Wadley And Goodenough Purchase Ice Business

Wadley & Goodenough, the Madison avenue coal and ice dealers, this week purchased the entire business and equipment of the Independent Ice Company, which has maintained an office at 140 East Fourth street. The new owners will combine the business with their original plant. Messrs. Wadley & Goodenough first entered business in Plainfield in 1916, purchasing the coal yard of H. Holmes. Three years later they added an ice delivery, securing their supply from the Pocono Mountains. With the addition of the new patronage secured through their purchase of the Independent Company, they will make numerous improvements that will give Plainfielders a most satisfactory ice service during the present trying days of war emergencies.

John S. Johnston has been acting as president of the Independent Company, and Nicholas Brouard was secretary and treasurer.

ENTERS GOVERNMENT SERVICE.

Miss Elizabeth E. Phillips, of Madison avenue, who has been a member of the staff at the Plainfield Public Library for the past nine years, has tendered her resignation in order to accept a splendid position in one of the Government's army department offices in New York. She has already entered upon her new duties. Miss Phillips is the fifth assistant at the library to resign

Fifty-Eight More Men Called for Early Service

Plainfield Must Provide Forty-One For Camp Dix On April 3 and 17th for Kelly field Within Next few Weeks

Orders received by the Plainfield District Exemption Board from Adjutant-General Gilkyson, this morning, call for fifty-eight more selectives for early induction to military service.

Of this number, forty-one are designated for Camp Dix, leaving this city on the 9:38 train Wednesday morning, April 3. The other seventeen will be made up of cabinet-makers, rubber-workers and automobile repair-men wanted for the aviation corps and will be sent to Kellyfield, Texas, within the next few weeks. Included in the forty-one for Camp Dix on April 3, will be the twenty-five selectives called for two weeks ago. A list of these was given out ten days ago but later examinations have caused a radical change in the make-up so that practically an entire new list will have to be arranged when the completed forty-one are notified.

The denial of appeals to the Second District Board at Newark has placed many registrants back in Class A-1, some of them being well up on the list of early order numbers. As a result physical examinations are now being arranged as soon as propery classification is made.

The following have been notified to appear at the Exemption Board's office in the Babcock building tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which time they will be examined by the Medical Board: Kai E. Nelson, 954 West Fourth street; George Hendershot, Lebanon; Thomas Bondzelewski, Dunellen; John J. Smith, 15 Everett place; Frank W. Burke, 50 Elm place; James S. Keaney, 728 West Third street; Charles B. Ehlert, 1263 Arlington avenue; Gustave Kramer, 208 Liberty street, and Fred H. Pheasant, 409 South Elmer street, Westfield.

Capacity Congregations Hear Apostolate Fathers

Mission at St. Mary's Church Will Continue Next Week With Men As Auditors.

During the present week two priests of the Arch Diocese of New York, Father Wickham and Father Fleming, united the title of the "New York Apostolate," have been conducting a mission at St. Mary's church for the women of the parish. Moved by the spirit of religious fervor the crowds that assembled have taxed the capacity of the edifice to the utmost. On Wednesday night 960 women—many of them non-Catholics—made it necessary to open the sanctuary space that all might have room for comfortable sitting. The sermons and instructions introduced no novelties either in doctrine or in the manner of presenting it. Sensationalism found no place there. The reported sermons and instruction had an eloquence of fact and an elegance of diction that gave evidence of straightforward fairness and cultured minds that must have enlightened as they evidently delighted the various assemblages. The cordial welcome which Father Bogan had extended to all in our city was repeated by the mission fathers, and every evening accepted by many whose view of things Catholic had not been clearly defined.

The subjects presented were as follows: "Divinity of Christ;" "The Bible;" "The Papacy;" "The Place of the Blessed Virgin Mary in Catholic Belief."

The mission for the women will close on Sunday afternoon, and the mission for men will open in the evening, and close on Holy Thursday night. During the men's mission the following subjects will be presented and explained: "Divinity of Christ;" "Salvation;" "The Bible;" "Sin;" "The Papacy;" "Death;" "Blessed Virgin Mary;" "Mercy;" "Marriage;" "Passion;" "Purgatory;" "Blessed Sacrament."

During the week, beginning with Sunday night, the fathers have made it very welcome—as at all times visitors find it—to all men wishing to know the "Catholic side" of many questions of religion. The evening services begin at 8:15.

At the service last night, Father Wickam spoke on the subject of "Divorce," having been inspired by a recent cable despatch to the New York Sun from London, quoting the views of the well-known writer, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, in which the British novelist says: "Divorce is not evil. The laws laid down by the church of early Christianity be applied to people living 2,000 years after?"

Replying to this statement, Father Wickam said in part:

"Arthur Conan Doyle can write good detective stories, as any reader of the 'Adventures of Sherlock Holmes' can testify. But somehow we believe that the maker of fiction might be utilizing his time to better advantage in weaving new plots for his delectable Holmes rather than in attempting to improve on the standards of Jesus Christ in matters of doctrine. We will welcome Dr. Doyle as a teller of pleasant tales; we have spent many happy hours among his books; but we are so built that we prefer Christ as a teacher in religion. After all, Dr. Doyle has not the words of eternal life, and we have very good faith in St. John's Gospel. Our Saviour possesses such words, novelist cannot perceive the ridiculous figure he becomes, when he attempts to stands as a contradictor of God? It is an enigma, that the clever Doyle can imagine that serious men and women will take him as their prophet and forsake the Divine Truth.

"We take it for granted that the story-writer has read parts of the Scripture in his many years of study. Did he ever happen on the 10th chapter of St. Mark's gospel? It is therein related that Christ was teaching in Judea beyond the Jordan and the Pharisees, seemingly perplexed, asked Him, 'Is it lawful for a man to put away his wife?' Christ answered in terse question, 'What did Moses command you?' They replied, 'Moses permitted to write a bill of divorce and to put her away.' Thereupon Jesus responded, 'Because of the hardness of your heart, he wrote you that precept. But from the beginning of creation, God made them male and female. For this cause a man shall leave his father and mother, and shall cleave to his wife, and they two shall be in one flesh. Therefore, now they are not two, but one flesh.' Then came His definite doctrine: 'What therefore God hath joined together, let not man put asunder.'

"In the house afterwards, His disciples asked the Redeemer regarding the same matter. His answer was, 'Whosoever shall put away his wife and marry another, commiteth adultery against her and if the wife shall put away her husband and be married to another, she commiteth adultery.'

"This declaration of the Son of God is the Magna Charta of the teaching of the church of early Christianity, of the church of twentieth century Christianity and of the church of sexless Christianity. Having the decision of Jesus Christ on the sacrament of marriage, we believe that we have all the truth of the Omniscient in the points at issue. And we think it a blasphemy on the part of Arthur Conan Doyle to question the Wisdom Infinite. Who commissioned more man to rescind a decision of Him, who was sent by the Father to preach the Aruth, the Way and the Life to humanity?

"But we refuse, however, to take Dr. Doyle seriously. We only counsel to the novelist is: Stick to your last. Invent new adventures for Sherlock and his friend Watson, and do not dabble in doctrinal discussions."

James Conway Quits City Police Force

Patrolman James Conway, who has been a member of the city force for the past two years, tendered his resignation this week in order to accept a position at the local plant of the Standard Aero Corporation. Mr. Conway made an excellent officer and distinguished himself on several occasions. One of these was at the Martin Garage fire on Park avenue in January when he was so badly overcome that he had to be removed to Muhlenberg hospital. He was at the institution for four days before dis-

Miss Richards Bride Of Captain Bronson

Many Plainfield friends have received announcements of the marriage of Miss Charlotte Marion Richards, daughter of Mrs. W. R. Richards, and the late Rev. Dr. William R. Richards, to Captain Philip Elliot Bronson, of the Coast Artillery. The ceremony took place Saturday, March 16, at the home of the bride's mother, 234 West avenue, Bridgeport, Conn. Rev. Dr. William Horace Day was the officiating clergyman.

The bride was born in Plainfield at the Crescent avenue Presbyterian parsonage on East Front street, her father having for many years been pastor of the local congregation. Dr. Richards resigned his pastorate here in 1903 in order to become pastor of the Brick church in New York. He died some years later. Mr. Bronson was a favorite in the younger social set of the city and her departure was keenly regretted. Since the death of her father, she and her mother have been making their home in Bridgeport.

Passes Through City With Out Bound Troops

George Linke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Linke, of West Second street, was a member of a detachment of troops which went through Plainfield Sunday afternoon on board a special train. The unit left Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C., Saturday, and was destined for Camp Merritt at Tenafly. It is destined for early transportation overseas.

Mr. Linke entered the service last summer as a member of Troop D. He first went to Camp McClellan and afterward was transferred to Camp Greene as a member of Company K, First Army Headquarters Regiment. He was given a furlough last week and decided to spend it at home but before he reached Plainfield a telegram was received at his parents' residence ordering him to return at once. He was only in town between trains, catching the first south-bound express for Charlotte. He reached camp Friday afternoon and again started on another trip North late Saturday. Mr. Linke stood on the steps of the train as it passed through Plainfield and was recognized by a large crowd at the North Avenue station.

Thomas Bunn Receives Gift From Associates

Thomas Lee Bunn, of South Second street, one of the Plainfield selectives who is to leave for camp with the latest contingent next Monday, was given a farewell surprise last Saturday by his fellow employes with the Ryder & Graves Electric Company. Mr. Bunn has been acting as foreman for the concern, was called before the other journeymen at the Standard Aero plant at Elizabeth, where they have been working and presented with an improved wrist watch. It came as a gift from Ryder & Graves and his associates. Charles Gourley, of Bound Brook, made the presentation speech.

Mr. Bunn is a widely known Plainfielder and makes his home with his parents. He was employed for many years by the Allan B. Laing Company, entering the service of Ryder & Graves when the latter firm purchased the business of the former. The watch presented him was engraved with his name on the outside and on the inner case contained the inscription: "Presented Thomas Lee Bunn by associates in the Ryder & Graves Electric Company."

Isaac Rushmore's Funeral Tomorrow

The funeral of Isaac Willis Rushmore, whose death occurred Wednesday night at his home on West Eighth street, will be held tomorrow afternoon at the home of his son, Robert Rushmore, of 722 West Eighth street. It will be in charge of Rev. Howard E. Clarke and burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

Mr. Rushmore was born on Long Island, eighty-six years ago, but had lived in this city more than half a century. For most of the time at Seventh street and Grant avenue. He was engaged in the milk business in Brooklyn for many years and was also a director in the Plainfield Trust Company and the Home Building and Loan Association. He was a member of the original members of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church and one of its trustees.

Mr. Rushmor is survived by two sons, Townsend and Robert Rushmore, and three daughters, Mrs. Edward Patterson, of this city; Mrs. Edmund Wood, of Trenton; Mrs. William T. Huss, of Maine. There is also a stepdaughter, Mrs. William D. Murray, of West Ninth street.

WILLIAM H. HOWELLS.

William H. Howells, one of the founders of the Newark Evening News, died yesterday morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Raymond W. Carrington, 1105 West Eighth street. He was seventy-four years old and leaves two other daughters, beside Mrs. Carrington.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The Young People's Society of the Swedish Pilgrim church will observe the fifteenth anniversary of the organization with a suitable program tomorrow night. A delegation from the new Dover church will be in attendance.

Mayor William L. Smalley had five North Plainfield men brought before him in the borough police court, Monday night, under a charge permitted by the "loafing law." The defendants were given a lecture and told by His Honor that if they did not obtain work at once they would be set at some task which might not be congenial.

George Pozzi, of Summit, and William Cohen, of Newark, charged with auto speeding, were fined $2 each in the city court, yesterday. Gilbert Ellsworth, of Morristown, was arraigned on a similar charge but his hearing was put over until tomorrow. Henry Burril and Charles Cumming were arraigned Wednesday morning and also fined $2 each for speeding.

Helen Fraser, sub-secretary of the British Treasury and member of the London National War Savings Committee, will speak in the Park Club, Tuesday afternoon, April 26, under the auspices of the Plainfield branch of the Women's Naval Service.

The Junior Red Cross of the Plainfield public schools has made 29,412 surgical dressings in addition to hundreds of other article since its organization, September 1, 1917, and has raised $5,027.26 for the work.

The following o cers have been elected for the year by the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church: President, Mrs. F. G. Mead; vice presidents, Mrs. S. T. Carter, Jr., Mrs. Edgar Williams; secretary, Miss Mary W. Ketcham; treasurer, Miss Laura Lovell; secretary of literature, Miss Abbie Mellick.

The sixty-first annual session of the Newark Methodist conference will begin in the Halsey Street church, Newark, on April 3. Each of the local Methodist congregations will be represented by the respective pastor and delegates. The transfer of pastors will include that of Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, of this city, who has asked to be given another charge after nine years with the First M. E. church. He will probably be assigned to the First church at Passaic.

A total of eighteen alarms kept the city fire department busy for the seventy-two hours commencing last Saturday noon. Most of the alarms were sent in by telephone and were for small blazes in the dry grass on the outskirts of town. The most serious fire occurred at the home of Louis Cohen, 227 Monroe avenue, where members of the family discovered flames raging in a closet shortly after midnight. West End Hose Company No. 3 put out the blaze with chemicals before it had gotten beyond one room. The damage is estimated at $200. H. Edleman is the owner of the dwelling.

The American Express Company on Tuesday notified Manager Frank J. Winzenried, of the local office, that an embargo had been placed on all general merchandise shipments over the New Jersey Central destined for the Communipaw terminal. The order excluded government supplies, Red Cross medical supplies and perishable food consignments. The order was declared in order to clear the congestion at Communipaw and will be lifted as soon as this is done.

Lewis E. Waring, of East Seventh street, this city, who has been in various parts of the West as a member of the Government remount service, has been made assistant to W. H. Brevort, president of the Wharton Steel Company, which operates extensive furnaces at Wharton and other parts of Morris county. The Wharton concern is under Government control and is producing iron ore for the steel plants at Bethlehem and Midvale, Pa.

James Sereny, a young man who has been in the city only a short time, was given his choice of paying a fifty-dollar fine or going to jail for sixty days when arraigned in the city court Wednesday morning on a charge of conducting a disorderly house on East Second street. He was arrested by Captain John Flynn and Lieutenant Hizkins, who also took into custody Hattie Rosenberg, Helen Sereny and Ernest Sowg, the last named an infantryman attached to a New Jersey division. Evidence was suspended on the two women and Sowg, whose home is in New Brunswick, was sent to camp in charge of an army officer.

At the annual meeting of the Rescue Mission, held a few nights ago, these officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Frederick H. Andrews; treasurer, J. A. Powlson; secretary, Harry Gee. The annual report as submitted by Superintendent John LaMatty showed that the mission had been doing a splendid work during the past twelve months and begins the new year with a treasury balance of $2.45. Miss Clyde Burnet, musical director, also reported on the activities of the year just closed. The trustees ask for better financial support from the Plainfield public as the work becomes broader each succeeding month and in order to keep the treasury in balance, the contributions must be enlarged.

Clifford Applegate, the East Front street market man, has leased the store adjoining his present premises to make room for his rapidly growing business. The store is at present occupied by E. Zecdendorf, who is to remove his toy shop to the former Rosenthal Brothers' place at 210 West Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schwalbach, of Scotch Plains, have received no further word regarding the condition of their son, Private Henry Schwalbach, who was wounded in action in France last Friday. The brief Government message stated that he had received a bullet in the right leg but gave no hint as to the extent of the injury. Young Schwalbach is about nineteen years of age and enlisted in the regular army last summer. He has a wife acquaintance in Plainfield, having for several years been a carrier boy for the Daily Press. He is a half brother to Edward Heath, who went to Camp Dix three weeks ago as a selective from the Plainfield district.

Members of St. Mary's Social Club are requested to meet in T. A. B. Hall at 7:15 on Easter Sunday morning for the purpose of joining the T. A. B. Society in receiving Holy Communion in a body at the 7:30 mass at St. Mary's church.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the First M. E. church has elected these officers for the ensuing year: Mrs. A. B. Meredith, president; Miss Gertrude Fenno, first vice president; Mrs. A. M. Palmer, second vice president; Mrs. S. W. Clarke, third vice president; Mrs. Harold Davis, secretary, and Mrs. Nelson Y. Hull was re-elected treasurer.

H. FRANK TITSWORTH.

B. Frank Titsworth, a one-time Plainfielder but a resident of Alfred, N. Y., for more than forty years, died a few days ago at the Soldiers' Home in Bath, N. Y., where he had been under treatment for six weeks previous. The funeral was held at Alfred, Wednesday, and burial was at that place. The service was attended by a number of relatives from this vicinity.

Mr. Titsworth was seventy-five years old and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac D. Titsworth. The latter lived for many years at Shiloh and were the parents of ten children. Soon after the birth of B. Frank Titsworth, they removed to New Market, where the family was numbered among the pioneer residents. The father was at one time a director in the First National Bank, this city.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, B. Frank Titsworth enlisted in Company B, 11th N. J. Infantry. In this same regiment were the late Captain William Hand, Building Inspector T. O. Doane and many other young men from Plainfield. After the war, Mr. Titsworth lived in Plainfield for a time and then went to Alfred.

The deceased is survived by his wife, who was formerly Miss Jennie Zinn, of Farina, Ill., and three daughters, the eldest of whom is in charge of the domestic science department of the New Hampshire State College at Durham, N. H. Another daughter, Adeline, is taking special studies in the Carnegie Institute of Technology in Pittsburgh. His son is in Southern California.

He leaves one sister, Mrs. William R. Potter, of Hammond, La., and three brothers, Rev. Judson Titsworth, of Milwaukee; Prof. A. A. Titsworth, of Rutgers College, New Brunswick, and Lewis T. Titsworth, of West Fifth and Liberty streets, this city; also several nephews, one of whom is Charles M. Titsworth, of Dunellen, a civil engineer for the Jersey Central. He leaves one niece, Mrs. A. W. Vars, of Webster place, this city. Another brother, Thomas Titsworth, died at his home in the Babcock building about a year ago.

Better Pay In Store For Lower Grade Railroaders

The railway wage board, expected shortly to make its recommendations to Railways Director McAdoo for wage increases for railroad employes, will give especial consideration to the lower grade, it was learned this week. Two million employes will be affected by the new wage scale to be granted. The greater percentage of increases will be given the vast army of poorly paid men, including a large majority of unorganized employes. In this class are yard men, switchmen, trackmen, gatemen, freight handlers, station masters, firemen and trainmen.

While increases will be granted engineers and other employes now receiving comparatively high pay, such as conductors, train dispatchers, signalmen and telegraphers, the wage commission is understood to take the position that these men are not affected by the high cost of living to the extent the lower paid men are.

Martin Vanderweg, son of the late Patrolman Martin Vanderweg, is critically ill at his home on West Fourth street with an attack of pneumonia. He is under the care of Dr. Fred J. Hughes.

American Soldiers Edit and Publish Live Newspaper for Sammies in France

COPY OF "STARS AND STRIPES" FIRST EDITION, SENT TO PLAINFIELD BY DR. C. L. CRIST, CONTAINS MUCH OF INTEREST FOR SERVICE MEN AND CIVILIANS.

A real, sure enough American newspaper filled with cuts, cartoons, sound editorial wisdom, news of the trenches and breezy stories, is now printed on the French front for the edification of Uncle Sam's boys on the firing line. It is called "Stars and Stripes" and is printed at the London Daily Mail's continental offices in Paris on paper furnished by the La Societe Anonyme des Papeteries Darblay. The editorial and reportorial staff are made up entirely of Sammies.

A copy of the initial number, dated Friday, February 8, was received by the Record this week from Dr. Chalmers L. Crist, of Park avenue, who holds a lieutenant's commission in the dental division of the Medical Corps. He has been ministering to the boys from the United States in base hospitals since last fall, but despite the busy life he leads keeps in mind that Plainfield people are interested in the same things he is. Accordingly, when the first edition of "Stars and Stripes" was placed in his hands he correctly felt that the folks back home in the old Jersey town would like to see what the lads can do in the way of newspaper work and sent the paper along.

"Stars and Stripes" is really a remarkable publication. All the copy shows careful editing and the articles are plainly the product of master minds. The front page is graced by a three-column picture of General Pershing, illustrations are profuse, and the cartoons add the finishing touches to a publication such as might be expected from New York or Chicago. There is even a sporting column, filled with live, interesting matter, only the sporting editor acknowledges that he has a job on his hands and asks his fellow soldiers to help him out in succeeding issues. There is also an appeal to civilians for news, notes or stories, and Plainfielders can do their share in making the paper interesting for the boys who are "Over There." The subscription price to soldiers is 4 francs for three months and to other subscribers 5 francs for three months. Communications should be addressed to "Stars and Stripes," Press Division, 10 Rue Sainte-Anne, Paris, France.

Here is Editor in Chief Lieutenant Guy T. Viskniskki's editorial salute:

"TO THE COLORS"

"With this issue the STARS AND STRIPES reports for active service with the A. E. F. It is your paper, and has but one axe to grind—the axe which our Uncle Samuel is whetting on the grindstone for use upon the august necks of the Hapsburgs and the Hohenzollerns.

"THE STARS AND STRIPES is unique in that every soldier purchaser, every soldier subscriber, is a stockholder and a member of the board of directors. It isn't being run for any individual's profit, and it serves no class but the fighting men in France who wear the olive drab and the forest green. Its profits go to the company funds of the soldier subscribers, and the staff of the paper isn't paid a sou.

"If you don't find in this, your own weekly, the things in which you are particularly interested, write to the editor and if it is humanely possible they will dig up the stuff you want. There are so many of you over here now, and so many different sorts of you, that it is more than likely that some of your hobbies have been overlooked in this our first number. Let us know.

"We want to hear from that artist in your outfit, that ex-newspaper reporter, that short story writer, that company 'funny man,' and that fellow who writes the verses. We want to hear from all of you—for THE STARS AND STRIPES is your paper, first, last and all the time; for you and for those of your friends and relatives to whom you will care to send it.

"THE STARS AND STRIPES is up at the top o' the mast for the duration of the war. It will try to reach every one of you, every week-end, shell-holes and fog notwithstanding. It will yield rights of the roadway only to troops and ambulances, food, ammunition and guns, and the paymaster's car. It has a big job ahead to prove worthy of its namesake, but, with the help of all of you, it will, in good old down east parlance, 'do its gol-derndest' to deliver the goods. So—For-ward! MARCH!"

Another editorial, full of heart interest and written in the likeable vein of our own observant J. Watson, is printed under the caption of "The Street of the Pretty Heart." It is replete with pathos and sentiment. See for yourself:

"It might have been a street once, that shell-pocked thoroughfare, its cobbles piled awry, it scurbing bitten out as though by the teeth of a stone-crunching giant. Scarcely one of the houses that lined it but had gaping shell-holes in walls, piles of clattered-down bricks before it, heaps of dust—all mute tokens of the devastation wrought by the enemy airmen during the raid of the night before. But, in the middle of that pathetic and ruined apology for a street the children were playing away, as merrily as if nothing at all had happened, shouting to one another in glee. And the name of that street—as the battered and half obliterated sign on the corner of the caved-in house at the end testified—was 'Rue du Joli Coeur'—'Street of the Pretty Heart!'

"The 'Street of the Pretty Heart!' It is symbolic of the way France has borne her struggle, her devastation—with the heart-free, care-free spirit of childhood. One may crush, but not conquer, race whose children can find happiness amid such surroundings, can abandon themselves to play under the very shadow of disaster. The 'Street of the Pretty Heart'—in that title is the secret of triumph of the spirit over the powers of darkness, the secret of the triumph of the spirit of France over the malignant and evil genius of her arch enemy."

There are numerous appropriate poems in the paper but the one seeming the best to us bears the heading, "A News Story in Verse" and with an introduction is as follows:

(The incident this poem describes was told by a British sergeant in a dug-out to the author—an American serving at the time in the British Army, but now fighting under the Stars and Stripes.)

Joe was me pal, and a likely lad, as gay as gay could be;
The worst I expected to happen was
To visit the wife and the kiddies; but they're waiting for him in vain.
All along of a Boche wot popped our water and ration train.—
You see, we'd been pals from chil-hood; him and me chumsmed
through school,
And when we growed up and got married we put our spare kale
in a pool,
And both made a comfortable living;
'twas just for our mates and the kids,—
Now the Hun—damn his soul—has taken his toll, and me pal had to cash in his bids.
That night when we left the ration
dump to face the dark ahead,
I can never forget the look on his face when he picked up his kit and said,
"Another trip to the front, old lad;
we'll take 'em their bully and tea;
"We'll catch hell tonight, but we'll get there all right; take that little tip from me."
And Joe swung up in his saddle; I crawled in the trailer behind;
The train moved off with a groan and a squeak, for the midnight work and the grind.
Then Joe looked 'round as we started off, I could see his face all alight:
"I got a letter from home," he said;
"I'll read it to you tonight."
We pulled along through Dick Busch,
through Fairy Court and Dell,
When word came back from the blokes ahead to give the nags a spell.
Joe slid outen his saddle, with a chuckle deep down in his throat,
An' he walked back to me, as gay as could be, and pulled the kid's note from his coat.
Says he, "Listen, lad, for a kid it ain't bad—it's her birthday—
she's five tonight—
It's a ripping note this—she sends you a kiss—" and Joe, poor old pal, struck a light.
He held up the kiddie's letter—we were laughin' a bit at the scrawl,
All warm inside with a feeling—well,
you know what I mean, damn it all!
When along come a German bullet,
and Joe, he wavered a mite,
Then without a corp he wilted down.
They carried him West that night:
A bullet hole in his temple, by God,
but clutching that letter tight.
I've forgot all me bloomin' duties,
for me blood is boilin' with hate;
And I'll get that sniping rotter what drilled me pal through the pate.
I'll teach the dirty beggar how an Englishman sticks to his friend;
I'm saving a foot of cold steel for the rat—so help me God to the end.

One of the reporters contributes the following as an actual occurrence and as we know how the boys get together it requires no stretch of the imagination to realize that he told the truth.

"HEARD IN THE CAFE."

"So you were down at El Paso the same time we were? Bum town, wasn't it?"

"Let's see,—I knew a lad out in Kansas City and his name was—"

"No, I haven't been up in Alaska since 1908, but there's a guy in our comp'ny who—"

"By the way, where did you say yo ucame from in New Hampshire?"

"Sure enough, I've hung around there at Tampa until—"

"Yes, I got a paper from my home town in Nevada that said—"

"And in spite of talk like that, there are some people back home that think their own communities' men are doing all the fighting."

Genuine humor is apparent in another article which declares that over in France there is no more cussing at the army mule. During the Civil War, heaping Billingsgate upon the heads of refractory, long-eared Missouri quadrupeds was one of the principal outdoor sports of the Yanks or Johnny Rebs. Most everybody nowadays, civilians as well as army veterans, imagine that cussing has to be one of the accomplishments of a U. S. teamster, but not so according to the "Stars and Stripes" reported. This is the way he describes the A. E. F. drivers urging their mules along:

"Cussing, as a fine art, is doomed in the army.

"Its foremost practitioners, the mule-skinners, are shorn of their deadliest weapon of offense and defense by a recent order which directs them to use honored words when addressing their feathery-eared charges. Instead of employing the plain, direct United States to which the mules' painfully obvious hearing organs have hitherto been attuned.

"Kindness, the order says in effect, will work wonders with the genus Missouri nightingale or Indiana canary; if spoken to with proper regard for his or her feelings, a mule will oftentimes go so far as to place his or her hoof in a driver's lap.

"When one is able, with impunity, to tickle a mule behind the ear (either ear will do) one is adjudged proficient in interpreting the aesthetic aspirations of the beast; and all mule-skinners are exhorted to apply the ear-tickling proposition as a sort of acid test both as to the tractability of their charges and their own ability as mule-tamers. The application of this test, it is held, will keep the mule-skinners too fully occupied to be able to cuss or to care a cuss about cussing.

"But, men of the Old Army, particularly those who have trained with mountain batteries, think of what is passing! Think of what the younger and more effete generation of mules is missing! No more beneath the starry flag will he head such he-language as this:—

"'Come on, Maud, you——Hoosier——! Get's a wiggle on your——good-for-nothing carcass! GIDDAP, Bill! You long-eared, flea-bitten, hay-demolishing, muddy-flanked, rock-ribbed——! I said it! GIDDAP!'

"Or with the native product: 'Depechez-vous, vous——. Oh, h—l, I'm out of French! Say, Jimmy! What's the word for ——? Never mind; all mules understand ——! Hey there, you —— Make tracks!'

"Now, all is changed and such dulcet appeals to His Muleship as this are the order of the day:

"'Get a gait on, Sapphira, you——! Oh, hell, I forgot! Aw, c'mee on now, old girl! We ain't got the whole morning t' waste! eh a spurt, old lady! Forward——!

"Say for ——. Oh, hell—I mean Heaven! Dammit, I forgot again! You, Ananias, will you do me the esteemed favor to start the process? Will you condescend to lift at least one leg?'"

These are only a few of the dozens of entertaining articles in "Stars and Stripes." If you like them and want to get better acquainted with the publication that is delighting your soldier boys "Over There," send along your subscription, and whatever news matter you may have. The former will help bear the financial burden, which is heavy enough in any newspaper office, military or civilian, and the latter may cheer up a particular friend doing his bit. The staff of the Record extends its thanks to Dr. Crist for the copy he so kindly mailed to us.

Peck & Bottomly's "Extra Work" Bill Dwindles to $1,000

Evidence that Peck and Bottomly's bill for extra compensation as supervising architects for the City Hall had undergone considerable paring was apparent at last Monday night's Council meeting.

Some time ago the firm asked for an additional eight per cent on $40,000 worth of work yet to be done. This would have made added pay of $3,200 for the New Yorkers but the City Hall committee was not of one opinion when the request was brought before it. There was a long discussion over the bill which lasted until after midnight on one occasion and late in the evening at a second conference.

When the matter was presented to the Council Monday night the $3,200 had been cut down to $1,000. A resolution was passed appropriating this amount for Peck and Bottomly and it is all they will receive. The smaller figure was evidently satisfactory to the concern as there was no comment when the appropriation was made.

A clause in the original City Hall contract contains the proviso that the architects are to receive extra compensation in the event of any delay to the construction or added work not due to themselves. As the job has dragged along well passed the original date for completion, the concern felt it was entitled to recompense for what it had done. The objection to the $3,200 bill was very vigorous from at least one of the committee who pointed out that Architect White of this city who did all the extra work on the Plainfield High school addition at the time of the Exner Company's failure, had only received $500 on $75,000 worth of construction.

Plainfield Men Named As Aids In Food Control

Announcement has been made by State Food Administrator William S. Tyler, of this city, of the appointment of two men who will act as his advisers, taking office at once. Both are Plainfield men—Frederick E. Mygatt and William M. Wherry. They will be in charge of the departments looking to administration and enforcement. Both of the appointees have had experience in food conservation work and were on the Plainfield Food Commission last year. Mr. Tyler was the chairman of that organization.

Because of the demands of the Food Administration for a larger supply of exportable wheat, the New Jersey farmers have been urged to market their surplus wheat before May 1. The reports do not show that there has been much wheat planting in the State. A telegram has been received by State Food Administrator Tyler from Herbert Hoover in regard to placing the supply of wheat on the market before May 1. It is addressed at large to the farmers of the State and is as follows:

"In order that we may comply with the urgent demand of the Allies for wheat and at the same time take care of our domestic supplies, we urgently need this year an earlier and more complete marketing of the wheat in farmers' hands than usual. The Allies are taking from us 50 per cent. of other cereals than wheat to mix in their bread.

"Inasmuch as the people in Allied countries and the soldiers must be fed with bread baked in bakeries, it is impossible for them to prepare bread made out of other cereals, and we must furnish them with sufficient wheat to maintain their bakery loaf.

"I therefore appeal to all of the farmers in the State of New Jersey to bring all of their wheat crop, except a necessary seed reserve, to market before May 1. This is a war call and a service for Uncle Sam, who is fighting for his life. If your local millers are unable to buy all the wheat that is offered, market it in the other customary trade channels, through which it will reach the Food Administration Grain Corporation."

A warning was also sent to Mr. Tyler today from Washington that all bakers who are not using the full 20 per cent. of wheat substitutes in their products before tomorrow must stop making these products at that time. They will not be permitted to resume the baking of such products until they are prepared to comply with the food regulations in regard to substitutes. The penalty for disobedience of this order will be the revocation of the license of the baker failing to comply with the mandate. This ruling applies only to bread and rolls.

Where there is any surplus of potatoes the bakers are asked and urged to make use of them as substitutes in every possible way. Four pounds of potatoes is considered equivalent to one pound of substitutes. If there are cases which the administrator thinks would be too greatly curtailed by a rigid enforcement of the regulations such cases should be reported with all of the facts to the headquarters at Washington.

The closing words of the telegram are: "Some bakers exert themselves to secure substitutes only if failure to do so is severely penalized."

The Food Administration at Washington has called the attention of the State Administration tot he fact that some wholesale shippers in the country are shipping orders of wheat and placing a back order for the substitutes which should accompany each wheat shipment upon their books until such time as they shall have a sufficient supply of the substitutes on hand to fill those orders. The administration does not approve of this practice. No wheat should be shipped until there is the requisite amount of substitutes available.

New York Favors Vehicular Tunnel Under Hudson River

Following the same lines as the report recently submitted to the New Jersey Legislature, the New York State Bridge and Tunnel Commission has submitted its findings to the New York Legislature recommending that steps be taken for the immediate construction of a vehicular tunnel under the Hudson River.

The commission estimates that the tunnel would pay for itself in twenty years, would prevent coal famines and facilitate freight traffic in general. It would run from Canal street, Manhattan, to Twelfth street, Jersey City.

General Goethals has advised the commission that construction of such a sub-river highway would cost not more than $12,000,000 and would be complete in three years. Land damage and purchase of easements and rights of way the commission figures at $600,000 more, making New York's share of the expense $6,300,000.

New Jersey has enacted legislation for taxation to meet this State's share of the expense and has appointed a commission with power to proceed. Governor Edge has promised to call a special session of the Legislature to enact any necessary laws if New York will take similar measures.

It is recommended that New York State lend its credit to the project by issuing bonds. Calculations based on the present traffic across the river show that the tunnel would have an annual traffic each way of at least 1,300,000 vehicles. It is purposed to charge a toll of thirty cents a vehicle, which is less by five cents than the average ferry charge, and this, the commission points out, would provide earnings of $415,000 the first year.

The commission estimates that the traffic would increase at the rate of at least five per cent. a year, which is less than the annual increase in ferry traffic and so in twenty years would pay up the bond issue completely and provide a net surplus of $1,500,000 at the end of another twenty years. The interest on such a fund, it is pointed out, would be sufficient to maintain and operate the tunnel, making it practically a free highway forty years after its completion.

Captain Peterson Assigns Men To Divisional Schools

For the first time in two weeks the battalion of the 113th Regiment, stationed at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala., formed from the old Second Infantry, is represented in divisional schools, assignments having been made by Captain Charles A. Peterson, of Plainfield, acting major, to the musketry, gas defense and trench mortar classes. Target practice and firing problems on the divisional ranges have kept the regiment from participation in the school routine during that period.

First Lieutenant William Drake, of Trenton, is in charge of the 113th Regiment musketry school detail this week, assisted by First Lieutenant James A. Jennings, of Irvington. The following enlisted men compose the student personnel in the three classes: Musketry, Sergeant George H. Paterson, Company A; Walter J. Hanze, Company B; Stanley Backmura, Company C. John Mundy, Company D; Thomas F. Madson, headquarters company; Harry Barkedew, Company E; John M. Dudash, Company F; Arthur W. Hamar, Company G; James B. Holston, Company H; William F. Hopkins, Company I; John Golden, Company K; Stephen A. Duane, Company L. and Paul Johnson, Company M.

Gas defense: Sergeants Alfred C. Bolanger, machine gun company; Frederick A. Donald, headquarters company; Francis Setaro, Company B, and George W. Riker, Company G, and Corporals LeRoy F. Hilton, Company A; Gustav McEmoyl, Company B; Hubert Loung, Company I, and Fred Drexler, Company M.

Trench Mortar: Private Thomas Dinaldy, Company C; Chester Knicht, Company D; Joseph Ryan, Company F; Thomas A. Fullerton, Company H; Frank B. Hoffman, Company L, and Clifford M. Berman, Company K.

Common Council Argues a Point On Horse-Power

A decision on the part of the Common Council to purchase a tractor from the Union Truck Manufacturing Company, of New York, for No. 1 chemical and hose wagon, led to an interesting discussion on "horse-power" at the Common Council meeting Monday night.

Councilman Charles Sminck, who has made a close study of fire department apparatus since he has been a city official, wanted to know what horse-power could be developed by the new tractor. He asserted that the motor vehicles already in service are not sufficiently powerful enough to meet all obstacles, such as snow drifts and heavy roads, with one exception. This is the American-La France pumping engine at Netherwood, which, during the heavy snow storm last December, was the only fire department vehicle which could answer an alarm for three days.

A representative of the Union Truck Company was present but would not guarantee, in response to a question, that his tractor would get to a fire in the event of drifted roads. There was a general discussion pro and con on the horse-power of motors with all but Mr. Sminck declaring that the city's apparatus was sufficiently equipped. The doughty First Ward councilman maintained his stand, however, that the city should not purchase any more apparatus unless it was sufficiently powerful enough to get out during the winter storms. The resolution to buy the Union Company's truck was passed without a dissenting vote, Mr. Sminck not caring to hold up the purchase after the fire committee had made its recommendation. While it was not so stated Monday night, it is generally understood that the tractor in question develops only twenty-two horse-power. The purchase price was $88.20, the next lowest bid being $895.

In the course of regular business at the meeting, a communication from the Plainfield Market Growers' Association petitioned the Council to provide a public market with suitable covering so that farmers will not be obliged to expose their produce to the heat and storms during the summer months, and where the housewives may come and do their marketing under shelter. It was pointed out in the communication that the market place used lasts summer was exposed to the elements and that the farmers were unable to dispose of their produce on rainy days because purchasers would not come to the market. The communication further stated that produce valued at $100,000 is sold in this community during the summer months. The matter was referred to the Public Affairs Committee.

On a resolution offered by the street committee, the Council voted to urchase a new steam roller from the Buffalo Steam Roller Company at a cost of $2,800, and the old roller, which has been in use for many years. A communication was received from the East End Civic Association protesting against the proposed trolley fare increase by the Public Service Corporation. On resolution from the police committee, half pay, amounting to $96, was awarded to Patrolman Charles Wicht, who is off duty because of an injury received while performing an official service.

An issue of bonds to the amount of $7,000 to pay for the new service struck offered by the fire board was authorized. The entire issue was taken by the City National Bank. They will be retired in 1823, bearing interest at 5 per cent. The validity of the bonds was passed upon by George S. Clay and the bonds themselves were furnished by the United States Mortgage and Guarantee Company at a cost of forty-nine dollars.

An ordinance was adopted on first and second readings, authorizing the rebuilding of the storm sewer on West Front street below Rock avenue and April 1 was fixed as the date for a public hearing. Chairman Ackerman, of the public affairs committee, stated that its committee had decided to refrain from purchasing a new American flag for the city offices until the new City Hall building was completed.

Philip S. Suffern, who was appointed a member of the Common Council to succeed John S. Dahl, was unable to be present Monday night for the formal process of "swearing in." As a result, he was reappointed as the law says in a case of this kind the appointee must take his seat within ten days.

Lieutenant William P. Taylor, of North Plainfield, a flight commander in the aviation corps, is spending a furlough at the home of his parents on Fairview avenue.

FLAG TO ENFOLD DEAD SAMMIES SENT HOME.

American soldiers who give their lives for their country will be sent home in full uniform, wrapped in the flag, if the War College adopts new regulations suggested by Provost-Marshal General Crowder.

Crowder testified this week before the Senate Military Affairs Committee that he urged this provision be adopted in view of the sending home from cantonments of the bodies of some soldiers wrapped only in a winding sheet.

TO THE CATHOLIC MEN OF PLAINFIELD:

THE MISSION

WHAT A BLESSED CUSTOM IT IS, THIS SETTING ASIDE A FEW DAYS OF FLEETING TIME TO PREPARE FOR ENDLESS ETERNITY! AND HOW HAPPILY DIFFERENT THESE DAYS OF PREPARATION FROM THE FEARSOME GLOOM PICTURED IN THE POPULAR MIND OF REAL, EARNEST RELIGION. DEATH, JUDGMENT, HEAVEN, YES, AND HELL STILL ASSERT THEIR RIGHT TO HUMAN CONSIDERATION. THEIR RIGHT HAS BEEN ACKNOWLEDGED, THEIR CLAIMS HAVE BEEN HEARD, AND THE DEPTHS OF EARNEST HEARTS HAVE BEEN SOUNDED IN TESTIMONY THEREOF. THERE IS A THOROUGHNESS ABOUT IT THAT IMPRESSES THE CHARACTER OF RELIGION IN THE MISSION; AND THERE IS JOY IN THE OUTCOME BEYOND THE DREAMS OF WEALTH. JOY, HOLY AND ABIDING, IN THE AWAKENED HEART, JOY IN THE HEART OF UNTOUCHED INNOCENCE, AND A HEAVENLY PEACE IN THE SOUL OF PENITENCE. AND WHAT A CONSOLATION, WHAT A STIMULANT TO THE ZEAL OF THE MISSION FATHERS IS THE REVERENT LOVE OF THE GRATEFUL PEOPLE! AND NOW A WEEK FOR THE MEN. THE ONE REAL BUSINESS OF LIFE CLAIMS THEM AND THE MANHOOD OF THEIR CATHOLICITY WILL ARISE TO THE OPPORTUNITY OF IT. TWILL BE THE TEST-TIME WHEN THE HELMET OF RIGHTEOUSNESS SHALL BE READJUSTED FOR RENEWED CONFLICT WITH THE THINGS OF DECEIT AND DESTRUCTION. GOD'S BLESSING BE UPON IT, AND EARNEST CO-OPERATION MEET IT, AND THE REUNION OF THE FAMILY OF THE FAITH FIND OUR PARISH BLESSED WITH THE SPIRIT OF THANKSGIVING.—REV. B. M. BOGAN.

FIRE APPARATUS AND HORSE POWER

Councilman Sminck had the right idea when he inquired about the horse power of the fire department's newly purchased tractor at Monday night's council meeting. Too little attention has been paid to this important factor in motor vehicle construction with the result that Plainfield was in a deplorable state regarding fire protection last December.

As Mr. Sminck pointed out, the big snow which hit the city just previous to Christmas stalled two of the fire department's machines, the Mack at Headquarters and the Mack in West End house No. 3. The only motor driven vehicle that was able to get beyond the shadow of its own building was the American La-France engine stationed in Netherwood One alarm came in during this critical period but fortunately it was only for a small blaze that was easily put out by the men of the horse drawn company at No. 1 house and the others from Headquarters.

The Mack combination chemical and hose in No. 3 house is an example of what "horse power knowledge" would have prevented when the vehicle was purchased. The Council committee was told that the motor was to be of "sixty horse", seemingly sufficient to propell the machine at any and all times. Instead of being sixty horse power, however, it is only forty-eight horse power. The former figure applies to the block test at the factory which always undergoes a considerable drop when the machine is sent over the road. The No. 3 machine weighs close to eight tons with all its equipment, plainly too much for only forty-eight horse power on the the road This fact was proven when the members of the company made a trial trip out of the house during the snow storm which Mr. Sminck mentioned. It stuck fast in a small drift less than 100 feet away from its station. After backing out, the driver made repeated attempts to force it along but was finally compelled to run backward to the house. Directly afterward, new gearing was placed on the drive shaft which betters the condition somewhat but even at that the machine should have nearly double its present horse power.

The new service truck ordered by the Fire committee but not yet delivered will have a motor capable of developing only twenty-nine horse power on the road. This is only about four more than an ordinary pleasure car built to carry five persons. From this it may be seen that the service truck will have very little motor force to spare should it be called out during a snow storm. If proper attention had been paid to this matter when the contract was awarded, it is quite probable that the horse power would have been much greater.

The tractor which the Council ordered purchased, Monday night, will develope about twenty-two horse power, it is said. The weight it will have to carry will be about three tons. Again it is seen that it is playing too close to the "factor of safety". What will happen when the Nott pumping engine is restored to service is only conjecture at this time. This machine has been a "Jonah" ever since it was placed in the city's service and at the present time is being equipped with a new motor. Perhaps it may be able to get over the road in stormy weather and then again perhaps it may not.

Councilman Sminck has made a study of Plainfield's fire apparatus from a time dating back before his election to the municipal body. Since he became an official, he has paid more attention to the detail than ever before and that is why he knows sufficient horse power for the apparatus is a subject not to be passed up lightly. When the city is left dependent upon one pumping engine in Netherwood and a combination horse drawn chemical and hose wagon on West Second street, it is quite apparent that somebody else beside Mr. Sminck should study motive power. The blockading snow storm of last December was what might be termed "an unusual condition" and it was former Chief Croker of the New York department who said: "Great conflagrations generally occur under unusual conditions."

JERSEY CITY SOLVES A PROBLEM

Jersey City's commissioners have shown the rest of the state that they do not propose to have their police and fire departments demoralized any longer by a scale of pay not in keeping with the present high cost of living. Prohibited by law from granting any increase in salaries without first submitting the proposed scale to the voters, they had a special bill passed by the recent session of the legislature which allows them to raise the pay temporarily. If the figures are not satisfactory they can be voted down at the next regular election, thus placing the men back on the old salary basis. Here is the scale which the Jersey City commissioners have adopted and will go into effect at once. The pay to apply to police and fire departments alike: Chief, $3,400 to $4,800; Inspectors $3,000 to $4,000; Captains $2,400 to $3,000 Lieutenants, $1,700 to $2,200; Sergeants, $1,500 to $2,000; Detectives, $1,500 to $1,950; Patrolmen, first year, $900 to $1,400; Patrolmen, second year, $1,000 to $1,500; Patrolmen, third year, $1,1000 to $1,500; Patrolmen, fourth year, $1,300 to $1,600.

While these figures may seen high they were adopted by the committee when it was realized that something had to be done to keep young men in the two branches of municipal service. Since the war began, first, second and third year police and firemen have been dropping out of the ranks with appalling rapidity, not because of the draft but because they could get much better pay elsewhere without putting in as many hours. Besides this, the money that was paid the younger element was not sufficient for them to maintain their families because of the doubling of living expenses. There had been times in the past few months when Jersey City's fire department had hardly enough men to handle a fair sized blaze and the police chief was at his wits end to properly guard the city against law-breakers. In desperation the commissioners turned to the legislature for the relief that came in the passage of the special salary bill.

What Jersey City has had to contend with is repeated in practically every municipality in New Jersey, Plainfield included. It has gotten to the point where the officials and citizens must realize that something must be done if this city is to be properly protected from fire of the machinations of evil doers. Since last fall the Plainfield Fire department has lost thirteen men or more than one-third of its force of privates. The police department has also lost a large number and more are ready to quit. The reason is always the same, too little pay for the hours of service required.

It is quite true that the men recently received slight increases in salary but they have not been sufficient to meet the advanced cost of living. No one would recommend such big jumps in salary as the Jersey City commissioners have specified, yet, something more than two or three dollars a month is the only thing that will keep the two departments up to a point of efficiency. Both departments need men but they will never get them while present conditions exist and they are likely to continue for at least three years, according to Washington's own military and naval experts. Chief Kiely and Chief Jennings both want young men for their services but they will not be forthcoming while the first year pay is about $900 and from this amount the recruit must pay for uniforms and outfits costing more than $100.

It would be well for the Common Council and taxpayers to think this matter over carefully before something serious happens and the departmental heads are blamed. They cannot be held responsible if their forces go to pieces for the sake of an increase in salary. Jersey City has demonstrated that drastic action is needed and while not granting as much as $500 more a year to the lower ranks of police and firemen, the best interests of the municipality would be served if a respectable raise in pay was given at once.

CONGRATULATIONS DUE MAYOR CALKINS

The Record congratulates Mayor Leighton Calkins on his appointment of a Citizens' committee to arrange proper demonstrations in behalf of Plainfield selectives departing for camp. This paper has recommended such a step since the regrettable civic inertness on February 25th, when sixty-eight young men were allowed to enter the service without so much as a single drummer to lead the way from Exemption headquarters to the North avenue station. Other cities showed real enthusiasm in extending farewells to the lads who are to make the greatest sacrifices in winning the war and our own contingent felt that it had been slighted.

To John J. Varley belongs much credit for taking the initiative in guarding against a recurrence of unpatriotic indifference. His son was one of the young men who entrained last month with only informal good-byes and he then and there determined that no other men's sons should go away without the civic honor to which they are so justly entitled. Through his own efforts he succeeded in getting a committee appointed by Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus to secure the necessary funds, assuming the task of chairman himself. Afterward he consulted with Mayor Calkins in the appointment of a Citizens' committee and the two bodies are now working as one for proper observance of every new departure.

THE ORIGIN OF "BOCHE"

The term Boche as applied to the German is now in common use in all civilized countries. There are very few people, however, acquainted with the origin and meaning of the word and as a communication has been received by the Record asking for some information in this regard, we give what is contained in the American Government's War Cyclopedia. The word Boche was used in Paris by the printers before the great war to designate their German assistants and there is evidence that it was used in the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, for Zola in a war novel puts the term in the mouths of French soldiers in referring to Germans. The term en boche was used before the Franco-Prussian war as an equivalent to "That chump" and tete de boche is given by the French distionaries as slang.

There may be other explanations that some of our readers may know of. If so, we would like to hear from them on the subject.

The coming of April reminds us that moving does not always better one's condition. It may be "out of the frying pan into the fire".

It is quite apparent that Chairman Ackerman, of the Public Affairs committee, is a "bear" for economy. He reported to the Council Monday night that his committee had decided not to purchase a new American flag for municipal purposes until the City Hall was completed.

While it is not always true that a robin makes a spring it does sometimes happen that a lark makes a jail sentence.

The biggest piece of camouflage in the Frost rebate letter was the following words: "It gives me great pleasure, therefore, to enclose check for the difference due you."

Pay no attention to Germany's peace talk, to reports of a German revolution or to rumors of a new German strike. The business of the United States is to devote every atom of energy to licking the Kaiser and listen to his peace talk after he is licked.

Father Bogan Orates At Prelates' Funeral

Today at the Church of the Sacred Heart, the largest parish church in Trenton, the funeral services of the late rector, Rt. Rev. Monsignor Thaddeus Hogan, will be conducted. Two years ago Monsignor Hogan celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. On that occasion the city of Trenton was en fete in respectful jubilation with the venerable rector. The title of prothonotary apostolic was conferred on him by Pope Benedict 15th, and the late Rt. Rev. Bishop McFaul was present at the ceremony of installation.

For forty years Father Hogan presided over the parish of the Sacred Heart, whose parish organizations give evidence of the gift of administration he enjoyed. Today it is expected that the Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia, Bishop McCort, Bishop Hayes, of New York, Bishop Monaghan, of Delaware, and numerous other church dignitaries will be present.

The funeral oration will be delivered by Rev. B. M. Bogan, of St. Mary's church, this city. Monsignor Hogan leaves a sister, a member of the community of Sisters of Mercy, whose name in religious life is Sister M. Ignatia.

CORPORATION NOTICE.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on Monday, March 18, 1918, an ordinance of which the following is a true copy, to wit:

AN ORDINANCE

For Renewing and Replacing the Storm Sewer in a Portion of West Front Street.

WHEREAS, The City finds it necessary, and the Common Council hereby so determines, to renew and replace the storm sewer for carrying off the surface water in a portion of West Front street hereinafter particularly specified, and the Common Council has determined, and doth hereby determine, that the public good requires the renewing and replacing of the storm sewer hereinafter specified.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That under the provision of the acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided, the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that the storm sewer to carry off the surface water in a portion of West Front street be renewed and replaced in and for said City of Plainfield, as follows:—

Beginning at a point in the southeasterly side line of West Front street where it is crossed by the small brook near Everett place; thence across West Front street, thence under the northwesterly sidewalk of West Front street, southwesterly, to the existing storm sewer, as shown on plans on file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield, entitled as follows:—"Plans for Renewing and Replacing the Storm Sewer in a Portion of West Front street, City of Plainfield, N. J., March, 1918."; "Sewerage System, City of Plainfield, N. J., Sheet 4, 1895, Plans of Castle Park, March 1895"; City of Plainfield, N. J. Plan for Storm Sewer Inlets, January, 1917"; to which plans reference is hereby made and the same are hereby made a part hereof) said storm sewer to be renewed and replaced in and under the street between the above mentioned points, as shown on said plans, with the necessary inlets, inlet connections, manholes and appurtenances to complete the same, and to be of the dimensions and materials and to be laid along such lines and at such grades and in such manner as indicated and specified on said plans.

was presented, read and ordered to be considered and acted upon by said Common Council at a regular meeting thereof to be held in the Council Chamber No. 149 North Avenue, in said City of Plainfield, on Monday, April 1, 1918, at the hour of 8:30 o'clock in the evening of that day, and at such meeting ample opportunity will be given to all parties in favor of, or opposed to, the improvement contemplated by said ordinance, to present their views with reference to the same in writing or otherwise, as the Common Council may at that time direct, and public notice is hereby given of the intention of the Common Council to cause said improvement set forth in this ordinance to be made, and such persons or corporations as may object thereto, are requested to present their objections in writing at the City Clerk's office, No. 153 North avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at or before the expiration of ten days from the date of this notice or to the Common Council at its first meeting held after the expiration of the said ten days, and said Common Council at such meeting, to be held on the first day of April, 1918, or above stated, or afterward, may proceed to consider and pass such ordinance, notwithstanding any objection.

By order of the Common Council.

Republic Tires

THE PRODIUM PROCESS TIRE

The Prodium Process of compounding rubber was discovered in the Republic Laboratories more than two years ago. After exhaustive tests, we began the manufacture of Republic Prodium Process Tires. We are now certain, beyond the last least doubt, that it does make tires last longer. They wear down as evenly and smoothly as a piece of steel and are most responsive.

News of the Theatre

"Hans And Fritz," The Cartoon Kids Coming Next Week

"Hans and Fritz" are coming to the Plainfield Theatre next Monday, matinee and night. It is a foregone conclusion that your boy or girl, in fact all the children, can tell you this. The two funny youngsters who figure so prominently on the funny pages of the principal daily papers are well known to all the children. These boys are well known for the reason that in every picture depicting them they are doing something to cause you to laugh. So it will be on Monday next at the Plainfield Theatre. You will find they will be doing something for every minute they are on the stage. The offering comes under the management of Gus Hill, who is the master producer of cartoon comedies. Mr. Hill is one manager who does not send small organizations on tour. He figures that the public expects a chorus of large proportions and a gathering of comedians to make you laugh. In this respect he figures quite correctly. The organization to present "Hans and Fritz" at the Plainfield Theatre will be composed of forty singers, dancers and a goodly number of comedians who are funny.

Many Pretty Girls In Sidman's Show

No matter what a musical show has to offer, there are always some who will go away disappointed if the chorus is in any way deficient in beauty or ability. Sam Sidman, the producer and comedian-star, knows that and that is why, when he and his "Own Show" arrive at the Plainfield Theatre on next Tuesday the patrons of that playhouse will see about the finest lot of girls who ever donned glad theatrical rags and entered into the terpsichorean intricacies for the benefit of a hungry audience. There isn't a girl in the lot who doesn't measure up to a superior beauty standard. Of course, producers figure that beauty is the main thing and that vocal ability is a secondary consideration, but here is a chorus which can sing like the blue-birds on a May morning. Their dancing ability is also good and the amount of civacity and energy which they throw into their various numbers is a revelation to those who thought they knew the limitations of chorisdom. Like everything else in the show the chorus is the very best.

Barnum And Bailey Opening Announced

The Barnum & Bailey circus will begin its limited New York engagement at Madison Square Garden, beginning Monday afternoon, March 25. A wonderful new program is promised and it is claimed that this season the monster entertainment has more and better things to show than ever before, starting with a magnificent pageant entitled "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp," the circus will occupy three hours or more with events in air, on platforms and in rings and in the hippodrome surrounding. Not one moment will be lost in all of the spaces of the great enclosure.

The opening feature is the first attempt at Chinese pageantry in the histor yof American circuses and it has been described as the more sorgeous presentation ever attempted. The story of the geni slave of the magic lamp is too well known to need description here. However, it may be well to call attention to the possibilities for display in coloring and magnificent settings in Chinese locale and to the fact that Barnum & Bailey spent $1,000,000 to reproduce all of its glorious possibilities. The circus program which follows the pageant is made up almost entirely of names and acts new to the American public, the cream of all the continental circuses having been rushed to the big shows European agents for booking on account of the closing of most of the foreign circuses. There is a complete Chinese circus, replete with thrilling aerial and acrobatic feats. The famous Hannaford Family, champion riders of Europe, will display their wonderful skill. Signor Bagonghi, the dwarf bareback rider, described as the equestrian comic of the century, will thrill and convulve with laughter. Pallenberg's wonderful bears will ride on bicycles, skate and perform on the trapeze. There will be more clowns than ever before and in the menagerie will be seen many new specimens of wild and untrained animals. There are a dozen of new baby animals in the great zoo. There will be more than one hundred acts and to name and describe them would occupy too much space.

European Novelty At the Plainfield

Patrons at the Plainfield Theatre yesterday afternoon and last night witnessed the first performance of another big European novelty which aMnager Shannon booked as the headline attraction for the vaudeville bill finishing out the present week. It was presented by the four Charles', a quartet of clever jugglers, acrobats and pantomimists who have appeared at the leading variety houses in continental Europe for the past ten years. They came to this city with the same extensive wardrobe and heavy sets of scenery that have made the offering the "talk of New York."

There are numerous other good things on the bill as it will be shown again today and tomorrow. Among them might be mentioned "Happy" Sammy Duncan, a Scotch comedian, who sings and tells *stories even bet*ter than his country man, Harry Lauder, who blazed the trail for likeable Scotch drollery. Mr. Duncan has an original way about him and his budget of stories and songs are all new. There is also Fyne and Company, six people in all, presenting a miniature musical review, "At the Cabaret;" Lawrence and Vera Fein, comedy singers and talkers; Gertrude Arden and Company, in a comedy sketch, "Outwitted," and Miller and Parker, "The Tango Foot Dancers."

Lovers of pictures will have plenty of films to please them both today and tomorrow. There will be Pathe News with all its detail of world happenings, animated cartoons and one-reel comedies.

Plan To Enlarge Soldiers' Club House

The New Jersey Woman Suffrage Association has under consideration plans for enlarging its clubhouse for the Camp Dix soldiers. The following committee for this work was appointed at the last State Board meeting: Chairman, Mrs. A. L. S. Doughty, Mount Holly; Mrs. John J. White, Atlantic City; Mrs. Henry C. White, Plainfield; Mrs. Wells P. Eagleton, Newark; Mrs. Edmund B. Osborne, Montclair; Mrs. F. H. Lovell, Madison; and Mrs. E. F. Feickert, Plainfield.

The committee held a meeting at the clubhouse in Wrightstown Tuesday, at which building contractors were present. The plans decided upon will be submitted to the next State Board meeting for consideration, and immediately upon their adoption a Statewide drive for the necessary money will be begun among the 200 local branches of the association. As the association has raised over sixteen thousand dollars to purchase, furnish, and run the clubhouse since last October, no difficulty is anticipated in raising what additional money may be needed. The clubhouse is crowded to capacity at all times when the soldier boys have leave from camp and additional reading and writing rooms are very much needed.

"JOE" TOBIN IN FRANCE.

Joseph Tobin, who made his home with his aunt, Mrs. Abbie Flynn, of Spooner avenue, is now in France as a member of the ground division of the Aviation Corps. He is a nephew of George J. Tobin, of Grant avenue.

Search Light For Public Service Stock Dealings

Two distinct investigations of all stock transactions and records of the Public Service Railway Company, including its proportionate share of the cost of maintaining a lobby in the legislative hall at Trenton each winter, are to be an outcome of the appeal for an increase in trolley fares.

One of these investigations has already been started by Professor Dousal C. Jackson, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, as the representative of the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners, and plans for the other are being laid by Marshall Van Winkle and George L. Record, counsel for the 146 municipalities whose residents would be forced to pay the increased fare should the proposed schedule be allowed.

Professor Jackson has presented his demand for the railway company's books and other records, and he will spend much time at the offices in the Terminal building. The inquiry for the municipalities will start as soon as Messrs. Van Winkle and Record decide on the expert to be used in their work.

Mr. Van Winkle today called to his assistance Dr. Delos F. Wilcox, the *utility expert, who made an investi*gation of the fare increase proposal for the Newark News. He asked Dr. Wilcox to meet him in a conference on the case of the municipalities. Mr. Van Winkle said this morning that no decision had yet been reached on experts or engineers for the opposition, but that the selection would probably be made after the meeting with Dr. Wilcox.

Little opposition is now expected to the presentation of President Thomas N. McCarter's testimony when the hearing is reopened before the Utility Board next Tuesday morning. Mr. Van Winkle said this morning that the opponents of the fare boost might be content to have this evidence submitted, but with the understanding that an adjournment of sufficient time to allow complete preparation of the case of the municipalities would be granted by the board.

It is also possible, according to Mr. Van Winkle, that the preliminary cross-examination of Mr. McCarter will take place at that time, although he is not certain that he will be ready. Much depends upon the nature of the testimony given by the Public Service head. If it is so highly technical that it must be combated with a knowledge of intricate transactions between the railway company and the Public Service Corporation, then, of course, he said, the cross-examination must necessarily be made fro ma transcript of the testimony backed by results of the inquiry to be made by the oppositions' experts.

Concerning the work at the offices of the railway company undertaken by Professor Jackson, John L. O'Toole, assistant to President McCarter, said this morning:

"We have nothing to conceal. We are giving Professor Jackson all the help he needs and we shall continue to do so. We laid our cards on the table before him."

Mr. O'Toole was asked if the application of the railway company carried with it the abrogation of its arrangement for the special rate of fare to school children, by which they get transportation on a three-cent basis, books containing thirty tickets being sold for ninety cents.

"Public Service is not seeking to do away with this special fare schedule," said Mr. O'Toole. "Its petition refers only to the five-cent fare and transfers."

Sheriff Seeks Job For Jailed "Loafer"

The first man in Union county to be arrested under the Edge "anti-loafing" law is to be given his liberty as soon as a job is found for him and he appears to be willing to accept it. He is Samuel Robinson, colored, of Scotch Plains, who was arrested on Monday.

Sheriff Warner says that by keeping him in jail the object of the law is not being carried out, as it was passed in order to put men to work instead of making them idle. He is now searching for work near Robinson's home, and as several days in jail have changed the prisoner's opinion in regard to work, he will probably accept the chance to get out.

The mayors and police chiefs of the county have agreed to attend a meeting in the county courthouse tonight to discuss plans for rounding up the idlers. A list of vacant jobs will be compiled. Within a few days placards will be placed about the county warning everyone to go to work under penalty of being arrested.

That the law is causing considerable worriment in this city is certain from the number of individuals who have asked Chief Kiely's advice. Several say they are political workers and are really busy when it would appear that they were not. The Chief has told them to take no chances and get a real job.

RECRUITS ACCEPTED BY ENGINEER REGIMENTS.

The organization of engineer regiments and motor truck companies has been ordered by the War Department to accept recruits for this branch of the service. Recruiting officers point to the advantages to be gained by affiliating with these divisions and say that advancement is rapid. Skilled mechanics also are desired.

POLICE 'PHONE NOW "500"

The telephone at police headquarters on Sycamore street, which had been 97 for many years, was changed this week to 500. Persons calling the station should keep the change in mind to prevent unavoidable delays.

PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark and family, of 124 Walchung avenue, will remove on April 1 to the former Webster property at East Second and Church streets.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Hennessey, of 726 West Third street, are the parents of a son born to them last Sunday.

Miss Walter Droll, of the Sterling building, is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital following an emergency operation performed Tuesday morning. She was reported today as resting comfortably. Previous to her marriage Mrs. Droll was Miss Cornelia Hoover and was graduated from the Muhlenberg Hospital training school in 1916.

The engagement of Miss Florence A. Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph V. Taylor, of DeKalb avenue, to John E. McDonald, of Manning avenue, North Plainfield, has been announced by the bride-elect's parents. Mr. McDonald enlisted in the Government service some time ago and last week was called by the Government for aviation work. He left last Saturday for the training field at San Antonio, Texas.

Mrs. T. Hazelwood Keller, of Sandford avenue, is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital following an operation performed last week. She rallied after the ordeal and is now well on the road to recovery.

The marriage of Miss Jean W. Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Patterson, of the Bristol, Central avenue, to Lieutenant Hubert W. Edundson, of the United States Signal Corps, took place last Saturday night at Westfield. The ceremony was performed by Mayor Harry W. Evans at his home. Lieutenant Edundson has been in the Government service since last fall, and recently has been stationed at Fort Omaha, Nebraska. His home is in this city.

Julius W. A. Bauersachs, of Grandview avenue, the borough, and Edward T. Van Winkle, of Sandford avenue, returned Sunday after a stay at Atlantic City. The report the weather conditions ideal and capacity business at all the hotels.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Dunham, of Madison avenue, have recently been entertaining Miss Mildred Slade, of Little Genesee, N. Y.

Mrs. Nora Regan and family, of Lee place, returned home Sunday after several days' stay in Jersey City, through the death of a relative.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Hubbard, of West Fifth street, have been at Alfred, N. Y., the past few days in order to witness the graduation exercises at Alfred University, their daughter, Miss Dorothy Hubbard, being a member of the graduating class.

Miss May Burke, of East Fifth street, is able to be about again after a week's detention at home by a severe attack of grip.

Mrs. Frank Hollenback, of Somerset street, the borough, is at Anniston, Ala., having gone to that city because of the condition of her brother, Corporal George Perrine, who is in the division hospital at Camp McClellan. The latter was injured some time ago while performing the military duties. Mrs. Hollenback expects to remain at Anniston several weeks.

"Jack" Hall, of Jackson avenue, the borough, is in Indianapolis, Ind., in the course of his duties as car tracer for the Standard Motors Corporation of Jersey City, which holds a Government munition contract.

Edward P. T. Smith, of the borough, who has been seriously ill in St. Vincent's Hospital, New York, with pleuro-pneumonia, continues to improve gradually and may soon be able to return to Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Robin Hamilton, of Elizabeth, have returned home after a visit with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Hamilton, of Verion street, the borough.

Sergeant Dennis O'Keefe, who has been confined to his home on Liberty street, by an attack of pleuro-pneumonia, is reported as improving gradually with prospects of a complete and early recovery.

Mrs. Reginald G. Ralli, who was called to North Plainfield by the serious illness of her father, Milton C. Barkalow of Lincoln place, has returned to her home at Petersburg, Va. Mr Barkalow is still ill but greatly improved.

Walter Wilson, recently transferred from the receiving ship "Granite State", to the naval aviation corps, as a flyer, came up from the training field at Port Worth, Texas, this week and spent several days at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wilson of West Third street. Mr. Wilson is at present stationed at Philadelphia, but expects to go overseas very shortly.

Miss Margaret Penn, of Richmond street, who recently enlisted in the Red Cross nursing service has been sent to Camp Mills, L. I., for duty. Miss Penn was graduated from the Muhlenberg hospital training school two years ago.

Joseph Roach, of East Fifth street, this city, is in the reservation hospital at Camp McClellan following an operation for the amputation of a finger. The digit became infected after an injury.

C. E. Hadden, of West Sixth street, has returned from East Northport, L. I., to which place he was called by the death of his mother, Mrs. C. I. Hadden, of that place. The funeral took place at East Northport Wednesday afternoon.

Edward Connolly, of West Sixth street, is able to be about after several weeks' confinement to the house by a severe illness with pneumonia.

Jerry Manning, of Compton avenue was able to be out Wednesday after a week's detention at home by grip. Mr. Manning was formerly in the contracting business but more recently has been employed at a Government shipyard on Staten Island.

Miss Mary Connolly has completed her course of training at Muhlenberg and has gone to her home at Hampton for a rest before beginning the practice of her profession.

William S. Terry, who has been confined to his home, on West Fourth street, by an illness of long duration has now improved sufficiently to sit up a short time each day.

Miss Helen Hagan of Liberty street has been detained at home for the past week by a severe attack of the grip.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Marky, of West Front street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Anna Marky, to Harry Suydam, of Plainfield avenue. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mrs. Florence Sheppard, of Trueli Inn, has gone to Atlantic City for a two weeks' stay at the Marlborough-Blenheim.

Miss Florence Russ, of West Fifth street, is able to be out after a severe attack of the grip which confined her to her home during the past week.

William G. Smith, of Park avenue, has assumed the management of Marshall & Ball's shoe department at the Newark house. Mr. Smith was for many years a salesman at the M. C. Van Arsdale store but more recently has been with the Coward Company in New York.

Miss Josie Murphy, of Central avenue, is detained at home by an attack of the grip.

Miss Olive Grant Bird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Bird, of Greenbrook road, and Stanley H. Reese, of Westfield, were married Wednesday afternoon at the Presbyterian parsonage in Westfield by Rev. W. I. Steans. Mr. Reese is now a member of Division Meadquarters Troop, 78th Division, stationed at Camp Dix, and expects to leave soon for France.

Loafing Law Meant For All Classes

From all New Jersey, sheriffs and chiefs of police, including Chief Kiely, of this city, gathered at Newark, Tuesday, and agreed to enforce vigorously the new anti-loafing law. Idlers, without regard to their station in life, will be seized and will get one week in which to go to work, the alternative being criminal prosecution, with a penalty of $100 fine or three months in jail, or both.

Incidentally 1,000 workless men applied for jobs yesterday at the Federal-State-Municipal Employment Bureau in Newark. Officials said this was the first material evidence of the effect of the new law. Jobs were found for 325.

State Labor Commissioner Bryant submitted the following plan to the conferees: Whenever an officer of the law sees an idler he will take him to the nearest police station. There the man must fill out a form card, which will tell for what work he is best fitted. He is then directed to look for work. The card is turned over to one of the public employment offices. If the man cannot find work, the Employment Bureau will offer him a choice of jobs.

At the end of the week the police will find out if the idler in question has found employment. If not, he will be escorted to an employment agency of the Department of Labor and commanded to select work from a list. If he refuses, the authorities will select a position for him. If he refuses to accept he then will be charged with violating the law. The penalty is $100 fine or three months' imprisonment, or both.

Large posters, announcing the provisions of the law and warning idlers that it will be enforced, will be sent to all sheriffs to be displayed.

In the general discussion, police officials told of cases of idlers of every description: from hoboes up to those men who earned fortunes early in life and are taking it easy. It was the decision of everyone present that the anti-loafing law is meant to apply to all these.

To prevent the idlers from jumping from one town to another or into another county, every police department will establish a list of "fugitive hoboes." No mercy will be shown to a "fugitive" if it is shown that he ran away to avoid work.

GOVERNMENT LOANS

U. S. FARMERS $13,878,811.

Farmers of the United States were advanced $13,878,811 during the month of February on long time first mortgages, according to the monthly reports of the Federal Farm Loan Board issued this week. There were but twenty-three business days in the month, the report shows, and loans closed exceeded January's total by $2,091,294. The Federal Land Bank in Omaha leads the month with $3,067,850.

Word has been received in Plainfield of the safe arrival in France of Lieutenant Ferdinand Collins, of this city. Previous to entering the service he was connected with the Plainfield Trust Company.

THE NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

It is not an imitation nor yet an interpretation. It is a Re-Creation; so complete and satisfying that no human ear can detect a shade of difference between artist and instrument.

The famous tone tests in which 30 great artists have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison have established the truth of this assertion. Over 1,500 of these tests have been held; over 2,000,000 people have attended them. And invariably the New Edison met the ordeal successfully. Not one person could distinguish between the voice of the artist and that of the instrument.

Come into our store and witness a demonstration of this marvelous instrument.

Houses For Sale

You cannot afford to pay present rent when you can buy houses as we are willing to sell them.

By depositing 10% of the price of any of the properties we own, we will take the balance of the purchase price in instalments of 1% per month, which is not much different from the present rental value.

You cannot miss buying in Plainfield with such inducement and our only reason for so doing is because we have not the time to look after our real estate.

Advise us what kind of a house you want, and if we have anything like it, we will show it to you, giving you a close price on the above terms.

Discourse On "Faith" As Mission Is Ended

Final Sermon By Father Flemming Heard By Capacity Gathering of Men At St. Mary's

With a capacity gathering in attendance the Mission which has been conducted in St. Mary's church, since Sunday, March 17, by the Apostolate Fathers, came to a close last night. Since the beginning of the week the services have been for the men of the congregation and it was a most inspiring sight to witness the great crowd which listened raptly to Father Flemming as he propounded religious doctrine on the theme of "Faith". It was a most auspicious ending to a series of sermons which have crowded the spacious edifice twice each day. one particular instance being last Sunday when a total of 3,27 persons received Holy Communion. In more ways than one the Mission may be said to have been a complete success.

No community of law-abiding people can fail to recognize in every religious revival a preservative of the most enduring principal of civilization. To those among us who looked in upon the immense gatherings at St. Mary's or noticed the trend church-ward of the morning or evening crowds or who read the reports of the sermons and instructions there delivered, it must have struck home that here are people ready to earn-est in learning the manifestations of God to humanity and as earnestly determined to apply that knowledge to the service of God and their fellowman.

On Sunday last, at the closing exercises for the women's week, 1200 women listened to the reassurance of their leaders that the very evident determination to take life at its real value—a time of preparation for an endless eternity—was in itself a most gratifying result of the Mission. Reason had asserted its rights throughout the various instructions on Catholic religious doctrine, and the sermons on the moral deductions from those doctrines, and as a result of that demand of reason there came to participants the security that a "reasonable faith" alone can bring. There was a noticeable absence of the spirit of controversy. Statements were made and facts substantiate them were adduced. The devotion of the Missionary Fathers to the cause that called them to Plainfield was evident in the directness noticeable in the pulpit utterances of the two weeks' effort. The darkest hours of night—and the sunrise—found hundreds wending their way to St. Mary's and the Mission all intent upon the one thing necessary to know the will of God and gain heaven's help to fulfill it.

This inspiring message of St. James as contained in Father Flemming's sermon on "Faith" was this: is the perfect pattern of a catholic man after God's own heart. "I will show thee by works my faith" "Faith without works is dead," said Father Flemming. "It is the very abundance of good works that means our faith's perfection. The religion of Christ is not simply something to be believed. It is a life to be lived and the more intensely we live it, the nearer shall we approach the Divine Author of that life. A counterfeit Catholic, like a counterfeit coin, has no value. The genuine Catholic is the man who makes his life an expression of what he believes. For him, Christ is the cornerstone, and everything else is based upon that foundation. In every department of life, Christ plays a prominent part. Whether it be a matter of business, politics, education or recreation, the principles for which the Lord lived and died must be emphasized and put into practice. A theoretical Catholic is a name and nothing more. If our Catholicity measures up to the standard established by Christ, then our every act is destined to be but the answer to the world's question "what is the value of Catholicity" If was this kind of Faith that characterized the pioneers of Christianity in the first few centuries. It has characterized the saints of God ever since. Two personalities can never be completely merged, nevertheless, the power of imitation is so mighty that one may be truly said to bear about with him the transformed likeness of the other. This is the law of Christian love, the close imitation of the virtues of Christ, the identification of one's interests with His. This is what makes the true Catholic an imitation of Christ. In fact, he comes to resemble Christ. This is the ideal that we set before you today. It is a high ideal because it is Christ's own. However, the Saints have proven that it is within our reach. The Saints once walked the earth with the same flesh and Blood, the same passions to conquer, the same difficulties, trials and temptations to meet and overcome: they have won, and their victory is an everlasting proof that God has not set the goal above the power of man's attaining. After all the secret of their success was their loyalty to Christ and their love for Him. Their Faith was not dead, it was a strong living Faith that begot in them ardent love and untiring zeal. They adored His virtues, and they strove to make His virtues their own. They became so filled with Christ that He shone out through them. It was not necessary for them to declare themselves Catholics, their lives preached it. How bountiful the Lord has been in the bestwal of His gifts! His kingdom acknowledges one aristocracy, the aristocracy of the Saints. The millionaire may enjoy the good things of eternal life, if he cultivates in this life the poverty of Christ; the man without a penny may become a multi-millionaire in the love of God. The man who has a finished education must cultivate the wisdom of the Saints; on the other hand, one who can neither read nor write may become an expert in the science of Christ. It makes no difference to God whether a man be rich or poor, learned or ignorant, black or white, for God is no respector of persons. Lucean heart and not blue blood is the condition essential for admission to the Kingdom of Heaven. What difference does it make if I happen to be poor in the things of time, if only I be rich in the possessions of God. I would rather be a pauper like Lazarus and have the favor of my God than be a financial giant without it. What difference does it make if lowly birth or the want of an education deny me a place in what this world calls "society", if only my affections be pure enough to enjoy the company of the Saints of God. I would rather be amenial in God's household than stand first in the ranks of this worlds society. God did not create me to accumulate wealth, to acquire social renown or international reputation. He created me to know, to love and to serve Him. This, then, is the purpose of my existence. My Faith is the divinely appointed means given me for the perfect realisation of this purpose. My Faith is the promise of the everlasting reward that God has in store for my perfect service.

The intelligent reader of history observe that the Catholic Church has always been under attack in some quarter of the globe. How comes it that Catholicity has met with such treatment on the far-fung lines of humanity? For the very reason that she is an institution of God. The world crowned His Son with thorns and nailed Him to a cross; the world distorted His words and tried to make Him a rebel and criminal; the world treated Him as a fool and laughed Him to foulest scorn. Before He left the earth, He warned the church that persecution would inevitably come. The servant is not above his master. Consequently, if the church is thorn-crowned and crucified, if she has been slandered and villified in every kingdom and republic, if her faithful have suffered discrimination politically, socially and financially, she remembers the prophecy of her Founder: "As they persecute Me, they will persecute you'.

"But despite every opposition, the church can say, that throughout the nineteen centuries she has fought the good fight for God and kept His faith. She bears battle-scars on her brow, but she has never lowered her colors in surrender of gospel. She has never forgotten to render unto to Caesar what belongs to Caesar, but she will never render unto Saeser what belongs to God. She will ever preach all the doctrine that the living Christ brought to soils.

"The Catholic Church in America" declared Father Flemming, "stands be the Star and Stripes with a most allegiance. Two hundred thousand of her choicest sons are wearing the khaki uniform, and they will come back from France, carrying the flag or wrapped in its sacred foldr. We love the constitution art the standards that have made America the greatest country under heaven. And before the government of the people should vanish from the earth, every drop of blood in Catholic manhood and womenhood would be offered on our altars of freedom."

Deserved Position
Charles F. McCann

Charles F. McCann, of West Third street, who has been in teh New Jersey Central's passenger train service for the past fifteen years, was this week advanced to the position of night station master at the Communipaw terminal. The office is one of the most important of the kind in this department of the railroad's work and came to the Plainfielder as a reward for faithful and efficient service. He was selected from among thirty-two applicants for the position.

Previous to entering the emplov of the New Jersey Central, Mr. McCann was connected with the New York Telephone Company, first as night chief operator at the local exchange and later as assistant wire chief at Newark. He has had a regular "run" on the main line of the Central between Communipaw and Somerville for the past few years, serving as train man and supply conductor.

English Out, Kenney May Go Tomorrow

Announcement that County Fuel Commissioner John K. English had resigned and would close his office in Elizabeth after tomorrow is taken to mean that the office in Plainfield will also be closed, becaes of John J. Kenney being a local assistant.

Mr. Kenney today declared that he had given no resignation nor did he intend to close the office but from other sources it is asserted that the retirement of Mr. English means the retirement of all those he appointed to assist him. Efforts to get Mr. English on the telephone this morning met with failure. It is certain, however, that there are "big doings" in the County Fuel Dictatorship and the possibilities that new officials may be named by State Commissioner Jenkinson are not remote.

A communication from State Commissioner Jenkinson today notified the Union county coal administration to lower the price of household grades of coal thirty cents a ton beginning next Monday. His message added that the Interstate Commerce Commission had granted an increase of fifteen per cent. on the freight rates for coal carried by the railroads and that as soon as this went into effec tit would probably be added to the price charged consumers. Accordingly, the much heralded drop in the price of cocal to householders will only be about seven and a half cents per ton.

Ice Dealer Tells Why "Zone" System Had To Be Adopted

Announcemcnt by the local ice dealers that the "zoning" system was to be adopted in making deliveries because of the labor shortage, as set forth in the advertising columns of the Record today, led to an investigation on the part of a reporter which showed the situation to be really deplorable. The dealers have been put to their wits' end to get sufficient help for wagon deliveries and even worse conditions will occur shortly. All the managers of the Plainfield companies told the same story about the need of men and one of them gave the following detailed explanation of why "zoning" had to be adopted:

"One-half of our men are now in the army or will be on April 3d. Where will I get men to replace them?' That is the question that is keeping us awake nights. Men are needed in the factories are needed in the army. We need them badly in our coal departments, and in fact, everywhere the cry is for men. We ice dealers are going to do our little bit this year in conserving men. We are sacrificing customers which it took us years of hard work to get and will have to take our chance on getting them back again when times are again normal. You want to know why we worked out this plan.

"Well, it was our only salvation. We knew full well we couldn't get clough men to cover all our routes so we proportioned the districts of the town in proportion to the equipment and men now available in each company. If one company finds that they cannot secure enough men to take care of their allotment of territory, the other companies are duty bound to help them out until they can again take up their allotments. In other words, we do not feel at all certain that the districts we have given each company will hold good all through the season, we will make adjustments from time to time as necessity may require us to do so. Our ob object will be to serve the people of Plainfield with ice regardless of what company makes the delivery.

"We feel confident that the public will realize we are working for their best interests, as well as our own and will heartily co-operate with us to help us pull through the coming season. Ice, we hope, will not advance much over last year. Our company will charge 60 cents per 100 lbs. on April 1. After that it all depends on what the conditions will be but we feel fairly confident that no other increase will be necessary."

SPICER COMPANY STOPS FLOUR SALES TO EMPLOYES

Owing to the rule of Food Dictator Hoover that where flour is purchased an equivalent amount of cereal must be bought, the Spicer Company, of South Plainfield, has discontinued the sale of flour in bag and barrel lots to its employes. The last deliveries were made on Saturday.

The Spicer concern, following the example of other industrial companies, purchased flour in carload lots to secure a lower price than that charged by retailers and dlwoed of the consignments to men in the shop. As the last shipments were on the way when the cereal equivalent went into effect, the Food Commissioners allowed it to be distributed without enforcing the equivalent rule.

Aid Of All Citizens Asked In Giving Farewell To Selectives

Forty-two more Plainfield selectives, scheduled to start for Camp Dix next Wednesday morning, will be given a rousing send-off, according to plans now being completed by the Citizens' Committee, of which John J. Varley is chairman. There is a possibility that the formal exercises might begin next Tuesday night with an open meeting for the new recruits, their relatives and friends, during which addresses will be made by officials and others. A meeting of the committee will be held tomorrow night to make this final.

Wednesday morning the selectives will assemble at Exemption Headquarters in the Babcock building, where they will receive Red Cross kits and be presented with a most appropriate and useful souvenir as a memento from the citizens of Plainfield. After this they will march to the North avenue station, headed by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps and escorted by the Plainfield Home Defense League. The expense of the drum corps has been generously donated by the Business Men's Association, which is also directing the members to display flags and bunting in front of their respective stores. The committee makes the request that everyone, whether on the line of march or not, make a special effort to exhibit their enthusiasm by decorating either business house or residence.

The citizens' committee is rapidly getting down to business and is at present making efforts to secure sufficient funds for farewell demonstrations in the future. The response so far has been quite generous. At the committee's organization meeting Mr. Varley, who had been acting as chairman of a committee appointed by the Knights of Columbus, was made permanent chairman of the civic body; William R. Causbrook was made secretary, and William R. Townsend, treasurer. Following contribution of the drum corps was accented from the merchants with thanks but on the next succeeding occasion it is probable that a band will furnish the music, thus giving all the musical organizations in the city an opportunity to be included in the procession. Later on other, forms of patriotic display and demonstration in behalf of the boys will be announced, the elaborateness depending upon the generosity of the contributors.

The following has already handed donations to Treasurer Townsend:

Eastman Dremonger, Clarence Thorn, Charles H. Frost, William R. Townsend, Joseph B. Yerkes, Walter Manning, Roger F. Murray, Andrew J. Gavett, Arthur E. Crone, Jacob Fass, George P. Mellick, W. B. Davis, T. O. Deane, J. B. Van Anonmoon, H. E. Butler, W. L. Lockwood, Sherman B. Joost, the Rev. H. Cowley-Carroll, J. D. Phillips, J. D. Lobzeaux Lumber Company, John J. Carroll, H. E. White, J. T. Vail, Frank J. Hubbard, Christian Gloekner, Mrs. Fred Bakker and the Misses Ruth and Frederica Bakker, J. J. Varley, Geo. R. Hall, Florence H. Bowman, Schwed Brothers, Mayor Calkins, Marion S. Ackerman, H. B. Newhall, Jr., Henry Liefke, Mrs. Lewis H. Miller, Thos. McNeil and Rev. C. M. Anderson.

A call receives from Adjutant-General Gilkyson last week ordered the local board to select seventeen Ulaln field registrants for transportation to Kelly Field, Texas, within a few days. A later dispatch was received cutting this number down to five with the request that only patternmakers or cabinetmakers be sent. The five left on the 11:01 westbound train this morning, proceeding first to Harrisburg, Pa., at which point they will be provided with Pullman sleeping accommodations on a special train. The route traversed will then be over the Pennsylvania road to St. Louis, thence to Kansas City and Texas. The five men are Samuel Dorman, 611 Clinton avenue; Frederick E. Wenzell, 22 Clinton Avenue; Charles A. Long, 346 East Third street; Alexander D. Doig, 22 Morton street, and Kenneth L. McClough, 606 Madison avenue. They will arrive at Kelly Field Monday morning and will immediately be put to work in the aviation supply base. The men were presented with their Red Cross kits and committee souvenirs this morning. There was no formal demonstration because of the small number in the contingent.

The forty-two registrants from the Plainfield district who are to leave for Camp Dix next Monday morning, departing from the North avenue station on the 9:38 train, are the following:

Tomasso, Ciorra
Henry R. Hall
Alfred T. Slauson

Postmaster Will Tell Business Men About Mail Matters

At the suggestion of Government officials, Postmaster A .E. Hoagland will appear before the Business Men's Association at a meeting and "house warming" to be held in the association's new rooms in the Babcock building on Thursday night, April 4, for the purpose of explaining reasons why mail facilities have been subject to delays and inconveniences during the past six months. Postoffices, like everything else in these days of abnormal conditions, have had their troubles and are still laboring under them but emergency measures are being adopted to make a betterment. The Postmaster General has asked that the leading civic bodies of each city and town be made acquainted with all the details of the department and the Business Men's Association has been selected to receive the local explanation.

The affair next Thursday night will be an auspicious occasion as the business men have planned to celebrate taking possession of their new quarters in Room 31 in the Babcock building. After a regular business session, a banquet will be served in the Masonic banquet hall by Caterer Robert Abnard. Beside Postmaster Hoagland, the after-dinner speakers will be Mayor Leichton Calkins, Mayor William L. Smalley and J. D. Coleman. It is probable that from 100 to 200 representative business men and citizens will be in attendance.

Advance In Position For William V. Kennett

Recognizing the value of "young blood," the officials of the Wood Printing Machinery Company have made William B. Kennett, of East Fifth street, production superintendent of the concern's plant on South Second street, better known locally as the "Potter Shop." Mr. Kennett learned his trade of machinist with the Potter concern, afterward furthering his knowledge of machinery by working in other factories in this city, Newark, Elizabeth and New Brunswick. He is well known locally as "third-class" but despite his youthfulness demonstrated that he is capable of holding the responsible position accorded him by the Wood Company.

Mr. Kennett will be next in importance in the shop staff to Otto Meyer, works manager with his general supervision of the entire factory. Mr. Moor is now convalescent after a serious illness but hopes to return to the plant next week.

LOERCH STILL ON THE JOB.

Patrolman George Loerch continues to do good work specializing in various parts of the city by bringing violators into court each day. This morning he pressed the usual charge against M. Peebles, of Raritan, and A. L. Wright, of this city, both of whom were taken in custody yesterday. Each one was fined $10 by Judge DeMeza.

PARENTS OF A SON.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Mottley, of Fairview avenue, are the proud parents of a ten-pound boy who came to their home Wednesday morning. Previous to her marriage, Mrs. Mottley was Miss Mary L. Carney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carney, of Lincoln place, the borough. Mr. Mottley is employed in the cable department of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York.

Coal Dealer Sells Carload Without Order

Says What He Did Is "Nobody's Business"

Alleging that Robert Cline, the West Third street coal dealer, had disposed of an entire car of buckwheat coal without receiving orders from Commissioner John J. Kenney, H. W. Marshall, proprietor of Marshall's Laundry on Watchung avenue, went to Newark this afternoon for the purpose of making complaint before State Fuel Commissioner Richard C. Jenkinson.

Mr. Marshall declares that he and other men using steam power at their plants needed buckwheat coal and on being informed that Cline had received a car of buckwheat, the kind they wanted, asked for an order on his yard. The dealer declared on application that he had no buckwheat coal despite the fact that the commissioner's office showed a car had been delivered to him. Mr. Marshall made a personal investigation and found that the entire consignment had been sold to one person. As an action of this kind is a violation of the Federal rules, Mr. Marshall went direct to Newark to make his complaint.

As a result of the lack of buckwheat coal, Mr. Marshall's laundry had to be closed down this afternoon, thus holding back a lot of work that should be finished by tomorrow morning.

This is what Mr. Cline told a Record reporter when asked about Mr. Marshall's assertion:

"Yes, sir. I received a carload of coal and I sold it without an order from the commissioner's office. Who the purchaser was is nobody's business and the best thing for you to do about that carload of coal is to forget it."

Mobilization Call For Enlisted Nurses

Activities in the American sector of the French war zone have resulted in numerous calls for organized Red Cross nursing units to begin mobilization previous to embarking for the trans-Atlantic trip. Among them is the Jefferson Hospital unit, of Philadelphia, which includes thereo local young women, graduates of the Muhlenberg Hospital School.

These young women are Miss Ethel E. Humphrey, of Park avenue, chief nurse of the Visiting Nurses' Association; Miss Helen Wilbe, also of Park avenue, and Miss Eleanor Schenck, of South Plains, another member of the Visiting Nurses' Association, who has been in charge of the health department of the Somerset School in the borough. All three *received telegrams yesterday instruct*ing them to prepare for a summons to Philadelphia at any moment. The unit is to consist of 100 nurses, 100 nurses and possibly 100 orderlies, all recruited from Pennsylvania and New Jersey. After mobilizing at Philadelphia, the party will proceed to New York for complete equipment previous to going on board ship. According to the plan of the present time the Jefferson unit will take charge of a fully equipped base hospital which awaits their coming.

Miss Humphrey and Miss Schenck have already resigned their positions with the Visiting Nurses' Association. The former graduated from Muhlenberg Hospital in 1909 and the latter in 1915. Miss Wilbee was graduated from the same school in 1910 and has since been doing private nursing in this city and Philadelphia.

FINED FOR DRUNKENNESS.

In the city court this morning, Mrs. Frederick Ryerott, William Butcher, Lewis Johnson and George Warner were arraigned on a charge of drunkenness preferred by Officers Kelly and Nolan. The Ryerott woman was fined $10 or forty days in jail and sentence was suspended on the men.

Non-Union Work Rushing City Hall To Completion

Force Of Twenty-five Plasterers, Steam-fitters, Lathers And Cornice-makers Now Engaged -- Dahl Says Building Will Be Finished In Four Months

Work at the City Hall received a decided push forward this week by the introduction of "imported" workmen to the number of twenty-five. They were secured from out of town and so far as can be learned hold no union cards. The force includes plasterers, wire lathers and cornice men and steam-fitters, all of whom are necessary to complete certain work in preparation for the large amount of interior carpenter work remaining to be done.

Superintendent John Dahl, who resigned his seat in the Common Council to take charge of the City Hall work, was directing the workmen in the building when a Record reporter called this morning. He stated that some of the force had union cards but verification was lacking. He added that plans were now complete for rushing the hall to completion and that he expected it to be ready for the opening reception in about four months. Most of the work yet remaining must be done by carpenters and these will possibly be brought from out of town as the union men of this city have refused to work on the job.

The introduction of the force now at work has caused another labor union difficulty that is to come to a head within a week. This is action on the part of the Master Builders' Association, of which Superintendent Dahl is a member. The latter's acceptance of non-union workmen has not only made himself liable to a hearing on charges but also conflicts the work of independent contractors on the job, two of whom are connected with the Master Builders' Association. They are Dea. J. Dalbraith, who is doing the plumbing work and Charles L. Ryder, Jr., of the firm of Ryder & Graves, which holds the electrical contract.

It will be impossible for these contractors to go ahead with their work since the building has been declared unfair, making it necessary for the Common Council to abrogate their contracts and finish the work by whatever means possible. A third contracting firm, Miller & Brady, of New York, who have been doing the steam-fitting will also be affected by the introduction of non-union workmen, aside from those doing plastering work.

The Building Trades Council has taken no action during the past two weeks as it previously declared the City Hall an "unfair" job. This means that no member of the allied unions can accept employment at the building. Several weeks ago, when Superintendent Dahl appeared before the Trades Council, he stated that he had received no orders to place non-union men at work and so far as he was concerned he would object to any such procedure. He also made a statement to this effect to a Record reporter.

Plainfield Soldier Dies At Camp Dix

The first death from natural causes to occur among the 500 or more Plainfield young men in Uncle Sam's service took place at Camp Dix yesterday, when Patrick Hugh Breen, son of Patrick Breen, of Muhlenberg place, passed away in the reservation hospital. He went out on February 25 with the last big contingent of sixty-eight men sent by the local board and soon after being placed in the customary quarantine because of the usual measles, developed complications. He was immediately placed in the hospital but continued to grow worse. For the past week or more, it was realized that his condition was hopeless.

The body will be brought to Plainfield today and the funeral will be held at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Andrew Ryan, of Muhlenberg place, probably on Monday morning, and later in St. Mary's church. Burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Breen was twenty-two years old and previous to entering the service was employed at the Somerset shops. Beside his father and aunt, he leaves one sister, Miss Alicia Breen.

CHARLES CURRAN PROMOTED.

Charles Curran, of Arlington avenue, who has been acting as foreman of the mail department at the Communipaw terminal of the Jersey Central, has been promoted to night foreman of the same department. The change carries an increase in salary and added responsibilities because of the great volume of newspapers handled early in the morning. Mr. Curran has been with the Central for the past two years and his selection as night foreman was a reward for meritorious service.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

A general invitation is extended all interested to attend a card party and dance to be given in the Emerson School, Friday night, April 5, for the benefit of the East End auxiliary to the Plainfield Chapter of the Red Cross. Van Eps brothers' orchestra will furnish music for the occasion. A large attendance is desired as the East End auxiliary is desirous of securing sufficient funds to further the good work it is doing in that section of the city.

A union musical service will be held by the congregations of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church and the Congregational church in the former edifice Sunday afternoon beginning at 3:45. The service will open with a fifteen-minute organ recital by Dr. H. Mortimer Davis during which he will render a number of Spring songs from various composers. In the service proper there will be selections from Gounod's "Redemption." The quartets from the two choirs will sing, "Still, Still With Thee," and there will be tenor and soprano solos as well as chorus work.

In the city police court, Wednesday morning, fines of $3 each were imposed upon the following, arraigned on a charge of speeding their automobiles on South avenue: Matthew VanOsterbridge, W. R. Paterson, F. Kaiser and Israel Fox, both of Newark, and Eard Tompkins, of this city. The arrests were made by Officer Loersch. In court the same day, a fine of $5 was imposed on Jacob Knapp, of East Second street, who started a fire in his yard to burn up some papers Sunday morning, and started a blaze which resulted in a call for the fire department. Knapp "passed" Chief Jennings when the latter sought an explanation for Knapp's conduct and the Fire Chief made the complaint after the defendant had refused to apologize.

Members of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society and its auxiliary organization, St. Mary's Social Club, will attend the 7:30 mass in St. Mary's church next Sunday morning for the purpose of receiving Holy Communion in a body. The members of the two societies are requested to meet in T. A. B. Hall at 7:15 sharp, proceeding from this point to the church.

The local police report two automobiles accidents as having occurred during the past week. The first took place on Watchung avenue, near Fourth street, Tuesday afternoon at 5:30, when a Netherwood trolley car in charge of Conductor Nevins bumped into an automobile belonging to Thomas Morford and driven by Stewart Dickinson. No one was hurt but the automobile was quite badly damaged. The other accident occured at Fourth and Liberty streets Wednesday, and concerned automobiles owned by Leo Slonim and Mrs. J. B. Heller, the latter of Putnam avenue. The two machines crashed together and both will have to undergo repairs. None of the occupants were hurt.

At a meeting of the Joint Sewer Commission, Tuesday night, C. R. Simpson, of New York, was awarded the contract for the improvements at the Joint Sewage Disposal plant at Greenbrook. His figure was $30,386. The original estimate of the work that seems to be needed was about $35,000. C. J. Hendlee, State entomologist, attended the meeting and told of the efforts that are being made by his department to eliminate the fly nuisance at the disposal plant as complained of by residents nearby. Councilman Sminck, of this city, and Councilman Runyon, of Dunellen, were made members of the auditing committee to succeed Councilmen Booth and Craig, retired.

The Misses Dorothy Manning, Marguerite Rice, Mary Hunt, W. Eaton, Grace Pond and Margaret Stout, who are active in Red Cross work, passed a rigid examination in first aid, conducted at Red Cross headquarters. Margaret Stout and Mary Hunt showed great skill in this work and are going to continue the study. The girls who passed the examination will be called upon, in case of need, to help take care of our boys who are wounded and sick.

Emil J. Hoos, of Greenbrook road, the borough clerk of the Plainfield Exemption Board, is among the registrants who expect soon to enter the military service. He filed a claim with the division board at Newark that he was engaged in Government work. He was notified this week that he had been put in Class 1. His brother, Armin Hoos, is now with the army in France.

The Newark Paving Company, which has the contract to install the trolley double tracking at Fourth street and Watchung avenue, has completed the installation of rails and switches and Wednesday began placing the concrete foundation for the new brick paving. It will be another month, however, before the two thoroughfares are opened for traffic. The new paving on Park avenue, which was left undone between Fourth and Fifth streets, will be started during the coming week.

At the annual meeting of the Plainfield Federation of Women's Missionary Societies, in the parlors of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Monday, these officers were elected: President, Mrs. Charles R. Banks; vice president, Mrs. A. B. Meredith; second vice president, Mrs. D. W. Sheilenger; third vice president, Mrs. W. E. Honeyman; fourth vice president, Mrs. George N. Karner; secretary, Miss Dorothy T. Hubbard; assistant secretary, Miss Barlow, and treasurer, Mrs. H. V. Hubbard.

St. Mary's T. A. B. Society will conduct a "military" dance in T. A. B. Hall, West Fourth street, next Monday night. It is to be in honor of Plainfield boys home from Camp Dix and other places for the Easter furlough, many of whom have promised to be in attendance. There will also be a big delegation of members from the Elizabeth T. A. B. Society, together with their girl friends. Eddie Marks' Jazz orchestra will furnish music. Daniel Guinee is chairman of the committee of arrangements. As this is the first social event the "Tabs" have planned for the post-Lenten season, preparations are being made to entertain an unusually large crowd.

The Union Building and Loan Association elected these officers at its meeting Monday night: President, Henry Liefke; vice president, William A. Woodruff; treasurer, W. R. Codington; secretary, B. Frank Corfell; auditing committee, Clarence B. Vail, Clarence Brouard and William McDowell Coriell; board of directors, Henry Liefke, W. R. Codington, Herman Schwed, Louis Klein, Charles M. Bolliver, Eugene M. Laing, James P. Homan, W. A. Woodruff, Joseph C. Blimm, Peter J. McDonough, B. Frank Coriell and George J. Finger. The yearly financial statement showed the company to have a cash balance on March 1 of $12,796.36. It was reported that the thirteenth series had terminated last August and a total of $43,000 was paid to 272 shareholders. A new series was opened after Monday night's meeting.

The law firm of Swackhamer & Bird, of this city, has been engaged by Cramer and William Townley of Elizabeth, this week and held in $500 bail for action by the Grand Jury.

The Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield has taken the initiative in supplying wool to inmates of Bonnie Burn Sanatorium, the Union county institution for tuberculosis patients, so that many of them can knit for the army and navy. It is repored that thirty-two children are now encaged in knitting, besides some of the older persons. Efforts will be made to gain the co-operation of various societies in the county in supplying wool.

At the regular meeting of Plainfield Lodge, No. 210, Loyal Order of Moose, next Monday night, the district deputy will install the following recently elected officers: Dictator, James T. McCarty; vice dictator, James Cassidy; prelate, Edward Nye; trustee, three years, Charles Pagliuca; treasurer, Andrew Bozack; secretary, Charles L. Kling. The other officers, appointive, will be announced at the next meeting. Michael J. Whelan will fill the unexpired term of Dictator McCarthy as trustee. At the meeting next Monday night, Past Dictator George Ecel will be in charge and the installation ceremonies will be followed by a social period.

Childrens' Ward At Bonnie Burn Ready May 1

Contractors engaged for nearly a year past in the erection of the children's building at the Bonnie Burn sanatorium have given assurance that the structure will be ready for occupancy by May 1, and preparations for determining what children will be first to get the benefit of the treatment are to be started immediately.

Dr. Jacob Reiner, school physician employed by the Board of Education, will begin examining this week all those children in the Elizabeth schools having indications of tuberculosis, and immediately after the number of suspicious cases in that city has been determined those in the remainder of the county will be located. Accommodations for only 100 children have been provided for in the new structure and even before any examinations are made it is certain that there will not be sufficient room for all.

Dr. John E. Runnells, superintendent of the sanatorium, conducted an examination at the Winfield Scott School, Elizabeth, recently and reported that of those that came under his attention he discovered forty who were in need of treatment.

Every facility for the comfort of those who are sent to the sanatorium has been provided. Trained nurses who are also qualified as teachers will be placed in charge so that the school work may go on unhindered. As fast as a child is cured its place will be taken by another.

Local Tinge In Chance Meeting At French Front

Another instance of how very, very small the great war has made this world is told of in a letter received by Mrs. Charles Curran, of 945 Arlington avenue, from her brother, Peter Rogers, a young Irish lad who has been on the French front since 1914. Hurrying toward "No Man's Land" for an "Over the Top" strike at the German forces, he encountered an American company of engineers. In that brief, tense moment the young veteran from Erin discovered a Sammy from Plainfield, his sister's abiding place in America. There was the usual exchange of questions and answers but, naturally enough, because of the impending charge, Rogers was nervous and forgot the name of the New Jersey youth who came from the same town in which his relative lived.

So far as knows, the Plainfield boys who are in the engineering divisions near the front lines include David Clarin, Frank Webster and Kenneth Phillips. It is just possible that it might be one of the three with whom he came in contact. William E. Maguire, former foreman on the City Hall job, was also with the engineering force in action but is now in a hospital having been wounded at Cambrai.

Rogers enlisted in the British Cavalry soon after war was declared in August, 1914. He was sent to France after a few weeks' training and although he has been "Over the Top" and through scores of aerial raids, bombardments and the other dangers of the trenches, he is still among the able-bodied fighting men giving him a record that few have obtained. This is the letter which the young man wrote his sister, the typical Irish phrases being noticed in its composition:

Somewhere in France,
February 18, 1918.

My Dear Sister:

Just a few lines in answer to your very welcome letter. I think, by the way, our letters crossed as I have written to you not long ago. Well, I am very glad to hear you and yours are getting on so well; it is hardly believable that I have got nieces who are able to write to me. They must be great girls. I suppose you are very proud of them. I hope I will see them sometime, though I do give us no hope now and then when we get into a tight corner, but somehow I manage to pull through, although it do be by the skin of my teeth. I have some one's prayers, thanks to God.

We are having the worse time now for a while but we have to take the rough with the smooth.

We had an awful experience the other night; got blown up with a bomb from an aeroplane, but thank God, our casualties were slight. It was one of the worst experiences I have had but I am still here I am happy to say. That is all that matters. We are still ready to strike another "terrer" into Fritts and when he starts "straffing" good old Ireland we won't be beaten by him.

By the way I met one of your chaps the other day. I had a bit of a conversation with him; he is working on the railway near where we were. He knows all about Plainfield and told me his name but I have forgotten it as we were going on a bit of a straff at the time and were all a bit excited. I did not see him again for we did not go back that way. They gave us a great cheer when we were going "over the top." I shall never forget it. We got on very well with all we meet. Our lads, especially the Irish, like the Sammies. That is what we call them.

It was very sad about that transport getting sunk, but it is one of the things we have to put up with in war. Victory one day reverses the next but as long as we win the last one, what matters.

The weather is lovely as I am writing this and the sun is shining brightly. You ought to send me the address of your friends as they come out here. I might be able to see them sometimes, but there are not many on our front except the engineers.

With love to all, from your Affectionate Brother,
PETER.

Crack Reading Train Put Back On Central

The "Congressional Limited," one of official Washington's favorite trains between Washington and New York, over the New Jersey Central and P. and R., was restored to service last Sunday.

Increased demands for afternoon railway accommodations between the two cities was responsible for the order. The train consists of ten parlor cars, and the trip costs $2.75 more than by the common "garden variety" trains. This will be made up of $1.50 extra fare and $1.25 Pullman charge.

The train leaves Washington at 4 p. m., arriving at New York at 9:15. Leaving New York at 3:07, it arrives at Washington at 3:45. The limited, before being discontinued early this year, made the trip in five hours flat.

OBITUARY

Personal Mention of Plainfielders and Others Who Have Heeded the Summons of Death During the Past Week.

WILLIAM RIEHLE COCK.

Grace Protestant Episcopal church was thronged with a large assemblage of friends Tuesday afternoon, when funeral services were conducted over the body of William Riehle Cock, a revered resident of Plainfield, who passed away at his home on East Fifth street last Saturday morning. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson was in charge of the ceremony, those of Episcopalian simplicity but nevertheless deeply impressing.

Mr. Cock had been a devoted member of the parish the greater part of his life and a portion of the obsequies were devoted to selections by the church choir in which he had long served as a singer. The numbers rendered included many of his favorite pieces, notably "Jesus Lives," "The Strife Is O'er" and "Ten Thousand Times." S. Frederick Smith presided at the organ and also rendered passages from a number of the deceased's cherished compositions, notably "Allegro Gracioso," "Tours, and "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth."

The floral tributes were very numerous and came from business and social friends alike. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the honorary pall-bearers being Dr. George W. Endicott, Howard Fleming, W. T. Gough, D. C. Ivans, George H. Goddard, John M. Whiton, C. T. Warling, all of this city, and Wilbur Brown, of New York.

Mr. Cock had been a resident of Plainfield more than forty-five years, coming here from New York city. He was a native of Philadelphia, where he was born on January 8, 1841, but when only a small boy his parents removed to the metropolis. The greater portion of his business life was in connection with the firm of Riehle Brothers, of New York, manufacturers of testing engines. Impaired health caused him to give up work a few years ago.

When Mr. Cock first "cast his lot" in Plainfield, he became active in social and civic affairs. At that time the city was without a hospital and he was the leading spirit in a movement to secure such an institution for this community. He continued his energies without cessation until old Muhlenberg Hospital at West Third street and Muhlenberg place became a reality in 1883. He was one of the original board of governors and remained in this capacity up to the time of his death. He visited the old and new institutions at regular intervals, never seeming to tire of any effort in behalf of the institution or its patients. No hospital graduation of nurses or function pertaining to the institution and its work was complete without his presence. To many it seemed as though the success of Muhlenberg was his only thought in life and the executive staff and patients benefitted accordingly.

Affiliating himself with Grace church, when he came to Plainfield, Mr. Cock also did a great deal of work in behalf of this congregation. It was as a member of the choir quartet that he established a most commendable record. Joining this body of singers first in 1871, he continued to sing with it up to the time his last illness began. There was one period of twenty-five years during which he missed a Sunday service only two times. When he first became a communicant of Grace church the congregation worshipped in a small structure at East Front and Church streets. Later a new church was erected at Sixth and Sycamore streets and lastly, the present handsome edifice at Seventh and Sycamore streets became the worshipping place. Mr. Cock served as a member of various parish boards and saw the number of members grow from what might be termed a "handful" to the present roster of many hundreds of names.

There were a lot of likeable ways about Mr. Cock that attracted people to him and once they became numbered among his friends they always retained the enviable position. He was at all times genial and democratic, never tiring of giving of his time and talent for some one else and asking no recompense beyond a display of appreciation. His sister, the late Miss Elizabeth Cock, who had been his co-worker in hospital and church work, and who was devoted to him, died a few years ago. Her death was a great blow as it broke up a companionship that was even more steadfast than that of devoted husband and wife.

Mr. Cock's only near surviving relatives are a niece, Miss Marguerite Valentine, of New York, and a cousin living in Chicago.

HENRY G. ADAMS.

Henry G. Adams, a well-known resident of Plainfield for many years, died Tuesday night in Muhlenberg Hospital following an illness of nearly four years from complicated troubles. His condition had been such that he was able to be about his home at 116 Church street until a week before the end, at which time he was removed to the institution for medical treatment. The funeral will be held at the Friends' meeting-house on Watchung avenue tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 and burial will be in the Friends' cemetery adjoining the house of worship.

Mr. Adams was born in New England sixty-eight years ago, but came to Plainfield when a young man. He followed the occupation of salesman, working at various times for Millard & Company, of New York, chocolate manufacturers; the H. J. Heinz Condiment Company, and lastly the Hotchkiss Brothers' Lumber Company, of Torrington, Conn., with whom he was connected when his fatal illness began. Mr. Adams was active in the Society of Friends here and also at the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. His wife died some time ago and his only surviving relatives are a brother, James C. Adams, of Newark, and two sisters, Mrs. William Cannon and Mrs. John D. Sherman, of Indianapolis.

WILLIAM JOSEPH EMMONS.

William Joseph Emmons, the fifteen months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Emmons, of Fritz place, North Plainfield, died yesterday morning. A private funeral service will be held at the parents' home tomorrow afternoon and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

OBIT. ..... Umbc. ....

WILLIAM HEPBURN CLARK.

The funeral of William Hepburn Clark, an old and widely-known resident of Plainfield, whose death occurred at his home on East Ninth street, Monday morning, was held at the family residence, Wednesday morning. Rev H. St. George Burrill, of Holy Cross church, conducted the formal Episcopal service. On Tuesday evening the Masonic ceremonial was observed at the home by members of Anchor Lodge, No. 149, F. and A. M. Burial was made Wednesday morning in Woodlawn cemetery, New York.

Mr. Clark was born in Brooklyn on September 2, 1841, thus making him seventy-seven years old at the time of his demise. He was the son of the late John Hepburn Clark and Lavinia C. Gamble. After completing his education, he entered a New York banking house and later was employed in the big financial institution established by Henry Clews, one of New York's pioneer and most successful bankers. Leaving the Clews concern, Mr. Clark associated himself with the Charles Pratt Company, refiners of the widely advertised "Pratt's Astral Oil," of other days. This company was afterwards absorbed by the Standard Oil Company and the Plainfield man remained with the latter until his retirement from active business a few years ago. Mr. Clark possessed a wide knowledge of the oil industry and originated many of the methods that were used by the Pratt and Standard companies in furthering their sales.

At the age of twenty-eight years, Mr. Clark removed to Dunellen, making his home there until 1890. He then removed back to New York, but in 1900 again decided that suburban life was the best after all and selected Plainfield as a residential place. He remained here from that time until his death, living on East Ninth street most of the time.

Mr. Clark's original affiliation with the Masonic order was as a member of Astor Lodge, No. 602, of New York, but on making his home here transferred his card to Anchor Lodge. He had no other fraternal affiliations with the exception of membership in the Masonic Club of New York.

The deceased was twice married his second wife, who survives him, having been Miss Irene May Koplin, daughter of the late Rev. A. B. Koplin, of Hellertown, Pa. He also leaves a son, Charles Trafton Clark, of Yonkers, N. Y., and two daughters, Miss Elizabeth Trafton Clark, of this city, and Mrs. Daniel V. Bush, of Scarsen, and a grandson, William Hepburn Clark, 2nd, of Yonkers.

MRS. MARY MALLINSON.

Many friends from this city were in attendance last Sunday afternoon, when the funeral of Mrs. Mary Mallinson, widow of Alex Mallinson, was held at the home of her son, Lawrence Mallinson, of 55 Warner avenue, Jersey City. The deceased was a widely-known resident of Plainfield for many years but in 1912 left here to make her home with her sister, Miss E. Viola Lawrence, of Monrovia, Cal. She came East the past winter to visit her son in Jersey City, and was at his home when death occurred.

The funeral service was conducted by a Jersey City pastor and was largely attended as the deceased had a wide acquaintance in Westfield and other places as well as in Plainfield. The body was brought to this city Monday afternoon for burial in the family plot in Hillside cemetery, where her husband was interred seven years ago.

Mrs. Mallinson was sixty-three years old and lived in Plainfield the greater part of her life. The family home for a long time was at the southwest corner of Watchung avenue and East Second street, now the site of the business building erected by Charles H. Hand. Mr. Mallinson was in the drug business, conducting pharmacies on North avenue at North and Watchung avenues and at Fourth and Liberty streets. After his death, Mrs. Mallinson sold the pharmacy at Fourth and Liberty streets to Samuel Reuben and her son, Lawrence, opened a pharmacy on West Fourth street, directly next Hope chapel. This she disposed of after a few months and opened a new place on East Second street, between Netherwood and Leland avenues. This she also gave up in a short time and then went to California.

Beside her son, Lawrence, who is now a prescription clerk in a Jersey City pharmacy, Mrs. Mallinson leaves one brother, Eldemore Lawrence, of Westfield. The deceased was a member of the First M. E. church. This afternoon's services will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Frederick Lynch, pastor of the Park Congregational church, New York City, of which she was a member. Interment will be in Fairview cemetery, Westfield.

THE CITY HALL AND NON-UNION LABOR.

Perhaps the City Hall building committee and Superintendent of Construction John Dahl fully considered the step they took in placing non-union men at work on the uncompleted municipal structure which has been a thorn in the side of the administration for half a year. If not they should have as the effect is to be farther reaching than casual consideration might reveal.

No one doubts but what the half-finished state of the Hall has been an expense upon the taxpayers and that every man, official and otherwise, will be glad to see the building completed. Numerous methods were tried but each one in turn has met with failure. Early in the program of trouble, the Plainfield Trades Council stated its position in the situation. Mayor Calkins, Corporation Counsel Reel and others were informed that this organization was not in sympathy with a strike declared by the International Masons and Plasterers' Union. The executive staff of the Council gave its word that it would do nothing to hinder any plan tending to give the citizens the much-desired municipal home. So far as can be learned they maintain that promise and only issued the unfair notice to its members when it was found that non-union workmen were employed on the building. There is no denying now that the strike is general and will continue so while the present method of completion is carried on. The Trades Council is a power in itself and once it opposes a proposition there is no foreseeing the ultimate result.

It may be that non-union labor may complete the building and again it may not. That is a matter which remains to be seen. In making this move, the commissioners must have figured out their course and are sticking to it. They know better than the citizens in general or the Trades Council in particular what it has in mind; but at this particular period success it far from being visible. The counter-acting results have not shown themselves and instead of cutting the Gordian knot it may be that the deplorable tangle is only being tightened up.

In commenting thusly, the natural question to be asked by the commissioners would be: "What do you expect us to do and what is your solution?" We can only say in reply that it is a difficult proposition and one not to be undertaken unless all the facts are in hand. The way to have gotten these facts was to have taken the original controversy produced by the Monahan Stone Company into the courts and there let the judiciary decide whether or not the city had been in fault in making certain payments to the P. F. Kenny Company. That has been a bone of contention all along and if it was decided early in the struggle perhaps Plainfield may have been saved the odium of a "scab" municipal building.

A FUTURE GREELEY
DICUSSES TIMELY TOPIC.

Ont at the Plainfield High School they have a young man who has all the qualifications of a newspaper editor. He possesses that rare instinct called perception and knows how to tell about what he perceives. The young man, whose name is Irving Hand, is a member of the High School Oracle editorial board. In the last number of this very excellent publication, Mr. Hand contributed an article that is too good to be kept among the student body. It concerned a subject that has long been a topic for conversation within official circles as well as off-hand remark among men in the street. It is that of a public park, not a misnomer like the grabbed-up plot bounded by Eighth and Ninth streets, College place and Arlington avenue, but a real, broad breathing spot that can be enjoyed by the people from every part of the city. We do not know Mr. Hand but we extend our congratulations on the "punch" he puts into his article and urge him to write more of the same kind in the school periodical. That's the kind of local matter that will help himself and his colleagues as they prepare for their struggle in the outer world.

This is Mr. Hand's editorial as it appeared under the caption of "Has Plainfield a Park?"

"When people go out walking one of the things that usually attract their attention is a park. There is no large city without four or five parks, and there should be no average sized city without one park. Now Plainfield is an average sized city. Have we a park in proportion to the size of the place, or have we just a grass plot? All we have is an open block with six or seven paths which are used for short cuts, two or three benches, and a couple of trees. Neither is the park looked after very well. Once flowers were planted there, but they have disappeared. Some of the residents of this town have grounds which do more justice to Plainfield than our park. People want a place where they have scenery, flowers, and quiet. They want a place where they can sit and look at something worth while, not a couple of blades of grass and worn out paths. Does our park come up to these conditions?

"Westfield, our neighboring town, which has a smaller population, has a park four times the size of ours, not a lunch garden for the high school. There is a lake in their park where people can go rowing in summer and skating in winter. In every real city, a place to skate is usually provided, no admission is ever charged, danger signs are posted, and the upkeep of the place is provided for by the city. Would this city have to worry if someone were drowned in a pond in Plainfield? Has the city ever provided for a place of this kind? In the park at Westfield there are automobile roads, benches, and real walks. The ground is raised in many places, and flowers, stone steps, and shrubbery, make it a very attractive place.

"There are plenty of places in Plainfield to make into parks, but if the city doesn't do something pretty quickly, they will lose their chance. What about the open fields on Park avenue opposite the Muhlenberg Hospital? They have a fine location and would make one of the quietest and most attractive places in Plainfield. The ground could be raised in parts so as to make artificial hills, and roadways could be made that would give the motorist at least one place to visit. The people of Plainfield need a place to go. A place to go for a Sunday walk, a place where the nurse can take the children, and a place for those who can't travel to New York or go very far away on account of ill health. Where can they go? They must do as they always have done, sit around the house until Plainfield wakes up.

As Plainfield increases in population, there will have to be a place for outside recreation. What has the city really done for Plainfield? Has Plainfield been provided with a playground, an athletic field, or a park, a place to skate, or free drinking fountains, by the city? Here is a chance for the city to do a worthy cause, something worth the money. Outside recreation is necessary, and it will never be furnished by the park we have now. One failing often makes others."

AGONY INFLICTED BY NEEDLESS CENSORSHIP.

Plainfield has had an example during the past week of how obnoxious and really cruel is the war department's order refusing newspapers the addresses of Americans killed on the French front. The list of casualties given out Monday contain the name of a young man doing duty overseas whose home is in this city. As no town or kin was mentioned it was natural for his relatives to be apprehensive and they were kept in terrible suspense until inquiries sent to Washington produced the information that the hero succumbing on the battlefield was not from Plainfield but a Western town. The joy of the local family can be well imagined but there is no sane reason why the relatives should have suffered the agony that was their's for nearly twelve hours.

This one particular instance will soon be duplicated in practically every city in the country which has sent boys to the front. A storm of protest has been registered against the censorship but still the war department insists in following out a plan that seems to have no justification. Despite the slight concessions made by official Washington, the newspapers are even more dissatisfied than the general public. It is pointed out for one thing that the casualty lists received from Canada, giving the names of Americans serving with Canadian forces, report the home towns of the men without the place where the casualty occurred. This method would be reasonably satisfactory in a city the size of Plainfield, where there is not likely to be more than one man of the same name in the service and where the street address of the man may be found without great trouble. It is a great improvement, in any event, on the publicity plan of the war department now in use or even that proposed. It eliminates most of the confusion and has the advantage of speed over the semi-monthly announcement of dead and injured.

Miss Voorhees A Bride —Next Wednesday Night

The Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be the scene of a notable wedding next Wednesday evening, April 3, when Miss Ruth Voorhees, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Voorhees, of 946 Madison avenue, will be married to Edward L. Voorhees, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. H. Voorhees, of 918 Madison avenue. The ceremony will be performed at 6 o'clock by Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie, of New York, formerly of this city, and will be witnessed by a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The bridegroom-elect is at present station at Camp McClellan as a member of the Heavy Field Rrtillery but will arrive in Plainfield the forepart of the week. He was a member of Troop D and went out with the former Plainfield National Guard unit last summer. Miss Voorhees is one of the best known of Plainfield's younger set. She only recently returned from the South after a trip in company with her parents, which included stays at Anniston, Ala.; Ormond Beach, Daytona, Palm Beach and other places in Florida.

After a brief honeymoon, the young couple will return to Plainfield, which will be their future home. Mr. Voorhees, however, will have to return back to Camp McClellan as his company is destined for early transportation overseas.

John Bowman Enjoying Western Pleasure Trip

John Bowman, of West Front street, who recently resigned as foreman in the Pond Machine Tool Company's foundry after twenty-four years of continuous service, left Wednesday for a pleasure trip to the Middle West. His first stop will be at Hamilton, O., thence South Bend, Indiana, afterward to Chicago, and lastly to Terra Haute. At Terra Haute he will be the guest of an old friend and schoolmate whom he has not seen in many years but with whom he has always been in correspondence.

A rumor has been current that Mr. Bowman has gone West to take a position, but this is not so. In consequence of the rumor, Mrs. Bowman, who remained at her home in the Manning building on West Front street, has been put to considerable annoyance by prospective tenants seeking her apartment. Naturally enough, if her husband should receive an offer that would call for his leaving the city, she would follow suit if he accepted it but nothing of this nature has occurred as yet.

Mr. Bowman never had a vacation during the entire twenty-four years that he was employed at the Pond plant and he believed that he was entitled to the Western trip which he is now undertaking. He is considered one of the best foundry men in this section and beside having a wide acquaintance in Plainfield is well known in industrial circles throughout the city.

"Vets" Adopt New Plan For Regular Meetings

Meagre attendances at the regular meetings have induced Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., to adopt a new plan for getting out its members at the semi-monthly sessions on the second and fourth Tuesdays. Because of the infirmities produced by age, and the inclination of the old veterans to "sound taps" early the Post will give up its night gatherings for afternoon sessions. It is much easier for the men to get out during the daytime and for these reasons combined the meetings will hereafter be on the second and fourth Saturday afternoons beginning at 2 o'clock.

The first gathering under the new rule will be held in the Post rooms in Reform Hall tomorrow afternoon. As the idea has the support of nearly the full membership it is quite possible there will be a big turn out. The plan will be closely watched by other organizations which also have had trouble in even getting as much as a quorum out at the routine sessions.

At the close of the regular meeting tomorrow afternoon the Memorial Day committee will confer for the first time on plans for the approaching Decoration Day service.

By Heck This'll Be A Derned Fine Dance

T. A. B. Hall on West Fourth street will be the scene of a right smart shindig on Tuesday night, April 9. On that occasion, St. Mary's Social Club, the young women auxiliary to the T. A. B. Society, will give a "barn dance" and it ought to be a dandy because these young ladies have conducted a lot of pleasing affairs in the past, by heck.

It won't be necessary for anyone attending to be a regular corn huskster, or milk maid. Of course, those who can act the part will be just as acceptable as the genuine country pumpkin. In order to make the affair spring appropriate, however, the men are requested to wear the jumpers and overalls seen around the Piscataway township barnyards and the girls will tickle the committee by garbing themselves in plain gingham gowns, topped off by sun bonnets, just the same as those worn by "Miranda" and "Mary Jane," our country cousins. Ed. Marks' fiddlers will furnish tunes for the hoe-downs and square sets and those who have been on parties where Ed. has played before know he has a lot of Corn Derned good musicianers. Decorations of corn shocks and hay will make the hall look as near like Si Perkins' barn as possible and fritters, doughnuts, "punkin" pie and other goodies will be passed around at midnight. It sure ought to be a fine time for everyone and the committee wants all the young folks in the village to be on hand.

The committee is composed of Miss Nora Regan, chairman, and the Misses Kathleen Reeve, Mary Mealey, Elizabeth Mottley and Nora C. Regan.

Schumann Club Concert For Red Cross Benefit

The Schumann Club, of New York, one of the foremost musical organizations in the metropolis, will give a concert in the Plainfield High School auditorium on Tuesday night, April 11, for the benefit of the Plainfield and North Plainfield Chapter of the Red Cross. Percy Hooton Stephens will be the conductor and the noted singing artist will be Charles Wakefield Cadman, composer of "Shanewis" and Tsianina, Indian mezzo-contralto, featuring the music of the American Indian. Rodney Saylor will act as accompanist.

The club is being brought to Plainfield through the efforts of Clifford Kelsey Smith and Mrs. A. Braider, who has long been familiar with its splendid work. The admission fee has been placed at one dollar and one dollar and a half and tickets may be purchased at Miller's drug store.

Colgate Files His Petition As Senate Aspirant

Following up the statement which Colonel Austen Colgate made yesterday that he was in the fight for the Republican nomination for United States Senator until the end, he took steps today under the new corrupt practices act to become a candidate in formal manner. He did this by filing with the Secretary of State a notification that he is in the race.

Milton E. Crawley, secretary to Sheriff Flavell and former corresponding secretary of the county Republican committee, will be his official campaign manager and Frank J. Bock, of Essex county, chairman of his campaign committee. Under the new law it is required that some bank shall handle all campaign funds, and Colonel Colgate has chosen the Federal Trust Company, of Newark.

The position that Mr. Bock will occupy in the campaign is made known in a statement the colonel gave out at his offices in Jersey City, as follows:

"While I have been an avowed candidate for the Senatorial nomination since my public announcement made last summer, the law regulating elections passed at the session of the Legislature just closed apparently calls for a formal statement of candidacy at the time of designating a campaign manager and depository for campaign funds.

"My understanding is that the campaign manager contemplated by the new law is in effect a fiscal agent, and Milton E. Crawley, treasurer of the Essex County Republican committee, has volunteered to again act for me in that capacity, as he did in by Gubernatorial campaign in 1916.

"A number of my friends in every county of the State have volunteered to form a general committee to assist me in the campaign. Former Postmaster Frank J. Bock, of Newark, has consented, to again serve as chairman of the campaign committee.

"In a few days I propose to issue a statement of principles, outlining my views on the great questions now before the public."

From the present until the end of the primary campaign Colonel Colgate will have to keep his campaign expenses within an amount specified in the law and will have to keep strict account of receipts and disbursements, verified by the campaign manager and also by the bank. No expense can be incurred without accounting for it through the campaign fund.

Under the new law regulating expenditures of candidates not more than $25,000 may be spent by an aspirant for nomination for United States Senator.

The language of the act has been construed to mean that all the money used in the campaign, including that spent by other persons in behalf of the candidate, must be within the limit set. No person may spend his own money (using the words of the law) "in aid" of a candidate outside the total. In Section 13 of the law it is required of candidates for all offices except in townships, boroughs, wards and for party committee members, and where $50 is the limit of expense, that:

"All money which may be spent by any such candidate in behalf of his candidacy, or by any other person, corporation or organization in furtherance or aid of the candidacy of any such candidate, shall be paid to the campaign manager so appointed as aforesaid, and shall within twenty-four hours, excluding holidays and Sundays, after the same shall have been received by him, be deposited by such campaign manager in the bank * * *."

In Section 14 it is specified that all contributions "shall" be sent at least five days before the election in which the candidate is participating. Moneys received after that time "shall not, under any circumstances," be used in the campaign. The act goes into elaborate details relating to the deposit and accounting for funds.

Limitations are laid upon contributors in Section 28 of the act. This states: "No person shall expend any money or other thing of value or incur any liability in aid or furtherance" of a candidate for certain objects specifically named, and it goes on to say: "But the specific prohibitions contained in this section, or in any other portion of this act, shall not operate to permit, by implication or otherwise," any expense or obligation "for any purpose not specifically authorized by this act."

ELMER BOHAN'S BODY MAY ARRIVE HERE TODAY.

The body of Elmer Bohan, a former Plainfield young man, who died in Pisbee, Arizona, last Monday, had not arrived in Plainfield this morning although it was sent East shortly after death occurred. It may reach here this afternoon or tomorrow and the funeral will probably be held Monday.

Mr. Bohan was twenty-seven years old and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Bohan, of West Fifth street. He went West several years ago for the benefit of his health.

Professor and Mrs. A. W. Hanck, of Norwood avenue, are the parents of twin sons, born to them Tuesday.

Sunday Marks The Start Of Daylight Saving

Without the slightest disorganization or impairment of existing conditions, the daylight saving plan will go into effect in all parts of the United States tomorrow night. The bill making it legal was signed by President Wilson after the Senate and House of Representatives had decided that it would be a big factor in conserving coal and fuel by the use of less artificial light, thereby being of great aid in winning the war. Although the plan will be of momentous consequence in its effect, trains will run as usual, and every feature of daily life will be unchanged.

Many Plainfield people, like those of other communities, have been unable to fully grasp the idea of the daylight saving. Over and over again the question is asked: "Just how does it commence and how does it work out?"

To the humble householder it means that, after he fixes the furnace, turns out the cat and winds the alarm clock tomorrow night, he can push the hour hand ahead just sixty minutes and then worry about being up so late. Or if he wants to meet the exact provisions of the bill, he can stay up until 2 o'clock the following morning and peform the rite.

To manufacturers and mercantile establishments it means getting on the job one hour earlier in the morning, although, so far as the clocks are concerned, they will be merrily marking the old familiar hours.

Railroads, however, the finding some difficulty in arranging for the readjustment. Trains on long runs, carrying them over the clock changing period, will be an hour late in arriving at their destinations, while trains starting at 2 o'clock that morning will, considering their old schedules, be an hour late, for the clocks will read 3 o'clock.

Milk and other trains carrying food to large cities are causing the railroad men their chief worries. The readjustment of these cannot be made at 2 o'clock Easter Sunday morning because this would mean their arrival too late to meet the day's demand. It is possible that this problem will be solved by starting them one hour earlier in the night preceeding the change.

Many of the roads have single track lines into the dairy districts and the officials are engaging in working out some scheme for avoiding clashes between trains running the old-time schedule and the readjustment of time.

Fifth District Not To Have A Special Election

Announcement that Governor Edge has practically decided not to call a special election in the Fifth Congressional district to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Representative John E. Capstick, is satisfactory to the leaders of both the Republican and Democratic parties. It is understood that the Governor favors letting the vacancy be filled at the regular election in November. Under this plan the candidate for the regular term could also be the candidate for the unexpired term, or there might be different candidates for either term.

So many have been brought forward as candidates in both the old parties that the leaders are glad to have the election go over until November in order to give them time to get the tangle straightened out, if possible, so that they can line up support for the men they regard as the best vote-getters.

The Republican camp offers a host of candidates to choose from, with Hamilton F. Kean, of Elizabeth, brother of the late United States Senator John Kean, and former Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, leading in the contest. A boom was started last week for John E. Nicol, secretary to the late Congressman Capstick, but it was coldly received by professional politicians. With Liberty Loan, Red Cross and other war campaigns absorbing most of the surplus money in circulation, this year is sure to be a lean one financially in politics. Therefore the practical politicians lean toward the candidacy of a man of wealth, like Mr. Kean or Mr. Ackerman, hoping that personal ambition will make either open his money bag freely. The leaders are decidedly averse to digging down into their own pockets to finance the campaign, so they are against any poor man seeking the nomination.

Mr. Kean and Mr. Ackerman belong to the conservative wing of the Republican party, and many progressive Republicans in the district say the best chance of holding the district in the Republican column is to nominate a progressive Republican rather than one identified with "Big Business." It is understood that Mr. Kean as resolved not to enter the Congressional contest.

Mr. Ackerman is a director of the Central Railroad, and it is said he is gravely considering that his candidacy may be inadvisable because of the possibility that his railroad connection and Government ownership might become an issue in the campaign.

Richard Boardman, whose home is in this city, but who is a New York lawyer, has entered the race as a candidate of the progressive wing of the party. He ran against the late Congressman Capstick and former Congressman Charles N. Fowler for the nomination two years ago. It is regarded as likely that Will H. Hays, the new chairman of the Republican National Committee, will be asked to visit the district to establish harmony between conservatives and progressives.

There is talk of Assemblyman Arthur N. Pierson, of Westfield, as a harmony candidate. Others mentioned as possible candidates include former Congressman Fowler, of Elizabeth; William Newcorn, of Plainfield, former Republican county chairman, and Mayor Ruford Franklin, of Summit. Morris county also has a number of candidates for the vacancy, those mentioned to date being Assemblyman Arthur Whitney, former Assemblyman George W. Jenkins, of Morristown, and Charles W. Ennis, a former Progressive leader of the same place.

On the Democratic side, former Congressman William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, looms up as the probable candidate. Because of his known closeness to the National Administration, the leaders want him to run on a platform to back up President Wilson's policies, believing he will have more chance of carrying the district than any other Democrat. Mr. Tuttle is reconsidering his previous decision not to be a candidate, it is understood.

Richard E. Clement, superintendent of Elizabeth's public schools, is an avowed candidate for the place, but he is not looked upon with much favor by the leaders of his party. He has received promises of support from some Independent Democrats, and it looks as though he may remain in the race until the last minute.

Registrant's Wife Wrote A "Reckomend"

The Plainfield Draft Board, in common with similar organizations in all parts of the country, have received many laughable responses to queries about registrants. All sorts of excuses are made by wives to "show cause" why husbands should not be taken into the service and on the other hand, reasons have been set forth by "hubbies" not strong on providing family support might just as well be fighting for Uncle Sam as "droning" at home. One of the best letters that has yet come to light is the following receiving by a near-by draft board a short time ago:

"Dear United States Army: My husband set me to write a reckomend that he supports his family. He can not read, so don't tell him. Jus take him. He aint no good to me. He aint done nothin but drink lemmen essence and play a fiddle since I married him, eight years ago, and I gotta feed seven kids of hisn. Maybe you can get him to carry a gun. He good on squirrels and eatin. Take him and welcum. I need the grub and his beg for the kids. Dont tell him this, but take him."

JOHN E. CONNOLLY WRITES FROM FRANCE.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Connolly, of West Sixth street, received a letter this week from their son, John E. Connolly, the first they have had since he arrived in France last February. It stated that he was well and now that as far as he had gone he liked the country and the military experience. He went abroad in a special detachment from Camp Dix, known as the "First Provisional Recruit Battalion," but is now a member of the special casual, 163rd Infantry. The remainder of the letter aside from personal mention contained only the bare details of camp routine permitted by the authorities.

Private Connolly is one of the West End's best known young men. He was employed at various times at the Pond Tool Works, Saurer's, the Standard Aero and other local shops. Previous to his induction in service last September, he was a member of the Record's press room staff. He is a member of St. Mary's T. A. B. Society.

MISS KATHERINE GILL DIES IN MUHLENBERG.

Following an illness of only four days with meningitis, death came at Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday afternoon to Miss Katherine Gill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gill, of 147 Randolph road. She was first stricken Sunday night and although removed to the hospital as soon as possible continued to sink rapidly.

Miss Gill was in her seventeenth year and was a member of the junior class in the Plainfield High School. She possessed a most pleasing disposition and had a host of friends both at school and outside. Her untimely death has been received with keen regret by all who knew her. Beside her parents, she is survived by two sisters, the Misses Margaret and Elizabeth Gill, both living at the parental home.

The funeral will be held at the family residence Monday morning at 8:15 and in St. Mary's church at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Dix Men In Loan Parade

Chairman A. Willis West, of the Plainfield Liberty Loan Committee, has received assurances from the State authorities that if arrangements can be made, two companies of National Army men will be sent from Camp Dix to this city next Saturday for the purpose of taking part in the Liberty Loan parade planned to inaugurate the commencement of the war loan drive in this city. If consent is given for the complete, those including Plainfielders will be selected for the occasion.

The parade is to commence at 2 o'clock and beside the Camp Dix men is to include the Plainfield Home Defense League, a band of music and whatever organizations can be procured for the occasion. Mayor Watkins and other city officials have been invited to ride in automobiles.

Meatless Days Must Continue

Despite the fact that there is a greater meat supply in the United States than there was a year ago, meatless days and conservation must continue, Joseph E. Cotton, chief of the meat division of the food administration, told the Senate agricultural committee yesterday.

"The chief aim is to keep the meat moving to our own armies and the Allies," he said.

He again warned the committee that the demands of the Allies are going to increase. As an example he declared that but one-fourth of the demands of the Allies were met during the month of February because of the lack of tonnage.

Meatless days have increased consumption, Cotton said. He believed it was due to the fact that the order has not been generally observed and that those who have disobeyed it have increased their consumption. In the face of this fact, Cotton said, it is advised that the meatless days be continued in hopes that the American people will awaken to the necessity of conservation.

Cotton did not deny that the order restricting the use of lamb and mutton had been in vain. As a result of this order, he declared that receipts of lamb and mutton had been suffering a loss and possibly the producers. At the same time he did not believe that other meat producers were suffering any losses.

To Our Ice Patrons:

OUR GOVERNMENT HAS ISSUED A CALL TO SAVE. TO THE HOME, THE CALL COMES TO SAVE FOOD AND SUPPLIES, AND TO THE BUSINESS, THAT CALL COMES TO SAVE MAN POWER.

ICE IS A FOOD AND A PUBLIC NECESSITY AND THE PUBLIC WELFARE REQUIRES IT TO BE DISTRIBUTED EFFICIENTLY AND REGULARLY.

THE ONE NECESSARY FACTOR IN SUCH DISTRIBUTION IS EXPERIENCED ICEMEN. THE CALL TO THE COLORS HAS TAKN AWAY MANY OF THESE MEN ON WHOM WE HAVE DEPENDED IN THE PAST AND WE FIND IT NECESSARY TO MAKE SOME CHANGES IN OUR METHOD OF DELIVERING ICE WITHOUT SACRIFICING PROPER SERVICE.

FOR THE PAST SIX YEARS WAGONS FROM FOUR COMPANIES HAVE BEEN COVERING THE SAME GROUND, BUT WITH THE SHORTAGE OF MEN WHICH CONFRONTS US, WE FEEL THAT THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE PUBLIC WILL BE SERVED BY DISCONTINUING THIS DUPLICATION OF WORK.

THE COAL BUSINESS WAS HANDLED MOST ACCEPTABLY THIS PAST WINTER BY ZONING THE CITY, THUS DOING AWAY WITH CROSS HAULING. IT IS SUCH A PLAN WHICH WE PROPOSE TO INSTALL IN THE ICE BUSINESS THIS SUMMER, BEGINNING APRIL 1st.

WE TRUST THAT THE LABOR CONDITION WILL, IN ANOTHER SEASON, BE SUCH THAT WE CAN AGAIN SECURE SUFFICIENT HELP TO OPERATE OUR WAGONS AS HERETOFORE.

WE FEEL THAT WITH THE HEARTY CO-OPERATION OF THE PUBLIC, OUR NEW METHOD WILL WORK TO THE BEST INTERESTS OF ALL.

Vaudeville Returns To The Plainfield

After a lapse of four days because of legitimate attractions vaudeville will return to the Plainfield Theatre this afternoon, ushering in a new bill for the remainder of the week. Each of the big six acts promises to be a "hummer," the combined program being given superior to the excellent card producing so much favorable comment at the end of last week.

Headlining the program will be "The Seven Sammies," which, as the name implies, are of a military character. These "Sammies" have a patriotic skit filled with songs, dances and other interesting entertainments that not only proves delightful diversion but also an inspiration. This offering has been appearing at Broadway's leading houses and comes to Plainfield well recommended.

Closely following the "Seven Sammies" in importance will be Russell and Beatrice in an acrobatic specialty carrying special scenery and velvet drops. This team never fails to receive several encores. Others on the program are Tim and Marion Dee in a singing and dancing skit, entitled "Sweethearts;" Tompkins and Tovell in the dramatic playlet, "Do Your Bit;" and Rose and Franklin, comedians, who are different than any of the others seen here this season.

There will also be moving pictures on the program, plenty of comedy and dramatic films as well as those ridiculously funny animated cartoons. The latter are getting to be a bigger hit every week, and Manager Shannon continues to put the right kind across. The lovers of the Pathe News will find another series of world happenings pictured before their eyes this afternoon and the series will be shown again tomorrow.

"Broadway Frolics" Coming Next Week

When Jack Singer produced his latest burlesque novelty, "The Broadway Frolics," in which Lon Hascall, the popular comedian, is featured, he gave to theatregoers the very best entertainment that has been produced on the burlesque stage.

"The Broadway Frolics" will be the attraction next Tuesday at the Plainfield Theatre. Theatregoers who witnessed Jack Singer's "Hello New York!" should not fail to see "The Broadway Frolics," for critics have proclaimed it the very best burlesque entertainment that has been given on the Columbia Amusement Company's circuit. It is a massive production and requires two sixty-foot baggage cars to transport the scenery.

"Stranded" is the vehicle used and the show is in two acts and eight scenes. A remarkable cast makes the production especially effective. Lon Hascall, who is chief of the fun department, will be remembered for his excellent work in "Hello New York!" He has a part that gives him ample opportunity to display his ability as a comedian. He is assisted by Wilbur Dobbs, an eccentric comedian. Jean Irwin is the prima donna. She is beautiful and possesses a most pleasing voice—Vera Randale. Bessie Baker is the soubrette and others in the cast are Bertha Delmonte, Jack Nichols, Jim Tenbrooke, Mark Thompson and Rich Simmons. The chorus is composed of twenty-five pretty girls selected for their ability to sing and dance.

$10,000 Structure Will Replace Old Marsh Residence On Plainfield Avenue

Final preparations in plans that will remove the old Marsh homestead at 310 Plainfield avenue as a landmark in that section of the city were made known this week when Building Inspector Doane granted a permit to Dr. Fred F. Durrah, of 304 Plainfield avenue, for the erection of a two and a half story brick structure on the former Marsh property.

The one-time Marsh residence, which was built before the Civil War, the first house in Plainfield to have a slate roof and occupied by the late Randolph Marsh or members of his family until a year ago, is to be lifted from its present foundation and moved to a new location at West Third street and Muhlenberg place. The building has been purchased by M. Pasche, of West Third street, who recently secured consent from the Common Council to make the transfer. Mrs. Maria Marsh, widow of Randolph Marsh, sold the homestead property to Dr. Durrah last summer and removed to the home of her son, George Marsh, of John street, the first residential change she had made since the time of her marriage. The Plainfield avenue place was one of the most attractive in the neighborhood which has undergone a great change in the past ten or fifteen years. It was surrounded by a beautiful, well-kept lawn enhanced by beds and urns of flowers, trees and shrubbery. It is the last of the old-time structures on the thoroughfare which was once peopled by Plainfield's pioneer families. The Marshes were the last to depart, but even at that did not make up their minds to go until the death of husband and father, Randolph Marsh, at the age of eighty-three years, two years ago.

The plans as filed by Dr. Durrah call for an expenditure of about $10,000 for the structure which he will build on the Marsh property. It will be of pressed brick, having a frontage of forty feet and a depth of forty-five feet. The two main floors will be divided up into five rooms each, while others will be located in the attic. Dr. Durrah, who has been practicing medicine in Plainfield for the past four years, will equip the lower floor in strictly modern style as a physician's quarters. In addition to a waiting and examination rooms, there will also be a complete operating pavilion, fitted with every appliance for surgical work. The second floor will be given over to living apartments for the physician and his family. B. F. Tallamy & Brother have the entire contract for the work and expect to complete the building by the middle of next September. The old residence will be started on its way into Plainfield avenue and up West Third street Monday morning.

Dr. Durrah is a native of North Carolina and completed his medical studies at Howard University. He afterwards served as interne in a hospital at Washington, D. C., coming from that city to Plainfield in 1914. His practice has increased steadily and the erection of the Plainfield avenue building has been made necessary to care for his large number of patients.

CORPORATION COUNSEL REED BACK FROM FLORIDA.

Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed returned home Tuesday after a two months' stay at Ormond Beach, Fla. He brought with him the revised edition of the new building code upon which he has been working during his stay in the South. The code is to be introduced for adoption by the Common Council at an early date.

HARRY FRANCIS KISS.

Harry Francis Kiss, the sixteen months' old son of Francis and Mary Kiss of 287 Leland avenue, died this morning. The funeral will be held at the parents' home tomorrow afternoon and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Governor Edge Seek Ligation Farm Labor

In laying plans to stimulate farm production and continue on a larger scale the movement of last year designed to secure sufficient labor for the farms, and also interest school children in farming, Governor Edge has asked for a report from the State Department of Agriculture with respect to the agricultural and labor conditions in the State.

What the Governor regards as of paramount importance in the report of the State Department of Agriculture is the placing of a practical farmer in the main employment office of the State Department of Labor in Newark. The duty of this representative will be to assist in selecting competent agricultural laborers for farms.

Farmers of New Jersey have been informed regarding the establishment of successful boys' camps in other States last year, and will be urged to make similar provisions for the labor of school boys during the coming spring and summer. The Department of Agriculture plans to utilize some units of women having had farm opportunity before coming to this country in supplementing the work of school boys.

LEGAL NOTICES.

CORPORATION NOTICE.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, held on Monday, March 11, 1918, an ordinance of which the following is a true copy, to wit:

AN ORDINANCE

For Renewing and Replacing the Storm Sewer in a Portion of West Front Street.

WHEREAS, The City finds it necessary, and the Common Council hereby so determines, to renew and replace the storm sewer for carrying off the surface water in a portion of West Front street hereinafter particularly specified, and the Common Council has determined, and doth hereby determine, that the public good requires the renewing and repacing of the storm sewer hereinafter specified.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That under the provision of the acts of the Legislature in such case made and provided, the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that the storm sewer to carry off the surface water in a portion of West Front street be renewed and replaced in and for said City of Plainfield, as follows, to wit:

Beginning at a point in the southeasterly side line of West Front street where it is crossed by the small brook near Everett place; thence across West Front street; thence under the northwesterly sidewalk of West Front street, southwesterly, in the existing storm sewer, as shown on plans on file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield, entitled as follows: "Plans for Renewing and Replacing the Storm Sewer in a Portion of West Front street, City of Plainfield, N. J., March, 1918.": "Sewerage System, City of Plainfield, N. J., Sheet 4, 1918. Plan of Charleston, March, 1918." City of Plainfield, N. J. Plan for Storm Sewer Inlets, January, 1917", (to which plans reference is hereby made and the same are hereby made a part hereof) said storm sewer to be renewed and replaced in said street between the above mentioned points, as shown on said plans, with the necessary inlets, inlet connections, manholes and appurtenances to complete the same, and to be of the dimensions and materials, and to be laid along such lines and at such grades and in such manner as indicated and specified on said plans.

Which was presented, read and ordered to be considered and acted upon by said Common Council at a regular meeting thereof to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 140 North avenue, in said City of Plainfield, on Monday, April 1, 1918, at the hour of 8:30 o'clock in the evening of that day, and at such meeting and opportunity will be given to all parties in favor of or opposed to the improvement contemplated by said ordinance, to present their views with reference to the same in writing or otherwise, as the Common Council may at that time direct, and public notice is hereby given of the intention of the Common Council to enact said improvement set forth in this ordinance to be made, and such persons or corporations as may object thereto are requested to present their objections in writing at the City Clerk's office, No. 133 North avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at or before the expiration of ten days from the date of this notice, or to the Common Council at its first meeting after the expiration of ten days from said date and said Common Council at such meeting to be held on the first day of April, 1918, as above stated, or afterward may proceed to consider and pass such ordinance notwithstanding any objection.

By order of the Common Council.

JOHN J. CARROLL,
City Clerk.

Postmaster and Mrs. Joseph Atkinson, of Freeholder, returned the forepart of the week after a visit with the latter's brother, Captain W. C. Smith, of Grandview avenue.

Elmer Terry, of East Second street, is among the latest Plainfield boys to join the American Expeditionary Force in France. He arrived "Over There" two weeks ago. His brother, Sergeant Herbert Terry, is still stationed at Camp Dix.

Martin Vanderweg, of West Fourth street, is convalescent after a serious illness of four weeks with pleuro-pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Fischer, of East Second street, are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a son at their home a few days ago.

Arthur Robinson, of West Third street, was among the Plainfield selectives home from Cap Dix over the past week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Davis, of Irving place, are the parents of a daughter, who came to their home a few days ago.

Senator William N. Runyon, of East Ninth street, is able to be about again after a week's detention at home by an attack of rheumatism.

Announcements has been made of the engagement of Miss Anna Louise Woodruff, daughter of Mrs. John T. Woodruff, of New York, to Lieutenant William Parker Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. William O. Taylor, of Grandview avenue, North Plainfield. No date has been set for the wedding. Lieutenant Taylor is at present stationed at Garden City, L. I., as a member of the 183rd Aero Squadron.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mathison, of West Third street, left this week for Columbus, O., where they will make their home in the future, Mr. Mathison having secured an excellent position with a large industrial plant in that city. While here he was employed at the Saurer shop on West Front street.

Harvey I. Rothberg, of Madison avenue, who was recently named as one of the Plainfield selectives designated for Camp Dix, has been accepted by the Naval Reserve as a first-class seaman and is now stationed at Pelham Bay. Mr. Rothberg originally tried for a commission at Fort Myer early last fall, but did not qualify. Mr. Rothberg has been a practising attorney in association with former Judge William Newcorn.

Charles Foster, of West Front street, returned the past week from Fitchburg, Mass., where he installed several large pieces of machinery in a big factory plant for Manning-Maxwell & Moore, of New York. He expects to leave for Detroit for the same purpose during the coming week.

Miss Elizabeth Manning, of Grant avenue, has returned from a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. R. Mason, of Bound Brook.

Lieutenant Edgar Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Freeman, of South avenue, has been appointed an observer in the aviation service with the French Escadrille, according to information which has just reached his parents. He is a graduate of Yale and has been in France for several months.

Professor and Mrs. George Warren Scott, of Watchung avenue, are the parents of a daughter. The little miss arrived at their home the forepart of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. R. Dunning, of Orange, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Dunning, to Wetmore Holloway Titus, of Madison avenue, this city. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter McShea, of West Third street, are the parents of a son, born to them a few days ago. Mr. McShea is sexton of St. Mary's church.

Miss Stella Force, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Force, of West Front street, and Miss Mary Logan, of Duncllen, left this week for Anniston, Ala., where they will remain two weeks. Miss Logan's brother, Sergeant Leo Logan, is a member of the Twenty-ninth Division stationed at Camp McClellan.

Mrs. W. H. Dunlap, of Codington avenue, the borough, left a few days ago for Anniston, Ala., to visit her husband, Sergeant Dunlap, of Co. B, 115th Infantry, stationed at Camp McClellan. Mrs. Dunlap is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Corra Ryno, of Codington avenue.

Sergeant Henry V. Kinney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard V. Kinney, of Pearl street, the borough; Arthur E. Force, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Force, of West Front street, and Gordon Moy, son of former Mayor and Mrs. G. W. V. Moy, have joined the American forces in France. News of their arrival at a French port was cabled back to relatives the past week. Sergeant Kinney is an enlisted infantryman, while Force and Moy are members of aviation corps. Moy, after his enlistment, was first sent to the Royal Flying Corps training field at Toronto, Can., where he received instruction for several months. He was then transferred to Texas for final training, after which he was sent abroad.

George McNab, who has been one of the government inspectors in charge of the naval contract at the Scott Press Works, left this week for New York in order to perform a similar duty at the R. Hoe & Company plant, which has the contract originally sent to this city.

Mrs. Michael D. O'Keefe, of West Fourth street, was taken suddenly ill yesterday morning and her condition became such that she was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital in the afternoon. She was reported much better this morning.

Billeted Five Miles From Front Charles Wendell Describes His Impressions Of Devastated France

Right up close to the front line trenches, within easy hearing distance of the steady roar of big guns, and amid the villages laid to waste by the German divisions, in their early advances, are two of Plainfield's well-known young men. They are Albert Brynlarski and Charles Wendell, members of the 165th Ambulance Corps doing duty in France since early last winter. Both are graduates pharmacists and were employed in the drug department of the United Cigars' local store at Front and Somerset streets before transferring their activities to the great battle ground of Europe.

Mr. Wendell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wendell, of 515 Madison avenue, to whom three letters came the past week, each one written by the young man on a different date. In combined form they give an interesting account of what he and his company associates are doing in the distant land that is to be the goal of so many American fighters. Other letters have been written and reproduced from the same sector but as every soldier-boy hears and sees something different from any one else, we giveMr. Wendell's letters for the edification of his many friends denied a personal communication because of military regulations.

The first letter was written February 23, the day following Washington's Birthday, and in it the young ambulance man tells how the natal anniversary of America's beloved warrior and statesman was observed. Deleted of personal mention it reads as follows:

France, Feb. 23, 1918.

Dear Parents:

Just a few lines in a hurry to let you know that I am well and since writing you last have been moved to another French town. It was some trip. We made the journey by rail, road in about twenty-four hours, seeing some wonderful war sights on the way. One could never realize it unless he saw it with his own eyes and it would be hard for any one to explain by writing even if we were allowed to do so.

From what I read in the Paris newspapers I sure do think the Americans are doing some great work over here in France. No doubt you have read about it in the New York newspapers.

Yesterday was Washington's Birthday. It rained here all day very hard and we celebrated it by eating turkey and cranberry sauce, which was very good. The way I scent the "holiday" was vastly different from that to which I have been accustomed at home but "circumstances alter cases," and over here we learn to take everything as it comes.

Myself and three other young men have become acquainted with a very nice French family in this town and they are using us great. We called on them last night and had a very nice evening to say nothing of a meal at which we were the "honored guests." We had fried eggs, bread and mashed potatoes to eat, and a little wine to drink. The French are very hospitable people, always ready to extend a welcome and especially desirous of pleasing the "Sammies." We are the first Americans that ever landed in this part of France so you can imagine how they received us.

The town we are in is only a short distance away from the firing line. The cannading is heard plainly but we have gotten accustomed to it and do not give it a second thought. The people here are the same way, going about their business just as though there was no indication of a terrific battle almost within walking distance.

With love to all,
Your loving son,
CHARLIE.

The second letter was written on February 28 and contains much of interest not mentioned in the preceding communication. Here it is:

Dear Parents:

Since writing you last, we have moved to a new location, this time a real, sure enough French city that was captured by the Germans at the beginning of the war and held by them for nearly two years. During the past two weeks we have been through many of the towns that were bombarded and ruined by the Germans and I know you will believe me when I say it all forms a sight that is beyond me to describe, even if I were permitted to do so. Accordingly, I guess I will have to let you wait until the history of this great war has been written and you can see some of the devastation in pictures, provided you cannot make the trip across the ocean to see for yourself.

Tuesday morning we saw our first air battle, a German aeroplane pilot tried to get across the French lines but the French anti-aircraft guns made him change his mind after firing several shots all around him. Gee, but these flyers sure must have some nerve; the bullets were bursting all around this German's machine and still he kept on trying to get over the lines. I would like to have a picture of the scene to send you (I am glad that I am not a German flyer).

In this town we can go to the movies for six cents; beer is eight cents a big schooner and wine is forty cents a quart. We can get a pretty good meal for seventy-five cents. It is very seldom, however, that I buy outside meals, as we get good food and plenty of it.

My kindest regards to all those who inquire for me.

Lovingly, your son,
CHARLIE.

In the third letter dated March 4, Mr. Wendell tells why it is impossible for him to write more often than he does and also gives full credit to Uncle Sam for the "good eats" he provides beside extolling the faithful and efficient cooks who prepare the meals. This is the letter:

Dear Parents:

During the past week I received quite a few letters, some from home and some from friends. I appreciate every line and paragraph but ask you to tell some of those who have written me that I cannot answer right away because of restrictions placed upon us by the commanding officers. We are permitted to write but four letters a week, two pages to the letter and only on one side of the paper. Accordingly, you can see why it is that I do not write as often as I would like to.

The city we are in now is a very large one and though we are but five miles back from the firing line, there are lots of civilians in it and doing business much the same way as they did before hostilities began. There are lots of stores here and you can buy almost anything you want. I have seen many pretty things I would like to buy and send you and hope I will be able to do so some day. If you could see some of them you would sure say they were beautiful. It takes the French ladies to do pretty lace work.

I might say at this point that you need have no fear about my personal wants. I get plenty of clothes and good things to eat from Uncle Sam. Yesterday (Sunday) for breakfast we had nice French fried potatoes, bacon, bread and butter. For dinner we had a dandy roast beef, mashed potatoes, tomato sauce with onions, gravy, bread and coffee, and plenty of it too. For supper we had some fine stewed kindney beans and rice pudding. When you have meals like this you can't kick about the army not feeding you. The whole thing in a nutshell about our "eats" is that we have a very good mess sergeant, and he has a fine cook with him. The Government issues the rations, but the cooking is another thing and the principal one. I am glad to say that we have the cooks.

I am contented over here and in one sense of the word don't care if I have to stay another year or so as long as I can return to see you all again some day. This experience that all my associates and myself are passing through is truly wonderful, and cannot be realized by anyone else unless they go through it themselves. I am sure I shall never forget any part of my experiences from the day I left home.

Trusting this letter finds you as well and happy as it leaves me, and asking you to give my kindest regards to all inquirers,

Lovingly yours,
CHARLIE.

Food Conservation Meeting In This City

Two patriotic mass meetings, one to be held at each end of the county, were arranged for at a meeting of the Union County Board of Agriculture held at the courthouse this week. One will be held in the auditorium of the Plainfield High School and the other in the auditorium of the Elizabeth Y. M. C. A.

Dates for the meetings have not as yet been announced, but it has been stated that they will be held within the next few weeks. At the meeting in Plainfield a prominent agricultural worker will speak and Dr. A. L. Johnson, superintendent of Union county schools, will take part in the program. E. R. Collins, president of the board, will speak on food conservation.

Miss Eleanor Johnson, connected with the State Agricultural college at New Brunswick, will be the principal speaker at the meeting to be held in Elizabeth. She will explain the best and most improved methods of farming as well as tell of the conserving food.

Scotch Plains "Drone" Released On Probation

Samuel Robinson, colored, of Scotch Plains, the first man to be arrested in Union county under the Edge anti-loafing act, was released from the county jail Tuesday, a week after he was taken there and was paroled in the custody of Recorder Morgen at Scotch Plains. As long as he remains employed he will be free, but if he starts loafing he will be arrested again.

Sheriff Warner yesterday started sending out posters of warning to be placed in conspicuous places about the county and is also distributing a pamphlet of suggestions. He has received reports of a number of men under surveillance in various parts of the country and expects some arrests shortly.

Edward P. T. Smith, of the borough, who has been in St. Vincent Hospital, New York, will return home tomorrow.

Easter Flower Raise In Price because Of Coal Shortage

With the coming of warmer weather everyone has hoped to hear the last of coal shortage, and its effects, but the end is not yet. This time it is the flowers which play so important a part in the Easter festivities which are affected. Easter lilies in particular will not only be very expensive this year, but the supply will be limited. Dealers predict that only a quarter or a third of the normal supply will be found on the market this Easter.

The situation is attributed to the long, cold winter and to the shortage of coal. Easter lilies need a great amount of heat and the growers who had a fair supply of coal in their bins were afraid to use it because there was not enough of it to carry them through to blossoming time, and they were not as all sure of getting any more. The result is that in hot houses where usually at this time of the year hundreds of plants with tall stalks of buds just ready to burst into full bloom are found, there are only bulbs in the early stages of development. Another contributing cause that is given is the late shipment of bulbs from Japan and Bermuda. Some of the bulbs were delayed in transit as well. The early Easter, too, has something to do with the difficulty in getting the flowers to mature in time for use on that day.

There seems to be no shortage of calla lilies, however, and many churches will have to depend on them this year for the decorations in place of using the Easter lilies as in other years. This is accounted for by the fact that calla lilies are more hardy and need less heat than the other variety.

Another plant which is always much in demand at Easter time is the azalia, and this, too, the dealers say, will be hard to get. The azalias are imported from Belgium, and last year none of the plants were imported. The plants that will be found in the shops at Easter-time will be those which have been kept from other years and these are not as satisfactory. They never bloom so well the second time; they are not so lasting nor so hardy. Spires is another variety of flowers which the dealers claim will not be found in the shops this spring.

Lilies of the valley are always expensive and they will be, if anything, a little more costly than ever this year. As to sweet peas one local dealer reports a shortage. This is accounted for because of the difficulty in obtaining labor to pick the flowers for market.

But despite the fact that some of the flowers will be scarce and costly there will still be quantities within the reach of everyone's purse. Daffodils, narcissus, hyacinths, tulips, daisies, pansies, orchids and violets will be found in abundance. Cut roses, too, will be plentiful, as will also carnations.

County Roads In Good Shape Freeholders Find

Despite the severe winter, which is the worst foe to roads, the Union county thoroughfares are in excellent condition, it was ascertained by the road committee of the freeholder board Wednesday. Holding a meeting in the courthouse before departing on the journey, the committee heard a report from Freeholder Miller, of Hillside, who said that the residents of that borough desire to have North Broad street paved to the entire width of the street instead of twenty-two feet.

Turning toward Springfield avenue, the freeholders were pleased with the condition of the street and found practically the same state of affairs in Mountain avenue, Springfield. St. George's avenue, on the way to Rahway, which was repaired recently, was reported splendid, while at Rahway the committee found that in Westfield avenue there was considerable disintegration in the concrete header because, it was stated, the Public Service Railway Company had neglected to fill in along the tracks. A contractor has been engaged to make the necessary repairs, and the bill will be sent to the Public Service.

Madison Hill road and Raritan road in Plainfield were found in praiseworthy shape, as was Mountain avenue in the same city.

VISITED AT WASHINGTON.

A party of Plainfielders, composed of Michael L. Shannon, Dave Rogers and John C. Powers, spent the past week-in in Kashington as the guest of Edward J. Harding, Jr., formerly of this city, but now holding a position in Secretary McAdoo's office. The trio was given a royal welcome by Mr. Harding and spent most of their time at the Capitol meeting senators, congressmen and other national representatives.

HESTER RAY

Hester Ray, a colored maid employed at the home of William Nash, 904 Grant avenue, died yesterday. The body was sent today to her former home at Milford, Pike County, Pa., for interment.

THE NEW EDISON
"The Phonograph with a Soul"
It is not an imitation nor yet an interpretation. It is a Re-Creation; so complete and satisfying that no human ear can detect a shade of difference between artist and instrument.
The famous tone tests in which 30 great artists have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison have established the truth of this assertion. Over 1,500 of these tests have been held; over 2,000,000 people have attended them. And invariably the New Edison met the ordeal successfully. Not one person could distinguish between the voice of the artist and that of the instrument.

Big Civic Parade Will Mark Loan Drive Opening

If the weather man does his part Plainfield will see the greatest civic parade and demonstration in the history of the city tomorrow afternoon.

Thousands of residents are expected to be in line to properly inaugurate the opening of the Third Liberty Loan Drive, and to commemorate the first anniversary of the entrance of the United States into the war. The day will also mark the first anniversary of the establishment of the Plainfield Home Defense League as well as that of North Plainfield, Fanwood and Scotch Plains.

Grand Marshal J. Whitney Baker and his associates on the parade committee have worked untiringly for the past ten days to complete the arrangements, and they have been rewarded by the assurance that many local civic bodies will participate. It will be a great patriotic outpouring of citizens.

The parade will start promptly at 4 o'clock, the head of the line forming on East Seventh street, facing west at Park avenue. The line of march will be down Park avenue to East Front street, to Watchung avenue to Fairview avenue, North Plainfield, to Somerset street, to West Front street, to Liberty street, to West Seventh street, to the triangle in front of Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church.

At the end the marchers will be reviewed by the Mayors of Plainfield, North Plainfield and Fanwood. Following this the various organizations will group around the triangle, on which a band will be stationed. Here paraders and spectators will join in singing "My Country 'Tis of Thee." The program will conclude with all standing at attention while the band plays "The Star Spangled Banner."

Aside from a few official organizations, position in line will not be assigned. The many civic, patriotic and church groups will be placed by the Marshal's aides as they arrive at the gathering point on East Seventh street, several bands and drum corps being interspersed among the marchers. Unattached civilians wishing to march will be grouped by the aides and given a place in line.

The parade will be headed by a platoon of the Plainfield police under command of Lieutenant Maurice Higgins, and a band of music. The grand marshal will follow with these mounted aides: Chief Patrick S. Kiely, Elliot T. Barrows, Arthur W. Ransome, Dr. C. B. Lufburrow and Rev. R. Vicars Stevenson. Then the Plainfield Home Defense League, one hundred strong, will come as escort to Mayor Leighton Calkins, Mayor William L. Smalley, of North Plainfield, and Mayor Hoar, of Fanwood, the councilmen from these communities and Scotch Plains and the local Liberty Loan Committee.

As escort to the members of the Grand Army of the Republic the North Plainfield Home Defense League will be next in line. The veterans will ride in automobiles which have been loaned by public spirited Plainfielders. Following them will be the Fanwood and Scotch Plains Home Defense Leagues, the Plainfield firemen, and then the various civic organizations.

Participating organizations will be assigned to place in line by a group of dismounted aides, under the leadership of Leslie R. Fort. His assistants will be Marion S. Ackerman, Andrew E. Kenney, Francis L. Sill, Henry J. Cochran, H. E. Butler and William L. Lockwood. All such organizations are expected to report on East Seventh street, approaching it by way of Watchung avenue, not later than 3:30 tomorrow afternoon.

The Liberty Loan Committee for Plainfield is as follows:

A. Willis West, chairman; F. Seymour Barr, vice chairman; Francis K. Anderson, secretary; Leonard Eggleston, treasurer; Marion S. Ackerman, J. Whitney Baker, Francis J. Blatz, W. G. Besler, Lindsey Best, E. W. Bulkley, J. Herbert Case, George S. Clay, Mrs. Harold D. Corbusier, Henry T. Cleaver, Henry J. Cochran, Judge J. Henry Crane, Arthur E. Compton, Charles Dodd, E. F. Eckkert, Henry S. Fullerton, Charles H. Frost, Joseph W. Gavett, Alexander Gilbert, George M. Holstein, Frank J. Hubbard, DeWitt C. Hubbell, David T. Kenney, Irving Kunzman, John G. McLaughlin, William New-corn, David M. Runyon, Senator Wilcorn, D. Runyon, Herman Schwed, A. V. Searing, Jr., Charles S. Sminck, Joseph M. Shellabarger, Arthur E. Smith, J. Augustus Smith, A. A. Tilney and Thomas C. Vail.

The committee for tomorrow's parade consists of Captain J. Whitney Baker, F. J. Blatz, M. S. Ackerman, Elliot T. Barrows, Leslie R. Fort, Andrew E. Kenney, Captain Henry C. Wells, of the North Plainfield Home Defense League; Francis L. Sill and Chief of Police Patrick S. Kiely.

Company A Gets Latest Selectives

Plainfield's last contingent of forty-three selectives, sent to Camp Dix, Wednesday, have been placed in quarantine and are now undergoing the "initiation" process before being admitted as full-fledge rookies.

It was stated at camp headquarters yesterday that all are to be assigned to Company A, 311th Infantry, the same unit which has enrolled most of the Plainfield boys. This has been greatly appreciated by the new arrivals as it permits them to be in the same barracks with the lads from their home town.

Several thousand selectives have been received at Dix, the past week, of which Union county contributed about 150. Those from Elizabeth were assigned to Companies A and B, 311th, and from the remainder of the county to Company C. Those from North Plainfield and other parts of Somerset county will remain in various companies of the 311th for the time being, but may be transferred later.

The Plainfielders who have been at the camp from periods varying from more than six months to a few weeks, assisted the newcomer in getting acquainted Wednesday. The special train over the Pennsylvania Railroad arrived without incident and the first night in camp was much the same as that experienced by all the preceding contingents—all strange, little sleep and visions of Huns cannons, barbed wells, train rides and giant generals. It only takes a day or two, however, for a rookie to fit himself into the new life and the Plainfielders adapt themselves as quickly as anybody in the big cantonment. Within a week, they will have their uniforms and be just like the rest of the boys.

The farewell extended the forty-three selectives was one of the most enthusiastic that has yet been accorded by Plainfield as a whole. Tuesday afternoon the contingent assembled in the old postoffice rooms, where they received Red Cross outfits from the local chapter, as well as gifts of wrist from the newly organized citizens' committee. Afterward they enjoyed brief addresses made by Rev. Father B. M. Bogan, of St. Mary's church, and Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church. The speakers mentioned the patriotic duty that the young men were performing—and outlined what it meant for them to offer themselves in behalf of their homes and relatimes.

Assembling at the Babcock building again on Wednesday morning, the selectives were given the position of honor in the formation of a procession which passed through the business district on the way to the North avenue station. It was headed by Chief P. S. Kiely, and a detachment of police, and also included city and borough officials, clergymen, prominent business men, Loggia Arnaldo da Brescia, 377, Sons of Italy, and thirty members of the Plainfield Home Defense League. Martial music was furnished by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps. The line of march was through Front street to Park avenue, to North avenue, to Park avenue and the railroad station. Arriving at the latter point, *relatives of the selectives were per*mitted to extend farewells before the train arrived, the crowd being so large, that the police and Home Guards had to make a division of those connected with the boys and the others who came merely to join in the civic demonstration. The departure occurred at 9:40 amid a tremendous cheering and waving of flags. The difference between this send-off and the lack of one on February 25, when sixty-eight boys went out without any concerted program of farewell were so noticeable that comments were made on every side. It is probable that no other contingent of Plainfield selectives will ever go to war without full recognition being accorded.

John J. Varley, chairman of the citizens' committee, which arranged the farewell, was highly elated with the enthusiastic support accorded by everyone. He was particularly pleased with the display of flag and bunting along the line of march, and asks that this practice be observed even more liberally on all coming occasions. He is also anxious to secure further funds to defray the necessary expense of music and souvenirs and asks all desirous of contributing to send their donations to Treasurer William R. Townsend at once.

The Plainfield Exemption Board had intended sending forty-five men to Dix on Wednesday but at the last minute two men failed to appear. They are Napoleon Scopecinski, of Plainfield avenue, and Dominico Cosiucci, of Watson place. Scopecinski was found on investigation to be confined to his home by a serious illness and was removed from the list for the time being but the case of Colecci proved to be that of a "slacker." He disappeared from his home and to all appearances has fled to parts unknown. The police are looking for him at present and should he not be

Builders Seek Light On City Hall Dispute

For the expressed purpose of learning the real reasons for the deadlock between organized labor and the City Hall commission over work on the new municipal building, a committee representing the Master Builders' Association and the Common Council met in conference on Monday night. Various stages of the difficulties and troubles that have kept the two sides from reaching an amicable adjustment were discussed for more than an hour. No definite action could be taken, however, owing to the unavoidable absence of Mayor Leighton Calkins, who was said to be in Boston on a business trip.

The committee representing the Master Builders' Association was composed of Lemuel B. Woolston, C. W. Krause, Charles L. Ryder, Jr., and Den J. Galbraith. Beside the City Hall committee and members of the Common Council, the city was represented by Corporation Counsel Charles A. Reed.

The conference came about through the belief of the Master Builders that something should be done to remove the union ban that has been placed upon the municipal building. The members of this organization felt that in behalf of the taxpayers someone should take the initiative in bringing the opposing factions together. Because of real or fancy grievances, neither side would take the matter up in joint session and the Master Builders decided that outside influences should be brought to bear. When the matter was first broached to the Common Council it was favorably received by President Francis J. Blatz, who extended an invitation for Monday night's "get together."

While full information of the meeting was no made public, it seems quite certain that the first step has been taken that might result in a better understanding between the parties concerned. The principal point in Monday night's discussion seemed to be whether or not the Trades Council had been justified in certain moves previous to the time that all non-union men were ordered not to work on the building. This is a matter for argument between the Council's officials and Mayor Calkins and was what led to the serious trouble that now exists. The Trades Council feels that it was grievously wrong but on the other hand the City Hall committee is certain that it did not receive fair treatment from organized labor after the tie-up produced by the Monahan Stone Company.

Lemuel B. Woolston, acting as spokesman for the Master Builders' committee, said he believed the taxpayers had a right to ask for some sort of an adjustment as the present situation is piling up the expense every day. If there was any way that an agreement could be reached, he said the Master Builders were ready to do their share in bringing it about. If necessary, he continued, the Master Builders would have the whole matter brought before the joint arbitration committee composed of members of the Master Builders and the Trades Council. There the whole proceedings could be gone over and when the different features had been placed in concise form, they could be brought before the Council at an open meeting for final adjustment.

Corporation Counsel Reed touched upo nnumerous matters that he and his official associates had held against the Trades Council and remarks were also made by Councilman Hylan, acting chairman of the City Hall committee. Each point served to enlighten both sides with the result that in the end the men present felt that something had been gained by the conference.

Mayor Calkins is to be made acquainted with the proceedings of Monday night and the belief exists that he will favor an open discussion. There are many union men and other citizens who entertain the idea that this will be the only method whereby the City Hall can be freed from the organized labor ban.

G. J. WEINMAN BUYS PROPERTY OF WILLIAM MILLS.

Godfrey J. Weinman, of Park avenue, has purchased from William Mills, the residence and large plot of ground at Second street and Madison avenue. Title is to be taken by Mr. Weinman today, and it is understood that the purchase has been made only for speculation purposes.

Mr. Weinman recently purchased a residence property on Prospect avenue belonging to Clifford D. Manning and will occupy it himself as soon as extensive alterations are made.

Ten Local Men Enlist

Despite the large number of men that Plainfield has contributed to Government service, Recruiting Officer E. D. Peck, stationed at the Watchung avenue postoffice building, has had remarkable success in securing recruits for the United States Army. Last week, he forwarded four accepted men and yesterday six more were added to the list, making ten in all for the two weeks he has been stationed in town There are still many departments open to enlistment and any young man in the city between ages of eighteen and forty-five might do well at this time to consult Officer Peck on the subject of volunteering. He will remain at the postoffice at least another week.

The four local men accepted last week were Arthur Hofer, 1047 Sherman avenue, chaffeur; Louis Vroom, painter, Dunellen; Edwin Hewson, 315 Netherwood avenue, machinist. All sent to quartermasters' department and Arthur Matthews, 3 Martners place, assigned to calvary. Those who were sent to Fort Slocum yesterday were: James Wilson, 513 East Sixth street, assigned to infantry; Russell Allan, 27 Harrison avenue, North Plainfield, ordnance department; William R. Hartpence, 315 West Front street, cavalry; William J. McInnes, 13 Clinton avenue, chauffeur; Harold V. Rockfeller, 127 New street, chauffeur, and Foster V. Campbell, Martinsville, auto repair mechanic, all in quartermasters' department.

Officer Peck, who is now doing recruiting duty, was selected for this branch of service because of his knowledge of army life. He served nine years with the regulars, all of which time was passed in the coast artillery. He was stationed for nearly three full enlistments at Key West, Fla., receiving his last honorable discharge at that point shortly before the United States entered the world conflict. He has been a Plainfielder for many years, his last place of residence being at the home of his mother on Central street.

Mayor Bloom, U. S. A., who is chairman of the Military Committee of the N. J. Committee of '76, has designated Officer Peck as the only man in Plainfield, a committee of this patriotic organization in Plainfield, its principal purpose being to prevent alien sabotage and incendiarism destroying factories and machinery. The Committee of '76 has branches in all parts of the country and is doing a splendid work through the quarding of all industrial plants, in a more effective manner than could be done by regulation army men.

In its communications, the Committee of '76 outlines its purposes and work in the following manner:

"To help win this world war, we present a practical plan, to really and organize, for continuous watch and ward work, the patriotic workers, in factories and other plants and establishments,—in the form of patriotic civic corps, of workers—especially to forestall incendiary fires and sabotage of the enemy plotters in our midst, who would thereby throw our men out of work and otherwise create unrest and turmoil.—If not civic strife. Every man or woman who would safeguard his or her job—every owner who would prevent the destruction of his plant or injury to its machinery or the products thereof,—should join in this common effort to detect the possible foe before such man do harm, either to his plant or a neighbor's; and to add this additional precaution to his present police or fire system,—and for helping such against an evil not heretofore contemplated."

All Plainfielders interested in the formation of a local branch of the Committee of '76 are required to fill out the accompanying blank and forward it to the New Jersey Committee of '76, 201 Essex building, Newark, N. J.:

"Being in accord with your objects, I hereby volunteer in the Patriotic Civic Corps, Local Branch No. ..

"I Pledge myself, by eternal vigilance, to help 'Ferret out' the Disloyal, and to Watch and Ward against Enemy Spies and hired Incendiaries, so as to prevent the destruction by Fire or Sabotage of the War Necessaries for our Soldiers, Sailors and Marines—'Over There.'

Council Getting Ready To Abandon Fire House

Men In No. 1 Building Will Be Sent To Headquarters And Apparatus With New Tractor Will be Used Only For Emergency Purposes

With the arrival of the new Ford tractor for No. 1 chemical hose wagon, it became known this week that the fire committee of the Common Council has practically completed all arrangements for abandoning the West Second street fire house. According to the tentative arrangements, Captain Vail and the men now located at

THE NEW FORD TRACTOR

Purchased by the Fire Committee to Haul No. 1 Chemical and Hose Wagon

that station are to be transferred to headquarters on East Second street. Later some of the privates, of whom there are four, may be sent to the outlying houses.

The No. 1 apparatus, as it has been stated, is also to be placed at headquarters and will be used only for emergency purposes. At the present time the company answers all box alarms between Richmond and Liberty streets. The decision to place the apparatus in the emergency class is one reason why the new tractor was purchased as the keeping of horses under the circumstances would prove too expensive.

The new tractor was a big disappointment to the fire department and citizens alike. It has anything but substantiability in its construction and when given a trial test unattached registered a maximum speed of only twelve miles an hour. The vehicle which it is to haul to Ires weighs about four tons with its full complement of men, consequently the firemen have their doubts about getting to a "shine" the same day it occurs. The motor is one of the ten Vail and the men now located at Ford chassis and developing only twenty-two horse power. The contract price was about $3900, but with certain "extras" the tractor will cost about $1,000.

John R. Cline, who has the work of installing the new engine in the Nott apparatus, is to connect the tractor to the fire wagon, but is waiting for parts and so far has not been able to do the work.

No official test can be made until this is done. In the meantime, the firemen in particular and the public in general is anxious to see what the tractor will really do.

In the event the men from No. 1 house being transferred to headquarters it will mean that considerable elespid space will have to be added to the latter building as the accommodations there are already overcrowded.

John Heron One Of Yankee Gunners In Action "Over There"

A brief cable dispatch received this week by Mr. and Mrs. James Heron, of West Sixth street, conveyed the information that their son, John Heron, is one of the American boys engaged in the heavy fighting at the French front. The brief message stated that the young Plainfielder, as a member of Company B, 101st Machine Gun battalion, had been on the firing line for two weeks but at the time of communication was back in the dugouts for a few days' rest.

The young gunner has been abroad since early last winter, following his enlistment with a cavalry squadron at New Britain, Conn., where he was employed at the time war was declared. Later the cavalry unit was changed to a machine gun battalion and intensive training was given the men "overseas." Mr. Heron is a graduate of the Plainfield High School in the class of 1914 and in civil life is an expert accountant. He is a brother of Thomas Heron, who went to Camp Dix on February 25 with sixty-seven other selected men from the Plainfield district.

Business Men Enjoy Dinner And Speeches

Members of the Business Men's Association and other citizens to the number of eighty-five in all enjoyed a banquet in the Masonic banquet room in the Babcock building last night, as a "house warming" of the association's new quarters also located in the Babcock building. The excellent menu provided by Caterer Robert Barnard received the highest commendation and placed everyone in a receptive mood for the after-dinner speeches which followed. These were given by Mayor Leighton Calkins, J. D. Loizeaux, Postmaster A. E. Hoagland and J. J. Varley. Morris C. Van Arsdale, president of the association, acted as toastmaster.

The committee which arranged the banquet was composed of C. L. Applegate, George J. Pinger and Kenneth H. Stuart.

At the regular monthly business meeting of the association held previous to the serving of dinner, the association decided to conduct a vigorous membership campaign and to take up the summer closing proposition at the next meeting.

No Cause For Action In Westfield Case

Remaining out less than an hour and a half, the jury hearing the case of George Manner, of Westfield, against Chief of Police John C. Rosecrans and Patrolman Martin Howarth, both of Westfield, in the Plainfield District Court yesterday, rendered a verdict at 9:15 last night of "no cause of action."

Manner asked $500 damages from each of the defendants, making four separate charges of assault and battery, unlawful imprisonment, illegal searching of his home and unlawfully taking his liquor paints. These alleged infractions took place after the plaintiff had been taken into custody by the Westfield police after the assault and robbery of R. S. Alpaugh, ticket agent at the Westfield railroad station. Manner was represented by Robert Newcorn, Esq., who conducted a most vigorous prosecution and the defendants were represented by former Prosecutor Alfred A. Stein, of Elizabeth.

The trial lasted all day and a large number of witnesses were produced by both sides, a number of them being Westfield's best known citizens.

The jury was composed of the following Plainfielders: George O. Stevens, Adam Blair, Walter Apgar, Chauncey Stout, Joseph Harrigan, James Taylor, Charles Higgins, Edward Dacey, John Oswald, Leslie Stewart, John J. Kennery and J. F. Heckman.

Thomas Duffy Dies Of Heart Failure

Thomas Duffy, aged forty years, died suddenly at his home at 463 West Front street shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. He was employed as conductor on the Arlington avenue trolley line and worked on the Netherwood division as, extra man up to 8 o'clock last night. He went to bed apparently in his usual health and was stricken shortly after midnight. He passed away before a physician could attend him. Heart failure is ascribed as the cause of death.

Mr. Duffy had always lived in Plainfield and was widely known. He had been working as trolley conductor for the past fifteen years. He leaves his wife, who was Miss Carroll, and four children. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made but the service will probably be held in St. Mary's church Monday morning.

Change In Ownership Of Hotel Property

A realty deal involving one of the best known pieces of property in Plainfield will be concluded this afternoon when Miss Caroline M. Rilling, of Harrison avenue, North Plainfield, will take title to the premises on Somerset street known as Blimm's Hotel. The transfer has been completed by Mrs. Lena Hoerster, of Somerset street, and occupied for many years by the Blimm family.

Miss Rilling is a stenographer employed in the office of DeMeza & Crane and it is believed that her part in the deal is to take title for another purchaser.

Lincoln Fraternity Elects New Officers

With the spirit of patriotism predominant, Abraham Lincoln Fraternity convened in its fourth annual business meeting, last night, with President Harry W. Swivel in the chair.

The meeting opened with a prayer read by President Swivel for the members of the "Frat" who are serving in the army and navy. These men are: Gwilym Lewis, Walter Murphy, Frederick A. Costales, J. Sayre Slauson, C. Ivan Hill, George Sutton, Walter Wentzel, Alex. D. Doig, James Blackley.

After the regular routine of business was disposed of the following officers were elected; President, Arthur L. Grisley; vice president, Clarence E. Tilley; secretary, William Percy Tilley; treasurer, Harry W. Swivel; members of executive committee, Leroy Cookman and Adrian Weed. All officers were unanimously elected and will be installed next Thursday night.

A. L. Grisley, business manager of "The Prattler," the proposed organ of the club, gave a most encouraging report. The booklet will contain much interesting matter about the "Frat" and pictures of past officers that will make a valuable souvenir for the many friends of the organization.

The meeting adjourned at a late hour, when the members went to The Central Restaurant on North avenue, where dinner was served.

Jacob Hilmm, of West Fifth street, returned home last night after a five days' stay in Boston.

Plainfield's Share Of Protectory Fund By Collection Only

Chairman Daniel J. Cousain and the sensing committee in charge of raising $2,00 of Plainfield's quota of the $300,000 fund to be secured in the Newark diocese for the Catholic Protectory at Arlington, have decided not to conduct a house-to-house canvass as was at first contemplated. Instead the money is to be raised only by a special "protectory" collection taken in St. Mary's church on Sunday, April 14. This will confine the effort strictly to Catholic people and probably prove more successful than if individual contributions were to be solicited in the form of a "drive."

Mr. Cousain, who is a member of the executive board of the Protectory, has been made chairman for Union county in the fund-raising plan. The county's quota is $30,000 and Elizabeth is already at work securing the major portion of this sum.

The Arlington Protectory was established in 1870 and recently has been caring for 350 homeless and wayward boys annually. A large number from Plainfield have been among those who have been taught the rudiments of a trade at the institution and started on the way to good citizenship. The study of France, the cost of living and the difficult task of carrying a long standing debt has made it necessary for the directors to appeal for the $300,000, if the good work is to continue. All Hudson, Essex, Passaic and Union county are included in the diocese working to raise the fund.

SPEEDERS FINED.

In the city court this morning fines of $3 each were imposed upon the following for speeding automobiles: Conrad Winckler, arrested by Officer McGinley and Garret Van Doren, of Newark, arrested by Officer Loerch. Ralph Kenning, of New Market, arrested by Officer Loerch for speeding on a motorcycle at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour, was also fined $3.

MISS HELEN OAKLEY.

Miss Helen Oakley, aged fifty-one years, died last night in Muhlenberg Hospital, where she had been since March 16 following an operation. Her home was at 241 West Seventh street. She leaves a cousin, Miss Sutton, who lives at the same address.

LOCAL NEWS IN BRIEF

Happenings of the Past Week Tersely Told For Busy Readers.

The North Plainfield Board of Education has reorganized for the coming year as follows: President, Dr. J. H. Cooley; vice president, Frank O. Dunning; clerk, Frank Rowley. This makes the twentieth year that Dr. Cooley has served as a member of the school body. In the appointment of committees, Ray V. Miller, the newly-elected member, was named in all places formerly held by William C. Krause.

St. Mary's Social Club has completed plans for the "Barn Dance" to be held in T. A. B. Hall next Tuesday night. The auditorium is to be appropriately decorated with corn shocks, and straw, and the young men and women attending are requested to wear "rube" costumes. An up-to-date Jazz orchestra will furnish a program of music with barn dances and old fashioned reels as a feature.

Despite the absence of many young athletes, who are going service in the army or navy, Plainfield will again have a city baseball league this summer. The opening date has been fixed for Saturday, May 4, and the league will be composed of six teams, representing the First Baptist church, Pond Machine Tool Works, Spicer Manufacturing Company, Y. M. C. A., Netherwood A. A. and Century A. A.

Miss Margaret Rice, of West Seventh street, driving her automobile at Seventh street and Park avenue, Sunday night, ran into a car owned and driven by R. C. Supples, of East Orange. Both cars were damaged.

The Newark Paving Company on Monday put a gang of men at work to finish up the brick paving on Park avenue, between Fourth and Fifth streets. This was left undone last fall because of the early approach of severe weather. It will probably require a month before the street is again opened to traffic. The work of repaving at the corner of Fourth street and Watchung avenue, where the Public Service put in new trolley rails and switches, is progressing rapidly.

The first grand ball of "The Firm" will be given in Debele's Hall next Friday night, April 12. Marks' Jazz orchestra will furnish music and a prize is to be awarded the couple judged to be the best novelty "one-steppers." The officers of "The Firm" are Frank Haberstroh, president, and George Barry, treasurer. The following will serve as a committee: William Barry, Francis Barry, Charles Barry, Harry Barry, Albert Coffee, Ray Coley, Dominick Petetti, Charles Burnet, William Traynor, Michael Farrell, James McGarthy, Joseph Regan, Peter Markey, Russell Day, Arthur Hall and Elmer Blimm.

The annual banquet of the Dutch Arms of Trinity Reformed church, which of necessity was postponed from the original date, has been fixed for Thursday night, April 18. Music will be furnished by the Dutch Arms orchestra and a special invitation is extended to the women friends of the organization to be present. The committee has received assurances that the following will be present as preachers: The Hon. Edmund Wilson, former Attorney General of New Jersey, and Rev. George C. Moor, D. D., pastor of the Baptist Temple, Brooklyn. Tickets may be secured from the B. Cole, at the Y. M. C. building, or from members of the banquet committee.

Roy Stewart and Walter Debele, who have conducted several delightful invitation dances in Debele's auditorium, will give another in the series in the same place tonight. A banjo orchestra will provide the music and the two promoters have assurances that a large number of young people will be present.

Miss Elsie Goddard will give a song recital at the Hartridge Auditorium, Saturday evening, April 27, under the auspices of the Belelan Relief Committee of the Red Cross. The proceeds will be used towards defraying the expenses of a motor plow for Mrs. Duryea's district in nothern France.

Supreme First Conductor Mrs. Nellie Kenyon, of Paterson, was a guest of honor at a dime social held by Princess Mary Lodge, Daughters of St. George, following the regular business meeting in Coward's Hall, Monday night. A program of vocal and instrumental music was enjoyed in the early part of the evening, after which members and friends of the lodge enjoyed a dance.

The Woman's League, of St. Joseph's church, is engaged in the making of a service flag to be presented the congregation in behalf of the young men of the parish now wearing Uncle Sam's uniform. As soon as the flag is completed, it will be formally unveiled with a suitable program. A decision to make the service banner was reached at a business meeting held this week, at the conclusion of which a social and literary entertainment was enjoyed. Among those contributing to the program were Miss Martha Simmons and Miss Dorothy Jacot, readings; Dorothy Sutton and Mrs. Hummell, piano selections, and Miss Tryphenia Mattox, recitations.

Brot Santa Lundstrum, of East Seventh street, has been granted an absolutet divorce from Karin Lundstrum, his wife, by Chancellor Walker. The divorce was granted on the grounds of desertion. Martin B. Stutsman was counsel for the petitioner.

Pierce Honored By County Bar As Term Begins

Judge Carlton B. Pierce, who on Monday took office as successor to Judge James C. Connolly, was tendered an informal reception in the Common Pleas court room Monday morning by members of the Union County Bar Association and county officials. He was somewhat surprised at the reception, not having been acquainted with the preparations, but after expressing his gratitude took advantage of the opportunity to make a short address concerning the manner in which he would conduct his office.

Surrogate Charles N. Codding acted as spokesman for the members of the bar association, many of whom were present. Mr. Codding's address was as follows:

"I have been requested by a number of the members of the bar of this county to come here this morning upon the occasion of the assumption by your honor of the important duties of judge of the various courts of this county and extend on behalf of them a cordial welcome and offer you the assurance of their hearty co-operation and support in your new position.

"The people of Union county, and especially the bar, are familiar with your long, distinguished and useful service in the legislative branch of our State government. Because of this familiarity with your past work there is a sense of satisfaction today in the minds of the people over your selection to administer and interpret for them the statutes of the State, in the formulation and enacting of many of which you have had an important part.

"I have had a peculiar opportunity to observe the attitude with which your honor is accustomed to approach public service of all kinds and it is an especial pleasure to me as an officer of one of the courts over which your honor will preside to know that I am to be associated with you in an official capacity. I wish and predict for you, sir, a career upon the bench which will result in added honors to yourself and great advantage to the people of Union county.

"As a material evidence of the cordiality of the bar toward you, I present in their behalf this beautiful gavel with the expectation, however, that the friendly spirit of the bar will make it unnecessary for you to ever use it with severity toward them."

In responding Judge Pierce announced several changes that he is to make in the method of court procedure as being conducive of better results. The first concerns the Orphans' Court and makes it necessary for papers in ex parte applications to be left at the office of the surrogate the day before they are to be brought up in court. The change will save time and also insure correctness in the papers.

In regulating the hours at which he will sit, Judge Pierce made several changes. On court day the session will start at 9:30 and continue until 12:30 and in the afternoon will be from 1:30 until 3:30. Heretofore court opened at 10 o'clock and closed at 4 o'clock. The judge's remarks were as follows:

"It is a pleasure to be so cordially greeted. I approach my duties with diffidence, but with the purpose to maintain the best standards.

"The duty of a judge, as I conceive it, is to try to arrive at the truth—and then apply the law, tempering it with equity in civil matters, and with mercy in criminal cases.

"Justice can be attained only by bringing out the facts. When occasion requires, I shall try to help to that end—for it is important that justice be done, and unimportant which side of a controversy wins.

"I suggest a slight change in orphans' court practice, in itself suggested by the surrogate; that where possible the papers in ex parte applications be left with the surrogate the day before the application—the matters to go at the head of the calendar and be disposed of as reached. The change will save both time for the attorney and insure the correctness of the papers.

"Friday, as heretofore, will be court day. Lunacy proceedings at 9:30, orphans' court at 10, with miscellaneous matters following; arraignments and sentences at 2 o'clock.

"Court will open promptly at the appointed hour—trial sessions to run from 9:30 until 12:30, and from 1:30 to 3:30. For the present my office, with telephone connection, will be at the court house, where I will be in attendance through the stated terms, and on Friday from 8:30 through the day, and Mondays and Wednesday from 8:30 to 10, and as much longer as I can be of service.

"Until I become familiar with the routine of the office I beg the consideration of the bar.

"My wish is, and in this I rely unreservedly upon the co-operation of the bar, to conduct business in an orderly way, with deliberation but without waste motion, to the end that the influence and standing of the court may be second to none in the State."

The gavel which Mr. Codding presented to the judge on behalf of his associates was of inlaid mahogany with a solid silver band around the top. There were also a number of floral pieces. One large basket of red roses was from the Bar Association and there were bouquets from former State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, John J. Cushing and the prosecutor's office and staff.
